DAMAGE SUITS PENDING AGAINST CORPORATIONS PASS THE MILLION MARK

Huge Sums Are Asked in Personal Injury Cases.

Full Verdicts Might Bankrupt Some of the Companies.

Some Insurance Companies Refuse to Take Risks Here.

Damage cases for death or personal injuries with claims totalling over $30,778 have been filed in the district court of St. Louis county during the month of April, for trial at the coming May term of the court. This amount, over half a million dollars, does not begin to cover the total of claims, for the reason that there are many other damage cases instituted in the district court in which the complaints have not yet been filed and in which the information is not yet available.

It is probable that the total of damages asked in cases filed this month alone is in the neighborhood of $650,000 to $700,000.

Taking into consideration the personal injury cases filed during the month of March for trial at the May

URGE ROOSEVELT TO RUN AGAIN

Hundreds of Letters Received at White House Daily.

Washington, April 30.—That between three and four hundred letters are received daily at the White House urging President Roosevelt to run again, is asserted on good authority. These letters come from all parts of the country, it is said, from members of all political parties, and in them various arguments are used by the voters to induce Mr. Roosevelt to again accept a nomination.

The letters have increased in volume in the last few weeks, and some of them are said to be almost tragic in their earnestness. The writers argue that the president is in the thick of his campaign for the establishment of complete government control over interstate commerce and other reforms; that it is impossible to transfer this work successfully to another, since Mr. Roosevelt's personality is a powerful factor in achieving this success; that the Republican party cannot afford to nominate any man who is not sure of election, and that the president is the only Republican who should be certain to defeat any other candidate.

In all of his replies to such letters the president simply reminds his correspondents of his former declarations on the subject, and reiterates that his position is unchanged.

HANGS HIMSELF, USING A WIRE

Hotel Keeper at Warren, Marshall County, Ends His Spree.

Warren, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Lindquist, proprietor of the Scandinavian hotel here for the past eight years, twisted a wire around his neck, Wednesday afternoon, fastened the other end to a nail on the wall of the barn loft, pulled up his feet and hanged himself.

The hired man, who went to throw down hay for the cow, found the body about 8 o'clock last night. Lindquist was 40 years old, and leaves five children and a wife. The last is in the hospital.

He was well thought of, but had been drinking heavily for three weeks. So far as known he had no family trouble. He was well-to-do. The people here are greatly shocked over the event.

CANNOT FIND HIS SAVINGS

...cago, April 3.—A life-long rule, ... to discuss money affairs with ... wife, was not broken by P. S. ... as on his deathbed at Waukesterday. Now Mrs. Williams is ...ering what her husband did with ...is savings. It is known that he invested in stock of a coffee plantation. ...ts name is a mystery.

...Williams, who was a foreman of air ...kes on the Milwaukee branch of the ...chicago & Northwestern railroad, had been ill for several days. When his condition became serious he seemed to be trying to tell where his money was.

As a result of Williams' fixed habit, his widow is practically without funds, while she knows that she should be entitled to a considerable sum of money.

POWER IS ENORMOUS

Which Has Been Developed From Water of Appalachian Range.

Only Trouble Found is Low Water in the Summer.

Washington, April 30.—The greatest development of water power that has ever taken place in the United States has been accomplished during the last few years on the rivers which drain the Southern Appalachian mountains, according to an official report on the water resources in this region. It is estimated that there are at least 2,800,000 indicated horse power developed by the streams which have their head waters on this watershed and more than half of this indicated

SHOPMEN IN IOWA STRIKE

May Tie Up Mechanical Departments of Iowa Central.

Marshalltown, Iowa, April 30.—One hundred Iowa Central carmen and blacksmiths struck yesterday afternoon, immediately following the posting of a notice that a new working schedule had been put into effect. It is expected that the boilermakers will go out today, thus completing the strike in all mechanical departments of the road.

At Forge Dodge 100 injunctions have been issued by the courts against individual strikers, to prevent their interference in any way with the operation of the stucco mills and men here. The strikers were following the imported men to their living quarters and persuading them to quit.

FROSTS KILL GREEN STUFF

Cold Weather Does Damage in Wisconsin and Southern Minnesota.

La Crosse, Wis., April 30.—A killing frost is reported today throughout Western Wisconsin and Southern Minnesota. Thousands of acres of garden truck, hundreds of flower beds and other green products were blasted by the frost and ruined for the season. Strawberry plants are frozen and wilted. Currant bushes and fruit trees, which weer covered with buds, were killed for the season and will bear no fruit this year. The frost means a loss of many thousands of dollars in this section.

ARBITRATION OPPOSED BY THE COAL MINERS

Kansas City, April 30.—T. L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, prior to the meeting of the joint subcommittee, said today:

"The coal miners are opposed to arbitration. It is a fad. In the opinion of the miners, based upon experience, arbitration as exemplified by the selection of a third party to a dispute who is supposed to be impartial, but who knows nothing about the question in dispute, never settled permanently any labor controversy, or any other controversy. When the faddists get through proposing things, the men who have cold propositions to present will begin. I look for an early settlement of the strike of the Southwestern miners."

The operators have persistently held out for arbitration of differences. Their proposition was that the president of the Southwestern Association of Coal Operators and President Lewis agree upon a third person, some impartial outsider, who would settle the differences.

President Lewis, in an interview this morning, said that he thought the differences between the miners and operators of Western Pennsylvania and Northern Colorado would be settled today.

JOHNSON'S CHANCES FOR NOMINATION AT DENVER EXCELLENT, SAYS LYNCH

Believes Bryan Will Have Between 400 and 500 Votes Against Him.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frederick B. Lynch, treasurer of the Minnesota Democratic state committee, and head of the Johnson campaign headquarters, is in Washington with a whole lot of proof that William Jennings Bryan will not be able to show up as strong at the Denver convention as will his candidate, the Minnesota executive.

"I believe Mr. Bryan will have considerably less than one-half of the delegates to Denver instructed for him," said Mr. Lynch. "I do not say that Governor Johnson will have all of the uninstructed delegates, but I believe the majority of the uninstructed will be for Governor Johnson. There will be between 400 and 500 votes cast against Mr. Bryan on the first ballot. I do not say they will all be pledged to Johnson, but they will be votes for some other candidate than Bryan, and Johnson will get most of them. Virtually all of the New Eingland states, New York, Pennsylvania, all of the coast states and gulf states, with the exception of Alabama, Mississippi and Texas, will send uninstructed delegates to the Democratic convention at Denver.

"Included in this list of uninstructed delegates will be those from Michigan, Ohio and probably from most of the mountain and West coast states. This is the information which comes to us from the most reliable sources, and as the result of our careful investigation of conditions we know that Governor Johnson is second choice of Illinois, North Dakota and a considerable portion of the Indiana and Kansas delegations. In the latter state, especially, there has been almost a complete revulsion of sentiment on the presidential situation since the indorsement of Mr. Bryan, and I think the result in Kansas would be different if the convention had been held today.

"We are conducting from the Johnson headquarters in Chicago a campaign of publicity only. We are simply endeavoring to acquaint the Democratic voters with Governor Johnson, his life and his political record. The response which we have received to the many thousands of letters we have sent out has been very gratifying and we have received many offers of support for Governor Johnson from unexpected sources."

When asked about the conventions in North Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois, Mr. Lynch said:

"The convention in North Dakota was held two weeks after Johnson had been announced as a candidate by the Minnesota Democratic committee. Bryan's friends had been at work for months. We had about one-third of the 600 delegates, but could not carry the convention, and therefore preferred to make it a unanimous indorsement of Bryan.

"Wisconsin held its convention and pledged the delegates to Bryan six weeks before Johnson was a candidate. The Iowa state central committee indorsed Bryan in February, a month before Johnson was a candidate. The leaders of the party in Iowa were committed to Bryan, and we got in there too late. I believe Illinois will vote for Johnson if a favorable opporeunity occurs. As it is, he is the second choice of the delegation."

Mr. Lynch saw most of the Southern and Eastern senators and represen-

MISSING MAN'S BODY IS FOUND IN WOODS.

Marquette, Mich., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The mystery of the disappearance of Herbert James, a Negaunee young man, has been solved, by the discovery of his corpse in the woods. His mind becoming deranged he wandered away Dec. 7, and died from exposure.

The Matsushima Sinks While Anchoring in Makang Harbor.

Many of the Officers and Crew Lose Their Lives.

Sons of Prominent Officials Were Cadets on the Vessel.

Tokio, April 30.—Admiral Yoshimatsu, commander of the training squadron, reports that an explosion occurred in the stern magazine of the cruiser Matsushima at 4:08 o'clock this morning while anchoring at Makang, a harbor on the Pescadores islands.

The Matsushima immediately sank until only the bridge was visible.

Efforts at rescue by boats from the cruiser Itaskushima continued until 9 a. m., saving the lives of 141 men, including some officers.

The majority of the officers were not saved, and at the time of the admiral's report the cadets numbered fifty-eight out of a complement of 300.

The sons of Baron Chinda, vice minister of the foreign office, and of Prince Oyama, field marshal, are among the cadets who it is feared are lost, also Captains Name, Yoshmori and Yashiro. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

Takahira Hears of Tragedy.

Washington, April 30.—Baron Takahira, the Japanese embassador, was just about to start for the state department today, when a representative of the Associated Press showed him the dispatch from Tokio telling of the loss of life by an explosion on the cruiser Matsushima. It was the first news the ambassador had received of the tragedy and he expressed deep regret over the occurrence.

With their usual caution and criticism, the naval officers at Tokio are evidently obtaining all the information possible before giving out any full report of the disaster. No report of the explosion reached the navy department during the morning from the American naval attache at Tokio.

Naval officers who at once looked up the record of the cruiser, drew the conclusion that her loss was not a

RUN OVER BY TRAIN

Man Supposed to be From Wisconsin Killed at St. Paul.

Rolled Beneath Wheels While Trying to Board Car.

St. Paul, April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—An unidentified man, supposed to be Anton Arans of Sun Prairie, Wis., was instantly killed in the union depot sheds last night, being run over by a train. The body was severed at the waist and the lower half of the body crushed to a pulp under the wheels. Coroner A. W. Miller was notified and ordered the remains taken to the county morgue.

About 8 o'clock, just as the train bound for Milwaukee and Wisconsin points was pulling out of the station, a stranger dashed madly through the gates and ran after the train. He caught the hand rail of one coach, and as he was trying to pull himself up, lost his hold and fell, rolling beneath the trucks. When the train had passed, his mangled body was found crushed up against the platform, with his feet and legs distributed for fifty feet down the tracks.

From papers found in his pockets it is thought the man was acquainted in Portage and Columbus, Wis., and the authorities in those towns were notified by Dr. Miller last night. The body at the morgue is that of a man about 35 years of age. His clothing was of good worsted material, his shoes new and made by Barton Bros. of Kansas City, Mo. One of his coats bore the mark A. M. Bellack, Columbus, Wis. A Milwaukee road ticket from St. Paul to Portage, Wis., showed the man's destination.

WANTS POLICE TO PROTECT HER

English Woman Suffragist Says Officers Are Negligent.

New York, April 30.—Mrs. Berrman Wells, the English suffragist, has complained to the police about the treatment she and a companion received in Harlem a night or two ago, when they attempted to address a street crowd. Mrs. Wells demands police protection for her next Harlem meeting, set for the coming Monday night.

"The way we were treated in Harlem is a disgrace to the city," said Mrs. Wells. "A dozen times while I was moving about in the crowd I was tripped up or knocked down. Mrs. Harriett Stanton Blatch, who was with me, was also knocked down and kicked. I appealed to several men to protect me, but their only replies were jeers.

"I have addressed meetings in some of the worst parts of London, but I have never had such an experience. We don't mind how much fun is made of us, but it is a disgrace to American manhood when a woman is permitted to be knocked down and kicked in a public street."

DO NOT WANT DOUKHOBORS

Yorkton Citizens Decline to Allow Them to Leave Cars.

Winnipeg, Man., April 30.—The citizens of Yorkton declined to allow the seventy-one Doukhobors, shipped from Fort William back to the West to leave the cars, which are now guarded by mounted police. Several of the Doukhobors are nude and do not hesitate to sit before the windows in view of the crowd of sightseers. All of the "Douks" are living on a diet of peanuts and apples.

BUSY DAY FOR THE CATHOLICS

Program Provides Something for Nearly Every Hour.

New York, April 30.—The program for this, the fourth, day of the celebration of the centenary of Catholicity in New York, provided something for almost every hour of the day. There was a solemn mass this morning at the cathedral for the deceased priests and prelates of the diocese. Bishop O'Connor of Newark was the celebrant, and Auxiliary Bishop Cusack of New York delivered an eulogy. Earlier in the day, at 8 o'clock, many of the prelates, including Cardinal Logue, attended a service in Holy Cross church, Mgr. McCready, rector, in honor of the reunion of former students of old Maynooth college, Ireland. There are nearly 250 priests in the country who have been educated in that institution, among them Mgr. McCready and Rev. Morgan M. Sheedy of Altoona. They will give a dinner this afternoon at the Hotel Astor, at which an address will be presented by Cardinal Logue. This evening there will be a reception at the Catholic club. The festivities will close Saturday with a procession.

HUGHES IN TO THE FINISH

Name Will Not be Withdrawn Until Some One is Nominated.

New York, April 30.—The name of Governor Charles E. Hughes will not be withdrawn from the presidential canvass until the national convention at Chicago has made its choice of candidates. This statement was made today by Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, president of the Hughes league of the United States, who presided at a conference of delegates elected to the national convention from New York state at the Hotel Astor today, called in the interest of Governor Hughes' candidacy.

It had been reported that the announcement of the withdrawal of the governor's name as a candidate for the presidency might be announced at today's conference but this was positively denied by Gen. Woodford, who said:

"Any statement from any source that Governor Hughes' name will be withdrawn from the presidential canvass is absolutely without foundation. He has never sought the presidency. There is no living man whose support he has asked. He consented to the use of his name, and his name is at the service of our party until the convention has made its decision. If nominated he will do his best to secure the victory of our party in November. If not nominated he will have no regrets and will remain as always, a loyal Republican. He is today far more interested in securing needed legislation in New York than he is in any possible candidacy for any office."

CALENDAR IS BIG ONE

Over 200 Cases Noticed for Trial in May Term.

Thirty-Eight Applications for Divorces Before District Court.

More than 200 cases have been noted for trial at the May term of the district court, which will begin next Wednesday morning.

The calendar, which was placed in the hands of the printers today, shows a total of 21 cases for court and jury trial. Some of these may be stricken or continued, but there are likely to be enough new cases moved on to keep the total pretty close around the number mentioned.

Of the 210 cases referred, 155 are new actions and fifty-five were continued over from previous terms. There are thirty-eight divorce cases for trial next week. This is probably the largest divorce calendar in the history of the county. The March calendar had nearly as many similar actions, and five of them were continued over to the coming term.

There will be 138 cases for jury trial and thirty-four for trial by the judges, outside of the divorce actions.

Following are the lists of grand and petit jurors for the May term:

Grand Jurors—Henry Cleveland, D. A. Blakeney, William Clifford, G. D. Swift, M. L. Jenks, B. H. Ober, I. S. Moore, John Grandy, D. E. Woodbridge, R. B. Knox, A. M. Miller, C. D. Fitzsimmons, E. N. Benjamin Fay Mills Coming.

News has been received of the coming of Benjamin Fay Mills of the Fellowship Society of Los Angeles and a lecturer of national fame. Mr. Mills will be remembered as having given a series of lectures here about a year ago on Emerson, Whitman and Bhagavad Gita at Steinway hall and drawing large audiences on each occasion, although three lectures were given each day, one at 8 a. m., another at 4 p. m., and an evening lecture at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Mills is planning on being here but two days, May 20 and 21, and will give a series of lectures on those days on "The Higher Psychology" and "The Principles and Practice of Spiritual Healing."

Lieutenant Governor Will Speak at Swedish M. E. Church Concert.

Lieutenant Governor Eberhardt will deliver a lecture this evening at the First M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street, this evening, when in addition there will be given an elaborate musical program.

The lieutenant governor is said to be a very interesting and forceful speaker, and he will doubtless be greeted by a large audience. His topic has not been announced. Mayor Haven will be present and will introduce the speaker of the evening.

Alex Enna, choir director of the church, has the concert in charge. The choir of twenty-two voices will sing a number of choruses, and Miss Mable Fulton and Mr. Enna will sing a duet and solos. Mr. Bergh of Superior will give a violin solo.

The man who has a perpetual grouch is often surprised to find it reflected in those he meets. Just think of the times when everything seems to go wrong—those days when one is accused of having got out of bed the wrong side. LIBERALS HOLD A LOVE FEAST

Gather at London Reform Club to Welcome New Premier.

London, April 30.—The Liberals held a party love feast at the Reform club this morning to welcome their new chief, Premier Asquith, and give him an opportunity of publishing a declaration of his policy. Resolutions of loyalty to Mr. Asquith were adopted by accamation, after which the premier proceeded to outine his program. He nailed to the mast the flags of free trade, education, licensing and old-age pensions, but he fought the subject of home rule. This subject was not mentioned at all in his speech, and in this fact is found confirmation of the rumors current during and since the election campaign in the Northwest division of Manchester that the premier had notified Winston Spencer Churchill, who has just been defeated in that district of his disapproval of Mr. Churchill's pledges to the Nationalists regarding home rule. Mr. Asquith did not enunciate any new principles in his address.

WOLF CUBS CAPTURED

New Duluth Men Make Rich Haul on Wisconsin Shore.

Capture Eighteen Cubs and Kill Full Grown Wolf.

Nineteen wolves captured or shot on the Wisconsin shore of the St. Louis river, just opposite New Duluth, represent the labors of Charles Hicks and George Lee of New Duluth, during the last few days.

While the light snow that fell the first of this week, covered the ground, the two men tracked the wolves and discovered their lairs. In one den there were six, in another five, and in a third seven wolf cubs. The other wolf was a full grown brute, which fell victim to their rifles.

Of the eighteen cubs seven were taken alive and the others were killed. The seven that are alive are not more than ten days old and are little round, soft-haired cubs.

Carrying the seven live cubs, kicking and squealing, in a pack sack, the two men arrived in West Duluth this morning on their way to Superior. Owing to the fact that all of the wolves were shot or captured on the Wisconsin side, they will have to be taken to Superior to secure the bounty.

Hicks and Lee say that last spring they caught and killed thirteen cubs in the same way.

FAINTS AT FUNERAL.

William Doherty Falls Senseless on the Church Steps.

Overcome with grief at the loss of his mother, the realization that he would never see her, coming more forcibly than ever this morning, William Doherty, fell in a faint on the steps of the St. James' church after the funeral services for his mother, Mrs. Bridget Doherty.

Besides the grief over the loss of his mother, the young man has been worrying over the silence of his sister in the West, who has not responded to the telegram telling her of her mother's death. Nothing has been heard from the sister for some months and they are uncertain where she may be.

A little crowd of sympathizing friends gathered about the boy and soon revived him.

Many were the sorrowing friends who thronged St. James' church this morning, to pay their last respects to Mrs. Doherty whom they all loved and esteemed. The casket was covered with many beautiful flowers.

RULE IS SUSPENDED.

Funeral of Lieutenant Briggs to be Held on Sunday Afternoon.

At the special request of the police department the funeral of Lieut. Arthur Briggs will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Holy Apostle's Episcopal church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Elinor street. This deviation from the rule of Duluth cemeteries prohibiting Sunday funerals is due to the great popularity of the dead officer and the great many friends who wish to attend the funeral who could not on a week day.

The funeral service will be read by Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, and Sergeants Gillon, Kenna, Weber, Wilcox and Walsh and Officer Herman Toewe will be the pallbearers. The funeral will be in charge of the police department.

SHADE TREE CAMPAIGN

Thousands of Trees Are Now Being Planted in Duluth.

Seventeen Blocks Along Greysolon Road and Jefferson Street.

This is an active spring in the tree planting line in Duluth. The city is going into the business on a large scale, and two or three thousand trees will be planted before the first of June.

Greysolon road and Jefferson street will receive the largest benefits in this direction, but there are various other streets and avenues about town that will also receive attention. Jefferson street and Greysolon road together will be planted with trees on both sides for a total distance of seventeen blocks.

Men are now engaged in setting out trees. The work along Jefferson street is practically completed and crews are now busy with Greysolon road. Along Tioga street trees will be planted for a distance of four blocks on both sides of the street.

Aside from the work being done by the board of public works and the park commissioners, citizens in general are showing an unusual interest in the movement, and there is already demand for young shade trees in all parts of Duluth for use on private property. This will be one of the best springs in the history of Duluth, so far as the planting of trees is concerned. Probably the number set out will exceed the total of any previous season.

A variety of trees are being used for the purpose. Among the leaders are elms and box elders. Mountain ash is also in considerable demand, although not very easy to get. The latter does not attain to a very great size, but the effect of its red berries against a profusion of green leaves is very pleasing to the eye. The elms and box elders are of somewhat slow growth, but they are admirable for the purpose intended.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATES

New York, April 30.—The majority of the delegates from this state elected by the various congressiona districts to the Republican national convention at Chicago in June, gathered at the Hotel Astor today in answer to a call sent out by Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, Seth Low and Frederick R. Hazzard, three of the four delegates-at-large, elected at the recent state convention. The object of the conference was not outlined in the call, except that the delegates were asked to come prepared to stay over until tomorrow, "long enough to map out a well-defined plan of campaign." E. H. Butler of Buffalo, the fourth delegate-at-large, is in Europe and his name was not signed to the call.

Six of the thirty-seven congressional districts have not yet elected delegates to Chicago. Of the sixty-six delegates, forty-four have been instructed for Governor Hughes. The delegates-at-large were instructed by the state convention to use all honorable means to bring about Governor Hughes' nomination for president.

England's Navy the Best.

England not only possesses the biggest and most powerful warships, but also has afloat the fastest fleet of destroyers in the world. They also make the claim that they are more nearly ready for war than any other nation. The claim that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a wonderful remedy for ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels is clearly proven by its record of cures made during the past fifty-four years, but it will be more clearly proven to you, individually, if you will only try one bottle as soon as you notice any symptoms of sick headache, loss of appetite, dyspepsia, indigestion, costiveness, biliousness, kidney troubles, sleeplessness, female ills, general weakness or malaria, fever and ague. Insist on having Hostetter's, and don't accept any substitute. All druggists.

HOMESTEADER KILLED.

Bowman, N. D., April 30.—A shocking accident occurred at Roscoe, S. D. Henry Ersland, having a homestead about twelve miles south of here, was shipping his goods from Engleville, N. D., to Bowman, and while the train had stopped at Roscoe, Mr. Ersland had been inside his car and in passing through between the cars the train suddenly started, jerking the unfortunate man backward. He endeavored to jump from his perilous position when he was caught and hurled under the trucks, where his feet were completely severed.

Mr. Ersland was immediately taken to the hospital in Aberdeen, where death soon relieved his sufferings.

McClintock and Stanley E. Lathrop Sixth ward member, to succeed George Merrill, resigned. John Canovan has been appointed to succeed George Cook on the fire board.

DROWNS IN SMALL DEPTH.

Blue Earth, Minn, April 30.—Mrs. Ina Anderson, wife of Harry Anderson of Barber township, ten miles northeast of this city, committed suicide by jumping into a twelve-foot water tank located near the house. About fifteen minutes elapsed before the body was found in six feet of water.

READY FOR INSPECTION

Additional Health Inspectors Will Begin Work Next Monday.

Will See That Citizens Do Proper Cleaning Work.

Clean up" will be the slogan of the health department, beginning next Monday.

Six or eight inspectors will be added to the regular force, whose duty it will be to thoroughly cover the city and see that the people are giving the proper attention to cleaning their yards and other premises.

Where it is found that residents are slow in cleaning up unsightly spots the inspectors will remind them of what is expected, and later on will make another visit to see that their instructions have been carried out. If they have not been followed steps will be taken to make the offenders do as ordered.

Alleys, side streets, gutters, front and back yards, etc., will be ordered thoroughly cleaned. The health department will give the matter close attention and Commissioner Patton says he intends to see that necessary work is done whenever cleaning is required.

Mayor Haven has not yet named a city cleaning day, but when proper weather conditions permit he will set aside some special day when everybody will be expected to lend a helping hand and give the city such a scouring as it has never enjoyed before. The lateness of the spring and summer seasons in Duluth makes a certain tardiness in cleaning necessary in many instances, and this fact will be taken into consideration by the health department. Under piles of refuse, for example, there is still considerable ice, and the ground is not thoroughly thawed out in numerous places. All this makes the proper cleaning work rather difficult.

The health inspectors will have a special eye to sanitary conditions, and will insist that the proper sanitary precautions be taken in all parts of the city. The campaign will be a thorough one and is sure to productive of good results.

CANADIAN IRON ORE.

Extensive Body Reporte 100 Miles West of Fort William.

Fort William, Ont., April 30.—The existence of an extensive body of iron ore in the district traversed by the Canadian Pacific railway about 100 miles west of here has been pretty thoroughly demonstrated. The country has been a mecca for prospectors for several months and the reports that have been coming in from them at various times indicate that there is something in the line of ore which should prove of very great value to the country. No less than ninety-two claims have lately been registered with Mining Recorder J. W. Morgan from that district and all declare the existence of hematite ore. Some samplaes have been brought in for exhibition and show the ore to be of very high quality.

FRUIT NOT DAMAGED.

Zanesville, Ohio, April 30.—A heavy snow storm has been raging here since last midnight. It is not thought that the fruit crop on this section has been materially damaged as yet.

PLANT TREES AND CLEAN UP, FARGO'S FRIDAY PROGRAM.

Fargo, N. D., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow will be a busy day in Fargo, being a combination of Arbor and "clean-up" days. The first is on the proclamation of Governor Burke and the second on that of Mayor Elliott, he being backed up by the recently organized Civic Improvement league. Efforts will be made not only to plant trees but to make the city more attractive and sanitary. The league has secured the co-operation of the school children. It will be the first formal effort ever attempted in the state, and considerable interest is taken in the movement.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Congregational Brotherhood Choose J. H. Main First President.

Detroit, April 30.—President J. H. Main of Iowa college at Grinnell, Iowa, was today elected the first president of the Congregational Brotherhood of America, which is holding its first convention in this city. President Main was chairman of the committee of twenty-nine which had charge of the preliminary plans for the organization. Other officers were chosen as follows:

Vice presidents—W. R. Moody, Northfield, Mass., and H. M. Beardsley, Kansas City.

The board of directors includes Judge C. A. Rose and Rev. Henry Faville of Wisconsin; R. Leavitt, Iowa; Frank Pearson, North Dakota; E. H. Warren, Michigan; Charles J. Hunt, Minnesota, and Rev. Ozrah Davis, Connecticut.

MAY TABLE SECOND VREELAND MEASURE.

Washington, April 30.—The house committee on banking and currency had a brief meeting today, but declined to proceed for the purpose of taking up the new Vreeland currency bill. The vote for adjournment stood 12 to 3, the negative votes being cast by Messrs. Burton, Wekks and McKinney. The negative votes are supposed to represent the strength of the new bill and it is inferred that that measure will be tabled as was the first Vreeland bill if it ever reached a vote in committee. The bill was not discussed at any length today, most of the members claiming that they had not had time to read it and others saying that it was the old bill in new form.

COLD IN IOWA.

Oskaloosa, Iowa, April 30.—The mercury went down to 27 degs. last night. Fruit growers differ as to the extent of damage done.

FRANK IS COMING HOME SOON, SAYS MRS. GOULD.

New York, April 30.—In a statement at the Gould home, Mrs. Frank Gould said: "This is the first statement I have made since the newspapers began to manage my affairs, two weeks ago. The papers started suits for my husband and myself—suits of which we knew nothing. The truth of the matter is that Mr. Gould went away for a rest. He is in Hot Springs. I have been in communication with him almost daily since he left.

"He was to return yesterday, but decided to stay a few days longer. His home is here. It is open for him if he cares to come to it. He has every legal right in the world to come here, and I expect he will return."

In response to a question about their being reconciled, Mrs. Gould continued: "Reconciled? Why, there was nothing to reconcile. Our relations are not in the least strained.

"All the stuff that has been printed about interviews with me and my husband has been rot."

WOMEN WHO BELIEVE IN PERUNA

Honest Women Who Are Not Afraid to Tell the Truth About Pe-ru-na.

MRS. F. E. HENDERSON

Since I have used Peruna I have a splendid appetite, enjoy life and perfect health.

The Value of Health.

Who can set a money value on health? It is absolutely priceless.

No one in good health can fully appreciate what it means to have poor health. The days are long and tedious. The nights horrible and painful. Nothing goes right. Even the mind becomes deranged and injured by continued poor health.

Once liberated from the thraldom of sickness words fail to express the joy and relief.

Peruna has been the means of relieving more women from ill health in the United States than, perhaps, any other medicine.

A multitude of women stand ready to give testimony in favor of Peruna whenever occasion offers.

Dyspepsia Entirely Relieved.

Miss Lillie C. Martin, Shelbyville, Tenn., writes: "Everybody says I look better than I have for two or three years, and I sincerely thank you for your kind advice.

"I believe your treatment has entirely cured me. I can eat anything I want. I believe your remedies will cure any case of indigestion or dyspepsia."

Caught Cold Easily.

Mrs. F. E. Henderson, 221 Ninth St., Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"I never had any faith in patent medicines until I tried Peruna, but my experience with this reliable medicine has taught me that there is one which can be trusted, and which will not fail in time of need.

"For the past few years I have found that I caught cold easily, which would settle in a most unpleasant catarrh of the head. I had to be especially careful about being out of evenings, and not to get chilled when dressed thin for parties, but since I have used Peruna my general health is improved, and my system is in such good condition that even though I am exposed to inclement weather it no longer affects me.

"I have a splendid appetite and enjoy life, being in perfect health."

Pe-ru-na Tablets.

For two years Dr. Hartman and his assistants have labored incessantly to create Peruna in tablet form, and their strenuous efforts have just been crowned with success. People who object to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna tablets. These tablets represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna, and each tablet is equivalent to one average dose.

Mrs. Josephine Holst, 162 E. First St., Portland, Or., Vice President Northern Star, writes that she was troubled seriously with catarrh of the throat, and had neglected it until it had become chronic. Peruna was called to her attention. She began using it and was wonderfully helped in two weeks, and in a little over two months Peruna had successfully rid her system of all traces of catarrh.

MISS HELEN SAUERBIER

Head and Throat.

Miss Helen Sauerbier, 815 Main St., St. Joseph, Mich., writes:

"Last winter I caught a sudden cold which developed into an unpleasant catarrh of the head and throat, depriving me of my appetite and usual good spirits.

"A friend who had been cured by Peruna advised me to try it and I sent for a bottle at once, and I am glad to say that in three days the phlegm had loosened, and I felt better, my appetite returned, and within nine days I was in my usual good health."

DECISION IN THE HOYT LAND CASE IS REVERSED

Court of Appeals Decides in N. P. Land Grant Cases.

Decision Affirmed in Campbell Case—Appeal Will be Taken.

Notice has been received by interested parties in Duluth of two important decisions affecting gthe status of the title to lands within the Northern Pacific Railroad company's grant. The cases, Hoyt vs. Weyerhaeuser, et. al, and Campbell vs. the same, were decided by Judge Morris in March, 1907, and in each case, the bill of complaint was dismissed. The court of appeals reversed the decision of Judge Morris in the Hoyt case and affirmed that in the Campbell case, establishing Hoyt's claim to the land, but concurring in Judge Morris' decision that Campbell had no claim. Both cases will be appealed to the supreme court of the United States, the Hoyt case by the defendants and the Campbell case by the plaintiff.

The cases grow out of the grant of land in the indemnity limits of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, the later sale under sequestration to the Northern Pacific Railway company and a subsequent disposal to the Weyerhaeuser interests of a large portion of the land. The decisions are of interest to many people, on account of involving the rights of settlers and occupants and claimants under the timber and stone act. The cases, on which the decisions were rendered, involved the question of whether the particular pieces of land, which were within the indemnity limits of the Northern Pacific Railway company, came under the provisions of the law passed by congress July 1, 1898. The act provided that any person having claim to land as either a settler or occupant or had any claim on the land, retained that claim, the grantees to have the right to take up an equal area in some other location. The department held that the law applied only to those who had claims as settlers or claimants prior to Jan. 1, 1898, and still maintained them and that under the timber and stone act, it applied to only those, who had proved up claims and paid for them prior to Jan. 1, 1898.

In the Hoyt case, application for the land was made Dec. 27, 1897, but the land was not paid for until December, 1898. The secretary of the interior held that because the land was not paid for until after Jan. 1, 1898, the claimant had no title under the law. In the Campbell case application was also made prior to Jan. 1, 1898, but on account of a contest the claimant was prevented from paying for it, and proceedings were suspended by the secretary of the interior. The secretary of the interior held that neither party had any rights under the law of 1898.

In the United States district court Judge Morris upheld the constructions of the department of the interior, in that, as the land was not paid for before Jan. 1, 1898, the claimants had no title. In the decision of the court of appeals, it is held that in the Hoyt case, since the land was paid for, the claimant had title, but in the Campbell case, since no money was paid, the claimant had no rights.

The decision and ultimate result of the cases will have a bearing on other claims of the same nature, and may affect the entire timber and stone act. Whether an application is sufficient to hold rights to land, or whether the land must be proved up and money paid in order to hold title under such acts as that of July, 1898, is also a question.

COOKS AND WAITERS MAY STRIKE SATURDAY

Unless the proprietors of the hotels and restaurants sign a contract by 11 o'clock tomorrow night, pledging themselves to run their establishments on a closed shop basis, every union cook, waiter and waitress in this city will walk out on a strike Saturday morning.

A special meeting of the Cooks, Waiters and Waitresses union, local No. 53, has been called to meet tonight at 8:30 o'clock at Kalamazoo hall, and at that meeting a contract will be drawn up, calling upon the restaurant and hotel men to agree to hire only union labor for the coming year until May 1, 1909. What provisions will be made in the contract for pay, hours, etc., has not been made public, but it is expected that they will be the same as last year.

The drawing up of agreements between employes and employers or the renewal of old contracts always takes place at this time each year. In years past the restaurant men have on several occasions refused to sign the contracts and the waiters and cooks have struck, always winning out in the end, so this year even when the open shop sentiment is strong, the union expects to have no trouble.

Several of the managers of restaurants say that they are anxious for open shop conditions, but say that it is useless to attempt to obtain them unless all in their business agree to run their places on an open shop basis, and to this all will not agree, the proprietor of one restaurant in particular. They claim if they can get this one man to join them, they will all declare for open shop. Otherwise they will continue to run as they have been, employing only union waiters, cooks and waitresses, unless the unions call upon them to agree to some particularly distasteful changes, and in that case they claim they will refuse to sign the contracts. However, no trouble is anticipated.

BEAUTIFY APPROACH

Sixth Avenue Employment Office to be Done Away With.

City and Railroad Will Make Viaduct More Attractive.

Mayor Haven will have a communication in at the council meeting next Monday evening, recommending that no employment office license be granted the North Star company in its present location, at the corner of Michigan street and Sixth avenue west, directly west of the north approach of the Sixth avenue viaduct.

The mayor is in receipt of a communication from Supt. Blanchard of the Northern Pacific road, to the effect that the railroad intends to clear away all the shacks on its property west of the viaduct, and to keep such property clear until the time comes for using it for railroad purposes. The letter recommends that steps be taken to prevent the issuance of an employment agent license to the proprietor of the North Star company, when the present license expires.

It so happens that this license is one of the four being held up for investigation by the council before granting a renewal, and it is expected that the renewal will be turned down, in the present location at least.

It is pointed out that the location of the office there gives the people coming up from the boats a bad impression of the city right at the start, for, besides being unsightly itself, it always has a gang of men hanging around and spreading over the approach to the viaduct, making it very unpleasant for any one going to or from the landing of the big passenger boats at the foot of the avenue.

It so happens that the office is located directly on the avenue, for the viaduct is not wide enough to take up the whole avenue. This fact alone gives sufficient grounds for the removal of the building, for there is an ordinance that no part of any street or avenue may be used for such a purpose.

The removal of the building, by the railroad and the city working in conjunction, will be in keeping with the "city beautiful" idea. The Northern Pacific intends to do all it can this year in the way of beautifying the grounds about the union depot, and flower beds will be planted where now there are only old shacks and heaps of rubbish.

Attention was recently called to the building by a picture published in The Herald.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Rev. Morgan Dix, Episcopal Rector of New York, Dead.

New York, April 30.—Rev. Morgan Dix, rector of Trinity Protestant Episcopal church since 1862 and one of the city's most prominent clergymen, died last night at the Trinity rectory in West Twenty-fifth street. Death was due to heart failure and followed a brief illness, which took a serious turn three days ago. Dr. Dix was 81 years old.

Chicago, April 30.—L. H. Bickford, associate editor of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, died today at the Presbyterian church, following an operation for appendicitis. He was born in Menlo, Iowa, 37 years ago. Mr. Bickford was engaged in newspaper work in Leadville, and Denver, Colo., and one time was managing editor of the Denver Times.

Minneapolis, April 30.—Simeon E. Hedding, one of the oldest locomotive engineers on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, died at his home here yesterday. Hedding pulled the first train out of Minneapolis on the Milwaukee road on Christmas day, 1874. He was born at Chazy, N. Y., in 1844. Hedding was a relative of Bishop Elijah Hedding, one of the early bishops of the Methodist church.

BURNING OF A FLAG SCARES BANQUETTERS.

Chicago, April 30.—The burning of a large American flag, in the banquet hall on the sixth floor of the Auditorium hotel, last night, during the second annual banquet of the Burlington railway officials association created excitement for a moment. The flag was concealed inside a large bag which was to be flung open immediately following the taking of a flashlight picture of the banqueters. In some way the flash for the photograph ignited the bag. Waiters and housemen tore the burning bag and flung down and stamped out the flames.

WORK OF RELIEF FOR TORNADO SUFFERERS.

New Orleans, April 30.—The work of relief for the tornado sufferers in Louisiana and Mississippi is now so thoroughly organized that it covers every part of the wide territory affected by the storm. At Hattiesburg, Miss., today, Red Cross officials took active charge of the care of the 160 or more severely injured in Hattiesburg hospitals. It is planned to concentrate as many of the badly injured as possible at Hattiesburg, in order to better care for them.

INDIGNANT CITIZENS BURN BAWDY HOUSE.

La Crosse, Wis., April 30.—Indignant residents of the town of Shelby, this county, are suspected, early this morning, of setting fire to a large disorderly house, which was set up in the town after the new 1d order went into effect in La Crosse, April 15, and in the fire which followed, sixteen young women inmates of the place narrowly escaped death. A number of lives would have been lost except for heroic work by the firemen.

Mr. S. L. Bowen of Wayne, W. Va., writes: "I was a sufferer from kidney disease, so that at times I could not get out of bed, and when I did I could not stand straight. I took Foley's Kidney Cure. One dollar bottle and part of the second cured me entirely." Foley's Kidney Cure works wonders where others are total failures. All druggists.

TAX COMMISSION MEETS.

Bemidji, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state tax commission, which is composed of Frank L. McVey, Samuel Lord and O. M. Hall, will make its first visit to Beltrami county next Saturday, May 2, when it will meet the village and town assessors of the county to go over the duties of the assessors and give them instructions as to how to carry out the work.

RAILROADS

NO SHIPPING UNTIL JUNE

Little Prospect of Any Ore Movement Before That Time.

Docks at Lower Lakes Still Piled High With Ore.

That the officials of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern have no idea of an early hauling of ore is made manifest by the fact that a number of employes of that road have been laid off until some time in June. These are in the nature of leaves of absence, and the men will be returned to their labor when the ore movement begins.

It is stated in railroad circles that no ore will be hauled until the trouble on the lake is settled. It is estimated that general ore carrying on the Missabe will not start until well into June.

A year ago the ore was coming into Duluth long before this. The cars and the employes of the road were extremely busy at this time a year ago. The fact that less ore will be demanded this year, and also that vessel owners will make no attempt to start geenral shipments until the question of open shop is established, will result in light traffic on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern until late in the early season.

The engines are idle at Proctor, and many of the ore trains will not be put into use until late in June. The outlook for a general ore movement before at least the first of June does not look very promising.

Officers of the Oliver Iron Mining company are unable to say just when the Steel corporation mines on the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges will begin shipping ore to the docks.

The Eastern furnaces are not consuming as much ore as they did last year.

Mining company officials say that as soon as the East signifies a desire to take the ore, active mining and shipping from the Head of the Lakes will begin, but whether that will be next month or the next, they do not know.

RUSHING DAN PATCH LINE.

Contract Let for Grading From Savage, Minn., to Northfield.

President M. W. Savage and the board of directors of the Dan Patch Air Line have awarded and signed contracts for all the grading between Savage and Northfield, a distance of nearly thirty miles. The work will cost $150,000. It must be completed within ninety days, says a Minneapolis exchange.

The lucky contractor is H. A. Whittier of Northfield. Mr. Whittier is a Minnesota man who has made good in the larger field of railway building, and has just completed building 100 miles of the new Milwaukee coast line. He is very enthusiastic on the subject of the Dan Patch line and has shown his desire to help and his confidence in the men building the road by agreeing to take a considerable amount of his pay in the stock of the company.

"Work will be begun Friday," said Mr. Whittier today. "I have already arranged for the moving of outfits and by the last of the week we will have seventy-five teams at work on the grade. We can't hurry too fast since the completion of the grade means the interurban running into Northfield and that's what we are all looking and longing for."

FAR EAST SERVICE.

Officials of C. M. & St. P., Arrange for Vessel Connections to Japan.

San Francisco, April 30.—Fred A. Miller, general passenger agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, and James H. Hiland, traffic director for the same road, have returned from Japan. They went there to make arrangements with Japanese steamship companies for future passenger and freight service connection at Seattle, the western terminal to which the extensions of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad is steadily reaching. They practically completed a deal with the Osaka Shosen Kaisha, a Japanese seamship company, which will put on the run to Seattle next summer six passenger steamships which are under construction.

This arrangement was approved by the board of directors of the Japanese company, and the promise made that additional steamships, including freighters, would be put on so as to have a complete service in time for the Japanese world's fair, in 1914.

FREIGHT AND EXPRESS.

Arrangements Made for Through Service to Canadian Points.

Arrangements have been completed by the officials of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway, and the officers of the American Express company whereby that organization will handle all the expressing over the lines of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway, and the Canadian Northern from Duluth to Winnipeg.

Express parcels and other matter sent by express will be handled direct to the Manitoba capital, by the terms of the arrangement that has been made with the American Express company. This will obviate delay in transit and will insure direct delivery.

The freight arrangements will be completed in the near future. The road will haul through freight to Winnipeg. A car of freight leaving Duluth will be hauled through to Winnipeg without transfer to another car. Traffic arrangements have about been completed with the officials of the Canadian Northern and the working agreement of the two roads will be put into effect within a very short time.

Freight from Duluth has already begun to show signs of activity along the line of the new road, and within a very short time it is expected that freight from Duluth to points west of Fort Frances will be moving up the line. Some consignments of farm machinery have already been shipped to the new towns along the line, and from now on freight will show a regular increase.

Earnings Decrease.

Des Moines, April 30.—With the 2-cent fare law in operation for the greater part of the period, the eight representative railroads of Iowa show a net gain of $383,057 in passenger earnings for the year ending Jan. 1, 1908. Notwithstanding a falling off of $386,000 in the gross earnings for the same period. The conclusion is drawn that the reduction in price of mileage has benefited the railroads as well as the people.

Earnings Increase.

Chicago, April 30.—Affairs of the Chicago Great Western road do not appear to be improving since it went into the hands of receivers. The statement of earnings for February, filed with the interstate commerce commission yesterday, is the worst which has been made public. There was a difference of $100,000 between January and February gross earnings of the road in favor of the former month. When December is compared with November, the loss is $164,000. Gross earnings for February were not much more than sufficient to pay operation expenses and taxes.

OPEN SHOP IN SUPERIOR

Contracts With Unions Will Not be Renewed May 1.

Superior Builders' Exchange Files Articles of Incorporation.

The Superior Builders' exchange will declare for the open shop tomorrow, May 1.

Up to the present time the builders' exchange has not been an organized body. Today, however, articles of incorporation were filed with the register of deeds and the exchange has declared for the open shop.

The contracts with the various will come up for renewal tomorrow, and the members of the exchange will refuse to ratify them.

The outcome of the action of the exchange remains to be seen. The union men will probably be called off all work now in progress, and Superior will probably have a long drawn out battle similar to that waged in Duluth.

WOLF CUBS KILLED.

New Duluth Men Collect $165 in Bounties on Hides.

A novel proceeding took place this morning in the courtyard of the Superior courthouse. The place was turned fr the time being into a slaughter house.

Charles Hicks and George Lee of New Duluth brought nineteen wolves from up the St. Louis river. Eighteen of the wolves were pups, and seven of them were alive. The live pups were carried in a pack sack and when the two men reached the courthouse to secure their bounty, they dumped the little beasts out of the bag into the yard and ended the short lives with the aid of a club.

Hicks and Lee got $165 in bounties for their pelts. They found the pups in three lairs after tracing their parents' tracks in the light snow that fell the other day. The old wolf's pelt brought $20.

County Board Meets.

The New Douglas county board met this morning for the first time since the city elections and elected E. D. Paelps of Solon Springs chairman, and Supervisor Rossiter of the Sixth ward, vice chairman.

Neglects His Children.

Because he has neglected his two motherless little girls and has left them to the care of the neighbors, Charles Lind has been arrested and held for trial to the superior court on the charge of non-support. He will be held in jail until his case is disposed of. Mrs. Lind died several months ago. Lind promised at that time to take good care of the children but has broken his promise repeatedly. He is a heavy drinker and a frequent charge at the city jail.

Morrison Gets Appointment.

Joseph Morrison of Old Superior, an old resident and prominent member of the G. A. R., has been appointed by Health Commissioner McGill as secretary of the city health board. Mr. Morrison has been one of the health inspectors for some years and is quite familiar with the duties of the secretary. Commissioner McGill has not yet made his appointment of meat and milk inspector. John Anderson, the present incumbent is a candidate for reappointment and there are several men after the job.

Chicken Thief Sentenced.

Frank May, who was arrested on the charge of stealing some chickens from Frank Herrick, was sentenced yesterday to a term of thirty days on the rockpile. May wished to be exact as to the enormity of his offense. The authorities charged him with stealing a dozen chickens, but he insisted that he took but eight of the fowls as the bag would not contain any more. May seemed to be much disappointed because he did not take a larger bag for the chickens.

Will Delay Conference.

The conference between the city officials and the railway interests relative to the proposed opening up of Third street across the railroad yards will be delayed. It is understood that the railway interests are willing to build a viaduct over the racks for pedestrians but they object to a viaduct large enough for teams. The city will insist on a passage way for teams on the ground that a roadway to the bay front is necessary for the development of the water front.

FIVE BOYS WALK FROM CHICAGO TO MILWAUKEE.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 30.—Five young students from Hyde Park High school, Chicago, tired and footsore, arrived in this city last evening after having walked the whole distance from Chicago in about fifty-eight hours. They started from Randolph street on Monday at 8 a. m. and stopped over night at Lake Bluff and at Racine. Last night the boys were guests of the Milwaukee Y. M. C. A.

The five young pedestrains who made the walk are William Carr, Earle Parkins, William Park, Otis Smith and Stuart Krohn. Their ages range from 17 to 19 years. They will return to their homes today. The boys said that barring the stiffness of their limbs they felt no ill effects from their walk.

CASS LAKE WOMAN DIES.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. C. M. Johnson, one of the most popular young women in Cass Lake, died early Wednesday morning after a brief illness. Mrs. Johnson is survived by a husband and two small children. The funeral will be held from the Catholic church Thursday at 1 p. m. and interment in the Cass Lake cemetery.

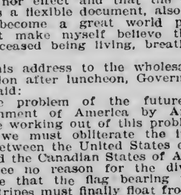
"John A. Johnson, Our Next President."

Duluth boosters for Governor John A. Johnson for the Democratic nomination for president will be wearing the Johnson "booster buttons" from now on.

A consignment of the buttons has been ordered by The Herald and arrived in the city this morning. The buttons can now be secured at The Herald counting room, without cost, by any of the friends of the governor. They went like hot cakes this morning, and before noon many of them were displayed on the lapels of Duluth business men's coats. They will be passed out to anyone asking for them, as long as they last.



The Johnson buttons are not new. They are wearing them in the South and in the East and in the West, but the consignment ordered by The Herald are the first that have made their appearance in Duluth.

MRS. COREY WILL STUDY FOR OPERA

Says She Will Have Stage in Her Own House.

New York, April 30.—Before sailing on the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland for Europe with her husband, Mrs. W. E. Corey, formerly Mabelle Gilman, the actress, said she intended to go to Paris to study for the operatic stage under Jean de Reszke.

"I have special roles entirely learned," Mrs Corey said, "which I have to finish with Mr. De Reszke, with whom I shall appear in grand opera this season. I am not doing this with any desire to appear again before the public, but simply for the sake of the work. I have always been used to an active life and cannot remain idle. I shall appear in opera, and hope to be able to do something for a phase of music in this country which should be developed."

Mrs. Corey said that she intended to have a theater in her own house here such as she has in her chateau near Paris, so that she will be able to give operas in which she will take part herself and for which she will engage the best singers and musicians procurable. Three performances will be given of each opera, one for her friends, the second for the critics and musicians, and the third to create a fund to develop the talent of those who do not have means to pursue their studies. She added that the roles she expected to sing with Jean De Reszke were Amneris in "Aida," and "Carmen."

"One Touch of Nature Makes the Whole World Kin."

When a rooster finds a big fat worm he calls all the hens in the farm yard to come and share it. A similar trait of human nature is to be observed when a man discovers something exceptionally good—he wants all his friends and neighbors to share the benefits of his discovery. This is the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin. This explains why people who have been cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy write letters to the manufacturers for publication, that others similarly ailing may also use it and obtain relief. Behind every one of these letters is a warm-hearted wish of the writer to be of use to someone else. This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

CANAL PIERS NOT INJURED

Concrete Flakes Off, But Strength is Not Impaired.

J. H. Darling, assistant government engineer, says the piers at the Duluth ship canal have not been damaged a particle by the action of the waves, despite the fact that concrete has flaked off here and there. This may injure the looks a trifle, but the engineer asserts that their strength or lasting qualities are not impaired in the least by the flaking process.

At the corners of some of the blocks the concrete has chipped off, and this led some people to believe that concrete is not all that is claimed for it in this kind of work. The United States engineers say the big piers are in just as good condition now as the day they were built, so far as their usefulness is concerned. A contract has been let to Whitney Bros. to place riprap against the north pier on the outside of the canal. Riprapping the south pier was done last year.

"The concrete blocks rests on timbered cribs twenty-one feet deep, and these in turn rest on piles," said Mr. Darling, in explaining the chipping of the blocks. "The cribs, like all timber structures, are elastic, and suject to pressure of the waves, which spring them a little. The waves are often higher on the one side than on the other, and tend to press the cribs out of line, but the cribs always recover their position and alignment. The movement is small, but in constructing the piers not quite enough room was left between the concrete blocks, which are separated by small poles of fel. These buffers give the piers a little motion, but not quite enough, so that when the cribs rock the corners of the blocks grind against one another."

S. J. CUSSON RETURNS.

General Manager of Hines Company Back, With Health Restored.

Samuel J. Cusson, general manager of the Edward Hines Lumber company, has returned from St. Augustine, Fla., where he has been convalescing from two operations for appendicitis. Mr. Cusson is at his desk in the Lyceum building after seven months' absence. His health is completely restored.

Early in the fall Mr. Cusson was operated on at St. Mary's hospital. His condition became very serious and for days his life was despaired of. Physicians from Chicago and elsewhere were brought here for consultations on the case.

Mr. Cusson finally rallied sufficiently to be removed to his home, 114 East Second street. Later he went to Chicago, accompanied by Mrs. Cusson, and underwent another operation in the Windy City. Recovering, he went to St. Augustine, where he remained until he returned to Duluth this week.

ALLEGED FORGER CAUGHT HERE, TAKEN TO BEMIDJI.

Bemidji, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—G. E. Thomas, who is charged with having forged the name of George B. Thompson to a check for $96, drawn in favor of Thomas, and afterwards cashed it and absconded, was brought to the city yesterday from Duluth, where he was apprehended by Sheriff Thomas Bailey.

Thomas passed the check, so it is said, on a local party, securing the full amount called for—$96, and the payee of the check did not know that the paper was worthless until it was presented at a local bank. Thomas was arraigned yesterday and his hearing was continued for ten days.

WEST VIRGINIA DELEGATES.

Parkersburg, W. Va., April 30.—The Republican state delegate convention, held here yesterday, chose the following candidates for delegates-at-large: George A. Laughlin, C. W. Dillon and Isaac T. Mann.

For justice of the supreme court Ira Brodenson, Judge W. N. Miller and L. F. Williams were nominated.

A resolution indorsing the candidacy of William H. Taft for president was adopted.

THE MAJESTY OF THE LAW

Subject of Lecture Delivered by Governor Johnson at Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., April 30.—"Two evils menace America today," said Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota in a lecture last night on "The Majesty of the Law," before the alumni association of the Western high school. "They are," he said, "the centralization of power in the federal government and the centralization of business power in the hands of a few men.

"Executives, too, are frequently governed by expediency," he said. "Expediency is always fraught with danger. The political organization which discards expediency and sticks to a principle is the one which accomplishes results. America has become a great world power. Her progress has been phenomenal. It has brought a system of centralization of power. Instead of a government by people and for the people, it seems to be becoming a government by people and for people who have been enfranchised by the people to do a quasi public business. Some things have happened in the last few years which seem to indicate that a few men are trying to control everything. We have now in this country an oligarchy as great as was the oligarchy of Rome. It is the oligarchy of business. The men who are responsible are making a mistake. And I think that they will be called to account soon. There is a demand from certain people that there be more centralization of government in Washington in order that we may become a great world power. The fathers came to this country to create for themselves and their posterity a new government. They gathered from the various states in the continental congress and adopted the Declaration of Independence. Now 132 years afterward we are told that the Declaration of Independence has no particular force nor effect and that the Constitution is a flexible document, also that we may become a great world power. I cannot make myself believe that they have ceased being living, breathing forces.

In his address to the wholesalers' association after luncheon, Governor Johnson said:

"The problem of the future is the government of America by Americans. In the working out of this problem I believe we must obliterate the imaginary line between the United States of America and the Canadian States of America. I can see no reason for the division. I believe that the flag bearing the stars and stripes must finally float from Bering Sea to the Gulf of Mexico. The intellectual energy of the country must be directed to the commercial union of the two countries if to no other. I spoke in Sarnia on the same topic some time ago and my words were greeted with even greater enthusiasm than you are now showing. If the products of the business-men of Detroit went free and unhampered into Canada perhaps the flag would follow them into that country.

HAS COUSIN IN CABINET.

Minot, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has been received in Minot of the appointment of Lars C. Abrahamson as minister of commerce of Norway in King Haakon's new cabinet. Mr. Abrahamson is a cousin of Mrs. Thor Moeller of Minot.

WOMEN CALL MEN TO TIME

Claim Union Members Themselves Are Lukewarm in Efforts.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Through the kindness of The Herald we, the women of Labor league, No. 230, would like to bring to the notice of the laboring class in general the fact that they are not doing as much as might be done to boost home industry. The matter uppermost in our mind is the patronage of our only organized garment workers, those employed by a local manufacturing concern.

How many union men when buying working shirts, overalls or jumpers, stop to think that a good union-made article can be had from a local manufacturer. Let the union men see to it that they ask for these goods in future.

From the experience of some of us women have had while agitating for the union label it seems our greatest obstacle is the attitude of the union men themselves. It is a joke for the clerks to have us ask for union-made goods. They are not loyal enough themselves to appreciate the shortcomings of some of the union men. Of all the lukewarm union men commend us to the retail clerks.

Some of them won't take the trouble to put their union cards in the window. It is no wonder we have to go to the farthest, darkest, corner to find any label goods even when they have them.

Now we want those union clerks to co-operate with us in pushing the label in all lines.

Another duty that every union man owes to his fellows concerns the cooks and waiters union. How many of them ever insisted on a waitress or waiter wearing a paidup button before they could serve him. If the union in question falls to pieces in their coming struggle, every union man can feel that he is one factor in the downfall. Now let the men get in line and help. We women are working and talking our very best, only to come up against a blank wall of the men's indifference. If the men are well disposed let them join with us in boosting the union label, not only for the sake of personal benefit, but for the welfare of the thousands of poor working people all over the country. Fraternally yours,

MANY LOGS BREAK LOOSE IN BIG BAYFIELD BOOM.

Bayfield, Wis., April 30.—Wind, which blew a gale from the northeast, broke the double boom which held 2,000,000 feet of A. J. Mussell's logs in the Bayfield Mill company's pond and scattered the logs all over Chequamegon bay. The Bayfield Mill company also lost about 500,000 feet, which cannot be picked up until the storm is over.

FAILS TO SHOW UP.

Montana Man, Expected to Identify Dead Body, is Laggard.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of failure of the man sent by the First National bank in Forsyth, Mont., to arrive in Minneapolis and identify the body taken from the river April 13, the investigation of the disappearance of R. D. McBride of Forsyth is at a standstill.

The body is supposed to be that of McBride and the man from Forsyth was sent to identify it. He arrived in St. Paul Monday afternoon and telephoned Coroner J. M. Kistler he would be delayed a few hours, but would come to Minneapolis that night. He has not yet appeared.

RECALL HOPKINS IN GRAND FORKS

Former Chief Train Dispatcher Not Liked and Always Dunned.

Grand Forks, N. D., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grand Forks and Larimore residents are greatly interested in the case of Wallace H. Hopkins, for five years chief dispatcher of the Great Northern at Larimore, who is missing from Chicago and is charged with being an embezzler. The downfall of Hopkins comes as no surprise to people at Grand Forks and Larimore who were acquainted with transactions of the accused while he was in this section of the country. Hopkins was calef dispatcher at Larimore from 1897 to 1902. He was one of the most unscrupulous tyrants under whom Great Northern dispatchers and operators have been obliged to work. He was in constant trouble with creditors, despite the fact that he had a good salary. Boarding house keepers, storekeepers and others were his victims.

In keeping with his record, he purchased a big stock of goods from a Grand Forks merchant and soon after went through bankruptcy. This wiped out the debt with the Grand Forks man as well as several others.

He was so mean with the men working under him that they cordially hated him, and his removal was a source of rejoicing among the men. He had a pull with Gruber, one of the head men with the Great Northern at that time, and kicks did no good.

WANTED IN WISCONSIN.

Requisition Made Upon Governor Johnson for Two Men.

St. Paul, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor John A. Johnson has received a requisition from Governor Davidson of Wisconsin for the extradition of Walter A. Reinhart and W. F. Reinhart, who are conducting medical institutes in Minneapolis, St. Paul and other cities under the name of "the Heldelberg doctors." The charges against them are gross fraud and larceny, and they are wanted for trial in Milwaukee. Not long ago a requisition upon Governor Johnson for the extradition of the Reinharts was honored, but the defendants secured a writ of habeas corpus from the Ramsey county district court and successfully fought extradition. The charge at that time was conspiracy, and the court held that the complaint did not allege facts sufficient to constitute an offense.

FINE CROP CONDITIONS ALL OVER NORTH DAKOTA.

Larimore, N. D., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The crop situation is excellent throughout North Dakota, according to traveling men. The conditions are ideal all over the state. The ground is in fine shape and wheat will soon be covering the ground, if warm weather follows the rainfall of the past week. The acreage devoted to grain will be larger this year than for several in the past. Grain is a good price and this means that nearly every farmer will crop every available acre. In the western counties there will be a good deal of breaking done and this will be devoted to flax. As the season is early farmers will have plenty of time to break their land.

NEW O. R. C. COUNCIL.

Thief River Falls, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—A council of the Order of Railway Conductors is to be instituted here in the near future. There are about twenty Soo conductors who make their headquarters here and more will come later on.

TERRITORIAL PIONEERS TO MEET IN ST. PAUL MAY 11.

St. Paul, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota Territorial Pioneer association will hold its annual meeting in the old capitol Monday, May 11. The day selected is the fiftieth anniversary of the state of Minnesota. An all-day program has been arranged. Papers are to be read by Miss Marianne Clark, entitled, "First Farms and Farmers of the Upper Mississippi" and "A Model Lesson for the Women's Clubs of the State." Former Governor C. A. Gillman, St. Cloud; J. H. Baker, Mankato; J. B. Gilfillan and George A. Brackett, Minneapolis; L. F. Hubbard, William Pitt Murray, C. C. Andrews, S. R. Van Sant and Du J. Baker will make addresses.

BUILD $20,000 SCHOOL.

Grand Marais Planning to Erect Substantial Building.

Grand Marais, Minn., April 27.—(Special Correspondence.)—This place will soon have a $20,000 school building. Word has reached here that the state investment board has granted the loan applied for by Independent School District No. 1, and the work of clearing the ground for the new building will be commenced at once. It was demonstrated at the special election that a new building for school purposes was the almost unanimous wish of the people of the district.

There will be a change in the principalship next year, Levi Isherwood, the present incumbent, not being retained. Miss Ella Hogan has received notice of an appointment in the Duluth schools, and withdrew her conditional application before the meeting of the board Tuesday evening. Her conditional application was for her present position at an increase in salary, or for the primary grades at her present wages. Miss Small has been elected to teach the primary grades next year. Miss Kline, the present primary teacher, did not put in any application. Thus, there are three vacant positions to be filled by the school board.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before the baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is women's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

SEES THREE IN A BUGGY

They Are Driving Rapidly and His Suspicion is Aroused.

Farmer Brings Alleged Bank Robber Clue Into Crookston.

Crookston, April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—August Carlson, a farmer residing in the town of Brandt, northeast of Angus, who arrived in the city last evening, believes he saw the three Stephen bank robbers who stole Al Dickerson's buggy after the robbery. Mr. Carlson was en route to Angus to take the train for this city, and passed three men in a buggy, all strangers. He noted that the horse was pretty well fagged out, and that one man appeared to be ill. When Carlson reached Crookston and heard of the robbery, he became convinced that the men he had seen were the three who had stolen a rig after the bank robbery.

He did not get a good look at the men, for before he overtook them the driver turned off the road a few rods and got out of the buggy, apparently to fix the harness and the two men in the buggy turned their faces away as he passed. He glanced back and noted that one man looked haggard, as though wounded, and at the time it struck him that they were probably taking him to Euclid to consult a physician, or were taking him to the hospital in this city for treatment.

The authorities were at once notified, and the country between here and St. Hilaire will be thoroughly scoured.

CLOQUET MILLS STARTING.

Water Works to be Built and Labor Outlook Brighter.

Cloquet, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The saw mills of the local lumber companies will start up next Monday, May 4. The Johnson-Wentworth mill will run night and day, the two mills of the Cloquet Lumber company will run days only, the Northern Lumber company's lower mill will run day and night, while the upper mill will operate days. Men are rejoicing over the opening of the mills, for since they have come down from the woods, there has been no work. The city will soon commence work on the construction of its water works, and this will also give employment to many. Labor prospects a few months ago were not bright, but now it is evident that there will be no scarcity of work in Cloquet the coming summer.

Mr. Johnson estimates that there are about 5,000,000 feet of logs to be hauled in this manner. The logs will be brought to Bemidji and hauled to Brainerd over the Minnesota & International railway. From Brainerd they will be driven down the Mississippi river to the mills of the Smith company in Minneapolis, where they will be sawed.

Out on the ranges and the cattle section the storm killed hundreds of calves that were too young to stand the winter weather, and Spearfish reports much loss to its fruit and crops and truck gardens.

Bemidji, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Arthur and Willie Walker, aged 10 and 15 years, who left their home near Puposky last Monday afternoon without giving any intimation as to where they were going, has been cleared up in so far as it relates to their having been drowned or that they may have been killed, as it is believed that the boys are now alive and well and are on their way to Dakota by foot.

The two boys are the sons of A. P. Walker, who carries the mail on the Star route between Puposky and Fowlds and are said to have been seen late Monday afternoon leaving the railroad at Warner, a station on the M., R. L. & M. railway and start westward on the old Foston railroad.

As the older of the boys has lived in Dakota and has said he liked it out there it is more than likely that the boys have started for the Flickertail state.

SOME BOGUS MONEY.

Copper Country Reports Bad Coins in Circulation.

Calumet, Mich., April 30.—Calumet merchants report that during the past few weeks a large amount of counterfeit money has appeared in circulation in Calumet and that the utmost care has to be taken in the handling of all kind of money so that the counterfeit will be detected. The spurious is a correct imitation of the real silver dollar and half dollar. It is made of a lead alloy and although the weight almost corresponds with that of real money, it can be easily detected by the ring.

Just where the coin has appeared from cannot be ascertained. It corresponds with counterfeit money which has appeared in circulation in this city on other occasions in form and posibly it is thought that it is some of the money which was passed previously.

ST. JOSEPH WATER PLANT READY TO BE INSTALLED.

St. Cloud, April 30.—(Special to he Herald.)—County Surveyor S. S. Chute has transmitted to the village recorder of St. Joseph the plans and specifications for the connecting of the village waterworks with the system which the Sisters of St. Benedict have installed at the convent. The specifications call for four blocks of water mains and for four hydrants. The village council will take action upon the matter at the next regular meeting, and if the plans are adopted they will soon advertise for bids. It is the intention that the work be completed this summer. The village is also lighter by power generated at the convent.

No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Duluth citizen.

Ernest Grotke of 226 Fourth avenue east, Duluth, Minn., mason, says: "I speak from experience when I say Doan's Kidney Pills are a reliable and valuable remedy. I procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. A steaming hot meal in ten minutes. And what do you know that's so good?

Put the can of Van Camp's in hot water. Then open it, and there is your ready-cooked meal steaming hot.

A delicious meal without work, without waiting.

Our beans come to you just as fresh and as savory as when they came out of our ovens.

And you've never tasted beans that approach them.

Let us cook for you. We are experts on beans, and we have the facilities

We have spent 47 years in learning how best to prepare baked beans with tomato sauce. No wonder we know.

But more than knowledge is needed.

Our ovens are heated to 245 degrees. It requires that fierce heat to break down the fibre, and you cannot apply it.

Home-cooked beans, for that reason, are hard to digest.

Van Camp's pork and beans baked with tomato sauce

We use Michigan beans, selected by hand, for which we pay $2.10 per bushel. That's seven times the price of some beans.

We could buy tomato sauce, ready made, for exactly one-fifth what we spend to make it.

Then we bake the beans, the tomato sauce and the pork all together. That gives our delicious blend.

Encourage your folks to eat beans by getting the best beans for them

Beans are Nature's choicest food. They are 23% nitrogenous—84% nutriment.

And see the saving, when compared with meat.

You will want them every day, instead of once a week, when you once get a taste of Van Camp's.

Order a can today and see.

Talks of Inspection of the Local Milk Supply.

Tells of the Wholesome Methods and Products of Trianon Farm.

Maj. John Uno Sebenius who, when he is not too busy with mining matters is deeply engrossed in the science of dairying, and his Trianon farm on London road, believes that at least a part of the charges made by Alderman McKnight, who told the city council Monday evening that milk was being delivered to Duluth doors which was unfit for children to drink, is true.

Mr. Sebenius is one of the best known dairymen in the country, and his Trianon farm, at London road and Fortieth avenue east, is one of the finest institutions of the kind in the state. While it is only a hobby with the mining engineer, Mr. Sebenius has made quite a study of the dairying business. He is of the opinion that all of the milk sold by local dairymen is not pure, not because the milk-dealers want to cheat their customers, but because of a lack of knowledge on their part. Therefore, he urges, with Alderman McKnight, a thorough inspection of all dairies as often as possible, and as enlightened methods of conducting dairies as prevail.

Prof. T. L. Haecker of the dairying and animal nutrition department of the State university's agricultural experiment sattion, will be at Trianon farm for several days during the early part of May, and will doubtless give talks to local dairymen, should they be sufficiently interested to have him.

Speaking of the inspection of dairies, of milk and of the up-to-date methods he employs at Trianon farm, Mr. Sebenius said today:

"With the kind assistance of Prof. Haecker, we have been building up the Trianon dairy farm for the purpose of delivering wholesome milk to at least a few citizens of Duluth. Every month, Prof. Haecker, or his assistants come up from the experimental station to examine the cows and milk samples at Trianon. I bear the expenses of these inspections myself.

"Every cow's milk, and the general supply, is sampled, morning and night, and the same test of cream is made by the experimental station people. Physicians call for milk running 4 per cent butter fat as being most healthful. We are making it 4½ per cent butter-fat, which is a little higher than is called for.

"Thoroughbred Guernseys seem to produce the best milk and with the most consistency. These animals can be had now only at outrageously high prices, running from $300 to $1,000 per head. We have many Guernseys in the Trianon herd, some of them costing as much as $500. They are necessary to keep the proper kind of milk and the proper amount of butter-fat.

"Outside of the state inspection by Prof. Haecker or his assistants, the health officer has in the past, and upon my personal solicitation, made frequent inspections at Trianon farm, particularly in the early morning hours, when a dairy needs the most attention.

"It is now generally recognized that impure dairy products menace the health of the people, and it is with great pleasure that I note the taking up of the question here. I believe that the local dairymen's intentions are good, but they do not know enough about the dairy business and they have never had the opportunities of learning. With better inspection here and better care of the cows, the finest milk in the country could be furnished in Duluth.

"Prof. Haecker's report of the inspection made at Trianon farm April 18 shows that a sample of milk tested by one of the professor's assistants at that time averaged 4 per cent butter-fat, and the cream averaged 26 per cent butterfat in the morning and 31 per cent butterfat in the evening, or an average of 28 per cent.

"Shortly after the first of May Prof. Haecker will be at Trianon farm for several days, and will doubtless be glad to meet the health officials and others interested then."

Mr. Sebenius has gone to a great expense to make Trianon farm what it is, and he believes that if his present working force remains the same, he can make the milk supply the finest in the land. He has received many kindly recognitions from physicians, including such men as Dr. McAuliffe and Dr. Boyer, and some of the best citizens of Duluth.

"With me," says Mr. Sebenius, "this has been a matter of love. There are many sick children in the city and we have been trying to supply them with proper milk to the best of our ability. The price of the milk is 13 cents a quart and the cream costs 75 cents a quart. Milk such as this cannot be sold for less except at a considerable loss. Considering the quality of this milk, the cost if not great.

"It is important that all cattle should be tested for tuberculosis at least once a year. Every cow in the Trianon herd was tested last December and found to be healthy. This inspection was made by the health commissioner and his assistants at my expense."

One of the officers of the Kitchi Gammi club recently sent a sample of the cream used there and furnished by the Trianon farm to the experimental station for inspection. It was found to contain 30 per cent butterfat and in making a report on it, Prof. Haecker said: "I gave this cream my personal attention with reference to flavor and keeping qualities, and it is the best cream we have ever received in our laboratory. Though the room was quite warm, it was still sweet after four days' exposure."

ROOSEVELT NOW SORRY

Regrets That He Pledged Himself Not to be Candidate.

Ignoring of His Demands for Certain Legislation Arouses Ire.

Washington, April 30.—"If I could have foreseen how things were going to frame up, I would never have made that election night pledge—and I would never have reiterated it three months ago."

President Roosevelt fairly chopped his words when he savagely made that announcement to a senator who stood by him in his fight for four battle ships.

There is no doubt that the president is about as angry as he ever has been in the course of his administration. The attitude of congress towards the executive and his legislative program has made the president bitter indeed.

There has never been a prsident's message so discourteously received as was the one sent to congress this week. In the house it was ignored entirely. In the senate as soon as a message from the president was announced the senators yawned and moved that it be laid over for a day. This was done and the senate adjourned without even a polite inquiry as to what the message was about.

Congress Getting Even.

The president gave utterance to the statement quoted above in talking with a senator who was one of the adminstration leaders in the four battleships fight. This senator commented upon the extreme indifference of the senate toward the president's wishes and expressed the opinion that this indifference, which has almost assumed the attitude of a studied affront, is due to the fact that the president has eliminated himself from the race from the presidential nomination and that congress no longer fearing the shadow of his influence is trying to get even for past times when he has held it up to its duties.

"Yes," snapped the president, "and if I could have foreseen how things were going to frame up, I would never have made that election night pledge. Still," he added, "it is made and it stands, even if advantage is taken of it."

No Use Ringing the Changes.

The senator in question then referred to the interview ascribed to Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, the president's son-in-law, in which he said that he did not know what the president would do if nominated by acclamation. The senator asked the president if he would accept. The president snapped his teeth and said:

"My position on that question is well known, and ringing the changes on it will not alter it."

It is practically certain that the president will get none of his pet legislative bills through. The Civic Federation-Hepburn bill, which is a White House child, is as dead as can be. This bill was drafted after many long conferences in the White House, in which the president, Samuel Gompers, Seth Low, Francis L. Stetson, E. H. Gary and others participated. It is one of the president's dearest wishes that this bill be made a law; it centralizes power, hobbles courts, and invests the executive with prerogatives of the most far-reaching character. Its rejection is a serious blow to his scheme for continuing "my policies."

No Good Financial Legislation.

If there is any financial legislation it will be at best a makeshift; an innocuous bill which will probably be worse than no bill at all. He has signed an employers' liability bill, but before he signed it he announced he would veto it. It is known that he is far from satisfied with its provisions.

As for tariff revision, the best possible recognition he will get, from present indications, is the empowering of the ways and means committee, a hide-bound, stand-pat organization, to sit through the summer as a tariff commission and study the needs of revision.

On the battleship program he has been soundly beaten, after making probably the most personal fight of his administration. He consulted Democrats and Republicans alike, and urged everyone to stand by his program.

The vote by which he was beaten was overwhelming.

Not on Firing Line.

This rejection of practically the president's entire legislative program, the indifferent way in which congress treats him, the fact that for the last few weeks few callers of any importance from congress have been to the White House, and the tendency from all leaders in congress to ignore him, has aroused the president's fighting spirit, and, according to the senator who talked with him, makes him regret his self-elimination. Just at the time when he is most beset and his fighting blood is at the highest pitch, he finds himself by his own ruling removed from the vantage point of power while the leaders of congress are looking toward another star.

A NEW CURRENCY BILL PRESENTED

Vreeland Introduces a Measure Acceptable to Republicans.

Washington., April 30.—As the result of a series of conferences between Republican leaders in the house, the last of which was held yesterday, Representative Vreeland of New York late yesterday introduced a bill to take the place of the currency bill presented by him last week. In the new bill, which is declared to represent the views of a substantial majority of the Republican members, and which is the measure that will be presented to the conference of the Republicans of the house to be held within a few days, nothing is left of the Aldrich currency bill, except the provision for the payment of interest on government deposits in national banks. The provisions for the issuance of emergency currency on corporate bonds are entirely swept away.

The new bill provides for the formation of national clearing house associations by not less than ten national banks having an aggregate capital and surplus of not less than $5,000,000. A 4 per cent rate on emergency currency, based on clearing house securities, is provided for the first month, this tax to be increased 1 per cent each month until it reaches 10 per cent, when it is to remain until the circulation is retired.

Another section provides for the creation of a currency commission to consist of six members of the house, six of the senate and six to be appointed by the president.

Mr. Vreeland's bill will be considered by the banking and currency committee.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Special Attorney General James W. Osborne declared in the supreme court in New York Wednesday that the reason the case of the American Ice was withdrawn from the January special grand jury was that several members of the jury were financially interested in the company.

In a spectacular fire Wednesday night, the candle and grease works of the Standard Oil company at Cleveland was destroyed. Officers of the company estimate the loss at $203,500. For a time all of the buildings surrounding the two plants were threatened and every available fire apparatus was called into service.

The joint scale committee of the miners and operators of the Kanawah field, West Virginia, reached an agreement at 1 o'clock Thursday morning after three days of conference. The scale of 1906 continues in effect as does the bi-monthly payday. Eight thousand miners will continue work.

Steeple Jack Gallagher of Cleveland, Ohio, fell eighty feet from a smokestack Wednesday and was instantly killed. Gallagher had won fame for daring feats of climbing in various parts of the country.

President Angle of the Dry Fork Distilling company of Virginia was found guilty Wednesday of having committed extensive revenue frauds and was sentenced to four years in the federal penitentiary. He also was fined $15,000. Bail, pending appeal was fixed at $20,000.

MORSE INDICTMENT SUSTAINED.

New York, April 30.—Indictments against Charles W. Morse and Alfred H. Curtis, former officer of the National Bank of North America, charging misapplication of the funds of that bank, were sustained by Judge Hough of the United States circuit court yesterday. Judge Hough ruled in sustaining the indictments, that it made no difference whether any of the funds alleged to have been misapplied were refunded.

IMPROVEMENT IN SOME WAYS

Though General Conditions in Iron World Are Not Better.

Cleveland, April 30.—The Iron Trade Review says: The over-subscription of the Pennsylvania 4 per cent bond issue of $40,000,000 and the prospect that other railroads may be likewise successful in financial operations has made some improvement in the iron world, but conditions are not better as slight increases in some lines are offset by decreased activity in other products.

The first sale of iron ore for delivery after May 1 at agreed prices has been made, it being a block of 50,000 tons for a Southern Ohio interest.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company advises us that its new bond issue will be issued to meet the expenditures on its New York terminal and complete its improvements on the main line, which are now under way.

The company adds that with nearly 9,000 idle cars and 50 idle locomotives on its hands it could hardly be making plans for the purchase of additional equipment. The New York Central has closed a contract for 10,000 kegs of spikes with the Carnegie Steel company.

A crisis is imminent in the pig iron market owing to the general circulation of the report that powerful interests are in favor of completing a new schedule based on $10 Birmingham, which would result in selling pig iron in many parts of the country at less than cost, only such buyers as were compelled to come into the market for immediate needs have been placing orders, and keen interest is manifested in the meetings next week and later in the month. While the probability seems to be in favor of low prices, there is a possibility that an important proposition in harmony with the general movement in favor of maintaining reasonable prices will be submitted by some interests that have been credited with making low quotations. Should this proposition be accepted, peace may result.

VERMONT DELEGATES.

Burlington, April 30.—The Vermont delegation was selected by the state convention yesterday and the representatives of the Green Mountain state at Chicago will not be bound by instructions in favor of any candidate. The delegates chosen were: Senator W. P. Dillingham of Montpeller; Governor Fletcher D. Proctor of Proctor, Col. Frank L. Greene of Stalbans, and Allen M. Fletcher of Cavendish.

WINNIPEG IS STARTLED BY A WAVE OF CRIME.

Winnipeg, Man., April 30.—John Korlak, the Whitemouth farmer, shot in the back by a holdup man from whom he was endeavoring to escape, is still lying in the general hospital in a critical condition, nothing but his extraordinary vitality keeping him alive. Although the bullet traversed his stomach and pierced the intestines, doctors still hold out slight hope.

Thanks to the remarkably clear description he gave of his assailant, the police stand a good chance of running the man down. He speaks good English, is tall and has a heavy black mustache.

Holdups and assaults are becoming more and more frequent in this city. Monday night there were four cases of criminal violence reported. One of the others was a daring attempt to hold up Mark Cuzner, a well-known local barber, on Langside, by two ruffians, who seriously injured him before he succeeded in breaking away and saving a considerable sum of money on his person.

Michael Brennan was going home shortly after 9 when, just outside the Frost & Wood warehouse, two men rushed from a house from which a woman's voice screamed murder. Brennan attempted to stop one, an Italian, named Donati Poulette, and received a knife wound in the face. Poulette was, however, held until the police came.

Another man, named Karl Kxo of 858 Magnus avenue, is lying in the general hospital horribly cut and gashed with broken bottles as a result of an attack made on him at his own home, where a party of men had been drinking.

RICH NEW COUNTY LINKED TO DULUTH BY COMPLETION OF NEW RAILROAD TO BORDER

THE FIRST TRAIN ACROSS THE NEW BRIDGE.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Yesterday afternoon a delegation of enthusiastic men returned to Duluth. These men, representing the Duluth jobbing and mercantile interests, had just cause for their enthusiasm. They had just completed a tour of inspection of one of the most promising new territories in the entire Northwest. They had seen the possibilities opened up by the completion of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway, an event that marks the opening of commercial activity in a section that is rich in possibilities, and they heard the assurances of the citizens of Fort Frances that the trade of Duluth houses would not be bounded by the international boundary line.

The initial trip to Fort Frances was in every way a complete success. The trip was planned by the officials of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway, as an educational eye-opener. Representative business men were invited by the officials of the road to see what had been done by them in blazing the iron trail through a territory that is untouched by the grip of commerce; a territory that opens to the interests of Duluth a field of commercial activity, rich today, but greater still in the fullness of its promise for future development.

The New Line.

Leaving Virginia, where you leave the rails of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern behind, you start out over the line that marks a new path of development. You pass through a country that is revenue every foot of the way. It is not hard to understand why the officials of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg worked in the face of such difficulties. Once you have traversed this new territory. They knew what they were doing; they have cut into the heart of a country that is rich in timber, farming land and natural resources, and they have done their task well.

You pass Angora, Ashawa, Gheen, Pelican Lake, Berlin, Ray and Eriesberg—towns that are alive in their unpainted prosperity. On the platforms of the little red stations, farm machinery was waiting the hand of the farmer. Stores and houses so new that the lumber has not yet lost its look of freshness, attest to the rapid growth of these little settlements. Teams were hitched in front of the general store, settlers watched the arrival and departure of the train with unfeigned interest. Everything pointed to activity and growth.

Thees towns don't look large. They are not either, but each represents a growing, progressive community, that is hidden from the eye of the traveler, back in the country. Take the little town of Ray as an example. A petition for a postoffice was circulated. It only required a short time to get 400 signatures to the petition. It is the same with the other towns. They have postoffices. Most of them are laying out town lots and are already welcoming the advent of the commercial traveler. Back in the country are farmers who are creating a demand for supplies, who are opening up the soil and increasing the resources of the country.

Soil Is Rich.

The towns will grow, because of the healthy communities they represent. The soil is rich, the farmers who have settled along the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway are progressive, and they are developing a rich market for the Duluth jobber and merchant.

Without exception the Duluth business men are enthusiastic over what they saw. W. E. Magner, vice president and secretary of the D. G. Cutler company, believes a great market has been thrown open. Mr. Magner's firm has been sending salt and lime across the boundary line for the past years, despite the tariff duty, and the opening of the new direct route to the Western Canadian country opens up new trade channels to his business. Of the country between Virginia and Fort Frances Mr. Magner is most optimistic in his belief of the trade that will come to the Duluth interests. He says that the completion of the road will develop the country, will result in new towns, will create trade demands, and will open up a territory that is new to the trade—one that will prove enthusiastically responsive to the overtures of the Duluth business houses.

H. D. Final of the Marshall-Wells company, is another business man who is deeply impressed with the great avenue of trade opened up by the railroad. Mr. Final's company has also been selling goods on the other side of the line, having a branch in Winnipeg. But it is the territory between Virginia and Fort Frances that Mr. Final is most impressed with. Mr. Final says nothing can stop the rapid growth of the new country. He believes that as a trade center its growth will be wonderful. At its present stage of development it is demanding hardware and machinery. What per cent will the demands be increased within a year or two? That is the question Mr. Final and other men who took the trip are asking themselves. They have returned to Duluth deeply impressed with the demands of the growing country.

Duluth Groceries There.

T. J. Burke, vice president of the Gowan-Peyton-Twohy company, is still delighted with what he saw at Fort Frances. In most of the stores of that little Canadian town he found that they were selling groceries from the Duluth wholesale houses. The Canadian storekeepers are selling American goods despite the tariff upon them. Mr. Burke is one of the most enthusiastic members of the delegation when it comes to giving an opinion on the possibilities of the new market. Mr. Burke says that the completion of the road has opened up a stretch of country that will give to the Duluth houses a steady and growing trade. He says the trade will increase wonderfully, that the camps, the citizens of the growing towns and the farmers will demand goods and supplies in a volume not to be reckoned at the present time.

One Drummer There Now.

W. T. Mishler of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company, sees a great future in the territory tributary to the new line. The company Mr. Mishler represents has a man covering the territory at the present time, and he reports excellent results. He has not found the tariff a wall that has kept American trade out of Canada. For instance, he recently sold four tons of prunes to Canadian trade. This despite the fact that there was a duty of a quarter of a cent a pound on the prunes. Today he is finding trade in Fort Frances and Canadian towns further west.

Mr. Mishler believes that the trade possibilities of the new country are unbounded. He says the country must grow, must expand in every way, and that its demands upon the trade will keep pace with its development.

All of the others were equally impressed with what they saw. L. D. Stickles of the Northern Shoe company sees a new trade center opened to the Duluth trade that promises rich returns. H. Christensen of Christensen, Mendenhall & Graham also believes firmly in the new country. John Panton of the Panton-White company says it is impossible to estimate the volume of trade that has been added to the Duluth business houses. Mr. Panton found the goods of his store in Fort Frances, and he would probably find them in the Canadian towns further to the West. But on the American side of the boundary line Mr. Panton sees infinite trade possibilities. "A wonderful country," is his opinion of what he saw.

C. E. De Witt of the De Witt-Seitz company; H. V. Eva, secretary of the Duluth Commercial club; W. D. Bailey of Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell; J. G. Ketchem of the Rainy Lake Lumber company; P. McDonnell, the well-known contractor, and James Walsh—all these men were most deeply impressed by what they saw. They find that a country rich in lumber, rich farm lands and producing quality has been thrown open to the farmer, settler and merchant; they realize that the opening of the new road means growth, progress and the making of a country that has not as yet begun to realize its possibilities. They realize that the completion of the connecting link with Winnipeg means a new trade era for Duluth, and they believe that a new bond of sympathy has been formed with our Canadian cousins by the linking of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg with the Canadian Northern.

The First Train.

Now, as to the road that yesterday ran its first train over the new eight-span steel bridge that spans the Rainy Lake river at Ranier, and forms a trade link between two countries: Due credit for the success of the new line should be given to D. O. Anderson, secretary and treasurer of the D. R. L. & W. railway and to M. A. Murphy, general manager of the road. Both of these officials have worked tremendously for the success of an undertaking which would have daunted men less imbued with the belief of its ultimate success.

A ride over the new line will impress one with the difficulties encountered by the construction crews. Heavy grades have been reduced; deep depressions filled in; solid rock tunneled in order to save detours; swamps filled in and corduroyed to make a road bed; ditches have been dug for miles, to drain off the water, and rock and gravel have been hauled for miles up and down the line, for ballasting purposes.

Great Difficulties.

The new road is very straight. No grades are encountered. Its road bed is smooth and level, and reflects the tremendous amount of work that has been expended upon it. Sidings have been constructed, sectionhouses built and stations erected. Drains have been dug for miles, both along the road bed and running at right angles to it, so as to carry off the water. The road was built right through a marshy part of the country, in some places, and the difficulties of road-making were increased by scarcity of labor, continuous rain and other unfavorable conditions. In the face of these many difficulties, however, the confidence of Mr. Anderson and Mr. Murphy has never been shaken. Mr. Murphy has directed the work while wading up to his knees in mud and water, while Mr. Anderson has ridden up and down the line when its condition made riding more like sailing in a crazy tramp steamer upon a high sea. Both of these men have been "on the job" at all times.

Both timber and farming land is tributary to the road. Up to Pelican Lake the land is not so heavily timbered and farms are rapidly being taken up. Beyond Pelican Lake the trees grow big and straight. The woods become thick and dense and one realizes the great freight traffic that stands right on the right of way of the road. Mr. Anderson says that every foot of the road will contribute revenue. He says that timber will be taken out of the country for twenty-five years, while the producing quality of the soil is wonderful. The soil looks exceedingly rich and fertile. Some of the land needs draining, but its richness and adaptibility for agricultural pursuits is unquestioned.

The Banquet.

The banquet, which the good citizens of Fort Frances gave to the visiting delegation was a prize winner. They welcomed the coming of the commercial invaders. They welcomed them with speech and food and the cheer that only hearty sympathy and true friendliness can inspire. They, too, see a new era for their little city. They see great promise of progress and advantage in the coming of the new road. They see new trade, new settlers and a growth that will be without precedent.

Mayor H. Williams is a conservative man. He is the kind of a man who thinks twice before he speaks. He told The Herald that the coming of the new road would be the making of Fort Frances and the territory on both sides of the boundary line. Mayor Williams has watched the progress of the country for years. It has been a rather slow progress in the past. Now he says it will all be different. The joining of two roads has opened innumerable opportunities. Some day, Mayor Williams says, and his opinion is echoed by railroad men, through trains will be running from Chicago, bringing excursionists, health seekers and tourists to the lakes. Business will be made by the coming of the road. Mayor Williams says that American goods will find their way further west than Fort Frances, but he thinks that the advantage of the bargain is not going to be wholly confined to the American merchant. He also sees the share the Canadians are going to reap in the influx of new settlers.

George H. Shaw, general traffic manager of the Canadian Northern, was at the banquet. He believes implicitly in the future of the route formed by the linking of the two roads. He gave a history of the conditions bringing about the new route, and gave an intimation of the future progress that would grow out of the new short line route.

More than 100 guests sat down to the banquet. The dominant note by representatives from both sides of the line was that of friendship. Optimism was general, and it was also infectious. It was impossible to listen to the toasts without feeling that one was present at the birth of a new era, at the turning of a new page that opened a new chapter of progress.

Credit should be given to P. A. Smith of the Rat Portage Lumber company, for some of the success of the new road. Mr. Smith has lived in Fort Frances for the past seventeen years. He has predicted the coming of the road and has educated the people to that belief. He has long seen the necessity for the completion of the connecting link, and Tuesday he watched the realization of this long harbored belief.

Following is the list of toasts and the speakers:

"The King and the President of the United States."

"Our Guests—The Duluth, Rainy Lake and Winnepeg Railway," accompanied by presentation of an address to President Cook and coupled with the names of General Manager Murphy and Secretary Anderson.

"The City of Duluth," coupled with names of W. E. Magnar, president of the Commercial club, and W. E. Mars, vice president of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company.

"The Canadian Northern Railway," coupled with names of George H. Shaw, general traffic manager, and Superintendent Wilcox.

"Duluth Commercial Club," coupled with name of H. V. Eva.

"Our Sister Railways," coupled with names of W. H. Gemmell, general manager of M. & I., and W. H. Strachan, superintendent of M. & I.

"Navigation," coupled with name of George A. Graham, president Rainy River Navigation company.

"The Press," coupled with names of R. B. Liggett, Duluth Evening Herald; J. W. Dafoe, managing editor Winnipeg Free Press, and Mr. Campbell of Winnipeg Telegram.

The return trip was made Wednesday morning. Mr. Anderson ably assisted by Daniel Murphy, roadmaster of the D., R. L. & W. railroad, showed every attention to the comfort of the Duluth delegation, attend to their every want and made the trip a pleasure that will linger long in the memory of those who made the first trip across the Rainy river.

ROOSEVELT, THE AWAKENER.

In his latest message to congress the president put forth one of his best reflections upon present economic and political tendencies when he said:

"The man who preaches hatred of wealth honestly acquired, who inculcates envy and jealousy and slanderous ill will toward those of his fellows who by thrift, energy and industry have become men of means, is a menace to the community.

"But his counterpart in evil is to be found in that particular kind of multi-millionaire who is almost the least enviable, and certainly the least admirable, of all our citizens; a man of whom it has been said that his face has grown hard while his body has grown soft; whose son is a fool and his daughter a foreign princess; whose nominal pleasures are at best those of a tasteless and extravagant luxury, and whose real delight, whose real life work, is the accumulation and use of power in its most sordid and least elevating form. In the chaos of an absolutely unrestricted commercial individualism this is a type that becomes prominent as invariably as the marauder baron became prominent in the physical chaos of the dark ages."

The man who hates wealth because it is wealth; who is envious and bitter toward his fellow who has been successful; who hates the rich man because of his riches and not because of the manner in which they were acquired this man deserves all the scorn that the trenchant pen of our valiant president can produce. But there is a good deal of misunderstanding regarding this type of agitator. It is a much less common type than many suppose. The reason for this misunderstanding is that the kind of rich man scourged by the president in the above quotation believes and says that everybody that attacks gross wealth and gross methods of gaining wealth, belongs to the type which the president and all fairminded men detest. To listen to this man with his hard face and his soft body, his fool son and his tuft-hunting daughter, you might think that every man that attacked dishonest methods of acquiring wealth is a hater of wealth for its own sake; a disappointed, venomous individual whom failure had turned into an envious enemy of success in others.

But it isn't so. The man that hates success because of his own failure, who attacks wealth because of his own poverty, is too lonely, too small and too weak to be worthy of much consideration.

But the American people, from Minnesota to Florida and from the Golden Gate to Martha's Vineyard, are aweary of being robbed; are impatient of the exploitation of natural resources which wastes the heritage of the future for the inordinate profit of the designing few; and are disgusted with the flagrant interference with their politics, their literature, their lawmaking bodies and even their religion by the beneficiaries of corrupt special privilege who seek to sway all social machinery in their own interests.

A future generation, when time has toned down the shallows and emphasized the deeps in President Roosevelt's character, will place him upon a high and lonely peak because of his service to humanity in awakening this weariness, this impatience and this disgust.

AN ABSURD TARIFF BARRIER.

Governor Johnson again showed the clearness and breadth of his vision when in Detroit last night he said that "we must obliterate the imaginary line between the United States of America and the Canadian states of America." He believes that Canada and the United States should be one great nation, the greatest on earth, spreading over the larger part of the greatest of the world's continents. He would gladly witness the release of the useless, burdensome and dangerous Philippines, and the coalition of the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

But first there must be a commercial union between these two countries which are so closely allied by ties of blood and interest. "The intellectual energy of the country must be directed to the commercial union of the two countries, if to no other," he said.

Here are two countries, divided only by a line which is purely imaginary, whose interests are identical, whose problems are similar, and whose separate futures are only less glorious than their united future would be. If there can be no political union, at least there should be a commercial union, and to gain that the absurd barrier of the tariff should be removed.

Such an arrangement would be immensely profitable to both countries, and the present arbitrary division by the tariff wall is obstructive to harmonious commercial relations and prejudicial to the interests of both nations. There is no more reason for a tariff wall between the United States and Canada than there is for one between Minnesota and North Dakota.

WASTEFUL "DEVELOPMENT."

In a book called "The Money God" Prof. John C. Van Dyke of Rutgers college brings a terrible indictment against American business and against the so-called "development" upon which we have been priding ourselves. What makes it so shocking and so discomforting is the obvious fact that his charges are, in a very great measure, justified by the facts.

Prof. Van Dyke finds no satisfaction in the fact that America is the richest country on earth, because he believes this sudden expansion of wealth is really a senseless waste of our fixed capital, a reckless exploitation of natural resources the end of which is already in sight. What is called "development" is really the despoiling of the nation's future, nor does President Roosevelt find any response from the people to his appeal for wise conservation of our natural resources. What the people want—or rather the few that have monopolized these resources—is the resources themselves.

So far, there can be little doubt of the truth of this author's charges. Overcapitalization is a despoiling of the future, reaping for a few selfish financiers at one move the dividends of future generations. Few lines of industry have been free from this shameful practice. The timber lands have been ravished and laid waste, when they might have been used to produce good dividends while preserving the supply of timber for the use of future generations. European countries, where forestry is practiced properly, make their forests yield ample lumber supplies without exhausting them, new planting and new growth making up for the cut. In many places even the soil has been impoverished by unscientific farming methods, its richness stolen by successive crops without alternation or fertilization.

What has all this brought us? A few men own hundreds of millions, many own millions, but the great majority find it nip and tuck to make both ends meet, while millions are on the ragged edge of the abyss of misery, into which they are plunged by every succeeding panic, brought about entirely by reckless exploitation.

Have our riches brought happiness? They have gone so largely into the hands of the few that they have produced permanent poverty for many and an unceasing struggle to keep afloat for many more.

Have they brought happiness even to the few who reaped the richest harvest? Prof. Van Dyke believes that on the contrary the rich are unhappier than the poor, and that every fresh increment of wealth only adds to the discontent. Richer than any nation known to history, he founds America "singularly restless, discontented and unhappy."

But above all, he finds that the greatest harm has come from the spread of commercialism. The discontented many, seeing the gross wealth of the few but not suspecting their unhappiness, have striven to make their own vocations, trades, professions or arts yield them riches also. Finding this impossible in legitimate ways, many have been tempted over the boundaries of honesty and integrity, and have fallen victims to the prevailing greed for riches.

It is not a pleasant picture, but the truth in it makes it still more unwelcome.

IT WILL BE TAFT.

Though the five Republican state conventions held yesterday showed as great a diversity of sentiment as was possible, the fact remains that the so-called contest for the Republican presidential nomination has lost all of its interest. Taft is likely to win so easily that the convention will be a very tame affair.

It is noteworthy that the "interests" have called off their dogs of war, and that they appear to be preparing to join in the hurrah for Taft. As this means hurrahing for Roosevelt, too, it has some semblance of the miraculous, but in reality it amounts to nothing more than that somebody had pounded a little common sense into the shouters for the corporations. For a long time they barked at the president's heels like a pack of curs, bent upon damaging him if they could. It was very silly, because it simply strengthened the people's confidence in him, and made his renomination more propable. Every "knock" from the interests was a "boost."

Somebody has told them that they were blindly doing what was more likely than any other one thing to bring about the renomination of Roosevelt, and that if they beat Taft they would get more of the Roosevelt administration. So they have quit. Unless something unexpected happens, the opposition to Taft will be a very negligible quantity when the Chicago convention meets.

Conventions were held yesterday in Pennsylvania, which declared for Knox; in Vermont, where the delegates were uninstructed; in West Virginia, where Taft was endorsed; in Mississippi, where Foraker got the delegation; and in Alabama, where there will be two conventions, one for Taft and one against him.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY LAWS.

The infamy of the system of law and judicial practice that throws the burden of the risks of employment upon the worker, instead of placing it upon the employer who is able to bear it and who should in the name of all that is just and fair be compelled to carry it, has often been exposed, and the messages of President Roosevelt have gone far to awaken public sentiment to the need of a revolution in this respect.

It is true that large employers are rather bitter toward the president because they say that his declarations of this nature have encouraged the class of personal injury lawyers known as ambulance chasers, and have increased the sympathy of jurors for personal injury cases. Whether this result has followed or not it is hard to say, though it is not an illogical development. So far as such employers are concerned, however, it is likely that many of them would welcome a system which would put the business of caring for injured employers upon a definite basis.

Most European countries have fixed systems of this nature, all of them even going to the extent of prescribing the amount of damages to be paid by employers to injured workmen or to the families of employes that are killed. The federal bureau of labor has just issued a valuable bulletin giving information about foreign laws of this character. In the same bulletin appears a review of the principles of the common law governing employers' liability in most of the states of the union, and the mild departures made from these principles by special enactment in the several states.

The common law in its relation to the injured employer is anachronistic, infamous and a thing of deadly injustice. Its doctrines which release the employer from liability for accidents caused by fellow servants, and which release the employer where contributory negligence is shown on the part of the injured workman, place the employe in a wretched state of dependence. Happily, these doctrines have been softened by statute in many cases, especially as applying to railroads.

Twenty-two foreign countries, the bureau of labor bulletin shows, have enacted legislation in behalf of injured workmen. These include the great nations of Europe, the Scandinavian countries, Belgium, Finland, the Netherlands, Spain and nearly all the British colonies. In every one of these twenty-two countries the law fixes the compensation to be paid. Thus no deplorably long-drawn litigation is necessary to decide the outcome, with the injured employe fighting singlehanded against the expensively-equipped legal department of the employer, skilled in all the subterfuges of the law and adroit in delays and obstructions that soon exhaust the resources of the plaintiff.

The nation and the states must take up this problem and reduce it to a just and adequate system.

If the prices of meat continue to soar, only the very wealthy will be able to enjoy this luxury.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

George T. Peyton, at the Lenox hotel, after traveling from New York to the Pacific coast, and all through the Middle West, is of the opinion that business conditions are on the mend. Mr. Peyton says that more money is being invested than was the case two months ago, while money is easier to secure for legitimate investment than it has been for the past four months.

He says that there are still a great number of men out of employment. This condition of labor has undergone somewhat of an improvement on the Pacific coast, as many of the men who were thrown out of employment during the first stage of the money stringency have returned to work.

Building operations, which were practically at a standstill, have resumed a degree of activity somewhat approaching normal. This is particularly true of Seattle, Mr. Peyton says. In that city the building was entirely stopped for over two months. Now they are beginning to invest capital in building once more.

In Portland, Tacoma, Spokane and even across the line in Vancouver, B. C., the activity seems to be returning. People are again putting capital into real estate and are building houses and buildings upon their property. The resumption of building has furnished employment for many men who were idle up to a month or two ago.

Coming to Minnesota, Mr. Peyton says that all along the line of the Northern Pacific railway one can see evidence of returning business activity. In the towns and cities that are passed by the road there is a stir and hustle that refutes the idea that business is dull. Then, too, the business of the railroads is showing an increase. Mr. Peyton says freight officials have told him that the eastbound lumber business has shown a noticeable increase during the past thirty days. The building activity is responsible for the increased shipments of lumber.

Going toward the coast the freight traffic has not as yet reached a normal tone, but it has shown some increase during the past month. Minnesota jobbers are sending some goods to the coast that have not been in the trade for the past six months. Some heavy hardware is going from St. Paul and Duluth and other lines of trade are showing an increase in western shipments.

In the East Mr. Peyton says the situation is not as good as it is in the Middle Wesst. There are more men out of employment, men with capital seemed less inclined to invest and there is lacking that air of optimistic confidence that seems present in the West. The banks are, however, restoring confidence by the way they are loaning money and aiding legitimate investors. Some of the factories of the New England states have opened, while some will not open until after the presidential nominations. But the condition of the people in these manufacturing centers is not bad, says Mr. Peyton, for the reason that they are a thrifty class and have saved their money in the past. They are forced to remain idle for some time, but they are not feeling the effects of lack of work as are the laboring men of New York city who have been thrown out of employment.

But in New York the people are showing a returning confidence. Men with money are more ready to invest, and while business is not flourishing by any means for the reason that most men are waiting until after the presidential nominations, it has shown an encouraging increase during the past sixty days.

In all the territory covered by Mr. Peyton he observed a returning air of confidence and an improvement of business conditions. From New York city to Seattle and from Seattle to Duluth conditions seemed to be on the upward turn.

Hat,

What
Have they got
Fixed in your frame?

Flowers,

Plants in the pot,
What
Have they put on this hat?
Gosh!
What have they not?

Ebb Tide of Immigration.

Philadelphia Record: It is noted that vessels sailing for Mediterranean ports are still carrying in the steerage thousands of returning laborers. The fact that the outgoing movement consists largely of whole families, indicates a serious check to the westward movement from Southern Europe of immigrants intending to make permanent homes for themselves in the United States. They find the conditions here at this time much less inviting than in recent past years. The falling off in the demand for unskilled labor, coupled with the higher cost of living in this country than in the countries of their nativity, sufficiently explains the general exodus.

THE WEATHER.

It was vastly more pleasant today, though the wind was still cool and the thermometer still persistently clings to the depths. It was clear and brilliant, with only occasional cloudiness. The weather man says that there will probably be freezing temperatures again tonight, and that the coolness will continue tomorrow. Last night's lowest temperature was 28 degs. and yesterday's highest was 41 degs.

A year ago today it was fair, with a grateful touch of spring warmth in the air.

The sun rose this morning at 4:54 and sets tonight at 7:16, making 14 hours and 22 minutes of daylight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The disturbance central Wednesday morning over the western gulf region has advanced its center to Georgia and the Carolinas attended by light to heavy rains in all Southeastern states. Scattered but light snowfalls also occurred in the upper lake region, Colorado, Wyoming, North Dakota and Saskatchewan during the past twenty-four hours. The barometer continues high throughout the Upper Rocky mountains with somewhat colder in Northwestern Montana and Alberta. A rise in pressure over western gulf states is attended by much lower temperature there, while falling pressures over the eastern slope, Southern Rockies and Pacific coast districts are accompanied by warmer weather. Indications favor a continuance of partly cloudy and cool conditions in this locality tonight and Friday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

To The Herald.

The Evening Herald of Duluth,
Ever welcome with the truth
In your editorial page,
Five and twenty years of age,
Democratic every day,
Hampered not for sordid pay;
Tell me, Dally, tell me how Matters are in congress now.
Is our money yet secure,
Will our country long endure?
I'm inclined to deem it will
When I think of Bunker Hill,
And our fathers long ago—
Wounded, bleeding on the snow;
Still we have to keep an eye,
Contemplate, and trust and try.

Some who go to legislate
Do not duty contemplate.
Let us average men beware,
Love the country in our care,
Look with pride upon our flag,
Do less chewing on the rag,
Tho' a few may buck and gag;
Study hard, and vote for good
With regard for nationhood.
Keep in touch with congressmen,
And the senate now and then
By petition with the pen,
For the time is coming when
They will soon adjourn again.

As for me what have I done
That a victory may be won?
Here I'm basking in the sun
Where I see the river run;—
Come to think I'm very slow
With the average here below,
Having sense enough to know
Tariff ought to be judicious,
Just to meet the people's wishes.

Tell me, Herald, of renown,
Will the tariff soon be down
So the people needn't frown
Every time they go to town?
Tell me also have we got
"Postal savings banks" or not?
More than that we'd like to know,
But at present let it go.
I'm keeping every leaf
Of each editorial brief
That you give me every day;
I will bind them in a sheaf
And refer to what they say.

John Birkinbine of Philadelphia, consulting engineer of the Duluth Iron & Steel company, has arrived in the city. Mr. Birkinbine has made all plans for the blast furnaces, steel converters and mills of the company, and his present trip to Duluth is to make the final arrangements for beginning work on the first buildings. Work begins first on the foundation of the 140-ton blast furnace, to be followed at once by the casting, stock and engine houses adjoining, and latterly the converter houses, rolling mills, etc. It is not expected that any part of the plant will be ready for business before the opening of navigation in the spring of 1889. The ores to be used will be the famous Bessemer ores of the Vermilion, mixed to a certain extent with the softer ores of the Gogebic.

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

Boston Globe: Johnson campaign buttons have reached Boston, and the suddenness with which the first shipment melted away before the general demand has given ample evidence of the governor's popularity here in New England.

Anaconda, Mont., Standard: The one man who is trying to prove that the Johnson boom is a dead one is either a humorist in search of notoriety or a freak in search of an asylum.

Washington Post: The popularity of Governor Johnson grows remarkably. Wherever he has appeared he has inspired that peculiar attachment that men are glad to show for a leader who can lead. The foreign-born element in the Middle West, a great factor in business and politics, is enthusiastic over the suggestion that Johnson be nominated for the presidency. The native-born Americans are equally well pleased with Johnson's record and personality. He stands well in the South, and is far more popular among Eastern Democrats than is Bryan. It is not improbable, as the situation now stands, that Johnson will draw so much strength from Bryan as to make the latter's nomination impossible.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Anyway, Mr. Bryan has acquired the knowledge that Mr. Johnson is anything but a dead one.

Hutchinson Leader: Governor Johnson is a man who has done a few things for the people of Minnesota which they will not soon forget, and men of all parties, loving him and honoring him, will be only too glad to see him honored at Denver, if only by a complimentary vote of his own state. The governor and his friends are making no war on Mr. Bryan, but they seem to object to being told to go 'way back and sit down, so long as this is a free country and one man has as good a right to aspire to the presidency as another.

Buffalo Journal: The effect of having a lot of offices to dispose of is shown in Governor Johnson's candidacy for the presidential nomination. If there had been places enough to go around, there would have been no talk of a Bryan delegation from Minnesota. But with sixteen applications to one job, Johnson could not satisfy all his friends, and those who were left out in the cold are good Bryan men.

Madison Independent Press: Governor Johnson seems to be giving Mr. Bryan the dust all right enough in the presidential race.

Wabasha Herald: The Minnesota delegation should go to Governor Johnson graciously and it should be his to vote for him, just as long as votes can be of benefit to him. If in the course of the proceedings it is evident that he can not be nominated, then it should go to Bryan. Minnesota should have no votes for anyone else in the Denver convention but for Johnson or Bryan.

Owatonna People's Press: Governor Johnson is the favorite here for president. It begins to look as if Governor Johnson may be nominated on the first ballot, and Minnesota will be greatly honored.

Warroad Commonwealth: The governor has won the respect of all while enforcing the laws of the great bread and butter state, and if he can scare up enough Republicans in other localities to vote for him, he may be elected president of the greatest nation of the earth. The reward is richly worth a strenuous effort; every citizen of the nation has a right to aspire, and if he can prevail on the voters to support him, none can complain. The country demands a president who will give us a "square deal." Johnson has given us that as governor, and will continue to do so if placed at the head of the nation.

GREATER HIBBING WILL BE RESULT

Commercial Club is Reorganized and Much Interest Shown.

Hibbing, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large and enthusiastic meeting of many of Hibbings most prominent citizens was held last night in the village council rooms for the purpose of reorganizing the Hibbing Commercial club. With much enthusiasm and without opposition the following officers were elected: W. J. West, president; Frank G. Jewell, first vice president; Frank H. Dear, second vice president; A. E. Pfremmer, secretary; Claude M. Atkinson, directors, Dr. H. R. Werrick, five years; William C. Barrett, four years; P. J. Klass, two years; Judge T. F. Bradly, one year.

Mr. Hostetter, representing the Duluth Commercial club, spoke at length on the great agricultural possibilities of St. Louis county. He will be in this county the coming summer and fall at the instance of the Duluth Commercial club to secure exhibits for the state and St. Louis county fairs. A resolution endorsing the formation of a state militin company was unanimously passed and Messrs. Atkinson and Pfremmer were appointed to present it to the council at its meeting next Tuesday evening. The meeting adjourned to convene next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the municipal court room. A general invitation was extended the public to be present and join the club.

ODD FELLOWS' BANQUET.

Eveleth Members and Friends Celebrate Order's Anniversary.

Eveleth, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—To celebrate the eighty-ninth anniversary of the founding of the order, the local Odd Fellows held a banquet Tuesday night after their regular meeting. A large gathering composed of members, their wives and invited guests assembled to hear an excellent program and partake of a sumptuous spread. The large hall was appropriately decorated. The address of the evening was given by Rev. Blake of Ely. The program follows: Prayer, Rev. Kratz of Two Harbors; piano solo, Miss Pearl Sheehy; address, Rev. C. H. Blake of Ely; song, Mrs. E. K. Medler; recitation, Guy Springer; piano solo, Miss Pauline Rabinowitz; violin solo, Wallace Hall; song, Miss Mamie Murray; recitation, Miss Mary Stevens.

RELATIVES IN DULUTH.

Mail Carrier, Who Was Drowned, Worked at Two Harbors.

Two Harbors, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Caleb Carlson, the mail carrier who was drowned in one of the small rivers near Lutsen, Sunday, while carrying mail between the latter place and Beaver Bay, as first told in Wednesday's Herald, had been employed for several years in the livery stables here of S. M. Jensen and Beckman Bros., and had been employed by the latter for their mail contract between Beaver Bay and Lutsen. He was fording the stream on horseback when he perished. The horse managed to get ashore. The body of Carlson was recovered and will be buried here. He had relatives in Duluth.

BEAR RIVER "DRY."

Town of That Name Closes Its Last Saloon.

Bear River, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The celebrated and much advertised Bear River saloon is now closed for good. The doors were closed Saturday night and have not since been opened. Some interested citizens in the town of Morcom got busy and communicated with the county authorities relative to the right of a saloon to run on a county license after the license had been voted out in the town and were informed that the license expired the moment the result of the ballot was known. Liquor sold after that date was sold without a license and parties so selling were guilty of blind pigging. Upon being informed as to the law on the subject, Lars Brude immediately closed the saloon.

NEW MEN NAMED.

Chisholm, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—New members of the fire department have been appointed to succeed those who resigned recently, as follows: Nels Anderson, Arthur Lillydale, John Newbauer, Fred Porter, Archie McDougall and Phil Gremmier.

These officers have been elected: Assistant chief, Ed Chase; foreman, Leander Rell; secretary, R. T. Waters; treasurer, John Gremmier.

IMPROVE SCHOOL GROUNDS.

Walks to be Constructed and Other Betterments Made.

Biwabik, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school board, at a meeting just held, has decided to materially improve the grounds around the new high school building. Walks will be constructed from each entrance, with the ground between the walks sodded and the remainder of the yard made ready for playgrounds.

A. N. Taylor of Minnesota City was elected principal of the Miller-Mohawk school, and Miss Blanche Gaudy was selected to teach the sixth grade in the Biwabik high school building. Miss Gaudy is now located in North Yakima, Wash., but is a Minnesota girl. Miss Klara King, who has been principal of the Miller-Mohawk, is transferred to the Biwabik schools.

Further arrangements were made for the introduction of domestic science, which it was determined some time ago to introduce into the Biwabik schools during the next term. Miss Norman will be the instructor.

WOULD SELL VILLAGE.

Spartans Anxious to Make Deal With Steel Corporation.

Sparta, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sale of the property of the people of this village to the Steel corporation for a lump sum of $200,000 rather than moving the town that mining may be prosecuted underneath is being considered and negotiations may be closed, as it is said the deal would be a more satisfactory one than to move the town out of the way. It is believed an arrangement can be made to thus dispose of the matter. This would naturally redound to the new town of Gilbert and necessitate the platting of the forty acres held in reserve in the Gilbert townsite. It is expected that within a short time Sparta will serve notice on the Steel corporation that it no longer seeks to be moved, but that the property is all for sale at a reasonable price, if taken within a given time. If no sale is made within the time specified it will then be up to the officials to carry out their plan of improvements. This includes the replacing of the water system, the laying of sewers and the macadamizing of some of the streets.

SAYS SCHREIBER GOT THE MONEY

Washburn Banker Identifies Him as Party Who Presented Certificate.

Virginia, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Assistant County Attorney Poirier says that he will have William Schreiber, the Ashawa homesteader who was arrested Monday on the charge of forgery, brought before Judge Carey tomorrow at 9 a. m. for a preliminary hearing. Schreiber, as stated in an Ashaway dispatch to The Herald, was brought here and placed in jail on the charge of forging the name of Frank Massapust, the homesteader who burned to death in the destruction of a cabin on his homestead February 8 last, to a certificate of deposit on the First National bank of Virginia for $329.25 and attempting to cash it at a Washburn bank. While the charge against the accused is ostensibly forgery, it is reported that a still graver charge may be pressed as many suspicious circumstances are said to surround the burning to death of Massapust and Schreiber's possession of the certified check.

Several days ago Schreiber attempted to have the check cashed in a bank at Washburn to secure money to purchase some land. The banker, a man by the name of Maxe, gave him $75 and is said to have become suspicious and coming here procured Schreiber's arrest. Maxe identifies Schreiber as the man who presented the check which was made out in Massapust's name. His arrest for forgery as told in yesterday's Herald follows.

Whether anything else results beyond the forgery charge is not known, as Assistant County Attorney Poirier is not talking. Schreiber claims he can satisfactorily explain all matters. Relatives of Massapust living at New Ulm are here pushing the investigation of their relative's death and some sensational results are anticipated.

EXPLOSION ON JAP CRUISER SENDS SHIP TO THE BOTTOM

heavy one to the Japanese navy. She was of less than 5,000 tons displacement and of a type which has not been followed since her construction. The peculiarity of the Matsushima was her armament, which consisted of one 12-inch gun mounted on her poop deck. In addition she carried twelve 4-inch guns and a battery of smaller caliber and four above water torpedo tubes. She was built in 1890, being designed and constructed at La Seyne, France. Her principal historic record consists of her part in the war between Japan and China, when she was the flagship of Admiral Ito in the battle of the Yalu river. She also participated in the battle of the Sea of Japan. Two sister ships were built, the Issukushima in 1890 and the Hashidate in 1891. The cruiser had no armor. She is classed as a protected cruiser, having a protected deck of one and one-half inches thick. Her speed was 16.7 knots. It is understood here that the cruiser was in use as a school ship.

Cause of Explosion.

Based on the first advices, naval experts inferred that the explosion was caused by either a defective electric wire, an electric fuse or deterioration in the stock of smokeless powder, affected by heat. The deterioration of powder, causing it to ignite and explode, is one of the constant dangers aboard warships. Every navy, except the United States, has installed cooling machines in the magazines of their ships of recent type for the purpose of maintaining an even temperature. It is not regarded as probable that the Matsushima had such apparatus installed, as she was considered as out of date as a fighting ship.

It was commented here that the deplorable accident would have been more grave had the cruiser been in any but Japanese waters.

A dispatch to the naval attache of the Japanese embassy from Tokio says that those saved include three officers, twenty-four cadets, seven noncommissioned officers and 141 of the crew.

power is available for economic development.

Only a comparatively small part of this has been made use of, but the portion that has been utilized has been one of the most important factors in the recent industrial development of the South.

One great difficulty encountered by the users of water power is the fact that it cannot be depended upon the year around, but must be supplemented for a time each summer by costly fuel power, the streams running too low to be of service.

As the years go on the low water periods are growing longer. This is because the forests at the headwaters of the streams are being cut off, it is claimed, with the result that the melting winter snows and the spring rains pour off the denuded and hardened land in devastating floods, sending down for a few weeks far more water than they can use, and, moreover, reducing the capacity and usefulness of their mill ponds by filling them with hundreds of tons of sand and soil which the floods scour off the unprotected upper slopes.

Should Stop Cutting of Forests.

If indiscriminate cutting of the forests on the crests of the watershed can be stopped there is a possibility, according to a recent report of experts, of increasing the development of power up to anywhere from three to thirty times the 1,400,000 horsepower at present available.

The method proposed to develop the Appalchian river resources to the total of 42,000 horsepower is by storage reservoirs, which would catch the surplus waters of the spring and retain them until the summer months when the mills now have to fall back on fuel or close down.

The United States Geological survey has kept records of stream flow in the Appalchians for a number of years and recently made a careful study of the possibilities of storage reservoirs in that region. The forest service has just published their report under the title "The Relation of the Southern Appalchian Mountains to the Development of Water Power."

The experts of the geological survey, who made the investigation, after picking out reservoir sites and estimating their capacity and the area from which they woud receive the run off, consider the figures given above extremely conservative. Even with only 1,400,000 horsepower, the annual return at $20 per horsepower per year would amount to $28,000,000, equal to a gross income of 3 per cent on a capital of about $933,000,000.

term, the total of claims demanded will, it is claimed, total approximately $1,000,000.

The amounts asked for vary from $1,100 for what might be considered as minor injuries to $50,000 for the loss of limbs or of the eyesight.

Oliver Is Favorite.

Just fifty-two cases in which the complaints have been filed comprise the list, making the total of claims over $51,775. Of these, the Oliver Iron Mining company is the defendant in thirteen cases, the claims aggregating nearly $150,000. These figures do not take into consideration the cases which have actually been started against the company this month, but of which there is as yet no court record giving information to the general public.

Locally the street railway company is the most popular object toward which damage suits are directed. In April claims aggregating about $20,000 were filed against the company.

The number of damage cases set for trial during the May term will probably total about sixty-five or seventy. This means that out of a calendar of 210 cases for trial in the May term of the district court, there are about sixty or seventy damage cases for trial by jury, providing none of them are settled, stricken or continued.

It requires, on the average, from three to four days to try an injury case. If the sixty or seventy cases were to be tried in their order, the district court would not be doing anything else but disposing of damage suits from now until next Christmas.

The enormous proportions of the personal injury case business of the district court of St. Louis county can hardly be realized outside of those who follow more or less closely the trend of events in that quarter.

To obtain the figures showing the total of damages demanded for personal injuries last year would require an exhaustive search of the court files. The judges themselves might be able to furnish some startling statistics relative to the damage case business but, for obvious reasons, they would not give out any figures.

Many Are Settled.

It is stated on good authority that in 1907 the various corporations and indemnity companies doing business in St. Louis county paid out between $350,000 and $400,000 in settling up damage cases. These settlements had nothing to do with the cases that were filed in court and actually came to trial, and in which verdicts were rendered against the defendant concerns.

It is said that the amounts recovered in verdicts would hardly reach the total paid out by settlement out of court.

Insurance Men Shy.

The indemnity companies doing business in this part of the Northwest are said to have been pretty harg hit during recent years through the settlement of damages cases and the payment of judgments on verdicts rendered against employing companies carrying casualty insurance. It is claimed that all but three or four of the employers' indemnity companies that formerly did business in the Northwest, have been practically driven out of doing business in this territory. It is claimed, the losses of the indemnity companies in this vicinity were from 100 to 500 per cent.

By reason of the steadily increasing damage case business the idemnity companies have been compelled to increase their rates until the employers claim the premiums have now reached a figure that makes the insurance almost prohibitive to small operators and is one of the largest figures of expense with the big concerns.

Break World Records.

More personal injury cases are started and tried in the district court of St. Louis than in any other court in this state, country or the world. There are a dozen damage cases in the court here to one in the district court of Hennepin county.

By reason of its damage case business Duluth is getting an advertising that may not be the most desirable. A prominent Duluth man states that last summer he endeavored to the best of his ability to induce a Detroit manufacturer who has a payroll of over $1,000,000 and who was seeking a change of location to come to Duluth. The Duluth man presented all the favorable arguments at his command but the manufacturer went to Buffalo. He gave two reasons for avoiding Duluth. One was the foothold acquired by the labor organizations and the other was the damage case business in the local court.

It is claimed that Duluth is known throughout every little district and the remotest villages in the old country as the "place where the fellows go to get hurt and get lots of money."

Poison-laden Blood

Resulting from artificial winter life is purified by Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills.

Few people breathe enough fresh air in winter to purify the blood.

As a result spring finds the blood laden with poisons and there are headaches, pains in the limbs and tired, wornout feelings.

The liver and kidneys become sluggish and clogged and quite fail in their mission of filtering and purifying the blood.

It is because of their direct and specific action on these organs that Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills are so wonderfully effective as purifiers of the blood—for it is by means of the liver and kidneys alone that the blood can be purified.

This medicine ensures regular and healthful action of the bowels, cleanses and invigorates the whole digestive and excretory systems and thereby removes the cause of pains and aches, of tired, languid feelings, billiousness, backache and constipation.

Purify the blood this spring by using Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills, and you will not know what it is to feel depressed and to suffer the effects of sluggish, torpid liver, kidneys and bowels, one pill a dose, 25 cts. a box, at all dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

IN LONDON, SETS TYPE IN PARIS

Danish Inventor Operates the Linotype by Wireless Waves.

London, April 30.—That he already has perfected an invention by which he can set type with an ordinary Linotype machine in Paris by wireless waves thrown from London is the surprising statement made by Hans Knudsen, a Danish inventor, famous for his achievements with liquid air, after giving the first public demonstration of long distance wireless photography.

"I shall publicly demonstrate my new wireless typesetting invention within a few weeks," he said. "I already have had my first machine connected and it proved successful, setting 3,000 words an hour at this distance, just as if an operator were there working the machine.

"The time is not far distant when, with my invention, the London correspondent of a New York newspaper will be able to send his news straight to the printing press through a Marconi operator."

In the course of his demonstration of long distance wireless photography, Mr. Knudsen last night sent photographs of the king and queen and the kaiser from one room in the hotel through a wall into another without wires, the pictures proving recognizable.

"I claim I can send pictures wherever Marconi can send messages," said Mr. Knudsen. "Within a short time I shall be sending pictures of criminals and their fingerprints from England to New York."

"In Wyoming."

"In Wyoming," which will be presented at the Lyceum on Friday and Saturday matinee and night, is the product of the versatile Willard Mack's pen. Mr. Mack was happy in the selection of his locality upon which to build a story and it contains all the elements that go to make a success. No section of America holds a stronger fascination for the tourist than does the great West with its wide plains and interesting characters. Mr. Mack has laid his story in Wyoming, the famous "cattle country," where many stories could be told of fortunes made and lost. He has cleverly converted actual occurrences and scenes to stage uses and how well he did his work will be demonstrated when "In Wyoming" will be presented here on Friday and Saturday next.

The play was originally produced here under the title of "Sage Brush" and has just returned from a very successful road tour. The part of "Bob Rickards," which was created by Mr. Mack, is being played by Will Jerome, who is receiving excellent notices for his interpretation of this splendid character.

The Burlesquers.

Lillian Kirby and Jennella Kirk's burlesque of the acrobatic stunts of the La Toy brothers, at the Metropolitan this week, is one of the many stunts that will form part of the chorus girls' program at the "Met" this evening.

There are six acts on the chorus girls' bill, which is given in addition to the regular performance by the Jolly Grass Widows, and Lillian Kirby and Jannella Kirk are said to have a scream.

Other members of the chorus who will appear in the extra bill tonight are Alice King, Sanger and Laurence, Bessie Worton, Helen Carey and May Delmay.

Tomorrow night will be amateurs' night.

An Unintentional Mistake.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In your paper of Tuesday, telling about the sad and sorrowful happening causing the death of Lieut. Briggs, you publish with glaring headlines the following: "Was Attempting to Arrest an Unknown Norwegian," and again, "The officer had entered the laundry for the purpose of making an arrest of a Norwegian whose identity is unknown."

Now, why bring in the nationality in a case of this kind? Is it done intentionally for the purpose of casting a slur at a certain nationality, or is it only thoughtlessness? To me it seems entirely out of place and exhibits bad taste, to say the least, especially in this case, when the person referred to, we understand, was not a Norwegian at all. Yours respectfully, AN AMERICAN.

AMERICANS HAVE THE BEST FOOD

European Chef Highly Praises Dishes of Unites States.

New York, April 30.—"I find that in America the best food in the world is served," said Mr. Escoffier, the famous European chef, on the eve of his departure for Europe, after a week's stay. "It's good food; it is well cooked. If I were a younger man—I am past 60 now—I would come to New York. The best hotels in Europe have nothing to give that a man cannot get in New York."

Mr. Escoffier then announced his intention of returning to New York at first opportunity in November, if he could, that he might get a taste of the famous American turkey, but not later than March, in any event.

"I came here," said Mr. Escoffier, "chiefly for one purpose. That was to find out the best way to satisfy the demand of the grand army of Americans who each year come to Europe, to see how they eat in the best American hotels and cafes; what they prefer, how the food is served. I find Europe can teach your New York hotels and cafes nothing. Americans certainly eat better and are better fed than any other people in the world.'

"What did you find to be the best American dish?"

"Philadelphia squab. Such squab cannot be had in all Europe, or any other place."

MILLS BEGIN TO CURTAIL.

Manchester, N. H., April 30.—The seventeen mills of the Amoskege Manufacturing company, the largest cotton manufacturing company in the world, employing 13,000 hands, begin a period of curtailment with the closing of work tonight, a change in the working schedule restricting operations to four days a week. The reduction will continue indefinitely.

ANOKA COUNTY DITCH CONTRACT IS AWARDED.

Anoka, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The contract for digging and making ditch 4, which will be far the largest ditch in this county, has been let at the courthouse. The engineer's estimate of the cost was $21,515.66, and the contractors took the job for $17,225.10, or a saving of over $4,000.

W. M. Sherwood of Alexandria got the contract for the main ditch or dredge work, and W. E. L. Crozier of St. Cloud will build the branches and forks. This ditch is in Blaine and Ham Lake townships.

MARINE NEWS

FOUR BOATS FOR GRAIN

First Coarse Freight Carriers Arrive From Lower Lakes.

Several Cargoes Will be Shipped Before End of Week.

The first coarse freight carriers arrived in Duluth harbor this morning from the lower lakes, four coming light for grain from Lake Erie ports. The John Lambert arrived at 8:30 o'clock and it was followed by the A. D. Davidson, J. S. Keefe and Robert Wallace at 10:15. All are owned by D. Sullivan of Chicago. The Lambert went to Elevator M, the Davidson to the Great Northern, the Keefe to Elevator B and the Wallace to the Capitol elevator. They will be loaded immediately and will sail as soon as they secure their cargoes.

Several grain cargoes will be sent down the lakes before the end of the week. The W. B. Mills and Edward N. Ohl are already loaded and will probably sail tomorrow. The W. B. Kerr is loading at the Great Northern and the E. B. Wells at Elevator K. The J. T. Hutchinson was inspected this morning and she will begin loading tomorrow, and the Hoyt will also begin loading tomorrow.

The activity among the package freighters is assuming greater proportions. The steamer G. J. Gould arrived from Cleveland last night with a full cargo of package freight direct and the Northern Queen passed through piers shortly after noon today. Both are Mutual liners. The North Star of the same line is expected later in the afternoon and the Northern Wave, which stopped at Portage Lake, will arrive some time tomorrow. The Gratwick of the Chicago & Duluth Transportation company will arrive this afternoon on her first trip from Chicago to the Head of the Lakes and the Mahoning of the Anchor line, the second of the Western Transit company which left Buffalo Monday morning with freight direct for Duluth, is expected to arrive early tomorrow morning.

Though the package freighters and grain carriers are giving the marine circles some activity, it does not assume the proportions normal to this time of the year. The ore carrying trade is absolutely dead. Nobody ventures the opinion that the shipping of ore will begin more than a few days before June 1. There is plenty of ore on the docks in lower lake ports and there is no disposition to ship under the present market conditions. It is not believed a cargo will go out of Duluth before another month has passed.

BLOCKADE AT BUFFALO.

Several Steamers Held in Ice, But Are in No Danger.

Buffalo, April 30.—The passenger steamer City of Buffalo on her first trip from Cleveland, is fast in the ice eight miles from Buffalo. No assistance has been sent, as she is considered in no danger. Both the Binghamton and John Sharples enroute for upper lake ports are blocked in the ice outside the harbor. It is predicted that it will be a week before the blockade is lifted.

WANT DULUTH BOATS.

Gary and Michigan City Are Out for Big Lake Fleets.

Chicago, April 30.—A sharp rivalry is stirring up between Gary and Michigan City over the honor of having lake ships sail from these Indiana towns. Michigan City is offering to do all the legal work concerned in enrollment for nothing if owners will adopt that place as the port of hail. Gary will follow in line, it is said, in order to get the publicity of being a lake port.

Under the new laws, it is not necessary for transportation companies to be incorporated in Indiana to secure government enrollment there. All that is necessary is that some officer or owner shall have a residence at the port of hail. From present indications, Indiana will cut into the long list of ships now hailing from Duluth, although really owned elsewhere.

Holding Off for Ore.

Cleveland, April 30.—Very little business is done in freights, and there is little chartering in sight. Very little business is being done in freights and there is no improvement in sight. Vesselmen could probably get some more coal, but they want to hold off until something appears in the ore trade.

Fort William, April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twenty vessels are in port and there is a big rush of grain from the elevators. The wind has blown the ice away from the shore again.

Better Demand at Chicago.

Chicago, April 30.—There was a better demand for grain carriers. Some of the small steamers will undoubtedly soon get into service, whose owners are expected to keep them in idleness during May. Rates on wheat are 1½ cents to Buffalo.

Buffalo, April 30.—Chartering is still inactive, with little prospect of improvement. One contract, T. R. P. Power, to Milwaukee at 40 cents is reported.

LAMPHER HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Suspected of Having Set Fire to the Gunness Home.

Laporte, Ind., April 30.—Ray Lampher, arrested on suspicion of having started the fire which destroyed the country home of Mrs. Delia Gunness, and caused the death of Mrs. Gunness and three children, was today held on a charge of murder in the first degree. He waived examination and was bound over without bail. Lampher makes conflicting statements of his whereabouts previous to and during the fire. He admits that between 3 and 4 o'clock Tuesday morning he was walking from Laporte to a place where he was employed, four miles north of town, that he passed near the Gunness house and saw the roof afire, but did not give an alarm because he feared he might be suspected. The fire at the Gunness house was discovered at 4 o'clock. Officers have evidence that Mrs. Gunness feared for her life and her property, and had made a will within twelve hours of the time she met death. By the terms of the will, the estate of $15,000 is given to her three children, but in case they die without issue the property goes to the Norwegian orphanage, Chicago. The authorities have been unable to find any relatives of the Gunness woman. The victims of the fire will be buried in Forest Home cemetery, Chicago, according to a request in Mrs. Gunness' will.

JOKE ON SENATOR ELKINS.

Colleagues Claim That President's Message Had Hit at Him.

Washington, April 30.—Was President Roosevelt in his special message to congress aiming at Senator Elkins of West Virginia, when he referred sarcastically to the multimillionaire whose son is a fool and whose daughter is a foreign princess? This is the question the members of the senate are discussing among themselves with great gusto. No part of the message has created so much gossip in Washington as this, and the West Virginia senator is being "joshed" by his fellows at every turn. To his credit it must be said that he faces the "banting" good naturedly.

It is true that the senator's daughter is not yet a foreign princess, but Washington society believes she will be, and soon.

"Did you see what the president said about Elkins? Ha, ha!" laughed one white-haired senator to a colleague as they met in the corridor.

"Good joke on Elkins, wasn't it?" said another.

Two other senators met in the lobby and one of them listened with a broad smile to what his comrade said about the message, then beckoned to a page and ordered a copy of it quick.

While it is not generally believed that the president had in mind any multimillionaire in particular, it is certain that "Uncle Steve" Elkins will have to endure a lot of "joshing" for some time to come.

HAS TO GIVE UP BUSINESS.

United States Marshal Quits $20,000 Job for $4,000 One.

Afton, Okla., April 30.—If you owned 2,200 acres of land and were possessed of a fortune estimated at from $75,000 to $100,000, besides conducting a business that netted you a profit of from $15,000 to $20,000 a year, would you give it up to accept a political job that paid $4,000 a year?

This is exactly what Grant Victor, the new United States marshal for the eastern district of Oklahoma did.

When asked why he accepted the appointment, Victor said:

"I got into politics as a sort of a joke, but now that I have been appointed marshal I am going to make good, even if it does cost me $10,000 a year."

FOUNDERS DAY CELEBRATED.

Pittsburg, April 30.—The twelfth annual celebration of founders day of the magnificent Carnegie institute was held here today. Notwithstanding the inclement weather much interest was taken in the exercises.

BIG DICKINSON FIRE.

Dickinson, N. D., April 30.—Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock fire broke out in William Chandler's livery stable, south of the track. In a few minutes the building and contents were destroyed, nothing of importance in the way of personal property being saved. There were six horses and one cow burned to death. The loss was about $5,000.

LETTERS BY HAZELTON

To His Wife Are Read at the Divorce Trial.

Missives Are "Spoony"—Sends "Thousands of Kisses."

Detroit, Mich., April 30.—The feature of the Hazelton divorce trial yesterday was the reading of certain letters written to Mrs. Hazelton by her husband. They were produced at the request of the latter's attorney. The first was a letter written by Hazelton to his wife in June, 1906, when he went to Milwaukee. It was in part:

"My Own Dear Julia: I have been thinking of you and our sweet parting. I have been putting in my spare time thinking of my dear little girl, who loves me dearly. I wonder if she is awake thinking of her laddie, who loves her. Although it is a selfish thought, I almost hope it is so."

He then told her of his arrangements in Milwaukee, and told her to be careful of herself and take daily exercise. The letter closed:

"Think pleasant thoughts, be thankful for what God has given you, try and show it by rejoicing and not complaining. I am going to put my resolutions in effect and keep my d—— mouth shut. Good night, my own sweet, faithful little wife, whom I love so dearly. Lovingly.

"YOUR OWN BILLY."

Makes Suicide Threat.

On June 28, 1905, Hazelton wrote to his wife:

"We shall never get anywhere in our struggles as long as each blames the other. What comes of it?—nothing and absolutely worse. I'm going to try and stop blaming you, try hard, very hard. I am going to be more charitable, more close mouthed and not so fault-finding, or I'm going to kill myself. That's all there is to it. Lots of love to My Girlie.

"YOUR OWN BILLY."

In a letter following closely on this the professor discussed the subject of children. He said in part:

"The proper solution of this problem means more to us than anything else. Since my boyhood my idea has been to have a little boy of my own to bring up. It means a sacrifice to us. It always means work for the mother and extra expense to the father. Poor folks would make the sacrifice. I don't think we could. You would have to put your whole life into motherhood.

"I can't see satisfaction in life though, if I have not my little ones to train. You being a really noble woman, must think that more than I. Before God I want to say if were to chose between being the greatest engineer in the country or having a brood of little ones, I would sacrifice my profession and everything for the children. Would you be willing to give up your fine intellect, life and body to children? Nothing else brings a woman the fullness of life. * * *

"Oceans of my heart's truest love and thousands of kisses.'

In another letter he said:

"My Poor Little Darling: I am so sorry that I wounded you. I wish you were here so I could pet and love you. I will have to write you a big, tender love letter. We must try to love each other more. We do not know each other. Sweetheart mine, my little life mate, my heart beats for you. Some day it will stop if it cannot make you happy. Thousands of kisses.

"YOUR OWN BILLY."

"Scent of Reform Repels Me."

A letter dated July 19, 1905, was headed "Dear Little Mate." He said, in part:

"I am so sorry that you are not well. I hope you have not made yourself sick over the hurt in my letter. I had no intention of hurting you. I have been ill over your letter, it broke me down and I have grieved over it. Our affairs are killing me and you, too. Everybody would be miserable if they kept looking continually at their mate's faults. It won't do. Don't worry about our miserable affairs. Let them go. Make up your mind that I am a pretty decent man after all, and that I am not so worse. Quit thinking that you have got to reform me, and if you will stop, half the battle will be won. Don't antagonize me, and make me think that I am an unworthy brute and not fit to have a wife, unless I am reformed. I can't do much as long as I am made to feel that I am worse than any other man. You give me the reform spirit regarding your husband and he will do much better than you ever dreamed of. You long ago did me a great service in pointing out my faults. God bless you for it. The scent of reform repels me. Throw up your task of making me a better man. Let me be as near your ideal as I can; and if I can't come up to your plans and specifications there may be some other way. Stop carrying my burden and you won't be so nervous and tired. Let your spirit rest. We shall be happy yet—we will be happy.

"YOUR LOVING BILLY."

THREE-CENT FARE

Now in Operation on the Street Cars in Cleveland.

Cleveland, April 30.—Three cents was the fare upon the street cars within the city, yesterday. The first day of low fare, under the new deal in the local street situation, also brought the first low fare suit against the Municipal Traction company, the holding or operating concern. Mayor McQuigg of East Cleveland asked the court to enjoin the company from collecting more than a 3-cent fare in that suburb. Under the present arrangement the passengers from the suburbs pays the old rate of 5 cents. Mayor McQuigg personally refused to pay more than 3 cents for a ride into the city. He was put off the car. The suit followed. He maintains that the East Cleveland franchise calls for the same fare as in Cleveland. The hearing upon the application for an injunction was passed until next Tuesday. Labor trouble also arose. Representatives of the Motormen and Conductors' union asked wor an increase in pay, which had been granted to it by the city. The new company increased the pay of the men 1 cent an hour, but required that the employes pay their fare when riding upon the cars in going or returning from work. The employes want a 2-cent an hour raise. The matter was passed until Friday.

ZIONIST, FREAK WRITER.

Writes Lord's Prayer Hundred Times on Single Postal Card.

Waukegan, Ill., April 30.—George D. Chenoworth, a deacon in the Zion City church, 60 years of age, has gained much attention lately through his ability to reproduce the Lord's prayer in writing so fine that a microscope is needed to read it, yet the letters are perfect in every particular. Recently he wrote the Lord's prayer nine times on a piece of paper the size of a postage stamp, but now he has beaten that record by writing the prayer 100 times on a piece of paper the size of a United States postal card. In this latter effort there are 7,100 words, or 27,300 letters.

POISONERS ARE SENTENCED.

Russians Get Dose for Killing Animals in North Dakota.

Minto, N. D., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Goss yesterday pronounced sentence upon the men charged with poisoning five horses belonging to Mike Kezema near Sawyer.

Zenko Hekel, the father, was sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary. Maxim, the son, was given two years and Lodimer Rodoc two years.

The case was a hard fought one. An interpreter was used throughout, the accused being Russians. The men at first were dismissed by Judge Murray for lack of evidence. They were then taken before Judge Davis, who bound them over to the district court where a conviction was secured.

DELEGATION FROM MANILA

Three Judges Arrive on a Three Months' Vacation.

San Francisco, April 30.—Three associate judges of the supreme court at Manila, and a former judge of the land coort, have arrived here on a three months' vacation, combined with other business. Two of them are insular delegates to the national political conventions.

The three judges of the supreme court are: E. F. Johnson of Ohio, T. Tracy of Albany, N. Y., and Adam C. Carson, originally from Riverton, Va. The former justice of the land court is D. R. Williams, originally a member of a New York law firm, with a branch in Manila. He has resigned his judicial position in Manila to enter upon private practice.

Judge Williams said: "The conditions in the islands are better than they have ever been. The Filipinos are beginning to become more and more satisfied with American government, and a very large percentage would object to the withdrawal of American sovereignty.

"The Philippine assembly," he said, "has acquitted itself splendidly. The first bill it passed was an appropriation of 1,000,000 peso, for the extension of the public school system.

CLIMBING ON WAGON

Johnson Sentiment in St. Louis County Growing Every Day.

County Convention Will Send Johnson Delegates to St. Paul.

Wednesday, May 6, the Democratic caucuses will be held for the purpose of selecting delegates to the county convention, to be held in this city, Saturday, May 9, at the city hall. In the cities and towns the polls will be open from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., while in the townships the polls will be open from 2 o'clock until 4 in the afternoon.

Twenty-nine delegates will be chosen at the county convention to attend the state convention, to be held in St. Paul Thursday, May 14. The county delegates will be chosen on the basis of one delegate for every sixty votes cast for governor. There will be 225 delegates to represent the county at the state convention.

At the present time there is an overwhelming sentiment in St. Louis county for the instruction of the St. Louis county delegation for the nomination of John A. Johnson for president. There will be some lively contests in some of the precincts between Bryan and Johnson supporters. The disgruntled officeseekers and others, who have a fancied grievance against the Johnson cause, have their hammers out and are working with the ardent Bryan enthusiasts in an endeavor to secure a Bryan majority at the county convention.

At the present time it looks as if the convention that assembles at the city hall on May 9 will be overwhelmingly a Johnson convention, and will pass resolutions indorsing him for the Democratic nomination. In some precincts the Bryan men are making a strong fight, and there will be some Bryan delegates in attendance, prepared to make a fight for their candidate. St. Louis county is one of the strongholds of Bryanism in the state, and if the Bryan men cannot carry this county they will be hopelessly out of the running for a Minnesota delegation instructed for Bryan. During the last few weeks the sentiment for Governor Johnson in Duluth has been growing by leaps and bounds. Democrats here realize the honor he has brought to the state, and the fact that his candidacy is now a real and live issue, and no longer merely a "native son" boomlet, and they claim that his own state cannot do less than give him an enthusiastic indorsement.

It makes no difference how many remedies have failed to cure you, if troubled with headache, constipation, kidney or liver troubles, Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will make you well and strong. It has no equal. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Ask your druggist.

The injunction case started by A. J. Meagher, a taxpayer at Floodwood, to prevent the trustees of School District No. 19 from issuing bonds in the sum of $15,000 to raise funds for a new school building, was taken up before Judge Cant yesterday afternoon, and was continued over until Monday to give the attorneys an opportunity to secure evidence in the way of newspapers published in Floodwood. The notices of the election on the bond matter were published in the Floodwood papers and Mr. Meagher claims that the proceeding was an illegal one.

Miner Asks Damages.

Joerns Gets Full Amount.
The district court has allowed the claim in full of W. G. Joerns, administrator of the estate of Charles Jasper, deceased. The probate court reduced Mr. Joerns' claim for $700 to about $400 and he appealed from the order of the latter court. The claim involved expenses for attorney's fees and for litigation in connection with the settling up of the estate.

City Hall Doors.
Carpenters were put at work yesterday changing the outside doors of the city hall so as to make them swing outward. This is a result of the report of Building Inspector Kleiley to the council to the effect that the doors did not meet with the requirements of the fire ordinance, in that they swung inward instead of outward.

Says Husband Was Cruel.
Alma Maria Lundvall has sued Erick Wilhelm Lundvall for a divorce on the ground of habitual drunkenness and cruelty. Mrs. Lundvall is 34 years old and her husband is one year her junior. They were married in Sweden in 1901 and have no children.

Executed Other Notes.
That H. L. Hartenstein had a penchant for executing promissory notes at other places than Duluth was indicated this morning by an action filed against him and J. C. Upton, in the district court, by John J. Graf of Constantine, Mich. Mr. Graf claims that Hartenstein and Upton executed a promissory note for $1,500, Nov. 12, 1906, due in one year, at 6 per cent interest, and that no payment was ever made. In his reply Mr. Graf admits that Hartenstein paid $99 on the note in February, 1908, and he asks judgment for the remaining $1,000.

Doubles Membership.
The Sunday school of the First Christian church will close its membership contest with a social Friday evening. The attendance of the school has been more than doubled, and the "Reds" came out ahead. The evening program will consist of games, music and refreshments for the children of the school.

Both Are Fined.
Cornelius Foster, a negro, and Martha Hanson, a white woman, arrested on a statutory charge, paid a fine of $10 and costs in municipal court today. Gust Forse and Frank Hill, who seek lodgings at the city jail every night, but manage somehow to find money with which to get drunk, were sentenced each to five days at labor for the county.

Alumni Will Meet.
The Longfellow school alumni will hold a meeting Saturday evening at the school. Arrangements will be made for the annual banquet, and probably officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

Promotion for Toewe.
It is expected that Herman Toewe will be appointed sergeant of police by Chief Troyer. He took the examination last fall in company with Sergeants Walsh and Weber. They passed a few points higher than he, and he is now in line for promotion. Sergt. Wilcox has taken charge of the West Duluth station, and Toewe will probably get his former position.

Blaze From Gasoline.
A small blaze, which was of little consequence, occurred at 619 First avenue west this morning. Gasoline, used in cleaning handkerchiefs, caught fire. The department was called and succeeded in putting out the flames before any damage was done.

Asks Damages for Jar.
Claiming that the jar caused by a street car in running from one track to another, over a crossover switch on Piedmont avenue, last August, caused her sickness and the premature birth of her child, Mrs. Hilda Bodin has sued the street railway company for $6,280. Mr. Bodin claims that she got on a West Third street car at Fifth avenue west and Superior street to go to Twenty-second avenue west. She alleges that the company was repairing its tracks on Piedmont avenue and the car had to switch over from the westbound to the eastbound track. She claims that it jerked about and jarred her.

Will Give a Party.
The members of Star of the East temple, No. 29, Pythian Sisters, will hold one of their dancing parties this evening at Lester Park.

Lindberg Insane Again.
Olaf Lindberg, commonly known as the star boarder at the county jail, because of his frequent visits there, tiptoed into the police station at 1 o'clock this morning, informed the telephone operator that he was a detective, and asked assistance in arresting two bank robbers whom he had cornered at the St. Louis hotel. He was locked up for the night.

Investigating Elevators.
The building inspector's department has started an investigation of passenger and freight elevators in the city, and Mr. Kielley says that every elevator in town will have to be brought within the requirements of the building ordinance. It is said that many elevators do not fully comply with the ordinance.

WATER SPANIEL CATCHES TROUT IN LESTER RIVER

This is not a nature fake, it is a true story.

This morning the telephone bell rang out shrilly in the office of Dr. Henry E. Webster. Answering the 'phone he was surprised to learn of a most remarkable performance, on the part of his pet spaniel. The dog had landed a 4-pound trout, while chasing sticks that the boys of the Lakeside district had thrown into the lake.

The dog had been chasing the sticks for only a few minutes. The boys were almost tiring of the sport of watching the spaniel dash into the water after a stick, when they were surprised to behold the little canine emerge from the water with a large, wriggling object clutched firmly in his mouth.

The boys ran to the dog and discovered that he held a large trout in his mouth. When Mrs. Webster heard the news of the dog catching the fish, she telephoned the doctor at his office in the Providence building.

HUNGRY FOR PUBLIC LAND

Receipts of Land Office for April Very Heavy.

Exceeded All Months in Recent Years But October 1907.

With receipts of $37,825.34, the United States land office here handled a greater volume of business during April than for any one month for several years past, with the exception of October, 1907, according to the report of Receiver Neil B. Morrison, prepared today.

In October, 1907, the receipts were over $49,000, but they were abnormal and the record for this month is exceptional in itself. Two years ago, the receipts for April were but $8,908.85 and last year $21,517.23 was handled. Of this month's business, $34,926.07 came from the sale of public lands, $2,472.04 in fees and commissions and $427.23 from the sale of Indian lands.

There were several particularly heavy days during the month, when the land office employes were rushed taking care of the claimants for land under Uncle Sam's grants. April 14 was the heaviest day, when the receipts amounted to $4,332.14, and on three other days they exceeded $3,000.

Snakes on Point.
Lorain Le Drew and his wife have been wintering a bunch of curious inhabitants upon Park Point. Mr. Le Drew and his wife belong to a carnival company. In the winter the humans and animals of the company take a much needed rest. So the Le Drews chose the Point as an ideal point for the undisturbed resting place for the snakes. The inhabitants of the Point have just discovered what curious neighbors they had, the snakes, of course, and they have been wondering what would happen if some of the reptiles should happen to wander from the family cage.

TESTIMONY CONTINUED

Publisher Norris Gives More Information on Paper Combine.

Other Publishers Present Prepared to Give Evidence.

Washington, April 30.—Individual newspaper publishers were present today before the house special committee, which is investigating the price of news print paper, prepared to give testimony in the case. Before they were heard, however, John Norris of New York, representing the American Newspaper Publishers' association, was permitted to continue his presentation of facts which was begun Saturday last. In response to a request by Chairman Mann, Mr. Norris laid before the committee various circular letters which had been issued at different times by the association on the subject of the price of paper, copies of which had been mailed to President Roosevelt and others.

Mr. Mann put into the record letters received by him from the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers and Director North of the census bureau, and also telegrams from David S. Cowles, president of the American Paper and Pulp association, asking the opportunity to be heard. Both Mr. North and Mr. Cowles stated that they desired to deny certain statements made by the Publishers' association.

"Do you claim, as a matter of fact," Mr. Mann asked, "that the statement in Mr. Ridder's letter of March 4, 1908, to President Roosevelt, in which he said that there was practically a combination to put an additional burden of $60,000,000 per annum upon the printing and furnishing interests of the country is true?"

Statement Is True.
"Yes, sir," the witness responded, and answering a further question, said that the news print paper represented the great bulk of the paper made.

"You don't figure that blotting paper or wrapping paper in printing and publishing paper, do you?" asked Mr. Mann.

The witness said that he did so regard them.

"How about wall paper?"

Mr. Norris replied that it was intended to include all consumers in the advance, and he put the question to Mr. Mann if he thought it material whether the $60,000,000 increase planned was confined to the printing or publishing or confined to paper consumers? "I think it is extremely material," Mr. Mann replied, "as to whether this $60,000,000 increase burden is on one thing or everything in the United States."

Mr. Norris said that, if it related to paper makers who are in the combination, "and who are in combination in such ways that the taking of their machines off of one kind of paper and putting them on another affects the whole business," it was a factor to be considered.

Mr. Mann remarked that the witness had been directed to cover the whole subject of paper, whereas all that had been said was confined to the printing and publishing interests, "and thereby absolutely misled—you misled myself." Mr. Mann said he was horrified when one of his newspaper friends wrote him that his paper bill would be increased and that $65,000,000 would be added to the printing and magazine publishing business in one year.

"We do not claim," said Mr. Norris, "that the increase is confined to the printing and publishing business, but that it applies to a computation of the burdens which all the paper combinations aimed to impose upon all paper customers."

Accepted Information as True.
"You disavow that," commented Mr. Mann, "and yet my friend got that information from Mr. Ritter's letter, and accepted it as an absolutely truthful fact. Of course," he said, "we don't hold you responsible for Mr. Ridder's letter."

Mr. Norris asserted, however, that he was willing to accept responsibility for a considerable part of that letter, and added:

"I have no hesitation on that subject." He then read a letter from the Manufacturers' Paper company, expressing its inability to take an order for news print paper, but saying "there has been a corresponding increase of prices of other grades of paper and consequently there is no use to turn from these grades."

Further questioned by the chairman regarding the statement contained in Mr. Ridder's letter above referred to, Mr. Norris said that to the extent that the manufacturers had restricted the burdens merely to the printing and publishing interests that was inaccurate; "but" he said, "to the extent that they planned an additional burden of $60,000,000 on paper consumers, it is entirely accurate as far as a fair estimate could be made of that situation."

OPPOSED TO INSTRUCTIONS

Hughes Workers Visit Maine Convention in His Interests.

Portland, Me., April 30.—An unusually large number of delegates were in this city today to participate in the Republican state convention, and at which four delegates at large and four alternates will be chosen to the Republican national convention at Chicago, and also to name six presidential electors.

No contest for delegates at large was expected. Col. Thomas P. Shaw of Portland, Edward P. Ricker of Poland, John F. Hill of Augusta and Judge Charles J. Dunn of Orono,, for days having been conceded the honor.

The state committee, after a session lasting until midnight, decided to leave the preparation of the resolutions to the committee to be appointed by the convention.

E. P. Brown of New York, who has been working in this state in the interest of Governor Hughes' candidacy and who came to Portland late last night with 100 delegates, claimed to be pledged to defeat any attempt to instruct for Taft. He said his fight would be for an uninstructed delegation.

A resolution commending Secretary Taft was urged on the state committee and it was thought probable that it might be presented on the floor of the convention.

UNCERTAINTY AS TO FORM OF RESOLUTIONS.

Baltimore, Md., April 30.—Prior to the assembling of the Republican state convention here today there was uncertainty as to the form the resolutions would take regarding the candidacy of Secretary Taft for the presidential nomination. That they would be warmly laudatory of the secretary of war and in every way favorable to him was conceded, but it was thought the resolutions might not pledge or instruct the delegates to the national convention to vote for him. As to the make-up of the delegation-at-large all indications this forenoon pointed to the selection of Gen. Felix Agnus, publisher of the Baltimore American; Congressman Sydney E. Mudd of the Fifth district, and Congressman William H. Jackson of the First district. It was undecided who would be the fourth man, opposition to Congressman George A. Pearre of the Sixth district, for the place having developed. Mr. Pearre had been previously slated to go.

tatives, and while he heard considerable Culberson talk, most of the members were extremely favorable to Johnson. Mr. Lynch said that the situation in Virginia is much against Bryan, and Pennsylvania, he believes, will not produce more than sixteen Bryan men, although Judge Gray may be strong with the Keystone delegation.

Governor Johnson, Mr. Lynch said, will be in Washington on May 10 to attend the conference between the governors and the president. While in the East, he will speak at Richmond and at the Tuscaloosa, Ala., commencement exercises.

INTO NEW QUARTERS.

Proctor's Postoffice Will Change Hands Friday.

Proctor, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Proctor's postoffice is being moved today from its present quarters in the St. Cyr block on the West side to the Quackenbush block on the East side, where larger and more commodious quarters have been secured.

Tomorrow the office will be opened in the new quarters by George Wilson, the new postmaster, who succeeds Mrs. St. Cyr, formerly Mrs. Keating, who resigned at the time of her marriage several months ago as the official stamp seller for this village.

Mr. Wilson is engaged in the fuel business, but will devote his time almost entirely to the position to which Uncle Sam has appointed him.

A NEW THEORY ON PNEUMONIA

Physician Says Seat of Trouble is in the Nose.

Chicago, April 30.—The announcement of a new theory as to the cause of penumonia and the discovery of a remedy for the disease was made at last night's meeting of the Chicago Medical society.

Dr. H. Manning Fish, who made the announcements, backed up his assertions with a detailed description of a case of acute pneumonia which, he declared, had been cured in twenty-four hours by means of the simple method which he described.

Dr. Fish first declared that the seat of trouble in pneumonia cases was not, as is generally supposed, in the lungs, but in the small cells in the bony framework at the top of the nose. The pneumococcus, or disease germ, he said, was not harmful, except when pent up in a cell of this sort. Then he explained it acted like an explosive, began to expand, and was absorbed by the blood and became one of the most dangerous of disease germs.

"From these cells the disease works rapidly down to the lungs and to all appearances these organs immediately become the seat of trouble," said the physician. "However, the fuel which is feeding the flames of disease still is being furnished from the cells at the top of the nose.

"The simple remedy, consequently, is to draw this dangerous pus from these cells. That is what was done in the case which I have described, and in twenty-four hours the disease had disappeared. The lungs, of course, still were affected, and it took days before the patient finally was able to leave his bed."

TO PROTECT THEIR TIMBER

Lumbermen Organizing Patrols to Guard Against Forest Fires.

Washington, April 30.—Owners of timber in different parts of the country are organizing associations to protect their holdings from fire by means of a system of patrol by rangers resembling the work done by the United States forest service in guarding against and extinguishing fires. In the Pacific Northwest the Washington Forest Fire association has begun work for the year with 3,000,000 acres under its care.

Other organizations are at work in Oregon and Idaho. In the latter state a portion of the expense is borne by taxation. A Western railroad company which holds large tracts of timber also has taken steps to guard its property from fire.

Forest owners in Maine have gone to work in the same systematic way to control the forests from the enemy, fire. Like organizations are found in other parts of the country, showing that protection against fire is of great importance.

It is claimed that fires in this country have destroyed more timber than lumbermen have cut.

MALONEY MARRIAGE.

Motion Made to Confirm the Report of Referee Cohalan.

New York, April 30.—A motion to confirm the report of Referee Daniel F. Cohalan in the action brought to annul the marriage of Helen Maloney, daughter of Martin Maloney of Philadelphia, to Arthur H. Osborne, a young broker of this city, was made before Justice McCall in the supreme court today. The motion was made by Mr. Maloney's counsel, A. L. Hume. Although none of the testimony could be seen it was known that Referee Cohalan had decided that the original marriage between Miss Muloney and Osborne was really no marriage at all. In case Justice McCall confirms the report Miss Maloney will be free to marry Samuel Clarkson, the young Englishman with whom she eloped last September.

SNOW IN OHIO.

Cleveland, Ohio, April 30.—A heavy, wet snow began falling here early today and reports indicate that the storm prevails practically over the entire state. If the cold weather continues very serious damage must result to fruit.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"What am I offered for a diamond ring?" inquired the auctioneer. One perfectly good, clear water stone, brilliant and beautiful, in an elegant setting, in a little leather box. "What am I offered?" he insisted. "What am I offered?" he continued in a kind of dying voice.

"Three dollars," said the person who always begins the bidding.

"Three dollars," said the auctioneer, languidly. "Three dollars,' he continued in a weak kind of voice, "for a diamond ring." There was hurt remorse in his voice, and although his audience didn't call it that, they realized at once that his feelings were injured, so another kind-hearted individual said "five dollars."

"Five dollars," said the auctioneer, still in a humiliated tone. "Five dollars," he said again. "I'm ashamed to stand here with this diamond ring in my hand and say 'five dollars,' at the same time."

"Seven dollars," interrupted somebody who was a connoissuer of diamonds.

"Ten dollars," said another plunger.

"Ten dollars I'm offered," said the auctioneer. "Ten dollars for a beautiful diamond ring, set in——"

"Eleven," said the connoisseur.

"Twelve," stuttered a man who was getting excited.

"Twelve dollars I'm offered. Do I hear thirteen?" questioned the auctioneer. He hadn't heard thirteen, but the power of suggestion worked, and the connoissuer said "Thirteen."

"Fourteen," said the excited man.

"Fifteen," said a new individual, who had just awakened to the desirability or owning that ring.

"Seventeen," said the connoisseur, shake of his head.

"Seventeen I'm offered," said the auctioneer. "Do I hear eighteen?' he inquired. He didn't. "Seventeen," he droned. "Are you through? This diamond ring is going for seventeen dollars. Sev-en-teen." He groaned. "Well you certainly are not very hungry for diamonds today. Seventeen! Do I hear eighteen? Seventeen! Do I through? Seventeen!" He leaned persuasively over the counter to a girl standing near. "It would make a lovely engagement ring," he said, with tender cadence in his voice.

The girl flushed sweetly. "I've got one," she said with downcast eyes.

"Seventeen," said the auctioneer. "You stingy beggars! Are you through? Seventeen! For a diamond ring set——. Do I hear eighteen? Going at seventeen, going at seventeen——"

And then a youth in a gray overcoat awoke. He wore a purple tie, with a fancy horseshoe pin set at intervals with red and green stones. He had a fresh, pretty complexion.

"Seventeen and a half," he stammered, softly. Not so softly but that the auctioneer heard him, however. "Seventeen and a half," he said rapidly. Seventeen and a half," he continued, without taking breath. Gone to this gentleman for seventeen and a half."

The youth put the box in his pocket and left the store.

Then he went to call on the girl for whom he had been buying chocolates and chewing gum for several months.

"See the ring I bought today," he said, pulling out the little leather box.

"Oh, isn't it pretty," she said as she slipped it on her left hand finger.

And then—of all things! She plumped her head down on his shoulder and inquired, in a sugary sort of voice, "How'd you ever know I'd take you?"

The youth with the fresh complexion was no quitter. When he saw he was up against the real thing he succumbed like a soldier and a gentleman.

"Oh! I just thought you would," he said, although he shrank palpably when he remembered flat rents.

An hour or so later he stopped under the street light to light a cigar to cheer him on his homeward way.

"Darn auctions," he said poetically to himself.

Graduation Gifts.

In selecting a gift for the girl graduate, the shopper feels only the limitations of the individual purse. The array of suitable presents is comprehensive and bewilderingly beautiful.

Relatives of opulent purse now give jewelry or purses, the latter not always empty, to the oung woman who has proven herself a credit to her family.

The jewelry fads of the moment are lavelieres and bracelets. The former is a slender, finely wrought chain with comparatively heavy pendant or pendants. The single pendant is oftenest a fresh water pearl combined with precious or semi-precious stones. If more than one pendant is shown, they are connected by the finely wrought gold mesh, similar to that employed in the chain proper. The correct thing is to give the girl a laveliere set with her birthday stones. For the girl who is fond of wearing brown, however, the topaz is a suitable stone, and for her who loves violet, purple, etc., select an amethyst setting.

The smartest new bracelets are very heavy and quaint looking, set with old-fashioned stones, coral, turquoise, jade, onyx, etc., Many cameos are also seen.

Less expensive, but equally welcome are the horseshoes, circles, long, rakish crescents and bars of gold-filled metal, set with imitation pearls or rhinestones. These are not cheap, either, for a good grade of brilliants in the newest settings costs $5.

A set of striking rhinestone buttons or buckles in various sizes makes an acceptable gife. The fad for mesh purses in silver and gold continues, and vanity bags in German silver are most dependable.

WOMEN ON PEDESTAL

To Criticise Them Is Mark of Ill Breeding.

To criticise a woman now matter how far she may overstep the lines of politeness is considered a mark of ill-breeding in a man and a battery of uncomplimentary names are hurled at his luckless head, says Madison C. Peters in an exchange.

The days of chivalry are not dead yet. We may not be prepared to buckle on armor in "my lady's defense," like the brave knights of old, and rush forth to mortal combat to avenge the look that threatened her with insult, or the word that cast a shadow on her fair fame; still we are ready to do her homage by resenting anything that tends to lower our high ideal of her.

We place woman on a pedestal higher than man, and we fain would keep her there. We look to her for that beauty of character, gentleness of soul, calmness of temper, purity, truth and love which appeals to all that is best in our nature and compels admiration and respect.

Once man loses his respect for woman, civilzation will totter on her throne.

It would be cowardly, insulting, for any man to openly attack a woman for the purpose of holding her up to ridicule. The matter assumes a different complexion when no aspersion whatever is intended—when woman's shortcomings are merely enumerated that she may take them under consideration and endeavor to the best of her ability to overcome them.

To say she has no shortcomings is carrying gallantry too far. It is a form of silly adulation and adoration which is repugnant to her womanhood. The true woman knows she is not perfect. The man who says she is she sets down as a flatterer.

When a woman assumes masculinity she is donning a garment that doesn't fit her at all. Instead of accentuating her charm, she hides it. By imitating man she acknowledges inferiority. No one tries to emulate that which is below, but always that which is above her.

Therefore, the mannish woman descends to a plane where barbs of criticism and ridicule can be hurled at her.

Every day we see examples of women who have stepped down from the dignity of sex. They are overbearing, supercilious, sarcastic, demanding from men what should be theirs by right were they but true to themselves.

Watch the domineering woman in the street cars, especially the eternal shopper going home in the rush hours, who casts withering looks at poor tired men who refuse to give her a seat.

When at last she and her bundles get a seat the space of two seats is often occupied. Yet none has the temerity to dispute with her.

See her again at the railroad depot dashing for the ticket window, breaking through the line of men, some of whom by losing their place miss their train and with it miss important engagements.

She carries her domineering spirit into the home, where she rules by fear instead of love. Her arrogance and contempt for the rights of others make the home atmosphere anything but congenial. Is it to be wondered that sometimes men seek refuge from her in the club or in the saloon?

The retiring, modest woman is respected and can command the fealty of all; she who is overbearing and domineering lays herself open to that hostile criticism which dethrones her and drags her down to that level where she loses not alone the homage of men but the esteem of women.

GARFIELD TIES UP RED LAKE SCHEME

Would Preserve Timber and Allot Only Agricultural Land.

Washington, April 30.—Secretary Garfield has adopted a new policy with regard to the opening of Indian lands on which there is any considerable quantity of merchantable timber. For this reason he has been put in the attitude of reversing his opinion of the Steenerson bill, providing for the allotment of 160 acres of land to Indians on the diminished Red Lake reservation, reservation of a certain quantity of timbered land for the benefit of the Indians in common and the sale of the remainder of the timber to the highest bidder, under regulations to be approved by him. The secretary now proposes to allot agricultural lands, and make a forest reserve of the timbered land, the forests to be administered by the federal forest service, and the proceeds of sales of matured timber to go to the Indians.

Before Mr. Steenerson introduced his bill he consulted with Secretary Garfield and secured both his approval and that of the Indians.

He was very much surprised, therefore, when the secretary made an adverse report in a letter to Chairman Sherman of the Indian committee.

Mr. Steenerson yesterday expressed doubt whether he could induce the Indians to adopt this new plan, inasmuch as they had consented to the old one, under which they expected to have a good sized fund placed in the treasury, from which they would get a good income.

It is said there are upwards of 400,000,000 feet of white pine on the reservation, for which the Indians expected to get a good price.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The juniors held a lengthy session yesterday afternoon to discuss the possibility of giving the Junior-Senior party. Inasmuch as this annual affair has caused each former class to run behind financially the prospect has seemed rather dubious and some of the members were in favor of dropping it altogether. It was decided to hold the affair at some less expensive hall than the Spalding. A guarantee fund of $50, in addition to class dues, must be raised to finance the affair in order that the class may have a full treasury with which to begin the senior year. All the juniors hope that they will be able to pay this customary courtesy to the departing seniors.

IMPROVING ITS ROADBED.

Northern Pacific Doing Much Work Near Aitkin.

Aitkin, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Pacific company is doing some extensive work on its road in this vicinity this spring. A steam shovel has been set up at Tamarack an da number of big sags will be raised in the roadbed. In one place a fill will be made of about six feet and it is estimated that the steam shovel will be kept busy for about a month on this work. After that is completed steam shovels will be located at Deerwood and Carlton in the gravel pits and trains will be engaged in ballasting for about three months.

The company's surveyors are now working on a survey between Rabbit Lake and Cedar Lake and between Deerwood and the shaft of the Rogers-Brown company south of that village, and it looks very much as though the company expects to build the spurs this season.

There is only one grade of Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder and Extracts—the best that can be made; chemically tested and pure.

DUSKY MEN DEFEAT SOX

St. Paul Gophers Win Game Played in Chill Wind.

Hogan Unable to Locate Plate, But Murray Does Well.

Aurora, Ill., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The St. Paul Gophers, the colored men of the Minnesota state capital, who are working out here, hung one on the Duluth White Sox yesterday by a score of 8 to 3. Nine innings, full of real chills and shivers, were played to a small group of spectators. The cold wind made good work in the field almost impossible, and the pitchers, with chilled arms, had trouble locating the plate.

Hogan started out to pitch for Duluth. He throws from the off side, and had a fierce time locating the plate. He was afraid to throw on any speed on account of the chill weather, and there was a procession of shades to first base. The Gophers gathered six hits and five runs during his four innings in the box, and the derrick was used.

Murray, who took Hogan's place, was there from the start. He had speed and curves aplenty, and but for weird work behind, would have shut out the dusky gentlemen for the remainder of the game. As it was, the Gophers found him for but three hits, and he fanned five of them.

Morrow was perfectly satisfied with the work of his team. Ness, the new first baseman, showed up in great shape, getting two of the four hits made by the Sox and fielding the bag like a real ball player. Doc Voss worked behind the bat in good shape, and the whole team showed promise, though Pettwood had it on them at bat. Score: R. H. E.

St. Paul G.....1 1 1 2 0 1 0 0 2—8 9 2

Batteries—Hogan, Murray and Voss; Pettwood and Johnson. Struck out—By Pettwood, 8; by Hogan, 4; by Murray, 5. Bases on balls—Off Hogan, 3; off Pettwood, 1. Time of game, two hours.

Meager reports from the training camps of the Winnipeg and Brandon teams indicate that both have been getting it pretty regularly from the Iowa leaguers and Three I teams which they have met. Keokuk handed a defeat to the Maroons in the opening game of the Canadians' training season. O'Dea's men have made a better showing, if anything, than the Maroons, their losses being by small scores.

"ROUND ROBIN" AT YACHT CLUB

Committee Prepares Mysterious Entertainment for Its Members.

The first of a series of entertainments for the promotion of good fellowship and the discussion of club affairs will be held at the Duluth Yacht club on Park Point the evening of Friday, May 15. The committee has named the affair the "Round Robin," and further than that Flaaten's orchestra will be present and there will be smoking in plenty, the members of the committee saieth not.

The announcements state that there will be singing, etc., and the "etc." is said to be the best part of the entertainment. The committee is a live one and they are anxious to get the members of the club interested in the social affairs and through them to work up interest in the real work of the club. Later in the season there will be a number of functions in which the ladies will take an active part.

Considerable work has been done at the clubhouse this spring. The entire building has been renovated and redecorated and a quantity of new furnishings has been installed. The new ballroom, which was opened last year, will be a popular feature of the club this season and the floor has been put in excellent condition.

BOYS WILL PLAY BALL

Season of Interscholastic League to Open Saturday.

Every Team Will Play on the Opening Day.

The Interscholastic Baseball league, which was to have opened its series of games last Saturday, but had to postpone them on account of the wet weather, will open next Saturday and all the teams in the league will have an opportunity to play. The following is the schedule for Saturday:

Lowell vs. Washington on the Lowell grounds.

Jackson vs. Lincoln on the Lincoln grounds.

Longfellow vs. Emerson on the Emerson grounds.

Franklin vs. Jefferson on the Jefferson grounds.

All the games will start at 2:30. The games this season will be made especially attractive by the offer of the Northern Hardware company to give a baseball outfit to the player making the best fielding average, a baseball bat to the boy having the best batting average and a pair of spiked shoes to the player that passes home plate the most times.

The popular Friday nighter at the boys' department this week will be a talk on resuscitation from drowning. Many lives have been lost because of ignorance of what to do. The talk will be given by August J. Frey of the central Y. M. C. A. On the instruction in life saving he will tell the best manner of approach and how to release one's self from the various holds a drowning man is likely to. On instruction in life saving he will give the Sylvester method used by the Royal Life Saving society of Britain, the Howard method, used by the New York Life Saving society and the American method.

All the members of the boys' department are cordially invited and they are entitled to bring a friend. Following the talk the social committee will serve refreshments in the Dutch kitchen.

McCUNE SCORES KNOCK-OUT BLOW

Jack McGlinche of Winnipeg Put Away in the Seventh Round.

Eveleth, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jack McGlinche, who sported the title of middleweight champion of Canada, went down and out before Tom McCune of Detroit in the seventh round of what was to have been a fifteen-round bout before a club here last night.

The knock-out came after a conclusive display of superiority by the Detroit man and great gameness by McGlinche, who absorbed an immense amount of punishment. McCune had the advantage all through the fight. He landed two blows to the Canadian's one, but McGlinche stood up to it well for five rounds and kept the crowd on edge by slashing back heartily.

In the sixth round McCune opened a gash over McGlinche's eye and it was all off with the Canadian from that time on. Blinded by the flowing gore, he attempted to hold his own during the seventh, when McCune rushed in for a knock-out. A series of well placed swings to the jaw sent McGlinche to the mat near the end of the round, and he was down when the gong sounded. He was unable to respond for the eighth and the fight went to McCune.

Kid Murray of Hegewisch, Ill., failed to appear for the semi-windup with Nick Constantine of Eveleth and Jack Cooper took his place. The affair was pretty tame and was declared a draw at the end of the sixth round. The attendance was large and the bouts were enjoyed by the crowd.

"Papa Jim Haney, who develops a soreness every time he is referred to by the paternal title, because he knows he's getting along in years, will be back with the Sox this year. Some of the fans will be glad, others will show indifference and still more will knock loudly and vigorously.

The knockers need attention. They should be taken into a corner and a few things murmured into their ears. Jim Haney knew more baseball than any other man on the Duluth team last year. He could tell Smiley Smith and Harry Tracey things they never dreamed of. He could point out mistakes they made that, had they been averted, might have changed the results of a good many games. Haney wouldn't have made the same mistakes. He has an old head, has played ball for years and years, been in positions where headwork was necessary and the play of an automaton would fail and such a man is of use on any team.

The fans didn't see Haney in a fair light last year. He pitched twenty-four games in all, winning nine and losing sixteen. Of those, five were won and nine lost on the home ground. The scores of the games trace the responsibility for a good many of the losses to others than Haney. He was pounded at times, he was wild at others, but as a rule, he pitched mighty nice ball, if the men behind him had given him the support in the field and at bat. As soon as Haney stepped into the box, the whole team seemed to go to pieces. He whirled his old offwhip ever so effectively and some glass-armed bungler fell down on him or wooden men couldn't hit the ball with men on the sacks. When a man pitches, three, four, five and six-hit games right along, there's something wrong.

Whatever Haney may be this year, he wasn't altogether a has-been last season. His south wing was good for a few more strikes and, if the men were with him, he would have scored victories. He was never known to throw down his hands and quit. When the score is against him, he stands up and fights, just as when he's winning. For his coaching ability he is worth almost a full salary. Give the old boy a chance. If he doesn't make it a go, there will be plenty of time left, in which to turn him loose.

Packey McFarland has not alone learned fighting during his short career in the ring, but he has learned the gentle art of holding up fight clubs, so deftly practiced by Tommy Burns, Battling Nelson and other celebrities, and taught the stockyards youth by his erstwhile manager, Harry Gilmore. Packey recently turned Gilmore loose upon the cold world and has essayed to manage himself. His first effort sent Tom Andrews, the Milwaukee lightning man into forty-seven varieties of fits.

Andrews made a trip to Chicago in an effort to match Packey with Battling Nelson. Packey was delighted. Certainly, he would fight Nelson at Milwaukee for 65 per cent of the house. Andrews turned tail and didn't stop until he was back in Milwaukee.

It was Andrews' second experience. Nelson had just previously attempted to hold him up for a 25 per cent bonus and he hadn't fully recovered from that shock. The Dane has come down in his demands. Packey will learn. The freak purses of the Far West have exaggerated his views of suitable purses, but if he hopes to remain in the fight game and selects Milwaukee as a base, there'll be no bloated fortunes in his bouts.

Vigorous discussion of the "summer baseball" question is now going on among the various colleges that were represented at the big intercollegiate meeting held in New York three months ago. It was then decided to give the seventy odd colleges there represented due time to formulate their views on this important problem and then send in their decisions to the Inter-Collegiate committee.

The decision of one of the prominent Eastern colleges will, it is thought, be generally coincided with by a majority of the other colleges. The views of the faculty of this institution follow:

"The 'summer baseball' situation is with us a thing of the past. In our eligibility code we make the restriction that no freshman, no man who was ever registered in any other college, until he has been in residence here for a whole year, and no man who has ever played in the National, Eastern or Tri-State leagues can represent this college on a football, baseball or basketball team.

"In addition to this, we have strict rules against inducements, such as free training, table board, paying of term and tuition bills, etc., and these rules are enforced.

"We do not prohibit our athletes from playing summer ball, for that has never been satisfactory, nor is it right. In every college, athletes have played summer ball, and, under assumed names, received their pay in some underhand way. But we will have none of this deceit. We take an honest stand and let our athletes earn money in any way they see fit in the summer, but during the college term hold them to strict rules.

"We think it is petty and unjust to restrict a man from earning his living as he will during the summer vacation, and this system has worked well with us. We are firmly convinced that our way of treating the matter is right, and we believe in the creed that any man who is a gentleman and of good scholarship is worthy to represent our college on the athletic field. And we hope and believe that this view will be concurred in by all other colleges."

EXCELSIOR TO SECOND CHOICE

Jack Atkin Beaten by McCarter for Rich Purse.

Jamaica, L. I., April 30.—Before a crowd of 15,000 persons, McCarter, from the Newcastle stable, won the Excelsior handicap, one mile and a sixteenth, at Jamaica, yesterday. When Notter returned to the scales, after the race, he was given an ovation. Notter rode an admirable race on the Knight of the Thistle colt. Jack Atkin, carrying top weight, 119 pounds, and the public choice, was second with Rifleman third.

The Excelsior handicap, which has a guaranteed cash value of $10,000, drew out a fine field of horses. Out of twelve carded to start, five were withdrawn. McCarter was always a strongly played second choice, at 16 to 5, while the prices ranged from 6 to 1 to 15 to 2 on the others. The track was fast.

John Adams

Signer of the Declaration of Independence and Second President of the United States

HERE we have a Puritan of the Puritans — a man of stern and unbending rectitude — of generous and truly heroic temperament.

Descended from a pious God-fearing New England family of Pilgrims and Pioneers (who were for generations brewers, maltsters, barley and hop growers) he became the mouthpiece of the Revolution — the terror of tyrants — a giant in debate — and diplomatically more than a match for Pitt and Talleyrand.

I would rather die than be dictated to — this sentence accurately describes the stubborn spirit of this valiant old patriot whom all England could not govern.

John Adams, even as his fathers before him, nourished mind and body on health-giving barley beer, and died at 91 (twenty-one years beyond the scriptural span) enjoying all his mental powers to the very last.*

THE most popular beer in the world. There is less profit to the dealer who sells it, because it costs more money at the brewery than any other beer made. A royal brew of malt and hops whose absolute sovereignty has never been challenged. Unquestionably—

ABE ATTELL IS STRONG FAVORITE

San Francisco, April 30.—Abe Attell and "Brooklyn Tommy" Sullivan will meet for the third time in the ring tonight at the Coliseum. They fought a draw last September in Alton, Ill., while four years ago Sullivan is credited with aving knocked out Attell at St. Louis.

The Attell-Sullivan match, as originally made, was at 123 pounds at 5 o'clock. This weight Sullivan later found that he could not make and do justice to himself. He made this known, and through an agreement with Abe Attell, the weight limit was raised to 126 pounds at 5 o'clock.

The weighing in will be a mere formality for Attell. He will be two and possibly more pounds under weight, so he has nothing over which to worry.

There was no change in the betting last night, Attell still holding a 2 to 1 favorite, with some money offered at even that Atcell will knock out Sullivan inside of fifteen rounds.

The preliminary will be between Fred Landers and Johnny Frayne, two California lightweights, and is secduled to go fifteen rounds. Both lightweights have a large following, and it is said there has been more money wagered on this than on the meeting of the featherweights.

CENTRALS TAKE THREE STRAIGHT

FOREIGNERS EAGER FOR AMERICAN WHEAT

Two Hundred and Forty Thousand Bushels of Durum for Russia

Worked in One Lot in Duluth—Prices Up.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 30.—Two hundred and forty thousand bus of durum wheat were worked for export, to go to St. Petersburg, Russia, on the floor of the local exchange today.

The foreign demand was firm from the outset, and in addition to this big parcel destined for the Russian capital, it is estimated that about 100,000 bus of No. 1 northern, durum and Manitoba wheat were worked for export during the session in Duluth.

Prices were strong at the opening and enjoyed a good advance during the day, closing at the top level of the market. All the American markets showed substantial bulges over yesterday.

Higher cables and estimates of small Argentine shipments were bullish influences. Argentine shipments of wheat this week are estimated at 3,600,000 bus.

Minneapolis stocks decreased 850,000 bus., for five days.

Liverpool closed ½d to 1d higher, Berlin ⅝c higher and Budapest ⅝c lower for May wheat and unchanged for the October option.

The May option closed 1c higher in Duluth and Minneapolis, 1⅝c higher in Chicago, ½c higher in New York and ⅝c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅞c higher in Duluth, 1c higher in Chicago, 1¼@1⅜c higher in Minneapolis, 1⅛c higher in New York and ⅞c higher in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅛c higher in Chicago and ½d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed unchanged in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a firm undertone to the speculative wheat market at the opening, with values ½d higher. Offerings were very light and shorts nervous, due to the steadiness in the American markets yesterday and a report given out by a private house here that the shipments from Argentina will be smaller than last week. During the early morning the market showed pronounced strength, with a further gain of ½d to 1d, the principal strength being in the distant month. Later some reaction occurred owing to a quiet demand for cargoes, and at midday the market was still firm and from ½d to 1½d higher than Wednesday.

"Corn was firm at the start and ¼d higher, followed by a further advance of ¼d. Strength was the result of lighter offerings, prompted by the growing scarcity of good corn and the continued demand for spot."

Car receipts at Duluth were against 221 last year, and at Minneapolis 141 against 190 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 150 against 411 last year. Chicago received 8 against 51 last year. Winnipeg received 72 against 163 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 291,000 bushels, last year 516,000 bushels. Shipments 329,000 bushels, last year 500,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 129,000 bushels.

Primary receipts of corn were 246,000 bushels, last year 369,000 bushels. Shipments 356,000 bushels, last year 461,000 bushels. Clearances of corn were 4,750 bushels.

Wheat was quite active during the session in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ¼c higher at $1.03⅝, advanced to $1.04⅜, declined to $1.03⅝, rallied to $1.04⅝ and closed at that price, a gain of 1c over yesterday. July wheat opened unchanged at $1.04 bid, went to $1.05 during the first hour, declined to $1.04⅝, reacted to $1.05⅛ and closed at $1.05⅛, a gain of ⅞c over yesterday. September wheat was inactive and closed ⅛c lower at 90⅝c.

Durum wheat closed ⅞c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 3c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was active and closed lower. Prices were fairly firm during most of the day, but liquidation during the last hour put the prices off. May flax opened unchanged at $1.19¼, declined to $1.19, rallied to $1.19½ and closed at $1.19, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. July flax opened unchanged at $1.21¼, declined to $1.21 and closed there, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. September flax was inactive and closed ⅛c higher at $1.22 and October flax closed ⅛c lower at $1.21.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Firm on a Good Demand for the July Option.

Chicago, April 30.—The wheat market today opened firm on a good demand for the July option from shorts and commission houses. The chief bull argument was frost in Iowa, Missouri and Kansas. The Liverpool market was also 1c higher. July wheat opened ⅜c to ⅝c higher at 88¼c to 88⅝c and sold at 88¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 158 cars against 116 cars last week and 432 cars one year ago.

A sharp break took place about the middle of the day on the report of a local expert who asserted that the wheat crop in the Southwest is the best ever grown in that section. Under this influence July sold off to 87⅝c. Later the market rallied on covering by shorts, and July sold up to 89¼c. The close was strong with July 1c higher, at 88⅞c.

The corn market was firm but trading was not extensive. The strength of wheat and small local receipts were the chief influences. July corn opened ⅞c to ¼c higher at 63½c to 63⅝c and sold at 63¾@⅞c. Local receipts were 105 cars, with 28 of contract grade.

The market weakened along with wheat, July selling off ⅛c. Later it rallied and closed strong with July ⅝c higher at 64@64½c.

The strength of wheat and corn held the oats market steady. July oats opened unchanged at 45⅝c and sold at 45⅝c. Local receipts were 160 cars.

A light run of hogs at all Western packing centers caused a strong and active market in provisions today. July pork was 7½c to 12½c higher at $13.55 to $13.60. Lard was 2½c to 3c higher at $8.40 to 62.83½. Ribs were unchanged at $7.27½.

Close: Wheat—May, 99¾c; July, 88⅞c; September, 84⅞c. Corn—May, 67⅝c; July, 64@64½c; September, 62⅝@63c. Oats—May, old, 53½c; May, 52⅝@53c; July, old, 45½c; July, 45½c; September, 37c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Has Strong Undertone With Receipts Very Light.

Minneapolis, April 30.—Wheat held a strong undertone. The Pillsbury-Washburn company added its name to the list of milling companies agreeing to accept No. 2 northern wheat on contract instead of No. 1 northern, making ten in all. This, while it strengthened the position of the millers materially, had only slight effect upon prices. Minneapolis stocks have decreased 850,000 bushels for five days and with receipts very light the market was strong. Minneapolis got 141 cars against 190. The spring wheat crop news was very favorable, but that from the winter wheat states was not so good. Duluth reported sales of durum wheat to Russia and New York sales to Portugal and the market became very strong. Just at the close it fell back sharply. May opened $1.04⅝; high, $1.07; low, $1.04⅝; close, $1.06⅞. July wheat closed $1.05¾; September closed 90⅝c.

Cash wheat was 2@2½ over for No. 1 northern and May prices for No. 2. Sellers reported it better or slower according as to how they happen to strike it. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.08 spot or to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.06¾ @1.06¾ spot; $1.05¾ to arrive; No. 3 wheat, 98c@$1.03.

No. 3 yellow corn, 67¼@67¾c; No. 3 white oats, 49¼@49⅝c; No. 2 rye, 74¾@75¾c.

The barley market was not much changed from yesterday. Business being light, mostly feed stuff. Close 57@73c.

Flaxx was in fair demand at 1c over Duluth May for No. 1 seed, $1.19¾.

Bran in bulk, $21@21.25.

The millers made no change in prices and reported the market uncertain and likely to remain so until after May 1. Sales today for domestic account were a little larger. Shipments, 48,911 barrels. First patents, $5.35@5.50; second patents, $5.25@5.40; first clears, $4.10@4.25; second clears, $3.30@3.40.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: The markets today after an early spurt in which Amalgamated led were distinctly reactionary. It is by no means extraordinary or at all calculated to destroy ones faith in the market that this reaction has occurred. A very pronounced rise has been enjoyed and a few days of digestion and rest is all the better. Sentiment is very slowly improving and especially on coppers, notwithstanding the fact that metal market is at the moment decidedly heavy. The opinion is growing that a substantial rise in copper and copper stocks will occur this summer.

The market may be heavy at the opening. If so we advise its purchase.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Were Extended in Last Hour and Finish Was Weak.

Lowest Prices of the Day Touched Near the Close.

New York, April 30.—The opening stock market today was rather irregular, but stocks which have been conspicuous in the recent dealings were lower. The dealings were very scanty. Westinghouse Electric fell 1½ and St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Atchison and Norfolk & Western 1. American snuff sold at an advance of 50 points over the preceding sale in December.

Opening losses were not extended and the market gradually advanced until some of the weak features were selling a point or more above their first prices. St. Paul was the leader of the market and rose from 127 to 129. American Smelting stocks also sold a point above the previous close. Prices yielded at 11 o'clock.

Urgent liquidation of Westingnouse Electric carried that stock down 10½, followed by a rebound of 3. The drop in the general list carried some prices below last night again. Later there was some recovery. Atlantic Coast Line fell 2¾ and Pressed Steel Car, Western Union and Distillers Securities 1. Bonds were steady.

The decline of the market obtained greater momentum and the most prominent stocks ruled in the neighborhood of a point below yesterday's closing. The Harriman stocks, Reading and St. Paul were most susceptible to pressure.

A strong rally in St. Paul, which carried it to about 129, caused some recovery elsewhere, but the market yielded again and became very dull when St. Paul fell back a point.

The market closed weak. Declines were extended in the final hour when numerous additions to the 1 point losses were made and the lowest prices of the day were touched. Reading, Union Pacific, Atchison, Pennsylvania, Iowa Central, preferred, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting, Pullman, Pressed Steel Car, preferred, and General Electric lost 1⅞@7⅜.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., April 30.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: A number of orders for farm mares and plain drafters were filled today. The inclement weather has kept buyers of the better class of horses at home, as they do not care to try out choice stock in bad weather. A liberal demand for family drivers and saddlers is expected as soon as settled warm weather sets in. Another large consignment of good big mares arrived and as they are good breeding stock they will find ready takers. Values continue steady as follows:

FORMER STUDENT IS SENTENCED TO ONE YEAR.

Chicago, April 30.—Howard Mark O'Gilvie, formerly a student at the University of Wisconsin and whose elopement and subsequent "fake" suicide gained him considerable notoriety last summer, was sentenced today to a year in the house of correction by Judge Kersten on a charge of passing bogus checks. It is claimed that O'Gilvie after his "fake" suicide attended a number of other western universities under an assumed name, where at each place he is alleged to have swindled members of his fraternity out of various sums of money. He was arrested in Philadelphia under the name of Sumner C. Osborne. The charges against him which led to his conviction were made by residents of Evanston, a suburb of this city.

W. C. M'ADAM DIES AT UTICA

Former Resident of Duluth Succumbs to Heart Failure.

Word was received today of the death of William C. McAdam at Utica, N. Y.

Mr. McAdam was a former resident of Duluth, having been at one time court commissioner here. He left Duluth in 1898. Many of the older residents of the city will remember him, and learn with regret of his death.

Two sisters and one brother survive him. Death was due to heart failure.

FEW BIDS FOR CERTIFICATES

Offers for the St. Louis County Securities Are Not Satisfactorily.

The bids for the certificates of indebtedness of St. Louis county, to the amount of $600,00, were not satisfactory.

The money was to be used for building the new courthouse. The bids were opened this afternoon by the county auditor, and they were taken under advisement. No information was given out regarding the number of bids, or the amount offered.

There were not as many bids as was hoped for, however, and no action was taken. It is possible that the short time during which the bids were advertised, had something to do with the scarcity of bids, and they may be offered for sale a second time, and advertised more extensively.

DESERTED BY HUSBAND.

Mrs. Olive McMahon Working to Support Herself and Baby.

Claiming that her husband has deserted her, that one of her children is in the state home, and that she has been struggling along trying to support the other, Mrs. Olive McMahon, age 23, today brought proceedings for divorce against her husband, Thomas McMahon, age 27.

Mrs. McMahon states that they were married on Oct. 26, 1903, and that after a few months her husband deserted her. She claims that in spite of all her work she has been unable to support both of her children and was forced to let the oldest, 4 years old, be sent to the state home. The other child, which is 2 years old, the mother still has with her, and she is struggling hard to earn enough bread for herself and the baby.

MUST BORROW $250,000,000

During Next Five Years, So Treasurer of Germany Says.

Berlin, April 30.—That the imperial government must borrow $250,000,000 during the next five years was the substance of an admission made by Secretary of the Treasury Sydow to the appropriations committee of the Reichstag today. These borrowings will be necessary even though the appropriations for each year are not increased before 1912.

At the time this statement was made the committee was discussing a proposal of Chairman Paasches, National Liberal, for a definite bill from the government to fix sinking fund requirements. Herr Erzberger Centrist said the members of the committee must be shocked by the government's reckoning that a thousand million more must be borrowed to cover the annual deficits in the ordinary budgets for another five years, and that actually very much more probably would be required. Continuing, Herr Erzberger made several allusions to the burdens which this generation was creating for subsequent ones by the policy of spending far beyond its income.

BAD DISPATCHING

Caused the Fatal Accident on the Michigan Trolley Road.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 30.—State Railway Commissioner Dickinson while discussing the collision of Tuesday on the Detroit, Jackson & Chicago railway in which ten lives were lost and thirty persons injured, declared today that the car dispatching system on all the interurban trolley roads in Michigan is defective. "There will have to be a reform," continued Mr. Dickinson, "and we shall have all the superintendents and chief dispatchers of the various roads in Lansing for a conference and insist upon something like a standard system of dispatching."

SWEDISH KING AND PRINCE IN RUSSIA.

Reval, Russia, April 30—King Gustav of Sweden, and a Swedish squadron arrived here today from Stockholm. His majesty is coming to attend the marriage at Tsarskoe-Selo next Sunday of Prince Wilhelm of Sweden, his second son, to Grand Duchess Maria Pavlovna, daughter of Grand Duke Paul Alexandrovitch.

STREET CARS.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point, and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.

The fare for a continuous ride in one direction between any two points on either one of these lines is 5c.

The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passenger safely between points on the above mentioned lines.

This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has no better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines, nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and, therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.

IF

You were out of a job—wanted and needed one to supply bread and clothing, you wouldn't think of walking into every store and office in the city and personally asking for work, would you? If you did, it would be slow, tiresome work—and look at the time consumed—you could starve before you saw everybody.

This method of asking for and securing work is out of date. The new, quick, sure, profitable way is The Herald "Want" ad way.

The cost for a Herald "want" ad is but a trifle, and every business man in Duluth reads The Herald.

BIG FOUR-MASTED SHIP DRIVEN ASHORE ON LONG ISLAND IN AWFUL GALE

Four-Masted German Vessel, Peter Rickmers, in Dire Straits.

Life Savers Unable to Help Crew During the Night.

Revenue Cutter and Tug Sent to Their Assistance.

New York, May 1.—The great four-masted German ship Peter Rickmers, which left New York yesterday for Rangoon, loaded with case oil, was driven ashore on the south coast of Long Island last night in a terrific gale and was still ashore today with life-saving crews unable to board her. The east wind which prevailed during the day prevented the ship rom gaining sea room yesterday, and early in the evening it increased to a gale against which the stout vessel could not hold her own and she was thrown ashore at Zach's Inlet, about ten miles west of Fire Island. A tremendous sea was pounding on the beach and amid the blinding rain squalls which swept across the ocean, only the flaring rockets sent up from the deck of the stranded vessel in appeal for assistance, gave information of the disaster. From the shore the outline of the ship's rigging could be dimly discerned by the flare of the rockets.

BISHOP POTTER
Of the Episcopal Diocese of New York Is so Seriously Ill That He Has Been Forced to Abandon His Church Work.

"THE LADIES SHOULD WEAR SMALL HATS."

New York, May 1.—Edward J. McGuire, chairman of the parade committee of the Catholic celebration, which will manage the big procession of the laity up Fifth avenue tomorrow, sent out last night the tickets for those who will have grandstand seats. With each ticket there was this formal injunction:

"Ladies should wear small hats." The request was printed in large type.

SEEKING A SAFE SEAT

Churchill Goes to Dundee to Secure Election to Parliament.

Dundee, May 1.—Winston Spencer Churchill, president of the board of trade, whose recent failure to be returned to parliament from the northwest division of Manchester has forced him to seek a "safe" seat, arrived here this morning to contest the vacancy caused by the elevation to the peerage of Edmund Robertson. Mr. Churchill has a well organized opposition to fight, but it will require an enormous turnover of votes to defeat him. The Unionist candidate, Sir George Baxter, has a powerful local influence, and the labor candidate, G. H. Stuart, while a novelty in this country, is an out and out Prohibitionist. E. Seryingeour of the United Irish league, is urging the Irish voters to give their complete support to Mr. Churchill, on the ground that Premier Asquith has adopted Mr. Chuchill's pledges at Manchester regarding home rule for Ireland as representing the policy of the government.

IN FAVOR OF NEBRASKAN

Congressman De Armond Thinks Bryan the Logical Candidate.

Washington, May 1.—Representative DeArmond of Missouri, in an address before the District of Columbia Democratic association, last night, declared that the people of Missouri look upon William J. Bryan as the logical candidate for the presidency and that Missouri's delegates will support him unanimously at the Denver convention.

Mr. De Armond said, in part: "Some people criticize Mr. Bryan and say 'He ran in 1896, he ran in 1900, he is the perpetual candidate; he is the man always to the front.' Whoever got there with less self-seeking and is more in thorough accord with the wishes of those who followed him than Mr. Bryan?

"Is there anything wrong in his being willing to stand again as the candidate of his party, if his party wants him? What is he doing now, or what has he done to put himself in the way of the nomination at Denver, that any man can criticize. He stands as an honor to our American citizenship; he stands as one of the highest and noblest type of man—a Christian, patriotic gentleman."

Representative Hughes of New Jersey also spoke. He declared that there are probably 1,000 Democratic voters in his state who would oppose Mr. Bryan, if nominated. The uninstructed delegation, he said, may support the Nebraskan in the convention.

Representative Hughes spoke in part as follows: "I am for Mr. Bryan because I think he is right. Let us look at it from the standpoint of the politician. I am for Bryan for another reason. While he may not carry the state of New Jersey or the state of New York—and I do not say that he could not carry those states—it is my firm belief that he is going to get more votes in those states than any other candidate that can be named by the Democratic party."

STUDENT IS A BURGLAR

Graduate of Columbia College Held by Berkeley Police.

Married Young Society Woman of Oakland, Recently.

San Francisco, May 1.—"Dr." W. W. Goelet, graduate of Columbia college and traveler, who was married to a young society [illegible] of Oakland four months ago [illegible] the Berkeley city prison, charged with the burglary of eight residence and apartment houses in Oakland and Berkeley.

He appeared on most of the [illegible] apartment house registers as D. F. Wythe, an alias he acknowledged.

The Berkeley police department has had Goelet under suspicion for two weeks, and by visiting the places robbed have obtained evidence that they believe will hold him on several charges.

Goelet's method, according to the police, was to engage rooms in high-class hotels and apartment houses, then plunder right and left. Some time ago he traveled with Benjamin Fay Mills, the pulpit lecturer, as Mills' private secretary. Goelet was compelled to leave Los Angeles under a cloud of charges of theft. He had also been secretary for Dr. Biddewolfe, a noted evangelist. Goelet is 35 years of age, a native of Virginia. His parents, it is said, live in Washington, D. C. He was in the Spanish war, serving in the hospital corps in Cuba.

FEARS DEATH FROM SLAYER OF FIANCEE.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 1.—Haunted always by the fear that the assassin of pretty Bertha Bollin, his sweetheart, will also slay him, Frank Kern, stalwart and handsome, has applied to the Des Moines police for protection. Kern tells a remarkable story—a story of one who is constantly pursued by a murderer who swings a bloody gaspipe, the same which killed Kern's sweetheart—threatening at any minute to bring the gory weapon upon his head.

Kern declares that he sees the bloody gaspipe suspended above him at all times. He declares it is wielded by a rival in love who, when he found himself defeated by Kern, killed the woman in the case and is still seeking to wreak a horrible revenge upon the successful lover.

MESSENGER QUESTIONED

Some Parts of Story Concerning Train Robbery Unsatisfactory.

He Was Found Bound and Helpless in Express Car.

Columbus, Ohio, May 1.—The St. Louis express, on the Pennsylvania railroad, which was held up last night ten miles west of Pittsburg, arrived at the Union station here at 2:30 a. m. today, forty minutes late. The crew confirmed the story of the holdup by two men at Walker's Mill and of the escape of the bandits. Besides four sealed mail bags, the crew stated that a number of express packages and a quantity of gold bullion were taken, but do not know the value of the property. It is believed, however, that the booty may exceed the estimated sum of $10,000, sent from Pittsburg. The officials of the Adams Express company, here, refused to make any statement.

Noah H. Roshon of Columbus, the express messenger, says two men entered his car east of Walker's Mill, and covered him with revolvers. They then tied him with ropes they brought with them and rifled the car. As the train approached Walker's Mill, the bandits pulled the signal cord and stopped the train. They escaped when the train slackened its speed. Conductor L. L. Lafferty of Pittsburg was

SHOULD BE PAID BY THE COURT

Former Judge Corning's Ideas on "Medical Experts."

New York, May 1.—Addressing the Academy of Medicine on the subject of "Medical Expert Testimony," Rufus B. Cowing, formerly judge of the court of general sessions, expressed the view that in homicide cases where the sole defense is insanity, the defendant should be required by law to take the witness stand for examination as to his sanity.

Judge Cowing also made the suggestion that all medical experts should be appointed and paid by the court, and not allowed to testify if paid by either side.

Dr. John A. Wyeth, president of the academy, who is a member of the joint committee of the State Medical society and the Bar association, appointed to draft a bill for the regulation of expert testimony, read a tentative bill that is now under consideration. It provides for the appointment of experts by the court. Such experts are to be paid by the county and are to examine personally into all medical phases of any case they are assigned to.

Either side may call such an expert as a witness, and both sides can agree to demand the appointment of an expert. Fees ranging from $50 for a preliminary examination and report to $100 a day and expenses, when called away from his home county, are provided for such official experts.

SENATOR FROM ARKANSAS ROUNDLY DENOUNCES THE TRUSTS AND PLUTOCRATS

Says Rockefeller and Morgan Should be Indicted for Treason.

Pays His Respects to the Press in Scathing Terms.

Asks Discharge of Committee From Consideration of His Bill.

Washington, May 1.—In the senate today, Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas moved to discharge the committee on judiciary from the further consideration of his bill "for the suppression of trusts, pools and combinations in restraint of trade." He spoke for about two hours, reading most of the time from a typewritten statement which he said he had prepared in advance "that no intemperate language might escape his lips on this occasion," a thing which he said he had never done before.

During his speech he roundly denounced the trusts, commended the president's recent measure outlining measures for relief, spoke of the removal of the motto "In God We Trust" from the coins and declared that John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil company and J. Pierpont Morgan should be indicted for treason. He also paid his

NO STRIKES THIS YEAR

Usual May Day Disturbance is Lacking in New England.

Many Workers in Granite Industries Return to Work.

Boston, May 1.—May day in New England, usually a day of industrial disturbance, was this year one of the most peaceful on record, due in part to the dull condition of business and the consequent over-supply in the labor market. The only strikes of magnitude in this section this spring, those in the granite industry during March and April, which involved nearly 10,000 men, have been adjusted, the strikers in several places returning to work today.

In the textile industry of New England, about 40 per cent of the machinery is idle, which has the effect of keeping about 100,000 operatives idle or on short time. The American Woolen company, which controls thirty plants in New England, is opearting about half of its machinery, an increase of 15 per cent since January. The independent mills are on a similar basis.

In the cotton goods and cotton yarn mills about 40 per cent of the spindles are stopped. The cotton cloth business continues poor, cotton yarn is in little demand, and the indications point to a general curtailment during the summer.

RECOVER BODIES OF OFFICERS

Divers Find Big Hole in Side of Japanese Cruiser.

Tokio, May 1.—An official report from the Japanese cruiser Matsushima, sunk by an explosion in the harbor of Makang, Pescadores islands, on April 30, says that the divers have discovered a huge rent on the port side. The after dock is shattered and the interior wreckage prevents the removal of many bodies. The bodies of the captain and commander of the cruiser have been recovered.

SETTLERS' HOME BLOWN TO ATOMS

Outrage in Idaho Attributed to Woodsmen Who Made Threats.

Wardner, Idaho, May 1.—From their home, blown to atoms by dynamite, E. A. Carlson and wife have reached Kingston, eight miles below Wardner. The Carlsons had just completed a large house on their ranch on the North Fork river. Last night, just after retiring, a terrific explosion took place, completely demolishing the house and furniture and throwing the inmates many feet through the air, injuring and stunning them. The hired man was found fifty feet from the house in a dazed condition. All the animals in the barn were killed or injured, and the barn torn down. It is said some men in the woods nearby have been making threats against the settlers.

Jumps Into Canal at Harrisburg Three Different Times.

Men Attempting to Save Him Bitten by Vicious Dog.

Finally Drove Him Away, But the Man Was Dead.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 1.—After making two attempts early today to commit suicide, although a vicious bulldog used its best endeavors to prevent the rescuers from pulling the would-be suicide from the water, Henry P. Turpin, aged about 32 years, succeeded in drowning himself in the old Pennsylvania canal at Steelton, near here.

Turpin spent the night drinking and early in the morning, accompanied by his bull terrier, went to the canal and plunged headlong into the stream, which is very deep at that place. Edward McCord and Frank Magnellia saw Turpin in the water, and made an attempt to reach him, but the dog sprang at them, biting a piece of flesh from the wrist of Magnellia. The dog was thrown aside and held by another man, who appeared on the scene while McCord and Magnellia swam to the side of Turpin and dragged him to

HETTY GREEN NEVER USED A TELEPHONE.

New York, May 1.—Although probably more actively engaged in business than any other person in the country, Mrs. Hetty Green has never used a telephone. She said so yesterday when in the office of a downtown trust company she asked an attendant to transmit a message for her. After the message was delivered Mrs. Green expressed her thanks, explaining why she had asked assistance.

CLEVELAND HAS CANCER

Is Rumor Which is Being Circulated in New York.

Is Difficult to Get Information From Any Source.

New York, May 1.—The Evening World gives prominence today to the following:

"There is a report current in financial circles, emanating from the offices of the Equitable Life Assurance society, that Former President Grover Cleveland is a sufferer from cancer of the stomach, and that his case has been pronounced hopeless by specialists called into consult him by Dr. Joseph B. Bryant of this city, the family physician.

"Mr. Cleveland remains at the Lakewood hotel, in Lakewood, N. J., although the house closed for the season ten days ago. His wife and children are the only other guests.

"A physician and nurses are in constant attendance and a small staff of servants has been reained to look after the Cleveland family."

Efforts to confirm the Evening World's statement that Mr. Cleveland is suffering from cancer and that his condition is critical, are unavailing, owing to the extreme reticence observed by all connected with the case about the former president's illness.

When Dr. Bryant was asked whether it was correct that his patient's illness had been diagnosed as cancer of the stomach, he replied:

"Mr. Cleveland is all right. There is nothing I can tell you of any interest."

PRESIDENT TO RECEIVE OVER 600 YOUNG WOMEN.

Washington, May 1.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt will receive at the White House, this afternoon, a delegation of 600 wage earning young women from seven Eastern states, representing the National League of Women Workers, now holding its convention in this city.

The young women are here principally on pleasure bent and very little business will be transacted.

In the ranks of the league are women engaged in all lines of endeavor. There are saleswomen, factory workers, stenographers, typists, teachers and dressmakers. Membership is limited to women who are actually earning their own living.

NELSON FOILED SHREWD SCHEME

Defeated Attempt to Secure Federal Inspection of Grain.

Washington, May 1.—Senator Nelson yesterday defeated an attempt of the committee on agriculture to bring about federal inspection of grain through means of a proviso in the paragraph relating to maintenance of government testing laboratories at Minneapolis, Duluth and other cities. The proviso says: "Such grades when so fixed at testing laboratories then to become the official standards for the grading of grain."

Senator Nelson made a point of order against the proviso, claiming that it was new legislation in that it virtually provides for government inspection. A lengthy debate followed, participated in by Senators Burkett of Nebraska, McComber of North Dakota and Teller of Colorado.

Senator Nelson said: "This amendment in effect will change the existing law and will result in establishment of federal inspection of grain. It is general legislation, and is therefore subject to a point of order, which I have made."

Vice President Fairbanks, who was in the chair, sustained the point of order, and the amendment was stricken from the bill.

"NO TIP" SHOP FAILS TO PAY

Barbers Go Back to the Old Plan in New York.

New York, May 1.—That a "no tip" barber shop will not pay in New York has been proved by the experience of a shop which, after a thorough trial of the plan, has given it up and gone back to the prevailing tipping system. The proprietors put $30,000 into an establishment of the first order, fixed a scale of prices calculated to save money for the patron on the no tip basis, and forbade the reception of gratuities by their employes. They ran it with more and more loss every month for a little over a year. New York would not have it. Now the announcement has been made that customers may tip barbers as much as they please and as many times as they please. Since then business has picked up amazingly. The barbers, who have had their pay reduced about 50 per cent, are smiling and happy and customers are dropping in in constantly increasing numbers. The proprietors have made up their minds that tipping and prosperity, if they don't inevitably go together, at least cannot be separated with pecuniary advantage to the heads of the business.

CURLERS AT BANQUET

Annual Reunion of Western Curling Club is Held.

Medals and Prizes Presented to the Winning Rinks.

There was no lack of food, speeches and the cheer of true friendship at the annual banquet given last night by the Western Curling club at Gilley's hall, in celebration of the most successful season just closed. The repast as served by the women of Westminster Presbyterian church was pronounced an achievement in the art of cooking. The speeches overflowed with wit and humor. The dance that followed the dinner was a very enjoyable affair in itself. In short, the Western Curling club's banquet was a splendid success. The club is in excellent financial shape and hopes soon to buy the lots on which the buildings stand.

More than 150 curlers, with their wives and ladies, were present. L. A. Barnes, acting for the donors, at their request presented to the winners the trophies and medals taht had been contested for during the winter. The West Duluth Commercial club trophy was awarded to the rink skipped by Victor Method. The Union Match company trophy was presented to Walter Evered's rink, and the Hurst medals were handed to the members of the rink skipped by A. G. Macauley.

The address of welcome was delivered by President A. G. Macauley. George J. Mallory, who presided as toastmaster, kept the guests in roars of laughter with his string of jokes. The toasts and those who responded to them were as follows: "The Northwestern Curling Association," A. H. Smith of the Duluth club; "Our Neighbor Clubs," S. H. Jones of the Duluth club; "The Western Curling Club," Martin Meldahl, retiring president; "Curling From a Beginner's Point of View," Harry Lanners; "Ours and Other Skips," Rev. W. J. Lowrie; "Why I Would Rather Skate Than Curl," A. T. Park and Emil Zautt; "Why I Didn't Win a Trophy," J. A. Scott; and "The Ladies," W. B. Getchell and Rev. Arthur Hoag.

WOMEN AUCTION OFF SUSPENDERS

There was a large and enthusiastic meeting of the Women's Union Label league, No. 230, last evening at Kalamazoo hall. Twenty-two women and nine men were initiated, and applications for fifteen new members were favorably voted on. Communications were read from the Union Hosiery mills, garment workers, boot and shoe workers, flour and cereal employes and several others. The social committee gave an entertaining report of its experiences. They were donated a pail of union label suspenders from C. W. Ericson, which netted a large sum by auction, and were won by Thomas O'Meara. Several members contributed vocal selections.

At the next meeting, in Columbia hall, West end, Monday evening, May 4, a full attendance is desired, as there will be a nomination of officers for the coming year.

NO FAMINE IN DULUTH

Cooks and Waiters Win in Fight for Union Shop.

All Restaurant Proprietors Sign the Agreement With Unions.

The proprietors of local restaurants have complied with the demands of the members of the local Cooks' Waiters' and Waitresses' union, and the Duluth restaurant patrons will not have to go hungry during the settlement of a strike.

Last night and early this morning it looked as if some of the restaurants were going to refuse to sign the contract framed last night by the union, calling for recognition of their union and observance of the closed shop rule. This agreement was presented to the restaurant men this morning and they were given until 11 o'clock to place their signatures to it. H. B. Gouth, proprietor of the Delmonico and the owners of the Club restaurant were the first to comply. J. W. Miller, J. J. Haley and the Astoria cafe held back, but fell in line before 11 o'clock. The other restaurant proprietors signed during the morning.

The unions asked for no change in wages or hours. They asked that the employers continue to recognize their union. At the meeting last night in Kalamazoo hall, some of the more conservative members of the union opposed trying to force a renewal of the agreement on the employers, fearing that the sentiment for open shop was too strong, but they were overwhelmed by the others.

The proprietors of the restaurants say that they could not very well do otherwise than agree. The prospect of having one union restaurant in the city and all the others on the open shop basis, was not a pleasing one to them. That is what would have happened if they had held out. They were led to believe that one member would absolutely refuse to run his place according to open shop rule. It is said that some of the restaurant men telephoned to St. Paul last night for non-union help, but no waiters or cooks showed up on this morning's train. If they had refused to sign, they would have been forced to close up for lack of cooks and waiters.

The whole matter is now settled and the restaurants will be run for the present, at least, as in past years, on the closed shop basis.

QUESTION OF RIGHTS

Officials Must Decide on Proofs in Withdrawn Tract.

Whether the people who have filed on land under the timber and stone act, in the district withdrawn by order of the commissioner of the general land office, the latter part of April, are entitled to their land as exceptions to the withdrawal order, despite the fact that final proofs have not been made, is the question put up to the register and receiver of the Duluth land office. One offer of final proof was made today, the first since the withdrawal, and the officials are wrestling with it, as their decision will establish a precedent for dealing with other like claims.

The department order excepted all parcels of land held by settlers or occupants under the homestead laws, or claimants under the timber and stone act, who had claims to the land prior to the date of the order, and continued such claims. The offer of final proof today took in eighty acres in the withdrawn district, and eighty acres outside. The filing had been made prior to the issuance of the order, but whether the fact that no money had been paid would keep the entrant outside of the exceptions is a question.

The number of timber and stone filings made in the withdrawn district before the date of the order, and on which final proof had not been made, is not great, but the decision on the case submitted today will cover them all. The question is rather a fine one and the register and receiver have reached no decision this afternoon. Their decision is subject to the approval of the commissioner of the general land office at Washington, and only after the case has been passed on there will the claimants know just what rights they possess.

ASSESSORS BEGIN WORK

Corps of Deputies Begin Task of Valuing Property.

Some of the Features of New Ememption Ruling.

The city assessors began their work this morning, and are now on a still hunt for people with property, personal and otherwise, upon which they are supposed to pay taxes. Beginning the first of May every year, it is necessary for this department to look after the work of assessing. They cover the city thoroughly and try and see that no property owner escapes the proper payment of taxes.

Particular attention will be paid this year to personal property, and a greater effort will be made than in the past to see that everybody is assessed in just proportion to the amount of personal property he may have in his possession and that the man with two or three automobiles receive the same treatment as the laborer who owns only a cow or a horse, each being assessed an amount in proportion to the value of the property in question.

The state tax commission has called special attention this year to that part of the state law which says no exemption will be granted unless the owner of personal property files a list with the assessor showing each article of personal property and its real value. If no list is prepared and sworn to by the property owner, the county auditor, who is the only official who can make exemption, cannot make the $100 allowed by law and the property owners will have to pay on the value of the property as it is assessed.

This means, it is claimed, that the small taxpayers who wish to get the benefit of the $100 exemption must make affidavit as to the actual value of their personal property, while the big taxpayer who may have personal property of a great value in the way of stocks, moneys, or credits, will refuse to make any list and will accept the assessor's figures while an attempt is made to conceal the property on which the taxes due would far exceed the legal exemption.

The law, it is claimed, is unsatisfactory in that it tends to put a premium on dishonesty. It is claimed that the honest taxpayers who are compelled to put down the actual value of their property instead of about one-third its value, as it has heretofore been assessed, will be discriminated against in favor of the dishonest taxpayers who swear in their list at as low a value as they think will stick and will get the full benefit of the exemption.

The assessors or the auditor cannot change the conditions. The law is there for them to follow and they cannot exercise any discretionary powers. If any taxpayer does not make a list of his personal effects the assessor will put in his own estimate as to valuation.

BRAVE BILL.

Patrick Jones, New York's superintendent of school supplies, was talking at a dinner about corporal punishment.

"Corporal punishment in our schools is no more," he said, "and that is a good thing. Undeniably, though, under it many a boy showed wonderful pluck. I remember a boy named Bill. Brave fellow, he was doing miserably one day in a geometry recitation.

"'Now, sir,' said the schoolmaster savagely, 'for the last time, what is the square of the hypotenuse of a right-angled triangle equivalent to?'

"'It's equivalent to a lickin' fer me, sir. There's the club,' said Bill."

DOG TAXES ARE NOW DUE

The City Registration is Now Shy 1,694 Animals.

Taft and Teddy Lead in the List of Names.

The dog registration of the city is shy 1,694 names, if there are as many canines in town now as there were a year ago. The total number of licenses issued last year was 1,782 males and 110 females. Every dog in the city is today supposed to be wearing a license tag around his neck, but up to noon only ninety-eight licenses had been issued. Five of these were for females.

A picturesque array of names is offered on the registration book in the city treasurer's office. An arrangement has been made whereby the applicant receives his license in the treasurer's office, as well as pays his money there, where formerly he only handed over the cash to the city treasurer, taking a receipt and getting the license and tag downstairs in the city clerk's office. Teddy seems to be a popular name in dogdom, in honor, of course, of President Roosevelt. Teddy is applied to dogs both large and small. The usual array of Sports is in evidence, but Ponto seems to have gone somewhat out of fashion. There is only one lone Ponto in the whole list. There are four Tafts and one Bryan. Cross, Brutis, Dan, Billy, Jack, Stumpy, Harry, French, and many others of the common names are registered.

WE PROVE OUR CURES

Doubters Should Investigate. Science, Not Magic, Heals.

Extract from letter on file in this office, dated Duluth, March 21, 1908.

"My Dear Doctor: In a feeble attempt to show you my gratitude for the remarkable manner in which you dragged me from a living hell into clean, strong, healthy manhood, I am writing you this letter —— —— ——.

What a marvelous skill you show in treating disease. —— ——

What consideration you took, money can never repay the debt I owe you.

Are you strong? Are you virile? Does the red blood course through your veins, show in your face finger tips? Or are you pale, anemic, faltering, the shadow of a man? If disease clutches you—throw it off! But remember magic cannot heal you. Be sane! Be Reasonable! Let recognized scientists treat you.

We want to let every man know that he can get a cure in Duluth. No matter how long he may have had it, the Progressive Doctors are the most skilled you can find in this country. They got their experience through years of study in the best universities in the United States and Europe; and have studied for many years the ailments of men just to get proficient in healing chronic men's diseases. They will not accept your case if it is one of typhoid, pneumonia, or other contagious disease, as there are many other able physicians to cure them.

Heart and Kidney Troubles Cured.

Do you get out of breath in climbing the stairs or walking up hills? Does your heart beat rapid at times, and lose a beat and you then get nervous? This is one reason why you ought to consult the Specialists, for you have heart disease. When you awake in the morning and find your lower eyelids puffed, the ankles of the feet swollen, the tongue coated and your breath foul; when you are getting weak and have pain in the back, albumen and sediment in the urin after standing twenty-four hours, you have kidney trouble.

Don't go to Hot Springs, Minneapolis or elsewhere, for you save your expenses, tend to your business and get the services right here of the most learned specialists, and if your case is curable they will give you a written guarantee of a cure.

Art of Dissolving Diseases.

Science has made a greater advance in the last 50 years than it did in 2,000 years previously, and the method of dissolving chronic pathological lesions and diseased organs is one of the greatest achievements of medical specialists. In Duluth, the Progressive Med. Specialists, on Superior St. and Lake Ave., are the only ones who practice this method. A man don't like to have steel, sharp and cutting, put into his abdomen to get rid of his gallstones or appendix. Nor does he like to have the knife or red hot iron put into his rectum to be relieved of piles or cancers. That method of getting rid of diseases is old and barbarous. This process of dissolving is the most wonderful, though natural. There is no pain nor cutting, nor blood shedding, and it never fails to get results in the hands of these Expert Specialists. You can be cured by this process of cancer, RUPTURE, Kidney Trouble. Remember that these doctors are Experts in men's diseases and can cure you, no matter how long you may have had it. You may consult them without any cost from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. and it would pay you to have their opinion and advice free of charge.

Cures All Sorts of Chronic Diseases.

We do not walk in the same old beaten paths of cutting and bleeding and pain. That is old, and today specialists are using the dissolving method and that of bloodless surgery. You cannot cure by cutting, but you can cure by healing. Real diseases can only be cured by these methods, successfully, and we do it. We cure men down from syphilis to consumption—from stomach trouble to cancers—all without the knife—and you can be cured of any trouble, no matter how long you have had it. We positively cure Heart Trouble, Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Gallstones, Gravel, Lumbago, Sciatica, Bladder Trouble, Stricture, Varicolece, Hydrocele, Lost Manhood, Weakness, Operative Diseases like Weakness, operative diseases like Rupture, Piles, Fistula, Appendicitis and others we cure completely without operation by hypodermic injection and dissolving process. Eczema, Itch, Paralysis, Bloodpoison, Ingure Blood, Lung Troubles, Nervous Diseases, Neuralgia, Stomach and Brain Diseases, Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Cancer, Tumor, piles. Office hours are from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., No. 1 W. Superior St., Duluth.

NO TROUBLE WITH UNIONS

None of the unions in the builders trades of Superior presented their contracts to employers for renewal today, though it is May 1, and the customary time for such agreements to come up. This is due to the Builders' Exchange yesterday filing articles of incorporation with the register of deeds. Heretofore they have not been an organized body. On filing their articles of incorporation the Builders' Exchange announced yesterday that they would declare for open shop when the unions made their demands today for a continuance of recognition.

But the unions have not made any demands and the Builders' Exchange has not hired any non-union men, or changed the wage or hour scale any, so things are going on as usual. The only difference there is, is that the contracts with the unions have expired and have not been renewed, so that the contractors are in no way bound to hire only union labor. There has been no friction, and the labor leaders say that there will be none until the exchange starts employing non-union labor, or attempts to change the wage and hour scale, as set by themselves.

A WORD OF THANKS

We desire to thank the hundreds of our old and new patrons, who showed their appreciation of our auction sale which closed yesterday. Their confidence was not misplaced—every article sold from our regular stock, and our guarantee went with every purchase. We have had many expressions of appreciation of the values given every day since the sale began; every promise we made was carried out to the very letter. The big attendance at every sale was an expression of appreciation of our business methods, that we esteem highly.

WAS LOCKED IN HIS ROOM

New Boarder Kept a Prisoner For Two Hours.

Second Street Boarding House Scene of Exciting Times.

Because a young man roomer in a popular boardinghouse on Second avenue west, between Second and Third streets, used the wrong key to lock his door last evening, there were some strenuous times in the place this morning. Two young women, one a school teacher and the other a stenographer, who room in the same boardinghouse, were scared nearly into hysterics. The young man's employers are sore because he showed up several hours late this morning. The young man is so mad at himself and everybody else connected with the boardinghouse that he could bite a nail in pieces. The boardingnouse keeper is displeased because of the destruction of the lock on the door.

The young man who created the disturbance is a new roomer. He "arrived" yesterday and was given two keys, one for the door to his room. Unfamiliarity with the use of the two keys resulted in his locking the door of his room last evening with the front door key.

It was necessary for him to get to his work early this morning, so he got up at 6 o'clock, dressed and attempted to get out of his room. The wrong key in the lock refused to throw the catch and the roomer could not get the key out. He worked fast and furiously for nearly half an hour in the effort to either unlock the door or get the key out of the lock, but all in vain.

The young man became desperate. He began pounding on the door and the walls and shouted for somebody to come and let him out. The noise awoke the school teacher and the stenographer in the adjoining rooms. The young man was a stranger to them and they thought he had gone crazy. They buried their heads in the pillows and remained trembling in bed, while the roomer next door pounded, raved and went through a performance that caused their fears to grow.

The mistress of the boarding house heard the racket, but supposed some of the roomers were merely having a little fun among themselves. She paid no attention to the noise, although she wondered why it was kept up so long.

Finally, along about 8 o'clock, another young woman boarder in the house, happened to walk down the hall. The imprisoned young man heard her and shouted:

"Won't you please tell somebody I am locked in."

Somewhat frightened at the strange request, the young woman fled down stairs and notified the mistress of the boarding house that one of the roomers was either sick or crazy, as he was demanding that some one let him out.

The man of the house was called. He investigated the matter and found out the cause of the disturbance. Again efforts were made to turn the refractory lock but to no purpose. Finally, their patience being exhausted, an ax was procured and the lock was smashed. The young man who had been imprisoned for about two hours was almost too wrathy for words. He was inclined to blame the people of the house for his predicament, but they soon impressed on him the fact that it was his own fault. He has filed a notch in one of the keys so that hereafter he will be able to tell in the dark, or with his eyes shut, the right key to use in the door of his room.

PLANT WILL BE TESTED SOON

Stockholders in the American Carbolite Company Not Satisfied.

In spite of the recent failure of the American Carbolite company, the stockholders of the company are not satisfied that the plant can not be run on a profitable basis. To test this theory a committee of eight or ten stockholders from Ohio and Michigan are expected in Duluth the first of next week.

A telegram was received today by W. H. McMillan, assignee, from the Eastern stockholders, saying that they had been delayed in organizing their committee, but will arrive at Duluth during the first of next week, possibly Monday.

The committee will bring with them experts on the manufacturing of calcium carbide, who will give two or three of the furnaces a trial run. The investigations will be continued until the stockholders are certain whether the plant can be operated at a profit or not. If it can be, operations will be resumed at full blast.

Three orders were filed by Judge Cant this afternoon at the request of the assignee of the American Carbolite company. One order permits the National Carbon company to use some of the property for the purpose of making tests. A second order approves the action of the assignee in selling certain products of the company, and the third authorizes the company to defend the case brought by the Constantine Hydraulic company.

Duluth Will Secure Some Cheap Paving This Year.

Contracts Let at Figures Below the Engineer's Estimate.

Duluth will receive some cheap paving this year.

Two large paving contracts were let by the board of public works this afternoon, at a price that was nearly $7,000 below the estimates of the engineering department. The bidding for the work was close, and the contractors were evidently eager to get the work.

The largest contract was that for the paving of Second street, from Seventh to Thirteenth avenues east. This job went to John Johnson for $30,455.50. P. McDonnell was only $30 above this bid. The bids were for tar macadam paving, and were nearly $5,000 below the estimate of the city engineer.

The other large contract was for the paving of Twelfth avenue east, from London road to Fourth street. This went to P. McDonnell for $12,019.80, which was considerably below the the engineers's estimate.

Several small sewer contracts were also let by the board at bargain prices.

ADMITS WRITING THE LETTERS

Attorney Whitney Author of Anonymous Notes to Lilley.

Washington, May 1.—The investigation into the legislative methods employed by the Electric Boat company, directed by the house of representatives on a resolution introduced Feb. 29 last by Representative Lilley of Connecticut, is ended as far as open sessions of the house committee, which has been conducting it, are concerned. The closing hours of the case were dramatic. Frederick Brown Witney, an attorney at law, admitted that he was the author of the anonymous letters of Feb. 13 and 15 to the representative of the Detroit Free Press and State Senator Frank Edinborough of Michigan, which have figured so prominently in the investigation. The admission of Mr. Whitney was made in the form of an affidavit, which was read by his counsel, Former United States Senator Thurston of Nebraska. Mr. Thurston stated that Mr. Whitney is ill in the Garfield hospital, this city, and that it would be impossible for him to appear before the committee. In the affidavit Mr. Whitney stated that from 1901 to 1904 he was clerk to the committee on naval affairs of the house of representatives, that shortly thereafter he became second vice president of the Lake Torpedo Boat company, which position he retained until May 19, 1906; that he is now vice president of the Lake Submarine company, an independent organization. The reasons for writing the anonymous letters were given by Mr. Whitney as follows:

"That of his own initiative he undertook what appeared to him at the time to be not improper methods to have brought to the attention of congress the methods which he had believed had been pursued by the Electric Boat company in their endeavor to secure through congressional action what might be termed exclusive legislation which would shut out competition and prevent the Lake company from competing in the United States for submarine torpedo boat construction."

McClaverty, local manager of the marine branch of the Standard Oil company, who was thought to have been murdered by bandits in Mexico, returned to his home in this city yesterday. His failure to join the fleet caused anxiety.

ITCHING ECZEMA FIFTY-FIVE YEARS

"I had an itching, tormenting eczema ever since I came into the world, and I am now a man fifty-five years old. I tried all kinds of medicines I heard of, but found no relief. I was truly in a frightful condition. At last my blood was so bad that I broke out all over with red and white boils, which kept growing until they were as big as walnuts, causing great pain and misery. I thought they would take the skin off my whole body, but I kept from scratching as well as I could. I was so run down that I could hardly do my work. Mr. Nelson R. Burnett recommended the use of Cuticura Remedies, telling me he was confident they would benefit and, in time, cure me. I used the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, Resolvent, and Pills for about eight months, and I can truthfully say I am cured. I cordially recommend Cuticura Remedies to all who are afflicted the same as I was, believing that, if they will use them according to directions, they will find them all they are represented to be. Any one doubting the truth of the above can write to Mr. Burnett, who will cheerfully vouch for my statements.

"Hale Bordwell, R. F. D. 3, Cedar Corners, Tipton, Ia., Aug. 17, 1907."

"I cheerfully endorse the above testimonial. It is the truth. I know Mr. Bordwell and know the condition he was in. He never tires of praising the Cuticura Remedies.

"Nelson R. Burnett, Tipton, Ia."

Gentle anointings with Cuticura, the great Skin Cure, preceded by warm baths with Cuticura Soap, followed in the severer forms, with mild doses of Cuticura Resolvent Pills, afford instant relief, permit rest and sleep, and point to a speedy cure of torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, and scaly humors, eczemas, rashes, and inflammations, from infancy to age.

Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass.

BECOMING PLENTIFUL

Green Stuff is Arriving in Greater Quantities Now.

Strawberries Are Cheaper in the Local Produce Market.

Cold weather during the early part of the week threatened to cause a good bulge in the price of green stuff and was responsible for practically the only stir in the even tenor of the produce market's way.

The cold snap did not last long enough to cause a fulfillment of the prospects of higher prices for fresh vegetables, however, and the other commodities in the list were traded in at practically the same prices as a week ago.

Green fruit and vegetables have been arriving in greater quantities. The cold weather caused a check in receipts but they have resumed full measure now. Trading has been a little light but steady.

The strawberry season is getting on very nicely. First came the Florida berries, in pint boxes and at fancy prices; then came the Louisiana berries in larger boxes, perhaps, and at lower prices and now the Tennessee berries are on the local market, in quart boxes and at reasonable prices, considering the time of the season.

The Florida and Louisiana berries are out of the market, practically. Their season is over. At the outset of the season, when their berries are on the market, these states are asked to furnish an enormous territory with the delicacy, which makes their season short. The Florida berries have been out of the market for some time and now Tennessee has succeeded Louisiana as the source of supply.

The first of the Tennessee berries arrived this week and are coming in good quantity and quality. Prices are $4 to $4.50 per crate of quarts. Arkansas berries are expected shortly.

California navel oranges have undergone a bulge. Receipts are getting lighter and the wholesalers have been obliged to give prices a boost. The navels are now selling on commission row at about $3 to $3.50. At that, the commission men figure that prices on oranges are from 50 to 75 cents cheaper than at the same time a year ago. The trade has considered oranges very cheap this season and the quality very good. The quality of the late arrivals is holding up well.

Grape fruit is still offered at the same prices and there has been no let-up in the demand.

The banana market is a trifle easier than it has been for several weeks. The quotation here has been 4½c a pound for some time, but this week a quarter of a point was deducted. Stocks, at this price, seem to be ample.

Stocks of apples remain about the same as a week ago and there has been no change in prices.

"I do not believe there is a cranberry left in the country," said one commission man today, which means that the season for them is over without a doubt. Prices have been mounting for weeks, until at last they were quoted at $14 to $16 a barrel. For several weeks, that price has been maintained, while the trade stood at the bedside of the cranberry season. For more than a week, a cranberry has not been visible on the street, but quotations were kept up, the chance that a barrel or two might stroll into town. But none are available anywhere and the name has been scratched from the list, to remain off until the fall breezes blow for fair.

Evaporated peaches are now offered on the local market at $2.60 a box. They are said to be very fancy.

Cocoanuts, famed in coon song and story, are here, at 65 cents a dozen. Sacks are quoted at $4.50. Receipts so far have been fresh and very choice.

In the fresh vegetable line, Florida tomatoes are cheaper, quotations today being 50 cents a basket. They are the same tomatoes which a short time ago were selling at 70 cents a basket.

There is an easier tone to the butter market, expected as a result of warmer weather. Creamery prints are off about a point from last week and the rest of the market displays an easier undertone. As many localities, the hay season is over and the cows are grazing on green stuff. Creamery prints are 29 to 30 cents.

Eggs and cheese are unchanged.

In the meat market, beef and veal are up a half a cent to 1 cent.

MAYOR HAVEN WILL VETO IT

Says Amended Theater Ordinance is Not Strict Enough.

It is understood that Mayor Haven will veto the amendments to the theater ordinance, which were adopted by the council at its regular meeting last Monday evening. He will call for amendments which are somewhat more strict, and will back up Building Inspector Kielley in the stand he has taken against the so-called looseness of the ordinance.

The amendments as adopted allow the operation of theaters with a seating capacity of less than 200 without forcing a strict compliance with the ordinances governing larger theaters. The first amendment was introduced by Alderman Foubister, and was designed to allow the operation of the Elco theater in West Duluth, which has a seating capacity of less than 200. It is claimed these small theaters cannot continue in business if forced to comply strictly with the ordinance governing larger buildings.

It is believed the West Duluth building in question is safe enough, but the amended ordinance would allow theaters to be started in buildings with practically no protection against fire. The Elco has rear and side exits, in addition to folding doors clear across the front of the building, but Mr. Kielley says under the amended ordinance any old box of a building, with no exit other than the front door, could be fitted up and used as a theater.

It is understood the mayor's recommendations to the council will contain provisions for exits in the rear and side of all buildings of this class, two water connections will have to be put in, with two hose each fifty feet in length. An asbestos curtain two feet wider than the stage will also be provided for.

EXPRESS CAR IS ROBBED

Two Men Steal Four Bags of Money From Train.

Pittsburg, May 1.—Two train robbers who evidently boarded the New York & St. Louis express on the Pan Handle railroad of the Pennsylvania system at the union station in this city when that train left at 10:05 last night, ten minutes late, overpowered the express messenger and got away with four bags of currency containing an amount of money as yet unknown. The robbery was committed near Walkers Station, a particularly lonely and isolated spot in a rough section of country, about eleven miles west of the city. The train, one of the fastest on the road, which is not scheduled to stop between here and Steubenville, Ohio, was brought to a sudden halt by an emergency signal from the bell cord and when Conductor William Lafferty went forward to learn the trouble he found Adams Express Messenger N. Roshen, bound and gagged in the express car and so frightened that he could not give any connected report of what had happened. A brief report was telegraphed to the Pittsburg offices of the company from Rennersdale, the next telegraph office, and from Steubenville as full a report as possible was sent in by the conductor.

Except that both robbers were white, the express messenger is unable to give any description that would aid the secret service forces of the Pan Handle and Pennsylvania and county officers, all of whom have been called out to work on the case.

The express safe was open, according to information received here, as the messenger was making up bills for packages received from the local offices and the robbery was accomplished in a very few minutes. Persons standing on the station platform at Carnegie, a short distance from the place where the robbers left the train, report having seen the express messenger at work in his car and two men on the platform outside the car.

It is known that four bags, all sealed and containing money were taken from the car but nothing is known as to the amount of money contained in the bags. The train is one of the most important on the road and usually carries much currency and other express matter from New York as well as from intervening station to western points.

The robbery was one of the most daring that has ever been committed in this section. There is a dense woods near Walkers station where the robbers pulled the bell and left the train and it was into this woods that the robbers disappeared.

AN IMMENSE PETITION FOR CAPT. VAN SCHAICK.

Washington, May 1.—An immense petition, bearing the signatures of 240,800 persons, requesting that a pardon be granted to Capt. William Van Schaick, master of the ill-fated General Slocum when the vessel was destroyed by fire in New York harbor on June 15, 1904, with a loss of more than a thousand lives, was presented yesterday to the president and to Attorney General Bonaparte by a committee of the American Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots. The president assured the committee that the matter would receive careful consideration.

CLUB HOUSE DYNAMITED

Attempt Made to Destroy Palatial Quarters at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 1.—A diabolical attempt was made shortly before midnight to destroy the palatial quarters of the fashionable Phoenix club at Ninth and Rochester streets by placing in the main entrance an infernal machine so constructed that it would explode at the time the door was opened. The plot was carried out to the extent that the bomb was fired, but beyond the permanent maiming of one man, no great damage was done.

Frank J. Duegal, a bar keeper, was unfortunate enough to open the door, and as a result, the greater portion of his left hand was blown off, and the report which followed entirely destroying his hearing. When the explosion occurred, word was immediately sent to the police and a squad of men was sent to the scene. An investigation is being made.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Joseph Carabelli, a wealthy Italian of Cleveland, reported to the police Thursday that he had received a Black Hand letter demanding $3,000. The letter, he said, threatened his life, to kidnap his wife and son and dynamite his business place unless the money was paid.

At the annual meeting of the Boston & Montana Consolated Copper & Silver Mining company stockholders at Butte Thursday the old board of directors was re-elected. No other business was transacted.

After a costly trial to the government, Edward C. Hazey, charged with murder in the second degree in connection with the killing of Fred Rinehardt in the Keystone canyon riot last fall, has been acquitted by a jury in the federal court at Juneau, Alaska.

About 200 saloons were closed tonight in the cities of Holland, Charlotte and Berryen Springs and the counties of Barry, St. Joseph, Wexford, Missaubee, Ocean, Clinton, Oakland, Midland, Gratiot and Osceola in Michigan as the result of last month's local option election.

The home of J. G. Wicklund, foreman of the quarries of the Washoe Smelting company, near Anaconda, was demolished by a charge of giant powder Wednesday night. His wife and baby escaped, Wicklund was injured, but not seriously.

Anton Bavaria, alias Bernino, was Thursday found guilty of the quadruple murder of Mrs. Frank Primetto, Ercola Buffeti, Dominic and Joe Minichiello at Canyon City, Colo., the jury recommending that the defendant be sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary at hard labor.

Judge George Gray of Delaware Thursday, referring to the statement said to have been made by a speaker at a Gray club meeting in Princeton, N. J., on the evening of April 17, that he had received from a New York insurance company an offer of its presidency at a salary of $200,000, that the statement was untrue as he had received no such offer nor any other offer from any insurance company.

The First Money.

When metals were first used for payment, they were simply weighed. ADMITS WRITING THE LETTERS

Attorney Whitney Author of Anonymous Notes to Lilley.

Washington, May 1.—The investigation into the legislative methods employed by the Electric Boat company, directed by the house of representatives on a resolution introduced Feb. 29 last by Representative Lilley of Connecticut, is ended as far as open sessions of the house committee, which has been conducting it, are concerned. The closing hours of the case were dramatic. Frederick Brown Whitney, an attorney at law, admitted that he was the author of the anonymous letters of Feb 13 and 15 to the representative of the Detroit Free Press and State Senator Frank Edmoorough of Michigan, which have figured so prominently in the investigation. The admission of Mr. Whitney was made in the form of an affidavit, which was read by his counsel, Former United States Senator Thurston of Nebraska. Mr. Thurston stated that Mr. Whitney is ill in the Garfield hospital, this city, and that it would be impossible for him to appear before the committee. In the affidavit Mr. Whitney stated that from 1901 to 1904 he was clerk to the committee on naval affairs of the house of representatives, that shortly thereafter he became second vice president of the Lake Torpedo Boat company, which position he retained until May 19, 1905; that he is now vice president of the Lake Submarine company, an independent organization. The reasons for writing the anonymous letters were given by Mr. Whitney as follows:

"That of his own initiative he undertook what appeared to him at the time to be not improper methods to have brought to the attention of congress the methods which he had believed had been pursued by the Electric Boat company in their endeavor to secure through congressional action what might be termed exclusive legislation which would shut out competition and prevent the Lake company from competing in the United States for submarine torpedo boat construction."

San Francisco, May 1.—Charles C. McClaverty, local manager of the marine branch of the Standard Oil company, who was thought to have been murdered by bandits in Mexico, returned to his home in this city yesterday. His failure to join the fleet caused anxiety.

ITCHING ECZEMA FIFTY-FIVE YEARS

"I had an itching, tormenting eczema ever since I came into the world, and I am now a man fifty-five years old. I tried all kinds of medicines I heard of, but found no relief. I was truly in a frightful condition. At last my blood was so bad that I broke out all over with red and white boils, which kept growing until they were as big as walnuts, causing great pain and misery. I thought they would take the skin off my whole body, but I kept from scratching as well as I could. I was so run down that I could hardly do my work. Mr. Nelson R. Burnett recommended the use of Cuticura Remedies, telling me he was confident they would benefit and, in time, cure me. I used the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, Resolvent, and Pills for about eight months, and I can truthfully say I am cured. I cordially recommend Cuticura Remedies to all who are afflicted the same as I was, believing that, if they will use them according to directions, they will find them all they are represented to be. Any one doubting the truth of the above can write to Mr. Burnett, who will cheerfully vouch for my statements.

"Hale Bordwell, R. F. D. 3, Cedar Corners, Tipton, Ia., Aug. 17, 1907."

"I cheerfully endorse the above testimonial. It is the truth. I know Mr. Bordwell and know the condition he was in. He never tires of praising the Cuticura Remedies.

"Nelson R. Burnett, Tipton, Ia."

BECOMING PLENTIFUL

Green Stuff is Arriving in Greater Quantities Now.

Strawberries Are Cheaper in the Local Produce Market.

Cold weather during the early part of the week threatened to cause a good bulge in the price of green stuff and was responsible for practically the only stir in the even tenor of the produce market's way.

The cold snap did not last long enough to cause a fulfillment of the prospects of higher prices for fresh vegetables, however, and the other commodities in the list were traded in at practically the same prices as a week ago.

Green fruit and vegetables have been arriving in greater quantities. The cold weather caused a check in receipts but they have resumed full measure now. Trading has been a little light but steady.

The strawberry season is getting on very nicely. First came the Florida berries, in pint boxes and at fancy prices; then came the Louisiana berries in larger boxes, perhaps, and at lower prices and now the Tennessee berries are on the local market, in quart boxes and at reasonable prices, considering the time of the season.

The Florida and Louisiana berries are out of the market, practically. Their season is over. At the outset of the season, when their berries are on the market, these states are asked to furnish an enormous territory with the delicacy, which makes their season short. The Florida berries have been out of the market for some time and now Tennessee has succeeded Louisiana as the source of supply.

The first of the Tennessee berries arrived this week and are coming in good quantity and quality. Prices are $4 to $4.50 per crate of quarts. Arkansas berries are expected shortly.

California navel oranges have undergone a bulge. Receipts are getting lighter and the wholesalers have been obliged to give prices a boost. The navels are now selling on commission row at about $3 to $3.50. At that, the commission men figure that prices on oranges are from 50 to 75 cents cheaper than at the same time a year ago. The trade has considered oranges very cheap this season and the quality very good. The quality of the late arrivals is holding up well.

Grape fruit is still offered at the same prices and there has been no let-up in the demand.

The banana market is a trifle easier than it has been for several weeks. The quotation here has been 4½c a pound for some time, but this week a quarter of a point was deducted. Stocks, at this price, seem to be ample.

Stocks of apples remain about the same as a week ago and there has been no change in prices.

"I do not believe there is a cranberry left in the country," said one commission man today, which means that the season for them is over without a doubt. Prices have been mounting for weeks, until at last they were quoted at $14 to $16 a barrel. For several weeks, that price has been maintained, while the trade stood at the bedside of the cranberry season. For more than a week, a cranberry has not been visible on the street, but quotations were kept up, the chance that a barrel or two might stroll into town. But none are available anywhere and the name has been scratched from the list, to remain off until the fall breezes blow for fair.

Evaporated peaches are now offered on the local market at $2.60 a box. They are said to be very fancy.

Cocoanuts, famed in coon song and story, are here, at 65 cents a dozen. Sacks are quoted at $4.50. Receipts so far have been fresh and very choice.

In the fresh vegetable line, Florida tomatoes are cheaper, quotations today being 50 cents a basket. They are the same tomatoes which a short time ago were selling at 70 cents a basket.

There is an easier tone to the butter market, expected as a result of warmer weather. Creamery prints are off about a point from last week and the rest of the market displays an easier undertone. In many localities, the hay season is over and the cows are grazing on green stuff. Creamery prints are 29 to 30 cents.

Eggs and cheese are unchanged.

In the meat market, beef and veal are up a half a cent to 1 cent.

Says Amended Theater Ordinance is Not Strict Enough.

It is understood that Mayor Haven will veto the amendments to the theater ordinance, which were adopted by the council at its regular meeting last Monday evening. He will call for amendments which are somewhat more strict, and will back up Building Inspector Kielley in the stand he has taken against the so-called looseness of the ordinance.

The amendments as adopted allow the operation of theaters with a seating capacity of less than 200 without forcing a strict compliance with the ordinances governing larger theaters. The first amendment was introduced by Alderman Foubister, and was designed to allow the operation of the Elco theater in West Duluth, which has a seating capacity of less than 200. It is claimed these small theaters cannot continue in business if forced to comply strictly with the ordinance governing larger buildings.

It is believed the West Duluth building in question is safe enough, but the amended ordinance would allow theaters to be started in buildings with practically no protection against fire. The Elco has rear and side exits, in addition to folding doors clear across the front of the building, but Mr. Kielley says under the amended ordinance any old box of a building, with no exit other than the front door, could be fitted up and used as a theater.

It is understood the mayor's recommendations to the council will contain provisions for exits in the rear and side of all buildings of this class, two water connections will have to be put in, with two hose each fifty feet in length. An asbestos curtain two feet wider than the stage will also be provided for.

EXPRESS CAR IS ROBBED

Pittsburg, May 1.—Two train robbers who evidently boarded the New York & St. Louis express on the Pan Handle railroad of the Pennsylvania system at the union station in this city when that train left at 10:05 last night, ten minutes late, overpowered the express messenger and got away with four bags of currency containing an amount of money as yet unknown. The robbery was committed near Walkers Station, a particularly lonely and isolated spot in a rough section of country about eleven miles west of the city. The train, one of the fastest on the road, which is not scheduled to stop between here and Steubenville, Ohio, was brought to a sudden halt by an emergency signal from the bell cord and when Conductor William Lafferty went forward to learn the trouble he found Adams Express Messenger N. Roshen, bound and gagged in the express car and so frightened that he could not give any connected report of what had happened. A brief report was telegraphed to the Pittsburg offices of the company from Rennersdale, the next telegraph office, and from Steubenville as full a report as possible was sent in by the conductor.

Except that both robbers were white, the express messenger is unable to give any description that would aid the secret service forces of the Pan Handle and Pennsylvania and county officers, all of whom have been called out to work on the case.

The express safe was open, according to information received here, as the messenger was making up bills for packages received from the local offices and the robbery was accomplished in a very few minutes. Persons standing on the station platform at Carnegie, a short distance from the place where the robbers left the train, report having seen the express messenger at work in his car and two men on the platform outside the car.

It is known that four bags, all sealed and containing money were taken from the car but nothing is known as to the amount of money contained in the bags. The train is one of the most important on the road and usually carries much currency and other express matter from New York as well as from intervening station to western points.

The robbery was one of the most daring that has ever been committed in this section. There is a dense woods near Walkers station where the robbers pulled the bell and left the train and it was into this woods that the robbers disappeared.

HOSPITAL A NECESSITY

New Health Commissioner Fighting for City Contagious Ward.

City Has Sufficient Money on Hand to Make Start.

"The need of a city hospital in Duluth, or at least a contagious ward conducted by the city, is becoming more apparent every day," said Health Commissioner Patton today. "We are doing all we can to keep the agitation going, and hope to get some tangible results soon. It is a burning shame that a city the size and importance of Duluth has no place in which to care for persons afflicted with contagious diseases other than smallpox.

"Here is a case that came to my attention yesterday. A man who is boarding with a family on Sixth avenue west came down with diphtheria. There is no room for him at the hospitals, the contagious ward at St. Mary's being full, and so we had to quarantine him in the house, where he has been boarding. This confines the woman of the house, and keeps five children out of school. The husband, who has none too much money, is compelled to board away from home, at an expense of $7 or $8 a week. He has been out of work nearly all winter, and the money now being spent for board is a real hardship.

"The need of a contagious ward is felt when we have to quarantine one or two families living on different floors of the same house. Supposing there is a case in the family on the first floor. We cannot very well put the quarantine sign inside the house, and if we put it on the outside the people living on the upper floor are still allowed to pass in and out of the building. Neighbors wonder at this, and the sight leads to carelessness on their own part in handling cases of diphtheria.

"The time will come when Duluth will have to have a city hospital for the care of all sorts of diseases, and she may just as well begin now with a contagious ward. There is $15,000 available for city hospital purposes. I believe this would be sufficient to start the contagious ward. There probably will be objections to the location of the ward, wherever it is put. There will be no grounds for these objections, for there is no danger of a contagion spreading from the building, no matter in what neighborhood it is put. Many other cities have contagious wards in the most thickly-populated portions of town, and no bad results have ever been felt from it."

OF INTEREST TO HOUSEHOLDERS

Washington, May 1.—The house committee on public lands ordered a favorable report yesterday on the senate bill, providing that where proofs offered in contention of homestead entries have heretofore been rejected, they shall be reinstated and confirmed if the entryman can show that he lived upon his land at least eight months out of the year prior to the submission of proofs.

SUSPECTS ARE TAKEN.

Capture of Alleged Stephen Bank Robbers Across the Line.

Emerson, Man., May 1.—Chief of Police Joseph Wilson and a posse of citizens, at noon, captured three armed men, believed to be the Hart bandit gang which looted the Scandia bank at Stephen, Marshall county, Minn., yesterday. The arrest was very spectacular. The chief and his men pulled their guns and forced the suspects to throw up their hands.

Two robbers entered the home of William Robertson, a farmer, on the edge of town, at 11 o'clock, and asked for food. They carried wicked regulation pump guns, loaded with buckshot. They threw up their hands when ordered, and showed no disposition to fight. They gave their names as Joseph Staggar and Homer Kaler, but refused to talk. They had $60 in American gold, a quantity of dynamite and many shells. A third man was captured in the railroad yards. They say they are land seekers.

Chief Wilson turned the suspects over to the Kittson county authorities and they are now in jail at St. Vincent.

The Canadian police are also on the track of the three others, who have left the railway for the shores of the Red river, between the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern.

YAQUIS MINE IT FOR HIM.

Ranchman's Thrilling Tale of Gold and Copper in Tampico.

Guthrie, Okla., May 1.—A story which reads like a yellow back "thriller" is told by Everett Roberts, a Ringwood ranchman, who returned home last week after two years' absence in the heart of Mexico, where he became the owner of a gold and copper mine, about eighty miles from Tampico bay, claimed to be producing ore of a very high grade.

"The story of how I learned of the location of this mineral sounds like a fairy tale," said Roberts. "Three friends of mine ventured down into the interior of Mexico about four years ago and, after many vicissitudes, they discovered this mine. After taking possession and securing several sacks of good ore for assaying purposes, they prepared to go to Tampico, but were attacked by Yaqui Indians. Two of the partners were killed outright, the third barely escaping with his life.

"The survivor narrated his adventures to me, and the result was that I went to Mexico. I searched the state of Tampico over for two years for the fabulous mines, and was becoming disheartened when I ran across both. I spent a month at the mines, leaving as many indications as possible that they belong to me, and then departed. En route to Tampico I was also attacked by the Yaquis, but after much parleying succeeded in gaining the friendship of this particular band. At present my mines are in charge of the Yaquis, who are unearthing the precious yellow and green metals for me at the rate of a peso a day."

RUNS AMUCK AT WEDDING.

Jilted Lover Kills Brother, the Bridegroom, and Wounds Bride.

Vienna, May 1.—The wedding of Cana Kerotivitch, a peasant girl, with a neighbor named Bajin Kojopelitch, at Ivanica, in Servia, a few days since, ended in a terrible tragedy. The bride became engaged a year ago to the bridegroom's brother, Milioze, just before he left home to do his military service. During his absence she transferred her affections to Banjin, and finally agreed to marry him.

Milyioze heard of his fiance's faithlessness, and the day before the wedding deserted from his regiment. He arrived at the church during the ceremony, pushed up to the front, and when he heard his brother and Cana say yes to the priest's questions, he drew a revolver and fired at both of them. Bajin was killed and the bride wounded. The murderer escaped.

GUILLOTINE STILL USED

Three Murderers in Germany Paid Penalty Under the Knife.

Performer Killed Before the Eyes of Five Thousand People.

Berlin, May 1.—The guillotine is still in use in Germany. On the evening of July 19 last, five Croat laborers asked for lodgings at an inn in the little hamlet of Durbusch, some miles east of Cologne. They spent the evening playing cards with the host and his wife, but when the former was lighting them to their rooms they set upo him and killed him. They then attacked the woman, who had retired to her room, and after a fierce struggle stabbed her to death. There remained yet another inmate of the house, an old woman of 86, who was butchered in her bed. The five miscreants then laid hands on everything of value they could find in the house and decamped. All were arrested and convicted. One committed suicide in his cell, and a second, who is at present under observation in a lunatic asylum, was reprieved and sentenced to penal servitude for life. The three others were decapitated. The executions were carried out with an old guillotine, dating from the time of the French administration on the Rhine. Two of the doomed men faced death without flinching, but the third had to be forced onto the bascule, and only the fall of the knife put an end to his screams of terror.

Performer Killed.

A French performer named Gadbin was killed here before the eyes of 5,000 spectators, while going through a daring performance known as the "death leap" at the Circus Busch. Gadbin's performance consisted of leaping from the roof 100 feet in height to an inclined smoothly planed wooden shaft. After landing on the shaft he slid down into a net at the bottom. The distance from the point where the leap began to the top of the inclined shaft was sixty feet in length. A successful performance of this feat necessitated leaping so skillfully to the shaft that the body should hit the shaft lightly and glide down the surface without severe shock. The hazardous nature of the performance was sufficiently indicated by the title given to it.

Gadbin himself understood thoroughly that the least deviation from the proper course through midair would inevitably result in his death.

He dived from the roof headlong, and poised his body while shooting through the air at such an angle that he alighted on the shaft at exactly the same angle at which the shaft was inclined, thereby sliding down without further resistance. He, however, failed to maintain this poise, and struck the upper end of the shaft with his chest. He turned a somersault and fell heavily to the ground. Death ensued shortly afterwards. Gadbin had performed his "death leap" 483 times without a mishap.

Great Trade Journey.

Ninety of Berlin's leading merchants and manufacturers have started on a great trade journey through the Balkans, European Turkey, Asia Minor and Greece. The first stage of their pilgrimage was reached when they arrived at Vienna and were ceremoniously greeted by the leaders of the Austrian official and business world. The party's itinerary includes Budapest, Belgrade, Sofia, Constantinople, Athens and Corfu. Exhaustive investigations will be made everywhere regarding the possibilities of fresh openings for German trade.

Apology in Reichstag.

Privy Councillor Paasche, vice president of the imperial legislature, formally apologized in the reichstag the other day for an attack he made on the war minister during the first reading of the military estimates. Referring to the "Zukunft" revelations, he had declared that the military authorities were endeavoring to shield officers of noble birth from the consequence of their perverse crimes. As Herr Paasche happens to be a major of the Landwehr, the minister of war exercised his military authority to exact a humiliating retraction from him.

Innocence Proved.

Rose Knopfel, who has been in a reformatory at Magdeburg for five years for setting fire to a farm, is proved to be innocent. A farm laborer has confessed on his deathbed that his only son, then a boy of 7, set the farm on fire at his instigation.

MULE'S TAIL A LIFE-SAVER.

Whisked Driver From Sure Death on Railroad Track.

Columbus, Ohio, May 1.—Many a man has been killed by seizing a mule by the tail, but Harry McAleert, a fruit wagon driver, saved his life by such action yesterday. His wagon was struck by an interurban train, and he would have been crushed under the wheels if he had not grasped and hung on to the tail of one of the mules he was driving.

"Maude," freed from the wagon by the shock, ran away, and the driver was dragged from the track.

SAYS FORESTS WILL LAST.

Scotch Lumberman Discredits Belief That Wood Supply is Failing.

Glasgow, May 1.—Addressing the Scottish Sawmill Operatives' and Woodcutting Machinemen's society in Dundee, Peter Sime, wood merchant of Dundee, said he did not agree with Lewis Miller of Crieff regarding the possibility of the world's timber supply being exhausted in a few years. He was agreed on the enormous yearly quantity of wood consumed, and he also agreed with the annual increase of that consumption, but he could not think they were so near the end of the supply. For certain classes of wood the supply was quite equal to the demand, and though the supply got short in fifty years, the shortage would only refer to countries from which we at present imported wood. The untapped forests of Siberia would almost supply the wants of Europe for 100 years, and there were boundless forests on the west coast of North America, in Canada, Central Africa and other distant countries. Accordingly he was not a bit afraid of the supply of wood getting exhausted.

with cream or milk just before going to bed and see how peacefully you sleep. It means stomach comfort. That means tranquil nerves. That means sound, refreshing sleep. The strengthening elements in the whole wheat combined with the soothing tonic of pure barley-malt.

"FORCE" is made of the best white wheat, steam-cooked, rolled into thin flakes, combined with the purest barley-malt and baked. Always "crisp" it before serving it by pouring into a pan and warming it in oven. Then serve in large dish with cream, piling the flakes in one side of the dish and pouring the cream in the other side, dipping the flakes as eaten.

LOVE AND REPROOF

Mingled in Professor Hazelton's Letter, Describing His Woes.

Says Emphatically Life With Her Would Mean Suicide.

Detroit, Mich., May 1.—The Hazelton divorce case has been closed and Judge Hosmer has reserved his decision. The indications are that, whichever way it goes, the decision will be appealed to the supreme court. Just before the closing of his testimony in rebuttal, Prof. Hazelton made a strong statement as to how utterly useless is talk of reconciliation between himself and wife.

"What are your views regarding a reconciliation?" he was asked by his attorney.

"My views are that it is absolutely impossible. It can never occur. I can never again live under the same roof with her. It would be absolute suicide for me in both mind and body. One year of life with her would either send me to the asylum or to the grave. I say this after careful consideration, and people who have seen much of our home life will say the same."

"What is your attitude towards your child?"

"I love it, the same as any father must; but as I would have nothing to do with Mrs. Hazelton I have been unable to see it until it was brought into court. I want my child given a proper education and training and I ask the court to permit me to see it at proper times. I wish to teach it to know and love me."

"Do you favor divorce?"

"Not any more than Mrs. Hazelton does, but the conditions in our lives have made it necessary. My spirit has been broken and I am sick of the notoriety that has attended this case. I intend to leave this part of the country and perhaps the United States to escape the shame of it as soon as this is over."

Denies He Was Selfish.

All through her testimony Mrs. Hazelton has insisted that her husband was selfish in their married life and gave incidents to uphold her claim.

"I have heard her testimony that I was selfish," said Hazelton, "and I had to endure that complaint from her all during our married life. I do not now understand, any more than you or the court do, just what she means. I have never been able to understand it. She constantly reproached and abused me because she said I was selfish, but yet I gave her everything she wanted, no matter whether I could afford it or not, and I even carried $8,000 life insurance for her."

"Mr. Hazelton, when you married your wife did you really and honorably love her?"

"I doubt whether a man ever loved a woman more than I loved her when I married her."

"She has testified that on one occasion you called her a liar, whelp and slimy soul."

"As for slimy soul I never heard the expression until I heard it from her on the witness stand. As to the other words, I never called her that."

"It has also been testified to by her that in the fall of 1905 you made a certain remark of her. Did you make that remark?"

"I certainly did not."

He was asked about his attitude toward children.

"My letter, which was read, shows what my attitude was. It was my attitude then, now and always."

Letter Describing His Woes.

Among the letters submitted in evidence from Hazelton to his wife, was the following:

"Milwaukee, Aug. 16, 1905.—My Own Dear Mate: Your good letter has just come and will answer immediately. Indeed, I have needed a cheering up all summer, and as you say that is the most that ailed me for a while, though I am very far down now physically. Last Friday I experienced an almost complete change of heart. It was the result of weeks of despair and hoplessness and wishing to die.

"But I can tell it to you in a word. I am entirely in the hands of my loving Heavenly Father. He is the one who put me where I am, as to home, debts, work, wife, health. I shall do naught but the best I can in my relations to all these. I am entirely reconciled to my life, and hope to be able to keep silent and smile at the rough spots to come.

Outlines Her Faults.

"Now, I'm going to tell you very briefly what my troubles and sorrow and grievance has been. I am saying it lovingly and prayerfully, in the hope that you will really admit its truth, confess your error and promise to work away from it. Remember, now, I'm in God's hands and in His spirit this moment I speak. You are almost insane, certainly utterly unnatural, in the way and the length to which you depreciate your husband and appreciate others. You will not see this now, but you just keep it in mind constantly and try to be the opposite towards me, and see whether, after my love has had time to grow again, you will ever have occasion to say such bitter things of it as you said in this last letter, and as you have intimated in every letter this summer.

"Stop Trying to Reform Me."

"No normal woman should constantly, by what she says and omits to say, force on her husband the idea that she thinks him an unworthy brute. That would completely crush any man's love. If you want to be loved, look at my good side, throw away completely your crazy ideas about my having to be reformed, be loving, do not withhold the word or act of sympathy; in short, give me a chance to be sweet and become the noble man that I would be and that God intended. I give you fair warning now that until you convince me by your life (words can now never do it alone) that you really think me a good man and worthy of yourself, I shall simply be suffering and dying by inches, no matter how I may seem and bear myself. I have shortened my life more this summer because of this grief from depreciation than two years of hard work could do it.

"In regard to the teaching, I don't want to decide it. If you really love me with anything more than words occasionally and now and then a few caresses; if you respect and esteem me as a fairly good and clever man; if you will live that respect and esteem me as a fairly good and clever man; if you can be content with the humble home and inconveniences you must suffer, if you care to have me live several years yet, you will never decide to leave me because of my shortcomings. On the other hand, if you do not fulfill the above conditions (and I have become convinced during this summer and the past two years pretty thoroughly you do not fulfill them) then you will leave me and teach, and it will be better for both.

"Been Murdering Me."

"You have certainly been murdering me this summer by your insistent depreciation of me. This must not go on unless you expect to weep over my grave in a very few years, and to keep me at my worst meanwhile, though I feel now in my new strength from my Father that I could withstand and endure all things. By all means do not leave me if you really love and esteem me, but come back to me and convince me of these two things and make me happy, giving me a new lease of life. You alone know your heart and mind, and you must decide.

"In case you decide not to teach, we must select our furniture soon and return the catalogues to my cousin. I shall send you one. Will check all those from which I think we should choose. Don't you think for the parlor I had better get a couple of mahogany chairs? Have chosen a quaint desk chair made of mahogany with woven reed seat for you to use at the piano ($4.50) and a quaint rocker, colonial. Be sure to tell me whether you think it best to put some cushioned oak chairs in the parlor or finish it with the mahogany.

"Good-by, dear heart; God bless you. He has been doing it greatly so far. Hope we'll get everything straightened out now and begin to gain. I hope for the best next year, and I can do my part to get it, as I think you also can. Your loving mate,

"BILLIE."

MEETING OF THE SCHOOL BOARD

A Number of Reports Will be Heard by Directors.

The board of education will hold its regular monthly meeting in the Central high school, this evening.

Bids for the construction of the foundation of the new Horace Mann school, at Twenty-third avenue west tnd Tenth street, will be opened and the contract awarded, and the committee on buildings will likely be instructed to secure bids at once for the erection of the building proper.

The board will make every effort to have the new Horace Mann building ready for occupancy by the opening of the fall term of school, as it is very loath to have the structure used any more for school purposes.

The special investigating committee will probably make its final report this evening, and the board will determine upon what repairs should be done during the summer vacation.

The committee which made the trip to Menominee, Wis., to inspect the Stout training schools, will make a report, and make some recommendations to the board as to the needs of the Duluth Industrial high school at West Duluth.

Considerable routine business will probably be transacted.

MOVING DAY IN DULUTH

Vans Are Busy Under a Rather Murky Sky.

New Leases of Flats and Houses Begin Today.

The first of May is moving day.

So it has been since time immemorial, it seems. At any rate, it has obtained ever since "flats" and "apartments" were thought of, and it bids fair to go down to posterity as the time to change your dwelling place. The first of May is the time to change your place of living just as the first of January is the time to change your mode of living.

Flying squadrons of moving vans were on the job early this morning and things are topsy turvy in many a flat this afternoon. The weather was fairly favorable. Threatening clouds obscured the sky and the town seemed menaced by a snow storm at different times during the day, but it would later clear up a little and look more cheerful.

Moving day does not find many vacant flats or dwellings. Where families are moving out of one place, others are moving in, sometimes meeting on the steps in a grand collision of center tables and bedsteads.

For days the moving van companies have been booking orders for May time. They are kings of the May, all right.

Many people are giving up their town houses for cottages on the Point, although it is still a little early for camping.

Have You a Cravenette?

STEAMSHIPS COLLIDE.

German Liner Takes Off 820 Passengers From the Koeln.

Bremen, May 1.—The North German Lloyd steamer Koeln, which left here yesterday for Baltimore and Galveston was in collision in a thick fog last evening with the Hamburg tank steamer Emperor Nicholas II, nine miles off Norderney. The Emperor Nicholas II struck the Koeln amidship. The steamer Feldmarschall, a German East African liner, responded to signals and took off 820 passengers from the Koeln. One child was drowned during the transfer.

The Feldmarschall took the Koeln in tow and brought her into Bremerhaven, arriving this morning. The Koeln carried only second class and steerage passengers.

The Emperor Nicholas II had her bows stove in and was otherwise seriously damaged. Her hold is partly filled with water. A tug has been dispatched to her assistance.

HORSE THIEF WORKING IN SASKATCHEWAN.

Winnipeg, Man., May 1.—Dutch Henry, who, it is alleged, is a horse thief, and whose real name is Henry Yeo, is again operating among ranches of Southern Saskatchewan, and a detachment of mounted police has been sent on his trail from Regina barracks. During the last few weeks 178 horses were stolen in the Wood mountain district. Ranchers are preparing to move out unless relief is given. A few years ago a gang of horse thieves infested Wood mountain district and carried off stock from many ranches. In this gang was famous Henry Yoe, the terror of ranching industry. At present he has a price on his head on the American side of the line, and is wanted in connection with with many robberies on this side of the border.

A STUNNING SURPRISE.

Congressman George W. Taylor was talking in Demopolis, Ala., about the hard times.

"Hard times are bound to be full of unpleasant shocks and stunning surprises," he said. "I remember the last panic and a sermon that a Mobile pastor preached.

The pastor, in a powerful discourse, urged economy and retrenchment on his congregation. In view of the hard times there should be no extravagance, no useless expenditure, he said, but every outgo ought to be pared down. His strong sermon had a swift and unexpected effect. The congregation, before dispersing, held a church meeting and unanimously reduced the man's salary from $2000 to $1500."

ON THE IRON RANGES

SCHRIEBER HELD; MURDER CHARGED

Ashawa Man Arrested for Forgery, Faces More Serious Accusation.

Virginia, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Schreiber, the Ashawa homesteader, who was arrested on the charge of forging the name of the late Frank Massapust, a neighbor, to a certificate of deposit on a local bank, as foreseated in these dispatches, now faces a more serious charge. He was arraigned before Judge Carey last evening instead of this morning, as was expected and called upon to answer to the charge of murder. It being claimed his connection with the cremation of Massapust when the latter's cabin burned last February and the possession of a certificate of deposit belonging to the latter were very incriminating allegations. Through his attorney John Martin, Schreiber waived a hearing on the charge of murder and was held to the grand jury without bonds. He was taken to Duluth today.

William Lamrant, residing several miles from Washburn, Wis., with whom Schreiber is said to have negotiated for the purchase of some land, and it is alleged gave his name as Frank Massapust, arrived in the city yesterday and identified Schreiber as the man with whom he talked regarding the purchase of the property.

Deputy Coroner J. H. Crowe of Virginia has been working on the case for several weeks, suspecting that there had been foul play in connection with the death of Massapust.

LATHROP MUST EXPLAIN.

Big Fork Man Alleged to Have Appropriated Another's Coin.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Luther Lathrop of Big Fork, formerly a bartender here, is out on $50 bonds awaiting the action of the June grand jury on the charge of grand larceny in the first degree.

It is alleged that Mrs. Lander Larson of Big Fork on March 28 gave Lathrop, who was going to Deer River, a check for several hundred dollars drawn on a bank at Kakota, Minn., to deposit to her credit in the First State bank of Deer River. It is claimed that Lathrop presented the check at the Deer River bank, but wanted the cash for it. Cashier Moran said he would have to take two or three days in which to investigate the validity of the check before he could pay it. This was not satisfactory to Lathrop and he went to Duluth where he succeeded in getting the check cashed. Then he got married and in a few days returned to Grand Rapids where he deposited $590 in the First National bank in his own name, taking a certificate of deposit from the cashier. It seems that Mrs. Larson learned that the $700 was not on deposit in Deer River to her credit and she and her husband came to Grand Rapids to investigate. The arrest of Lathrop followed. He had drawn $100 of the $590 deposited here and had in his possession a cashier's deposit check for $590, and some change. The check is now in the possession of Sheriff Hoolihan.

BIG CLASS INITIATED.

Forty New Red Men Turned Out at Grand Rapids This Week.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Things were certainly doing in Red Men circles in Grand Rapids this week as the largest class ever taken into a fraternal order here was put through the work, by Drumbeator Tribe No. 35 Monday night at Odd Fellows hall. Sixty-five applications were considered, and of that number about forty were present for initation into the secrets of the order. Organizer Joseph Herbst of Brainerd had been soliciting membership to the order for two or three weeks and reviving interest among old members and the result of his efforts were apparent at the Monday night meeting. J. S. Konkle, editor of the Clarion-Leader of Superior; J. M. Elchten, Oscar Ahlgren, Alexander Eigemuller and G. B. Rosenberger, composed a team from a Superior tribe that was present to give the floor and ritual work of the initiation ceremonies and that they did the work to perfection was the declaration of every member present.

VIRGINIA'S BALL TEAM IS READY FOR GAMES.

Virginia, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Virginia baseball aggregation is fully organized and ready for the games here May 7, 8, and 9 with the Duluth White Sox. The new members of the nine are: James J. Cox, Rockford, Ill.; Harold O. Hayes, Roxey Walters, M. Shaub and M. Hartig, Pond du Lac, Wis.; Charles Stewart, Chicago, and Mike Miles, Toronto. The members of last year's team who will play with Virginia this season are Fred Olmstead Charles McCormick (Billy Bounce), Owen Taylor, Capt. Wick Tredway and William Karkeed.

CONCERT SUCCESS.

Hibbing, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Presbyterian church was crowded last evening at the testimonial concert given for Miss Bardessonno, vocalist, and Miss Ruth Bates, pianist, both prominent musicians of this city. The concert was in charge of Mrs. Louis McPike.

AURORA TEACHER RESIGNS.

She Gives No Reasons for Action—Other School News.

Aurora, Minn., May 1.—Miss Phoebe Jane Gray, who has been teaching for nearly two years in the Aurora school, has resigned and gone to Anandale, Minn., where she will visit for some time with her sister, Mrs. A. L. Schaum. The reason for her resignation is not known.

State Inspector of Grade Schools S. A. Challman of Minneapolis was in Aurora on Monday to make an official visit to the school. Application was made to him last October for state aid and a place on the list with the state graded schools. The aid amounts to $550 annually.

Mr. Challman, while he did not approve of everything that he saw here, observed many good points in connection with the school and said that it will be placed on the list this year.

He heartily approved of the action which the school board has taken on the subject of manual training and domestic science, but fears there will be a difficulty in securing a teacher who is able to handle both kinds of work.

Thirty volumes of the reports of the United States commissioner of education, including all volumes from 1891-1906, were received at the school this week from the department of the interior at Washington. These books are valuable to the school, notwithstanding the fact that their cost was only 2 cents.

A new filing cabinet was received from Chamberlain & Taylor of Duluth last week. The cabinet consists of seven sections, thirty-one inches long and seventeen inches deep.

LOG LOADER KILLED.

John Nelson Fatally Injured Working at Highland.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Nelson, employed in an extra gang loading ties at Highland, was so badly injured Tuesday by being caught between a car and some ties that he died a few minutes after reaching the hospital here. Several ribs were broken and internal injuries were suffered.

HILL PLEADS GUILTY.

Gets Ninety Days in Jail for Third Degree Assault.

Aurora, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Hill, who made a vicious attack upon a man named Aylio, stabbing the latter in the neck during a drunken row three weeks ago, pleaded guilty to assault in the third degree yesterday before Judge Adamson and was fined $100. In default of that amount he was returned to the county jail at Duluth for ninety days. Aylio came near dying and the case was postponed until he could appear as a witness. The evidence developing that there was some degree of provocation Assistant County Attorney Poirer consented to a plea of guilty to a minor charge.

POSTMASTER CONFIRMED.

J. F. McDavid Will Soon Begin Selling Stamps in Chisholm.

Chisholm, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The appointment of J. F. McDavid to the position of postmaster here having been confirmed the appointee has furnished his bonds, the transfer is being made and he will assume his new duties very soon.

The ball team of Chisholm will give a dance in the town hall this evening. Every arrangement has been made to make it the event of the season. The committee on arrangements are: Judge Freeman, J. C. Sullivan and Herman Tetzlaff. Committee on reception, Cole Monroe, E. La Franc and Lee Rell.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY FAIR TO BE FINE THIS YEAR.

Hibbing, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Little doubt exists that the St. Louis county fair here this year will exceed any former efforts in that line. If the weather permits—the last fair having been more or less marred by the unpropitious weather—this year's fair will be the greatest ever. At the meeting of the fair association held here yesterday a reorganization was effected and plans mad for making a greater exhibit than ever of the resources of St. Louis county. A. B. Hostetter, superintendent of the agricultural department of the Duluth Commercial club was present and the club accepted his co-operation in making the fair a success.

A plan proposed by him is the setting aside of a portion of the fair grounds as a sort of experimental station, and the society has given Mr. Hostetter ten acres for this purpose. This tract will be located inside the race track, where it will be convenient for all who attend the fair. It will be placed under cultivation at once and should prove a unique exhibit at the fair.

While the racing feature of the fair will not be neglected, a determined effort will be made to make the agricultural exhibits the principal feature of the fair.

ABOUT RAISING SMALL FRUITS

How Their Culture is Very Well Adapted to This Section.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.—"Most of the small fruits grow wild in Northeastern Minnesota, which is the strongest evidence of their adaptability to cultivation in this section," says Supt. A. J. McGuire of the Northeast experimental farm in a bulletin just issued.

"The small fruits grown on the experiment farm are the strawberry, raspberry, currant, gooseberry, blackberry, buffalo berry, high bush cranberry and plum. Of these, the strawberry, raspberry and currant have proved most profitable in a commercial way, and the growing of these may be strongly recommended in this section of the state from a business standpoint. For home use all the above fruit may be profitably grown.

Strawberries do best when set out in the spring. Plant in rows three feet apart and two feet apart in the row. Frequent cultivation is required the first season. What blossoms appear should be picked off, as fruit the first year weakens the plant. The runners should be kept in the row where they will form new plants.

"It is recommended to cover the bed with straw or hay sometime during the winter when the ground is frozen and covered with snow. The purpose of this is to keep the plants from blossoming in the spring till the danger of frost is past. The straw should be removed as soon as the frost is out of the ground. It may be left between the rows as a mulch. The best results on the experiment farm, however, have been obtained when the straw has been removed entirely and the plants cultivated up to the time the berries are ready to pick. Several varieties of strawberries have done nearly equally well, among which are the Senator Dunlop, Splendid, Lovett, Clyde, Brandywine and Budwood.

"Strawberries grown in Northeastern Minnesota won practically all the prizes at the St. Louis exposition.

"Raspberries when set out are permanent, and do not require resetting, as do the strawberries. The canes, however, die after fruiting, and have to be cut out, and the young canes that come up every year need to be laid down in the fall and covered with earth, to insure against winter killing. They blossom later in the spring than the strawberry, and are seldom endangered by frost. The red varieties do best in this section of the state, and of these the London, King and Marlboro have given best results."

BIG FOUR-MASTED SHIP DRIVEN ASHORE

but the vessel lay far beyond the reach of the Lyle gun used by the life-saving crews to throw a line to a wrecked vessel. Ineffectual efforts were made by the life savers to launch their boat in a terrific sea, and when the attempt was abandoned the life-saving patrols burned Coston signals through the night to assure the seamen that help would come as soon as possible.

Has 117,000 Cases of Oil.

The Rickmers was loaded with 117,000 cases of oil from the Standard Oil company, worth $80,000. The vessel is valued at $60,000. She carried a crew of thirty or thirty-five men.

Before daybreak the gale veered to the northwest, blowing diagonally off shore, the sails of the big ship were set again in the hope that the wind would drive her off shore as the tide rose. Signals of distress were flying in her rigging and with the smoothing of the sea the life savers again essayed to reach the vessel, but without success for several hours.

A revenue cutter and a wrecking tug were sent from New York to Zach's Inlet and this forenoon the tug was seen standing by the ship, but apparently unable to render any assistance as the wind and sea were still too high.

It is believed that the crew of the ship are in no danger at present.

respects to the press, his remarks in that connection being as follows:

Pays Respects to the Liars.

"Let the scavengers of plutocracy howl; truth, God's living truth, where are its defenders? Miserable travesties upon noble manhood, post graduates in all arts of slander or defamation, I challenge the subsidized press; the people know your designs and spurn your pretense, whether under the show of argument or more subservient hypocrisies. Go! damnable imps of pelf and greed, I defy your taunts! Tear to fragments my political career if it comport with your execrable will, stifle and distort by every utterance. Not satisfied, if such be your brutal frenzy, lash my poor form into insensibility. Then, if it be your further pleasure, gnaw from my stiffening bones every vestige of quivering flesh. Howl in wretched bestiality through my own innocent blood as it drips from your fiendish visages. Drag then, if you wish, what remains in filth and the vermin of your foul dens and burn it upon the altar of Baal or scatter it before friendly winds of heaven to your betters—the carrion crows of the field. All that they may do, all and more, if there yet be open further depth of infamy to a polluted, besotten press. These ready servants of greed, what have they not done or attempted, to fasten still more securely an autocracy upon us? It seems to be their special function, not simply to pervert truth, but to threaten and terrorize public men. Dare a senator align himself with the people? What? Yes. Men, illustrious servants of the people, have lifted honest voices here and elsewhere against the march of plutocracy, to fall ambushed, politically assassinated, and by whom? By the trusts wearing masks. Ah, sir; newspaper masks. But, Mr. President, insignificant as am I, if my political career be cant as am I, if my political career be marked; let them sharpen their blade, for I will be here at the appointed hour and, while here, only God can stay my voice in behalf of organized united labor and the yeomanry of America."

shore. Turpin appeared very angry because the men would not permit him to commit suicide.

Shortly after 6 o'clock he returned to the canal and again jumped in. Another attempt to reach the man was made by the two men, but the dog attacked each one and bit McCord on the neck. Once more Turpin was rescued and the men telephoned for a policeman.

Third Attempt Successful.

Before he arrived, however, Turpin, with the assistance of his faithful dog, got away from his rescuers and made a third and success attempt to end his life. Turpin ran to the canal, yelling "Good-bye" and jumped in. Once more the men followed, but the dog, more vicious than ever, chased one after the other from the edge of the water. One of the men succeeded in passing the dog and jumped into the stream, but the dog followed and attacked him. After spending some minutes trying to pass the dog and get into the stream, an officer arrived, and by shooting at the animal scared him from the canal. The rescuers succeeded in dragging Turpin to shore after considerable time spent diving for the body, but the man was dead.

Turpin was the son of James P. Turpin, who committed suicide ten years ago.

attracted to the express car by the signal, and found Roshon helpless.

It is learned that three bags were rifled by the men who entered the car. Roshon the express messenger, has made his home here for some time. This is the end of his run and he came through with his train on the trip. He was taken in charge by the local management of the Adams Express company when he arrived here and is being questioned. There are some features of his story which the officers are not satisfied with.

Conductor Lafferty says he knew nothing about the robbery until he heard the signal to stop, which came from the express car. He saw no one leave the train, but hurried to the express car as soon as the slow down began.

The contents of the bags were scattered about and he found Roshon lying on the floor, bound and entirely helpless. The messenger was released at once, and proceeded to tell the story that he repeated after his arrival here, and to which he has since held.

DEMAND IS NOT HEAVY.

Foreign Laborers Not Expected to Pour in This Summer.

The number of foreign laborers who will land on the shores of the United States, via Duluth, this season is expected by W. H. Dean, immigration inspector, to be greatly under last years figures.

The demand for unskilled labor is not keen and those foreigners who are now lingering here, are sending discouraging reports back across the pond. When the depression began in the fall, many laborers left for Europe, intending to return this spring. But the chances are that they, with the new ones who were planning to come this year, will stay home for another year.

REPUBLICANS IN SESSION.

Svea Club Discusses Aims and Principles of the Party.

The Svea Republican club held a meeting last evening in Sloan's hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street, when the aims of the organization and the principles of the Republican party were dicussed by the members.

The club will take a stand of uncompromising Republicanism and will do its level best to boost the party among the Swedish people of the county, as well as others.

At the next meeting, which will be held soon in the same hall, the topic will be "Roosevelt's Republicanism."

CHURCH IS THE MECCA

Tremendous Hold of Religion on the Russian People.

For Their Faith They Will Do and Dare Anything.

Warsaw, May 1.—"If there should appear in Russia a man who can arouse the religious enthusiasm of the populace in behalf of freedom, he would start a movement that would sweep everything before it."

Such was the observation made to me by an unusually shrewd observer after a recent visit to Czenstochowa, the Mecca of Poland. Nowhere else can one obtain such a comprehensive understanding of the tremendous hold which religion has on the Russian people. Ignorant, apathetic and steeped in superstition, though they are, Czenstochowa attests to the world that there is a deep, abiding something in them which responds to religion with a fervor that nothing else can arouse. For their faith—I am speaking of the masses—they will do and dare anything, while the specious promises of the Socialists of a speedy material millennium leave them unmoved.

Famous as Rome.

Situated just outside a dirty little manufacturing town, where Jews make toys for the whole of the Russian empire, the monastery and the church attached to it are as famous in Eastern Europe as the city of Rome itself. In Poland's better days it was a fortress as well and sustained sieges in the face of Russians, Swedes and Germans. Once an abbot, with a handful of men and monks, defended it against a big Swedish army.

But this belongs to its past glory. Today Czenstochowa is known to every Catholic peasant in Poland, Russia, Servia, Roumania and Bulgaria as the great Mecca which all who would be saved must visit. It has been so for centuries and has, therefore, become as much a part of their lives as the soil they till and the rivers they fish in. Every peasant, man or woman, must visit it once in a lifetime. If not, their souls would be in danger. A little seamstress, who has spent fifty weeks of the year stitching in a stuffy workroom, will devote the remaining fortnight and her year's savings to a pilgrimage to Czenstochowa. She will not go in a train if she can possibly help it, for the spiritual cure would be but half effected unless her feet were swollen with walking and her face blistered by exposure to the weather. Those who use the railway are looked down upon by the "tramps" with a pitying contempt.

So great is the spell of this Mecca that hundreds of thousands of people suffering from various ailments yearly make a pilgrimage to Czenstochowa, firm in the faith that they will be cured. When a child is ill the parents —not only peasants, but aristocratic ones as well—will often make a vow that, if the child recovers it shall make a pilgrimage on foot to Czenstochowa. And the vow is invariably kept if recovery takes place. Those who can possibly afford it complete the fulfillment of the vow by depositing in the shrine some article of gold or silver, that in some way symbolizes their malady. For instance, a person who has had a diseased leg will offer a model of a leg in miniature to the Czenstochowa church; if an arm has been the cause of the trouble an arm is offered—a hand for a hand, and so forth. A heart is offered by those who have recovered from various illnessses, as a sign of gratitude. These offerings are placed round the different altars in the church. Those who cannot afford such things give small sums of money. These offerings mean, for the majority of the pilgrims, the savings of several years.

Go Afoot and Sleep Out of Doors.

The pilgrimage itself generally costs but little, as the vast majority of the pilgrims carry bread and barley on their backs and sleep in the fields and forests on the way; or if they are lucky, in some empty barn or granary. A "company" of pilgrims consists of any number between 200 and 10,000. The usual way is for the pilgrims from several villages to meet in some large town and march together to their Mecca. They carry banners from their parish churches, pictures of saints and other prized relics. The priests march with them and choristers carry bells with which to announce the beginning of the chant. The effect of this multicolored crowd, the women in dresses of orange, green and red, the men in their long, white coats and colored belts, a priest here and there in sombre soutani, is impressive enough; and when their thousands of voices take up the melody given by one of them, the forests and fields resound with their music. People cease work to listen and pray, and often the sceptical observer, who acknowledges no religion himself, bows his head in silent admiration of the faith that makes sore-footed, under-fed humanity tramp for miles and endure all manner of hardships to pray to a picture of a woman's face, painted on a piece of wood.

For to the faithful the greatest attraction of this Mecca is a picture of the Virgin, and the crowds who prostrate themselves before it, shade their eyes and dare scarcely look upon its glory. Nothing is stranger than the scenes daily enacted before this picture, centuries old, swarthy with the swarthiness of Eastern art, and of origin that is wrapped in strange mystery and stranger tradition. Two scars mar the Virgin's right cheek and were given by the vandal hordes who stole it once and only gave it up after a bloody war. It has three robes, which are fastened over the form of the Virgin and Child. One is composed of pearls, the second of diamonds and the third of rubies. The objects on the altar around it are of gold and silver, offerings of the devout who vie with each other to have their gifts put in this favored place. The altar itself is of silver, so are the figures at the top, which are life size.

Terribly in Earnest.

The sight of these people would be ridiculous were they not so in earnest. They throw themselves upon the ground; they beat their heads on it; they kiss the stones under them, groaning, sighing, hands in an agony of fanaticism, entreating the Blessed Mother of God of Czenstochowa to give them the things they most crave for—health, or happiness, prosperity, children or forgiveness. Many burst into tears of joy when they see the object of their pilgrimage. The thirst and hunger and heat of it are forgotten. Lame men and women, carried to the chapel, forget their infirmities and bend their knees, declaring that they are cured. Others, with arms that were useless with paralysis an hour ago, stretch them out to the Virgin and vow to dedicate their lives to her for the cure she has given them. Blind eyes, sprinkled with the holy water of the chapel, look and see the glorious image. If any proof were needed of the efficacy of faith as a cure for human ills it can be seen at Czenstochowa. Many of these victims of superstition—as most cultured Westerners would regard them—return to their homes free from the infirmities they brought with them. It shows perhaps that many of the ills of humanity are the result of imagination and can be cured by the same means.

Don't Purge the Bowels—Do as Nature Does

Nature gets her laxatives from food.

If you ate plenty of fruit, coarse food and green vegetables, you would get laxative enough.

But you eat fine food, and too much of it. And you exercise too little.

So it is vital that you help the bowels in another way.

But don't use salts or pill cathartics. Never employ harsh physic.

Nature does all things gently. Give her gentle help.

Cascarets are vegetable. They have just the same effect as a laxative food.

They never gripe, so you know they don't irritate.

They act in Nature's way. Yet they are just as effective as violence.

While harsh physic ruins the stomach, Cascarets aid digestion.

While harsh physic callouses the bowels, Cascarets restore the natural functions.

Every effect is curative.

Those who are well informed about laxatives employ only Cascarets.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

TOMLINSON'S EXPERIENCES

Tells Why New Boat is Named William Livingstone.

Detroit, Mich., May 1.—There's a reason beyond the fact that William Livingstone heads the association of lake vesselmen, why one member, G. Ashley Tomlinson, asked that he be the one to honor the popular president by affixing his name to a big ore carrier.

Tomlinson came to Detroit after serving as a cowboy in Wyoming, a boy of 18, and it was William Livingstone, as managing editor of a local paper, who gave him a job at $6 per week.

Since then G. Ashley Tomlinson has engaged in a number of professions, newspaper reporter, back to bdonco-busting, opera singer and finally vessel broker and manager of a fleet among the big ones of the lakes. He still likes to tell of how he "faked his way" into the favor of the man whom vesselmen lovingly know as "Sailor Bill."

"I don't know just why Mr. Livingstone took me on," he said. "That he didn't view me very highly on the start is evidenced by my salary of $6 per week. A lucky idea was responsible for my first boost.

"The grand jury was sitting on an important boodle case. The public was crazy for news from behind the closed doors, and I conceived the idea of secreting myself under the rostrum. I got in all right, and for two weeks lay in my corner every day, making full report of the testimony and watching everything that went on through a crack in the flooring. Each night I crawled forth and wrote my story for the following day's paper. The authorities tried hard, but never discovered the source of the leak. Incidentally my reputation was made with William Livingstone.

"I was somewhat swelled up over my first success and began to neglect my work, until one day I got a call to the office. 'You'll have to brace up. You haven't turned in a decent story in weeks,' said the managing editor, and I knew that again it was up to me. Mr. Livingstone did not know for years afterward that the wonderful story I landed was a fake through and through.

"At that time there were two crooks, Big Foot Mangham and Coveo, both wanted by the Detroit authorities for sensational burglaries, and both members of the famous Considine gang. I happened to know that they were in hiding in Toledo.

"The yarn ran that the two hunted criminals had come to Windsor for an evening's blowout. They had fallen in with two other men, and all four had started to cross the Detroit river in a rowboat. The two Toledo crooks never reached the American side, and it was supposed they were done away with by their companions. The story was copied far and wide by other papers. The Detroit police were aroused to action. Neither of the supposed murdered men could be located alive. The friends who knew their whereabouts did not dare tell. The river was dragged four times, the papers printed story after story on the mystery, until finally it died out from failure of substantiation.

"Stuttering Charley,' the then famous press agent of Forepaugh's circus, was responsible for the second fake that I pulled off on Mr. Livingstone which won me undeserved praise.

"I met 'Stuttering Charley' in the Russell house one Sunday night, previous to an engagement of the show in Detroit. Charley was blue. He hadn't been able to stir up anything worth while to advertise his show for weeks and I was equally in need of a good story, so we got our heads together.

"Charley was telling me about the big elephant, Bolliver, which had suddenly grown ferocious, and to which, in the hope of taming, its keeper was refusing food and water. That story gave one of us the idea and gradually we developed the plot.

"The morning the circus train pulled into Brush street station it was raining, pat for our purpose, and the yard was practically deserted. The persons, there of necessity, outside of the circus employes, were bribed in advance.

"The plot was simple. The giant Bolliver, deprived of food and water, broke from the car as the train came to a standstill and, attracted by the smell of water, rushed toward the river front. In the darkness he plunged off the dock into the river. The task of getting him out was, of course, a fearful one. Finally a derrick was secured and he was landed safely in his car. The derrick was there, too, for the other reporters to see after they had read my story. The derrick man also was bribed to vouch for the whole yarn and it went through, questioned by a few wise ones, of course, but never proved false."

CONSCIENTIOUS DRUGGIST.

About a year ago E. A. Sodergren, a druggist, wrote us from Callaway, Nebraska, that he had a serious case of kidney disease and that his physician did not offer him much encouragement. He desired to put Fulton's Renal Compound in stock for his own case, and if he got results he would sell it to others. He wrote several times for advice, showing a very obstinate case. He now writes: "It is now ten months since I began using the compound, and although my case has been very obstinate, it seems to have finally yielded to the treatment. I have no doubt results would have been obtained sooner had I not kept at work."

(Due to the results obtained in this case our agencies were promptly accepted in Callaway and the adjoining town.)

Simply another case of kidney trouble in which the inflamed kidneys refused to respond to the futile old-time kidney excitants, and that after all else had failed, yielded to Fulton's Renal Compound, the first and only emollient for inflamed kidneys. Inflammation of the kidneys, even in its advanced forms, is now curable. Send for literature.

A CLEVER DOG.

Fox Terrier Amuses Passengers in Elevator of Lyceum Building.

Yesterday afternoon, in the Lyceum building, an old man, who spoke with a decided German accent, was followed from the elevator by a bob-tailed, dirty fox terrier. The dog evidently was in high spirits, for he jumped against his master's legs and licked his hand.

"Vas ist der madder mit yous?" asked the German, with a wink at the passengers leaving the elevator, "Visper id in my ear." The old man stooped and turned his head as if waiting for the dog to convey some message to him. The fox terrier stood up on his hind legs and, placing his nose close to the man's ear, growled into it, much to the amusement of the several who witnessed the proceeding.

It Reached the Spot.

Mr. E. Humphrey, who owns a large general store at Omega, Ohio, and is president of the Adams County Telephone company, as well as of the Home Telephone company of Pike county, Ohio, says of Dr. King's New Discovery: "It saved my life once. At least I think it did. It seemed to reach the spot—the very seat of my cough,—when everything else failed." Dr. King's New Discovery not only reaches the cough spot; it heals the sore spots and the weak spots in throat, lungs and chest. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c and $1.00. SOCIALISTS WILL CELEBRATE Plan Open Air Meeting Opposite the Sellwood Building.

The International Labor day, which is May 1, will be celebrated by the Socialists in Duluth and Superior this evening, by an open air meeting, at the corner of Second avenue west and Superior street, opposite the Sellwood building, at 8 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made to make this quite an impressive affair, and a number of the prominent Socialists of this part of the country will participate. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Industrial Workers of the World, and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, the girl organizer of the association, will be one of the speakers. Among the others who are scheduled to take part in the speaking are F. Zolner, a prominent Socialist of Superior, and Esther Nieminen, a Finnish girl from Biwabik, who will speak in her own language.

Even inexperienced cooks have "good luck" with Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder and Extracts. They never disappoint.

WANTS A REHEARING.

Capt. Hart Desires Further Consideration of His Case.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. Francis B. Hart, whom the state special supreme court suspended from practice at the Minnesota bar for six months, last Friday, is preparing his arguments for presentation Monday before the court for a rehearing.

Capt. Hart hopes to have the preparation of his papers finished in the time set by the court, but in case they are not ready, is confident the court will permit him longer time.

The suspension from practice was the verdict of a special court of five judges, appointed by the governor to consider Capt. Hart's criticism of the supreme court of the state.

MAKE IT STRONG.

Minnesota members of the Democratic party have a duty to perform next Wednesday which they will regard as a pleasure.

That is the day for the Democratic primaries, when the voters will select delegates to the county conventions that will, on May 9, pick delegates to the state convention pledged and instructed to elect an aggressive delegation to the national convention which will work and vote for Governor John A. Johnson for president.

There is not a particle of doubt that the Minnesota delegation to the Denver convention will be for Governor Johnson. It is true that here and there a few disgruntled, disappointed and embittered individuals are disgracing their state by making a fight against him, but it is clearly evident that they do not represent the sentiment of the rank and file of the party, and that the marchers in the ranks will take great pleasure in turning out at Wednesday's caucuses to register their approval of the splendid administration he has given to his native state, and to show their pride in the unspotted fame he has gained by his single-handed devotion to duty, his high citizenship, his picturesque rise from humble beginnings to the peaks of national renown, and the charm of his personality.

There should not have been a single voice raised in Minnesota against his candidacy for the highest office in the land. The motives of those who have opposed him are well known, and they are of such an ignoble nature as to make impossible the success of the opposition.

Minnesota Democrats should not be contented with a bare victory over these opponents. They should make it so positive and so emphatic that the nation may know that Governor Johnson has back of him the full strength of his party. That can be done if every Democratic voter who believes in John A. Johnson and who wishes to use this splendid opportunity to testify to his belief, will get out and participate in the caucuses next Wednesday.

Governor Johnson has earned this tribute from his native state and from the Democracy whose banners he has led to two splendid victories.

He has earned not only an indorsement at the primaries, at the county conventions and at the state conventions, but he has earned a hearty, spontaneous and emphatic declaration at each step of the way.

The first step is to be taken next Wednesday. Then the voters will have their chance. This is the foundation for all subsequent steps, and the character of the proceedings at the county and state conventions depends upon the heartiness with which the Democratic voters turn out to express their enthusiasm for Johnson at the caucuses.

Make it strong!

Between the hours of 2 p. m. and 4 p. m. in the country districts, and 7:30 p. m. and 8:30 p. m. in the cities, every voter who believes in recognizing a public servant who has "made good," should turn out and vote for delegates who will rally to the Johnson standard in the county conventions.

CLEAN UP!

Monday the official cleaning up time of the city will begin. Then, as described in a local article in The Herald last night, the city health department will add a number of inspectors to its force, whose duty it will be to go over the city and see that the people are giving proper attention to the condition of the back yards and vacant lots.

Don't wait to be jarred by an official visit from a health inspector.

Do it now!

Many people have already taken advantage of the intervals of fine weather to make their premises clean and sightly, in preparation for the advent of summer.

But it is very evident to anybody who takes a casual look about that many others have failed to awake to their duty to themselves and to their neighbors in this respect.

If you don't clean up of your own accord, the health department will have to compel you to do so.

But you will think much more of yourself as a citizen, and your neighbors will be far more indebted to you, if you take up the work yourself without being forced into it.

Let's make the community clean and, sweet and sightly and wholesome, so that visitors will think well of us, and so that we may think well of ourselves and of our city.

HOME OWNING.

A correspondent of a New York newspaper says that the craze for home-owning is all wrong, and that Americans should not think of such purchases until late in life, when prosperity and the security of the future are assured.

He argues that the capital put into a home is locked up where it can yield no dividends and that it might, if saved and invested, provide the nucleus for a fortune.

Perhaps he just said this to be "different"—there are people who care more about attracting attention to themselves by exploiting strange ideas than they do about the correctness or plausibility of what they say—but at any rate he is all wrong.

Capital locked up in a home does yield dividends—dividends richer, more abiding and more satisfying than any investment that can be made. In money dividends its earnings are represented by the saving created by the difference between the cost of maintaining a home and the cost of renting a home. But this is the smallest item in the yield from a home that you own yourself.

When you own your own home you are a real citizen, a property-owner, with ten times more reason for good citizenship, for pride in your community and your surroundings, and for enlightened and intelligent interest in public affairs, than you have as a boarder or a renter.

In short, you are a better citizen, a broader and a bigger personality in your own eyes and in those of the community. You have something to live for, something that is your own, and that you are not indebted to others for; something that you gained by your own efforts and your own thrift.

Besides, the New York man forgot to reckon, when he spoke of sinking capital into a home, of the capital that the renter sinks into the coffers of his landlord. This is an item so large, in many cases, that it almost prohibits saving. Properly, no man should pay out more than 20 per cent of his income in rent. Actually, many people give half their incomes to their landlords, and the average would probably be nearer a third than a fifth.

Again, thousands of people now living in comfortable homes of their own would never have had either capital or homes if it had not been for the numerous plans that compel saving or that provide homes on the instalment plan. Few average citizens ever get money enough together in one lump to buy a home outright. More often they put their savings painfully into building and loan associations, or, having saved a few hundreds of dollars, get a home on the instalment plan which they do not pay for within six, eight or ten years. Most of these people would have found it impossible to deliberately save so much money unless they were forced to do it by the demands of a contract.

While it takes capital to build a home, once you have it your opportunities for saving are increased, and the mere possession of so much tangible property is a new incentive to thrift. Anyway you look at it, home-owning is vastly to be preferred to any other way of living. It is better for the home owners, and better for the community.

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT.

Here are congratulations to the men whose enterprise, persistence, skill and foresight made possible the linking of Duluth and a hitherto undeveloped empire by the construction of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad.

The Duluth business men who returned Wednesday from a tour of inspection over the line of the new railroad are enthusiastic over the prospects that it opens up. They had scarcely dreamed, until they saw for themselves, of the potentialities of the wilderness empire through which the iron road has been built.

Timber, farm lands, great commercial possibilities—these are the riches that have been tapped by the new road. It brings to the doors of Duluth the trade of a vast region whose richness is hardly realized by those who have not seen for themselves the possibilities it presents.

This newly opened country cannot fail to grow. It will greedily demand the merchandise which Duluth sells, and it will yield back in return the riches of soil and forest and mine that Duluth needs.

The building of this road will add millions of wealth to Northern Minnesota, all in territory that is immediately tributary to Duluth.

It taps, develops and touches with life-giving magic wand a sleeping empire of tremendous potentialities.

It is an achievement whose importance has not, perhaps, been estimated at its full value by the people of this city, though the men who have traveled along its lines and viewed the immensity of the area that it opens up are in a position to realize what it means today and what it promises for the future.

A ONE-MAN ABSOLUTISM.

While recognizing the necessity of keeping on good terms with the power that dispenses legislation in Washington, The Herald would be much more proud of the members of the lower branch of congress who have been elected by Republican constituencies if they would show more impatience with the absolute and undemocratic rule of Speaker Cannon, the czar of the house of representatives who wields a power greater than that of any other public official in the civilized world, and who wields it not for the people but for the interests.

While there is hope that the measure repealing the tariff on wood pulp, asked for by the newspapers of the country, may yet go through at this session, the delay in its enactment furnishes a very clear illustration of the manner in which this infamous power is exercised.

When representatives of the newspapers were in Washington seeking action on this matter, which is of vital importance to them and to the country, John Sharp Williams, the minority leader, said:

> Get the speaker to recognize me or somebody else to make the motion, and it will pass.

That is the situation in a nutshell. If Speaker Cannon would permit this measure to get upon the floor of the house, it would pass with very few dissenting votes. All of the Democratic members and a majority of the Republican members favor it and will vote for it. But the speaker opposes it—or has opposed it throughout though there are indications that he intends to give way against the tremendous pressure that has been brought to bear in its behalf—and the power that has been slowly gathered by the speakership has enabled him to prevent its consideration.

This is merely one measure out of many. It is merely one item in a tariff system that is absolutely indefensible, that is perpetuating special privileges that cost the people dearly every day, that has created and still fosters the greedy trusts that are creating plutocrats and paupers. All of these measures and this tariff system are subject to the will of one man; a man who has the power to say what measures shall be considered and what shall be pigeonholed, and a man who is ruthless in his exercise of that power.

With a power so great as this it is not to be marveled at that Republican congressmen cringe before the speaker. Yet they would be better Americans, purer statesmen and more in harmony with the wishes of the people whose votes elected them, if they would revolt against it in a body, and overthrow the machine that stands between the people and the interests, exerting its tremendous powers in behalf of the interests and protecting them in their enterprise of rifling the people's pockets.

How do you like your new home?

Aren't you glad you didn't take 'em off after all?

After all has been said, that Astor flag incident is nothing but another piece of contemptible, disgusting toadyism that the British people will be as quick to scorn as the Americans.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

James Bywater, a commercial traveling man who is registered at the St. Louis hotel, is known among the fraternity as the man with the harrowing experience. He has been on the road for more than twenty years, and he has passed through enough hair-tufting episodes to make a Nick Carter novel read like an account of the laying of the corner stone of the village church.

He first bumped into trouble, when but a mere youth. It was on the B. & O. railroad, where travelers in those days always looked for trouble. They were not disappointed if they didn't get it, of course, but they were surprised. Mr. Bywater didn't have any chance to be surprised.

The train ran through an open switch, and the passengers took on the appearance of the members of a melodrama company after the carnage scene in the third act. They were scattered around in a sort of irregular way, some of them dead and most of them nearly dead.

When Mr. Bywater recovered he found himself in some hospital, with strange attendants telling him of what a narrow escape he had had. He remained in the quietude of the hospital for two weeks after dawning reason returned to the throne, and was then discharged as a tolerably well man. He was told to be quiet for six months, as any sudden exertion might bring on some dreadful malady.

Another experience that lurks in his memory was a ride on the vestibule limited of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, from Forreston to Kittredge, a distance of ten miles, hanging on to the bar of the outside vestibule. It was in the dead of winter and a wind was blowing up the track that would drive a hungry wolf to shelter in the lee of some bank.

Mr. Bywater left the comfortable observation car to get a breath of fresh air. Just a breath, mind you, was what he went in search of. Before he returned to the comfortable, steam-heated atmosphere of the observation car, he had inhaled enough of the Illinois ozone to render sweet and fragrant a Ghetto sweatshop.

For those ten, long windswept miles, which were marked by frozen fingers, ears that stung with poignant pain, and contributing pains from other parts of the body, Mr. Bywater clung desperately to the brass rails of the vestibule and yelled for assistance. Not until the train pulled into Kittredge, however did a dusky attendant open the door and behold the apparition of a half frozen traveling man.

The outside rider was brought into the observation car and thawed out. They had to get some snow from the virgin prairie and massage his ears and hands. His nose resembled a ripe tomato stuck athwart of a red and blue countenance. The piercing winds played a whistling tattoo upon the face of the unfortunate man, and he was frozen to the marrow, and he didn't get melted completely until he got to Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Not until he had crossed the line that separates Illinois from the milder clime of Iowa, did he feel the spark of returning human warmth.

His next experience occurred upon the raging main of the Great Lakes. It was one of those Sunday excursions from Chicago to Milwaukee, and the boat was crowded with a bunch of humanity clad in state street summer outing costumes and pink dimity. They were all afraid of rough weather, so when the boat stuck its nose into a spanking wind storm, whatever that is, and began to heave like the yacht in "Brewster's Millions," the little Sunday colony did an imitation of the panic scene in the "Last Days of Pompeii."

Timid maids clung to rugged youths and shrilly shouted. The lake was angry and the excursionists were badly scared. The boat was heaving like an inebriated camel in a Sahara sandstorm. Everything was in confusion.

Lifesavers were girded on and fond goodbyes were said with passionate earnestness. Most of the Chicago bunch really expected to furnish mermaid aerolines, but the boat nosed into port none the worse for the experience. Aside from some deep buried secrets that were brought to the surface of troubled consciences by the heaving surface of the water, and some promises that were made, which might involve a breach of promise suit, if the party repented in the hereafter of calm and prosaic assurance of terra firma, nothing came out of the storm that left a scar on any of the passengers.

Then Mr. Bywater has been snowbound on a train that halted on the Dakota prairies long enough to give the passengers hearty appetites and cold extremities. They had to forage for food and walked for miles to the surrounding farmhouses in search of something to appease the aching void inside.

He has been in washouts in the Montana country; has gone into ditches while attempting to cover territory on freights; has held close commune with conscience, in the face of threatened catastrophe, but yet holds a healthy grip on life, and laughs at his experiences as events that give an added zest to the monotony of traveling over the country.

THE WEATHER.

It is still cool, and the weather man says it will remain that way tonight, when there will be freezing temperatures again, and tomorrow. This morning hurrying clouds sent down scattered flurries of snow that was half rain, less cloudy and more dry. Last night's lowest temperature was 32 degs., and yesterday's highest was 46 degs.

A year ago today it was fair and beautiful, a splendid May day.

The sun rose this morning at 4:52 and sets tonight at 7:18, making 14 hours and 26 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The disturbance central Thursday morning over Georgie and the Carolinas has advanced to New England states. During the past twenty-four hours this storm caused rain or snow in the lake region and North Dakota, and rains over the Ohio valley and Atlantic states. A high pressure area over the West Gulf region has caused somewhat colder weather in southeastern states. Temperatures are rising in the Southwest, due to low pressures over New Mexico and the Puget Sound region. The barometer remains high north of Montana. Indications favor a continuance of chilly and partly cloudy weather in this locality tonight and Saturday."

North Dakota—Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday; probably frost tonight.

BRIGHT AND BREEZY.

Philadelphia Press: "Here, waiter," cried the guest in the cheap restaurant, "this food is simply vile and I don't propose to pay for it. "Where's the proprietor?"

"He's gone home to lunch, sir," replied the waiter.

Washington Star: "You should make a speech so full of thought that it will compel your colleagues to abandon their errors," said the earnest citizen.

"My friend," answered Senator Sorghum, "this business is politics, not mental science."

Baltimore American: Mother (despairingly)—I am worried about Tommy. This is the third time I have caught him stealing the jam.

Father (facetiously)—I see. A sort of syrup-titious tendency.

Harper's Weekly: Investor—When will the company be on its feet again?

Receiver—When it is out of my hands.

Philadelphia Ledger: "It doesn't seem to me that your streets are swept," remarked the stranger.

"Not swept!" exclaimed the indignant native. "Why, there's an April breeze sweeping them at the rate of forty miles an hour right now."

Puck: Sparrow—You're rather late in getting back from the South.

Robin—I hated to break away, old chap. The farmers down that way are actually letting the cherries spoil on the trees.

Sparrow—Why, how's that?

Robin—Prohibition has queered the cocktail business.

Baltimore American: "The young doctor is a queer contradiction."

"In what way?"

"He has an exceedingly good temper, and yet he is lacking in patients."

Philadelphia Press: "My clerk over there at the liquor counter,' said the proprietor of the large establishment, "is a believer in occult phenomena."

"So I see," replied the customer, as he noted the clerk deftly making a bottle up into a package. "At this very moment, I observe he is engaged in spirit-wrapping."

Chicago Tribune: Spoonamore was counting them up.

"That's the eleventh girl I've been engaged to within the last sixteen years," he reflected. "I'd better stop right now. First thing I know I'll get the habit."

Commended to Sociologists.

Kansas City Star: The United States Steel corporation has become one of the big facts of the present generation—sociological as well as economic. This is emphasized by its recent report. Here is a corporation which last year employed more than 200,000 men, which paid 160 millions in salaries and wages and which has more than 100,000 stockholders, many of them employes. The employes and stockholders are pretty well scattered. But it is conceivable that they might be unified for political action under the spur of self-interest. Those 200,000 employes, those 100,000 stockholders, would constitute a powerful political force.

The future course of this corporation will be of great significance. Presumably it is now interested in maintaining tariff schedules. If it should extend its political activities and attempt to use the ramifications of its influences to control the government, it would undoubtedly give a great impetus to the general policy of government ownership. On the other hand, should it be conducted on a business basis with no disposition of insiders to exploit the stockholders or to dominate the political parties, it would constitute a strong conservative force on public sentiment.

The case of the United States Steel corporation is commended to the attention of classes in sociology. They will find it a useful object of study.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Mankato Free Press: Joe Cannon is disliked by the majority of people because of the friends he has made of certain individuals that have little regard for the people's rights.

Elk River Star-News: Over a thousand Republican statesmen from all parts of the state paid their own expenses to Minneapolis last week to attend the state convention, only to find that things were all settled before they got there, even to the selection of chairmen and secretaries, doorkeepers and janitors. What's the use? Somebody should have presented a resolution authorizing the federal officeholders to go ahead and do the work of these conventions without calling in the people.

Alexandria Post-News:- The paper mill men are insisting before congress that there is no trust. The public may believe it, but no argument would induce a Minnesota publisher to accept the statement. Call it a business agreement, or whatever you will, it is quite as effective as a trust.

Bemidji Pioneer: After a glimpse at our formidable fleet, some nation with cash may think it unsafe to refuse to take the Philippines off our hands.

Anoka Herald: Those gloomy days of the dust rag and mop are at hand where man lunches downtown and reluctantly ventures home at midnight, while his wife revels in a wild orgy of house cleaning.

Mille Lacs Pioneer: State Senator R. B. Brower, the brilliant St. Cloud lawyer and orator, was made chairman of the Republican state convention held at Minneapolis last Thursday. He so electrified the convention with his eloquence that the delegates, in their enthusiasm, quite forgot what they were there for and came near nominating him for governor. Attorney General Young and J. F. Jacobson will doubtless agree on one thing at least and that is that some scheme should be devised to keep Ripley from being a delegate to the next state convention.

Northfield News: If the Republican party had the right kind of organization it would be a much simpler matter to decide what candidates were really the choice of the people. One duty of such an organization, and perhaps the principal one, would be to see that the people had full information regarding the issues and to take such steps as would insure a full expression of their views at the primaries. Such an organization would not be in the interest of any candidates or faction.

Stillwater Gazette: The Fairmont Sentinel, of which Frank Day is one of the proprietors, says the next governor of Minnesota will be an editor. Is Frank thinking of taking the job?

Making Democratic Votes.

Chicago Journal: When the majority of the ways and means committee assumes that the people of America are not yet fully alive to the iniquities of robber trusts they are laying up retributive wrath against the political party that claims their allegiance.

If the ways and means members imagine that the people of America will bow to the dictatorship of a single congressional committee, in the face of an economic crisis, it merely shows how fatuous and purblind trust servants can become. Their masters, the trusts, with all their wealth, will be unable to stem the rising tide of revolt against tariff robbery.

The trouble with the ways and means committee is that it has become entirely aloof from the people. Its rulings in favor of the trusts are as automatic as a cash register. The majority of its members have apparently become mere lackeys to the combination of trust magnates who have decreed against tariff revision. They ignore the ground swell of popular revolt that is breaking down party lines and may turn hundreds of thousands of Western ballots against their party next November.

If the West is inflamed against predatory trusts, it is due largely in turning down the pleas of Western interests for relief from trust exactions. The arrogance of industrial trusts is a sectional blot. It arrays the East against the West. The prosperous West is forced into economic slavery, as real as old-time feudalism, and the trust barons maintain their position by owning the nation's law-making body.

The ways and means committee is manufacturing Democratic votes for the November election faster than all the orators and spellbinders.

The Copper Country's Welcome.

Calumet News: The Copper country today welcomes Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota. The rise to prominence of a man who, four years ago, was unknown outside his own commonwealth and known to comparatively few of its own citizens, argues something uncommon in him, and it is because of these traits that he is today so seriously considered for the Democratic nomination for president of the United States. First of all, everybody knows he is an honest man, with all that the word implies. Then, he is a harmonizer. He found no difficulty in treating with the Hearst men, in fraternizing lovingly with the Bryan men, in making the Cleveland men feel that he would be heart and soul with them if the party would let him. And this not in the least by any conscious insincerity or lack of conviction, but by a sort of good-fellowship, spontaneous and irresistible. He came to office a man almost unknown in his own state, practically a political accident. Today he is known by everybody within it and by a multitude without. He holds with the people. He has applauded all recent policies looking to the restraint of wealth and corporate power. He is of the new generation. He resides midway in that group of states where Scandinavian element is strongest and its race loyalty least diluted. He has not as yet made one mistake which watchful enemies could placard or use to his hurt. Obviously this is a man to be reckoned with. Leaders of both parties verge more definitely to that conclusion as the situation develops. His time may not yet have come. But if he lives, the country has yet to hear the final and sufficient word of John A. Johnson of Minnesota.

1904--ECHOES OF HARMONY--1908

Princeton Union: Attorney General Young's letter to The Duluth Herald has practically eliminated him from the race for the governorship.

Border Budget: Attorney General Young was the first candidate in the field for governor and according to all reports the first one out.

Cannon Falls Beacon: If Jacobson is the man we have always taken him to be, he will throw his hat in the contingent out of the window without looking to see how long a fall it is.

Mille Lacs Pioneer: E. T. Young characterizes R. C. Dunn as a political agent of the "interests," Whatever Mr. Young lacked in the way of proof is being pretty well supplied by Dunn himself in his hot-headed and awkward manner of denying it.

Appleton Press: Two years ago we were ardent Jacobson supporters and regretted that Jake was not given his chance to be governor. The old saw "Politics makes strange bed-fellows" is very forcibly presented now, in the fact that the same element of the Republican party that brought about the defeat of Jacobson in the convention two years ago, is backing him for nomination at this time. Why, if he was not a safe man then, is he a safe man now?

Anoka Herald: Just what Young expected to gain by that letter to The Duluth Herald is a problem.

St. Peter Free Press: The Jacobson-Young feud threatens to be uncomfortably severe, so much so that there is great danger of having the Collins-Dunn controversy of four years ago repeated with similar results should one or the other be nominated. This would be very short-sighted politics and there is really no excuse for it. Ante-nomination campaigns should be conducted in a neighborly spirit so as to make harmonious action and success possible in the final contest.

Appleton Press: Thus early in the gubernatorial nomination campaign the Bob Dunn faction of the Republican party has begun its vilifications, in no choice language at that, of all those who are opposed to the nomination of Jacobson at this time. Bob Dunn himself is the chief mover in this type of attack, and his paper, the Princeton Union, is full of low ebullitions.

Hendrum Review: The Republican state convention at Minneapolis was a very harmonious gathering. It was the kind of harmony that usually prevails when the lion and the lamb lays down together—with the lamb inside of the lion. The politicians of the Twin Cities had kindly arranged the whole program, so that when the delegations from the country districts arrived they read it in the papers, and were fully informed as to what the convention was going to do. There was a great deal of dissatisfaction with the program, but no one worked up courage enough to contest it.

A TONIC FOR THE STOMACH

Wonderful Success of the Modern Method of Treating Even the Most Obstinate Cases of Indigestion.

There are two old-fashioned methods of treating chronic dyspepsia, catarrh of the stomach or chronic gastritis.

First, that which prescribes pepsin, dilute hydrochloric acid and other ferments to help the digestive juices.

Second, that which seeks to stimulate the glands to greater activity.

Both have the defect that too often when the treatment stops the benefit stops and the trouble returns in an aggravated form. The truth of this statement is all too evident to many who have tried either treatment.

Tone Up the Stomach.

The modern method is to tone up the stomach and glands to do their normal work.

Every step toward recovery is a step gained not to be lost again. The recovery of the appetite, the disappearance of pain, the absence of gas—all are steps on the road to health that those who have tried the tonic treatment remember distinctly.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic, every constituent of which is helpful in building up the digestive organs and therefore are the ideal remedy for chronic cases of stomach trouble. The success of the treatment is shown by hundreds of cures like the following:

Cure Regarded as a Miracle.

Mr. J. E. Bennington of the firm of Bennington Bros. & Cox, of La Harpe, Ill., regards his cure as a miracle. He is well known both at Stronghurst, Ill., where he formerly resided and at La Harpe. For years he has been recommending to others the pills that cured him. He says:

"My stomach trouble, which afflicted me for about two years, began with a general weakness. I didn't have strength enough to hold up my head and could eat nothing but lactated food for over six months, while it was more than a year before I could eat any solid food. I had palpitation of the heart and my breath was short. My left leg and hand gradually became numb and I could not use either for a long time. At first my hand felt as though it was full of needles when I closed it; afterwards there was no feeling in it at all. I had many sleepless nights and suffered intensely.

"I doctored at Stronghurst and La Harpe and had two specialists from Chicago, but there wasn't one among the doctors who could tell what my trouble was and their treatments did not help me. My brothers moved me to La Harpe from Stronghurst during my sickness, but I had no hopes of ever getting well. I took electric treatment without any help, also many medicines with no better result. My home doctor came to see me one morning after he had been treating me for three months and told me he couldn't do any more for me and that I ought to go to the Springs. But as I couldn't sit up nor walk, I kept on trying different doctors for eighteen months. When one is sick some one always suggests a remedy and in my case an old lady friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to try them. I took them for two weeks carefully following the directions and at the end of that time began to crave a good meal. My hand and leg got so that I could use them again. I gradually regained my health and weight and have worked as hard as ever from that time. I haven't missed work on account of sickness but two or three days in the last eight years. My cure was certainly a miracle for all my friends and relatives expected to hear of my death. I am constantly recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Of This Number, 30,006 Came to United States in 1907.

Dublin, May 1.—In the report upon the emigration statistics of Ireland for 1907 it is stated that the emigrants who left Irish ports during that year numbered 39,562, or 9 per 1,000 of the estimated population of Ireland in the middle of the year, showing an increase of 3,644 as compared with the emigration in the year 1906. The number of males who emigrated in 1907 was 21,506, or 1,803 more than in 1906, and the number of females 18,056, showing an increase of 1,781. The number of emigrants, emigrants of Ireland, who left Ireland in 1907 is above that for the previous year, and above the average of the preceding five years by 2,502. There were 39,082 natives of Ireland (or 8.9 per 1,000 of the estimated population), and 480 were persons belonging to other countries among those who emigrated in the year 1907. Of the 39,082 natives of Ireland who left the country last year, 5,711 (or 5 per 1,000 of the population of the province in 1901) were from Leinster, 11,288 (or 10.5 per 1,000) from Munster, 14,513 (or 9.2 per 1,000 from Ulster, 7,570 (or 11.7 per 1,000) from Connaught.

The first collection for Ireland of emigration returns was made on May 1, 1851. According to the returns as collected, the total number of emigrants—natives of Ireland—who left Irish ports from the above mentioned date to the end of December, 1907, was 4,103,015—of males 2,132,508, and of females 1,970,507. Of the persons who left Ireland in 1907, 83.9 per cent were between the ages of 15 and 35 years, the percentage over that age being 6.6 and that of persons under 15 years 9.5. The United States of America was the destination of 30,006, or 76.8 per cent of the total number of emigrants (natives of Ireland) in 1907, in comparison with an average of 28,824, or 80.8 per cent for the four preceding years. Emigration to Canada shows an increase of 892 in 1907, compared with 1906, the numbers being 4,296 in 1907 and 3,404 in 1906.

NOVELIST WAS FINED

"Talked Back" to Paris Policeman and Paid Five Dollars.

Hypnotic Servant Swindled Her Mistress Out of $120,000.

Paris, May 1.—M. Pierre Decourcelle, the playwright and novelist, has learned that a moral collision with a Paris policeman may be as fruitful of a fine and legal difficulties as the actual knocking him over with his motor car. He was driving in a taximotor when the chauffeur, for some reason or other, took the wrong side of the road. A policeman, not precisely God-sent at that moment, was on the spot, and stopped the driver, in order to take the number of the car, and draw up the dreaded "proces verbal," or police report, with a view to ulterior prosecution. This ruffled the humor of the author, who opened the door of the taximotor and let out some words which the severe representative of the law took as uncomplimentary. He proceeded forthwith to add the passenger's remarks to his report, with the view to another fine, which completely upset the "sangfroid" of M. Decourcelle, and the scene then enacted is said to have been very thrilling as regards the application of epithets, which the policeman conscientiously registered in his notebook. The upshot was that M. Pierre Decourcelle was called up for trial at the correctional court, and despite a very spirited pleading on the part of his lawyer, he was sentenced to a fine of $5.

The most piquant part in the proceedings was a secret report drawn up by the police concerning the dramatist. The moment any one is brought to the notice of the police it is the custom in France to make what is called a secret investigation into the "morality" of the person. M. Decourcelle was not spared this "morality" report, and he learned, to his surprise, that the police knew exactly the amount of the rent he paid for his apartment and other little details of a personal nature.

Blows in Court.

A curious incident took place in one of the Paris law courts last week. A woman who had been sentenced to three months' imprisonment for having obtained $500 from a former clerk for a justice of the peace, for whom she had promised to secure the appointment to a judgeship, was being heard on appeal. The former clerk was also present, and after he gave his evidence he returned to his seat, when the son of the accused woman twitted him on what he considered his impertinence. Springing forward, the ex-clerk seized the other by the throat. A scuffle took place in the middle of the court, and the two combatants had to be separated by the police. They were led up before the presiding judge, who made them exchange apologies, after exchanging blows, and quiet was restored. The case was then heard without further disturbance.

Baroness Was Fleeced.

A curious case has just been tried in the Seine assize court, in which a servant girl was convicted of having hypnotized or otherwise influenced, an elderly baroness to such an extent as to make her mistress hand over all her valuables to her, and a fortune amounting to some $120,000. The baroness took her into her house out of charity fifteen years ago, and before long the girl obtained such an ascendancy over her mistress that she was able to command her in the name of alleged spirits whom she pretended to evoke. She would make the baroness sit on a chair with her back turned, and forbid her to look around, when, standing behind her, she would imitate in a shrill voice the supposed spirits of another world. These seances continued for many years, and each time the supposed spirits commanded the baroness to make some generous present to her maid.

The baroness in due time had made everything she possessed over to the girl, and all that remained was a house. This the maid also was about to take possession of, when the relatives of the baroness interfered, and, after having had her examined by a doctor, had her taken to a medical home. It was then found that the servant girl had been able to impose on her mistress only by reducing her to a great state of physical weakness. She refused to give her proper food during all those years on various pretexts. When the baroness had been only one month in the medical home, and had proper food and attention, she fully recovered all her lucidity of mind and physical strength, and explained that she had obeyed her servant girl out of terror, induced by a state of physical debility. The girl was sentenced to six years' imprisonment, and was ordered to restore all the property and valuables.

Concierge's Fatal Beauty.

Too pretty a concierge, it seems, is in charge of a house in one of the populous quarters of Paris. Her beauty, at any rate, has been fatal to one of her tenants, who committed suicide by hanging himself in front of her door with a rhyme of his own composition in his pocket. The man was a gold beater's employe, aged 27 years. As soon as he had taken a room in the house he fell wildly in love with the concierge, who smiled most amiably at him, as she did to everyone else, not out of coquettishness, but because she was naturally kind and generous.

The workman mistook her intentions, and wrote most passionate epistles, which he handed to her in the absence of her husband. The concierge, whose virtue is equal to her beauty, severely reproached him, and said that if he sent any more such letters she would show them to her husband. This drove the workman to immediate despair. The following morning he was found a corpse, hanging on the wall opposite her door. In his pocket was a letter to the commissaire of police explaining the reasons for his suicide, and a second one to the husband of the concierge, which ended with a rhyme.

"Evil Eye" Pursued Her.

An elderly woman was haunted by the idea that some day an evil eye would cause her terrible mischief, and her anticipation has just been fulfilled. She had taken a sum of $400 out of her bank, and $2,000 worth of securities, when, as she was leaving the establishment, she saw a young man, of rather unprepossessing appearance, staring at her, and finally he followed her. She quickly took a car, but, to her surprise, found him sitting opposite her, and still looking at her with an "evil eye." When she left the tram she again saw that he was pursuing her, and, what was worse, seemed to keep his terrible eye on her all the time.

So frightened was she that she actually ran to her house, but on reaching the entrance she was completely overcome, and fell down in a swoon. When she recovered she found that all her money was gone, together with the securities. It was only then that she thought of calling a policeman, but the young man with the "evil eye" had long ago gone away with his booty. He had enough consideration for her, however, to send her back from the nearest postoffice the securities, which would only have compromised him.

Bride Was Wounded.

When, on one of these fine spring mornings, a blushing bride appeared before "Monsieur le Maire," and received the congratulations of troops of friends, she little dreamed of the sad fate that was in store for her before the end of this eventful day.

The wedding party partook of an appetizing dejeuner, going afterwards for a drive in the Bois de Boulogne, and when the company had assembled at the dinner table only smiling faces were to be seen. Unluckily, however, as the meal wore on two of the guests got into an altercation over a trivial matter, and, instead of applying their wine glasses to the purpose for which they were intended, they flung them at each other. One of the officers was promptly evicted, a proceeding to which another guest objected so strongly that he pulled out a revolver, a demonstration which led to a general stampede. Excited by the shouts and the screams, this individual took to blazing away. The first bullet simply lodged in the wall, but the second hit the pretty bride in the thigh, and a moment later she was prone on the floor, moaning piteously. Conveyed to the nearest hospital, she soon got better, but her assailant has just been sentenced to ten months' imprisonment.

Notable Funeral.

An extraordinary funeral took place here recently, when the body of a famous Russian revolutionist, Grigori Guerchouni, who was concerned in the assassination of M. de Plehve, was laid in its last resting place at the Montparnasse cemetery. First came a funeral car draped in red cloth, upon which were laid hundreds of wreaths surrounded with green palms. These wreaths bore inscriptions in every European language. Next followed the hearse. The coffin was hidden under a mass of green moss in which had been inserted hundreds of red carnations, mingled with red roses, while borne after the hearse was a red Russian revolutionary flag.

Behind the mourners walked scores of delegations from all the revolutionary cities in Europe, carrying floral trophies. One of these trophies attracted particular attention. It was a huge crown of thorns, and bore the inscription, "To Guerchouni, From His Old Convict Companions." Twenty thousand people marched in the procession.

Kitchen Garden Cab.

The other afternoon C. G. Grunhold, living in the Boulevard Beausejour, drove to a newspaper office and asked a reporter to come out and look at the inside of the cab he had hired. On the floor of the cab the reporter saw several mushrooms growing. He plucked some, and with them there came away some of the rotten touchwood of the boards. "There are some splendid specimens of the prehistoric among Paris cabs," remarked M. Grunhold, "but the kitchen garden cab is quite new to me."

DIDN'T KNOW OWN PLAY.

"Touched Up" by Manager Beyond Recognition of Author.

Paris, May 1.—"Touching-up" is a process familiar to actor-managers, and playwrights know what it is, to their cost. But the experience of a French author who lives far from Paris is probably a record. He had sent the MS. of a playlet to a small and smart theater here. It was accepted, but he heard no more about it. The manager, having received the play, "touched it up," altering the first scene, rearranging the second, and so on down to the denouement, which he "just modified to suit the taste of the public."

The author came up to town one day and went to the small theater's performance. At supper he met the manager and diffidently asked, "By the way, when will you be able to bring out that trifle of mine which you were good enough to say would suit you?" "When shall I bring it out? My dear fellow, I brought it out a month ago, and it has been playing ever since to full houses. Why, it was played tonight." "Was it, indeed? I did not know. Then it was on your six-play bill this evening. By the way, can you tell me which of the six plays was my play?"

But the author draws his royalties on his piece, however touched up, and so does not complain.

Epilepsy, Fits

Every part of the body has its nerves. It's the channel through which energy—nerve force is transmitted. If too much nerve force goes to a part, it is irritated, causing pain, congestion, spasms, fits, epilepsy, etc. If not enough it is enfeebled, and if none at all paralysis results. Dr. Miles' Nervine soothes the nerves, assists the nerve cells to generate nerve force, and in this way restores nervous energy.

"My eighteen-year-old daughter had fits for five years, as often as two and three a week. She began to take Dr. Miles' Nervine, and she has not had an attack for two months."

KING ALFONSO FOND OF SPORTS

Encourages Yachting to Instill Love for the Navy.

Madrid, May 1.—King Alfonso was strongly desirous of attending the Cowes regatta this year, and had already made preparations for doing so, but it is reported that other uncancelable engagements will prevent his majesty from fulfilling his desire. Their majesties and the young prince, however, will go to England this summer, as King Alfonso is engaged to play several polo matches, and has promised to be present at others.

The king, who wishes to promote physical instruction in Spain by sports of all sorts, and especially a love for the navy, does everything in his power to encourage yachting, and has this year ordered five new racing boats. They are almost completed. Three of them are sloops, one of which is of the Sonderklase type, and two motor boats, to replace the antiquated steam pinnaces of the Giralda.

A trial of the sloops has already been made at Ferrol, with excellent results, and they will be shipped to San Sebastian as soon as possible. The motor boats underwent a trial last Friday, and in spuite of a heavy sea they gave marvelous results. Speed experiments will be further made, and it is quite probable that mtor boat regattas, between Biarritz and San Sebastian and Bilbao, will be held under the king's patronage.

The crown prince, owing to the rotundity of his cheeks, his robust appearance and his wonderful health, has been nicknamed the "pretty little English boy." His royal highness has been very fortunate with his teeth, and now endeavors to utter the first words. The queen is in perfect health, and able to attend long and tiresome official ceremonies without being the least affected.

King Alfonso has ordered large works of reconstruction to be carried out at La Granja Palace, and all the private rooms have been redecorated in the English style by British and Spanish craftsmen, who are making of La Granja one of the most comfortable palaces in Europe. Under the personal direction of King Alfonso, who loves drawing plans and details, an electric plant, worked by water power, has been installed at La Granja. It will not only supply the place with electric light, but will provide it for whole town. A fine polo ground, tennis courts, a cricket ground and a pigeon shooting inclosure have also been built at La Granja, which promises to become, as in former days, the rendezvous of the court during the months of May, June, September and October. The works are almost completed, and their majesties are expected to go there either at the end of this month or the beginning of May.

WANTS TO GO TO PRISON.

Tolstoi Welcomes Suggestion Made by Disseminator of Writings.

St. Petersburg, May 1.—Count Leo Tolstoi is reported by the Russky Vidomosti to have written a characteristic letter regarding the celebrations which are being arranged for his 80th birthday.

A man named Bodjansky, who was recently sent to prison at Kharkoff, on a charge of disseminating the count's works, wrote to a friend humorously suggesting that Count Tolstoi would probably like to join his admirer in prison as the best way of celebrating his birthday. This letter was communicated to Count Tolstoi, who immediately wrote to Bodjansky, joyfully accepting the idea. He stated:

"Many may take it as a joke, or a paradox, but for me it is the plain, simple truth. Nothing would give me such joy, nothing so perfectly satisfy me as just to be put in a prison, a proper prison, a reeking, cold, hunger hole.

"I have long been wonderign if anything could now give me pleasure. This would. Besides, perhaps, contenting those who dislike my writings and their disseminators, this would content me in my old age, and save me from the burden of the jubilee celebration which is before me.'

POISONED PUDDING

Because Her Sister Was Marrying the Man She Loved.

Lisbon, May 1.—A remarkable tragedy occurred here last week in consequence of two sisters being in love with the same man. Senora Anna Concelcao recently became engaged to a young infantryman, and her sister Maria, who had formerly been courted by him, planned a terrible revenge.

Wednesday was Anna's birthday, and Maria made a pudding in honor of the event. She added a large quantity of arsenic to the other ingredients, with the result that Anna and a friend named Rosa Cachedo, who partook of the pudding, became seriously ill. They are now dying in a hospital, and Maria, who was arrested after the remains of the pudding had been analyzed, hanged herself in her prison cell. She left a note addressed to her former lover, declaring her undying affection for him.

The Benefit of Oak Tanned Sole Leather.

¶The largest pores of the system are on the soles of the feet. It is natural for perspiration to come from the feet. Although foot-sweating is natural, it is also most uncomfortable.

So-called foot-powders are the resort of many people to stop their feet from perspiring. Their chief ingredient and active principle is tannic acid derived from oak-bark.

Tannic acid is slightly astringent. It closes the pores of the feet gently, but firmly. Its effect is felt only in a beneficial way.

Shoes soled with oak-tanned leather have precisely the same effect as foot-powders. The tannic acid stops perspiration. When that is prevented the foot cannot swell beyond its natural size; it cannot burn nor ache.

We make it a point to know that a shoe fits perfectly before recommending it to a customer. It is on this basis that we have built our business from a small beginning to its present commanding position in this city.

From an unrivalled stock we can fit you as easily and satisfactorily as we have thousands of others. Have us fit you with your next pair of shoes.

WILLOUGHBY BOUND OVER.

Milwaukeean, Who Killed Wife, Going to Plead Not Guilty.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Willoughby waived preliminary examination in district court and was bound over for trial at the next term of municipal court, on the charge of murdering his wife at their home, 688 Prospect avenue, on March 20.

"All right," was his only comment when informed of the action of the court.

He appeared stronger than at his previous appearance in court. He was represented by Attorneys W. H. Churchill and W. H. Bennett.

Both ar reticent as to what will be their client's plea when he is placed on trial. His waiving of preliminary examination would indicate that he intends to plead not guilty.

LABOR SAVING DEVICE.

Pneumatic Molder That Does the Work of Many Men.

Hancock, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A Harmon No. 8 pneumatic molder, a machine which does the work of many men with greater rapidity and more skill than could ever be attained by human hands, has been placed in commission at Carroll Bros. foundry. The machine was installed this week and demonstrated by E. W. Clark of Milwaukee. It has been given a thorough test and has turned out work which was absolutely flawless.

With sixty pounds of air this wonder of mechanical skill rams out a 2,300 pound casting, all in the short space of twenty minutes. Any casting from one pound to 3,000 can be molded perfectly in these few seconds, and the castings made are found far superior to those produced under the old method.

Formerly the molding was done by hand. The men placed the pattern in the frame, rammed in the sand by hand, and, at the end of many minutes' labor turned out a mold which seldom was free from imperfections. With this machine the molds, rammed to the same hardness in every portion, are turned out in less than half a minute.

More Land Purchased and Additions to be Generally Made.

The old buildings will be torn down and removed, and the lumber used in construction of up-to-date quarters for the rapidly increasing demands of the Chisago county farmers for their annual exhibits. In addition to comodious and well arranged public buildings, there will be several buildings erected by our enterprising merchants for the display of their own goods. There will also be a first class one-half mile trotting track, graveled and put in excellent order for some good races. The wisdom of this important move in selecting such an excellent site for the buildings is at once apparent. It is convenient to the town, easy of access, and high and dry and safe from any danger of flood.

"Is your candidacy favorably received by the Republicans of Hubbard county? Are you indorsed by your home town?"

NO MORE CIGARS MADE IN PRISON

Marquette Penitentiary Manufacturing Only Overalls and Boxes.

Maquette, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Franklin Cigar company, controlled by Swisher Bros., extensive manufacturers of cigars in Ohio, which has been the principal employer of the convict labor at the Marquette prison for the past decade, has concluded its operations at that institution, and is shipping its equipment and stock to Swisher Bros.' plants at Ironton and Chillicothe, Ohio. The last cigars made at the Marquette prison were rolled Monday, and the packing, which had been in progress for a number of days, was finished, and the shops cleared, yesterday. The company's equipment and surplus stock is being sent out as rapidly as possible.

The men who have been employed on the manufacture of cigars will be taken over by Schauer Bros., who for several years past have been manufacturers of overalls at the Marquette prison. As a result of this change, Schauer Bros. will employ some 180 men in their shops, which will occupy all of the modern shop building erected to replace the one destroyed by fire a few years ago.

The withdrawal of the Franklin Cigar company will leave but two industries in the Marquette prison, the manufacture of overalls and the manufacture of boxes by the Marquette Box & Lumber company.

GRAND FORKS CLEANING.

MANY GREET GOVERNOR.

Minnesota Executive Holds Informal Reception at Marquette Depot.

Marquette, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the train bearing Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota passed through here, Tuesday, carrying the Minnesota executive to Detroit, after his public address at Hancock, a large number of people, regardless of politics, gathered at the depot to extend to him an impromptu greeting.

The man on whom the curiosity and interest centered descended from the coach to the depot platform and for a few minutes held an informal levee, in the course of which he exchanged cordial greetings with those assembled to meet him and discussed such matters of interest as were brought up. The time did not permit of any prolonged remarks either on Governor Johnson's part or by the Marquette men at the depot. Governor Johnson made an excellent impression and those who met him carried away the impression that he has not been overrated. Expressions heard among Marquette Democrats warranted the conclusion that he has many warm supporters here.

CITY OWNERSHIP PAYS.

Fort Atkinson, Wis., Evidently Pleased With the Results.

Fort Atkinson, Wis., May 1.—The annual report of the city water and light commission shows a net profit since the last report of $5,315.10. In November, 1905, when the city, purchased the plant, there were but sixty-five patrons. By January, 15, the number had increased to 254. Today there are 50 homes in the city in which the Standard Oil company has been supplanted by the municipal electric light plant. The inventory of the plant shows a total investment by the city of $81,500. The assessed valuation of the city is less than twenty-five times that amount.

The number of water takers has increased since Jan. 1, 1905, from 208 to 400, and both water and light applications are coming in faster than ever before.

Since taking hold of the plant the commission has made large reductions in rates, and has increased the service to all night, and later to both day and night.

Hot Legislative Campaign in Upper Michigan District.

Marquette, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A strenuous contest is in sight for the Republican nomination for representative in the state legislature from the district that comprises Schoolcraft, Mackinac, Luce and Alger counties. Edward McNamara, treasurer of Mackinac county, has announced his candidacy for the place, and he will have opposition in the person of the present Representative McCallum, who is out for re-election. Mr. McNamara is a lawyer and Mr. McCallum a printer.

WOMAN WINS LAND SUIT.

Long Drawn Out Case at Crookston Has Another Chapter.

Crookston, Minn., May 1.—Judge R. J. Montague of the United States land office at Crookston holds, in a decision that Mrs. Maggie Odegaard is entitled to right of original entry in a contested cleam, near Badger, in Roseau county, after one of the longest trials had in this government office.

The case was tried here April 1 and 2 last, Ivar Mikkelson being the claimholder contested. Judge Montague held that Mrs. Maggie Odegaard was justified in leaving John E. Klippe, her former husband and original entryman on the contested claim, on the grounds of inhuman treatment and unnatural practices.

The decision riddles the contention of Mikkelson's attorneys that Klippe made an actual relinquishment to his nephew, Mikkelson, without consideration, and without attempt to evade the claims of his divorced wife to her interest in the homestead.

For, the judge points out, sworn testimony was introduced in the case, showing that the claim was worth nearly $3,000, and a relinquishment would be worth at least $1,000.

EDITOR'S MOTHER CALLED.

Sudden Death of Parent of Guy Burnham of Ashland.

Ashland, Wis., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A telegram received in Ashland Wednesday telling of the death of Mrs. Julia Burnham, mother of Guy M. Burnham of the Daily Press. The cause of death was not stated, but it must have been very sudden, as Mr. Burnham had a letter from his mother less than a week ago, wherein she was planning on spending the summer in Ashland. The telegram was from Mr. Burnham's brother, Frank, and simply said: "Mother is dead. Come."

Mr. and Mrs. Burnham and son left on the afternoon Omaha for La Porte City, Iowa, where they will attend the funeral. Mrs. Julia Burnham was quite well known in Ashland, having spent several summers here a guest at the Burnham home.

Mrs. Burnham was in her 79th year, and was unusually strong and vigorous for her age.

Woman's Watchword Is Modesty.

Whatever threatens woman's delicate sense of modesty, frightens her. For this reason many a woman permits disease of the delicate womanly organs to become aggravated because she cannot bring herself to submit to the ordeal of unpleasant questionings, offensive examinations, and obnoxious local treatments, which most physicians think necessary. Doubtless thousands of the women who have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter have been led to do so by the escape thus offered from a treatment repugnant to modesty.

Any sick woman may write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., in perfect confidence; all letters of consultation being treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential, and all answers being sent in plain envelopes with no advertising or other printing upon them. Such consultation costs you nothing whether you take treatment from Dr. Pierce or not.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been long hailed as a "God-send to women." It makes weak women strong and sick women well. It enables women suffering from "female weakness," prolapsus uteri, retroversion, anteversion, and other displacements of the organs distinctly feminine, to cure themselves right in the privacy of their homes. Pelvic catarrhal drains, painful or irregular periods, backache, frequent headaches, weak nerves, dragging-down pain or distress in the lower abdominal, or pelvic, region, gnawing sensation in stomach, dizziness, or faint spells, and kindred conditions and symptoms are cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is not a secret or patent medicine, against the use of which most people of intelligence naturally object, but is, in fact, the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated and experienced physician in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments and who is not afraid to publish all its ingredients, as he does, on its bottle-wrapper, attesting the correctness of the same under oath.

"Favorite Prescription" is the one medicine for woman's delicate ailments which contains neither alcohol nor harmful, habit-forming drugs, being a pure glyceric extract of curative principles found in our most valuable native, medicinal roots, as attested by many of the most eminent medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this PROVEN REMEDY OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

"The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are effected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches; eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

INTEREST IS AROUSED

Personal Injury Business of District Court Causes Much Discussion.

Employers Anxious for Passage of Employes' Compensatory Act.

The volume of business transacted through the district court in the way of personal injury actions, as outlined by The Herald last evening, has attracted widespread interest among corporation interests and individuals who are employers of labor, as well as attorneys and other people who usually follow the trend of court affairs.

That the personal injury business has reached so great a volume in this county is no matter of surprise to the local attorneys as most of them have been cognizant right along of the steady increase in the number of that sort of actions, in fact a great many of them have been engaged at one time or another in prosecuting or defending damage cases.

There is said to be a strong sentiment among the corporation interests and the indemnity insurance companies doing business in this state, for the passage of the "employes' compensatory act." A representative of a large corporation was heard to remark the other day that the employers and the insurance companies are fairly praying for the passage of the act in question, that they can see no prospect of relief from the present situation until some such law is made.

The "employes' compensatory act" provides for the payment of damages by an employer to an injured employe according to a certain schedule. The schedule provides a certain amount of damages to be paid for the loss of a limb, the loss of eyesight, etc. It is claimed that such a law would put a stop to the immense amount of litigation over personal injury actions, the injured employe would know how much he was entitled to recover and the employer would know how much he was to pay.

Contingent Fee System.

The act, it is understood, is aimed at the "contingent fee" personal injury cases which constitute the majority of those instituted in the district court. On the contingent fee basis the attorneys take the case under an agreement that they will stand the cost of trial, witnesses, etc., if the case is lost, and take 50 per cent of the amount of the judgment should the plaintiff secure a verdict. As matters now stand, the employers and insurance companies that are defending personal injury cases go to trial with uncertainty as to the amount of damages that will be awarded against them providing the case is one in which the jury decides that the plaintiff is entitled to recover.

Many Inconsistences.

It is claimed that a comparison of the verdicts awarded by juries in the district court of this county during the past few years will show some startling inconsistencies. Large awards have been made in many instances for minor injuries, while small awards have been made in case of serious injuries, depending entirely on the temper of the jurors. The employers argue that if the law were to fix the amount that an employe should receive for certain classes of injuries, grade the compensation according to the seriousness of the injury, the cost and worry of litigation would be avoided by both sides and the courts would be relieved of a class of cases that now takes up the greater part of each term.

Under the law in this state the administrator or administratrix of an employe who has been killed through alleged negligence of fellow servants or employers, can sue for the $5,000 damages. This is the maximum amount allowed in case of a death, while a man who has lost a leg or an arm may sue for practically any amount.

Juries Compromise.

The jury is the judge of the measure of damages, if it determines that the plaintiff is entitled to recover. Many verdicts are claimed to be the result of compromises, some of the jurors fixing the amount they think the plaintiff should recover at a figure greatly in excess of what they really think he should get, with the expectation that a compromise can be effected with the jurors determined on a small amount, and which will bring the average to a pretty good figure.

Corporate interests have at times complained of a certain amount of unfairness in the general method of jury trials, that men will get on a jury who will swear that they have no prejudice either for or against personal injury cases as a class, but who will in the jury room be the first to vote a large verdict for the plaintiff on the ground that the defendant is a corporation and well able to pay damages. On the other hand, it is claimed that business men who would weigh the evidence carefully, and who would not be influenced one way or the other, are often excluded from the jury by the defendant because they are candid in admitting that personal injury cases as a class are not looked on by them with any great favor.

WAITERS WILL STILL TAKE TIPS

Effort to Abolish the System is Voted Down.

The effort that has been made by a number of the members of the Cooks' and Waiters' local union to do away with the taking of tips, has been abandoned. The anti-tip campaign was started some time ago and if it had succeeded no tips would have been accepted in the local restaurants after May 1. But the new rule did not meet with favor from the majority of the members of the union, so the matter was dropped.

The purpose of this movement against tips, it is said, was to bring the wages of the waiters to a more equal scale. As it is now the waiters in the restaurants which cater to the wealthier trade, have their salaries swelled almost double by the small change they receive. In other restaurants, where tips are few and far between, the waiter earns less money.

The promoters for the new no-tip rule say that they tried to inaugurate their plan at a wrong time, for the financial conditions are against them. None of the waiters wish to do away with the tipping system now for they say they have need of every piece of money that comes their way.

EBERHARDT LECTURES

Talks to West Enders in Swedish M. E. Church.

Elaborate Program is Much Enjoyed by Large Audience.

Lieutenant Governor Eberhardt delivered a lecture on "Individualism" at the entertainment given in the First Swedish M. E. church by the board of stewards of the congregation.

The church was well filled and every number on the long program received generous applause. The lieutenant governor was introduced by Mayor Haven.

Mr. Eberhardt gave many reasons why the doctrines of Socialism would never prevail in this country, and pointed out that its failure would be due largely to the marked individuality of the American people and their tendency to prefer shifting for themselves and taking the responsibility for their own ventures than working with some one else on the all-share-alike plan.

"A great wave of law enforcement is sweeping the country," he continued. "I hope it keeps on. If the people would only learn that laws are made to be enforced, and not as a joke, the nation would be better off and there would be less trouble. The people of this country are becoming more non-partisan every day. They are electing men to the offices whom they know will give every man a square deal. I was glad to see all of the churches of this city unite in the last municipal campaign for one cause—giving the city a good clean government."

The lieutenant governor had many kind words to say about the church and work it is accomplishing.

In addition to the lecture there were a number of fine musical numbers by the choir. Miss Mabel Fulton and Alex Enna sang the Miserei from "Il Trovatore" and scored a big hit. Both of them also gave vocal solos, which found great applause. Edwin Bergh of Superior, violinist, was forced to respond to two or three encores.

The accompanists were Mrs. Esther Dahlquist, Miss Ida Broman and Miss Florence Gill.

SEVEN CENTS TO PARK POINT

Reduction in Street Railway Fares Goes Into Effect.

The arrangement completed between the Interstate Traction company and the Duluth Street Railway company, whereby a passenger can pay 7 cents on the Park Point line and receive a transfer good upon any of the lines of the Duluth company, went into effect this morning.

If passengers do not wish a transfer the fare on the Park Point line will be 5 cents. Passengers going from the city will pay 5 cents on the cars of the Duluth street railway and receive a transfer to the Park Point line, which will be accepted with the payment of 2 cents additional.

The Park Point Civic club has labored industriously for the inauguration of a universal 5-cent transfer. The officials of the company claim, however, that on such an arrangement the company would lose money. They have agreed that, if the present arrangement works out satisfactorily, they may give the 5-cent universal transfer plan a trial.

RUNAWAY BOYS CAUGHT.

Winona, Minn., May 1.—Two boys from Stillwater, who went away from home to see the world without obtaining the consent of their parents, were located here by the police, and Mr. Johnson, father of one of the boys, came and took them back home. MARYLAND DELEGATES TO BE UNINSTRUCTED.

Baltimore, May 1.—The Democratic central committee met yesterday and partisans of W. J. Bryan withdrew resolutions, presumably favoring him, which they had laid before the committee. Chairman Vandiver, in his speech, gave the word for an uninstructed delegation to the national convention.

AITKIN POSTOFFICE ROW IS FINALLY CONCLUDED.

Aitkin, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. M. Shook has received notice of his reappointment as postmaster for the next four years, the bitter fight between him and Mr. Hollister, editor of the Aitkin Age, having been amicably settled.

NO STALWART ON ITS DELEGATION

Hansbrough Men Turned Down at Grand Forks Convention.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 1.—The progressive Republicans were in control at the Grand Forks county Republican convention held here yesterday and a delegation favorable to the principles of that faction of the party was elected to the state convention to be held in Minot, May 14, to elect delegates to the National Republican convention.

The test of strength of the stalwart and progressive factions came on the selection of a chairman. A. L. Woods was nominated by the progressives, and Dr. H. M. Wheeler by the stalwarts. Mr. Woods was chosen chairman by a vote of 76 to 37.

An effort was made to get James Dinnie of Grand Forks, and William Roche of Inkster, (stalwarts,) on the delegation, but the attempt failed. A plea for a delegation on which stalwarts, who had recently become identified with the Hansbrough following, would have a place, also failed. The senator was described as an insurgent and against the domination of Alexander McKenzie. The delegation elected is headed by H. Bendeke, candidate of the progressives for lieutenant governor.

Strong resolutions indorsing President Roosevelt were adopted. William H. Taft was indorsed for president. The convention said the people of North Dakota were old enough, wise enough and patriotic enough to think for and to govern themselves, and went on record as opposed to corporate and capitalistic domination of the policies of North Dakota.

The delegates to Minot were instructed to oppose at all times any and all candidates as delegates to the national convention who are known to be likely to favor the selection as national committeeman of anyone who is, has been or will in the future be likely to be dominated and controlled by such influences.

The following delegates to the Minot convention were elected: H. Bendeke, J. B. Wineman, A. L. Woods, A. O. Anderson, A. S. Burrows, M. O. Lebakken, Theodore Holton, A. P. Rounsevell, C. L. Graber, E. G. Bonlle, Dr. A. A. Westeen, J. C. Burgett, T. E. Tufte, Anton Anderson, C. E. Sorenson, E. Peterson and Charles Harshman.

OLD SCHOOL BURNS.

Northfield, Minn., May 1.—The interior of the Central high school was burned out at 10 o'clock Wednesday night by a fire which is believed to have been set by a firebug. The damage amounts to $8,000, which is covered by insurance.

The school building was built in 1874 and has long been out of date and regarded by many as a menace. Incendiarism is suspected.

UNIQUE MAPS OF UNITED STATES

Washington, May 1.—Two unique maps of the United States will be used at the coming White House conference on natural resources. They are, perhaps, the largest detailed maps of this country made by mechanical process. Each map, without its frame, measures twelve feet in height and sixteen feet in length, and is, to all practical intent, a mammoth photograph.

The only room in the quarters of the forest service large enough to accommodate the maps was the office of Gifford Pinchot, the forester, who was accordingly driven out by the workmen to make a place for mounting the monster maps. The maps will be framed and set up in the east room at the White House, on either side of the platform to be used by the presiding officer and the speakers. The platform will be set against the east wall midway between the north and south walls, and both it and the maps will be in plain view of all who attend the conference.

These maps, which are now being completed by the forest service, represent the labor of fifteen men. The time required in the manufacture of each was six days and four nights, the draughtsmen working in three shifts in order to complete the work in time for the big White House meeting. Each is a counterpart of the very complete map made and used by the forest service.

The method of manufacture was very unusual. The reproduction was done by photography. The regular forest service map, which measures five feet by seven, was divided into sixteen sections, and a photograph was made of each of these sections. Each negative measured eleven by fourteen inches, and from each was made by the bromide process an enlarged print measuring about three by four feet. Of these prints there were sixteen, which were assembled and mounted upon strong linen. Three men were required to handle each sheet, and it proved a difficult task to accurately match the sections.

After the photographers had completed their work, the map was turned over to the draughtsmen, for whom a special draughting table had to be made. On either side of this table was a heavy roller, by the use of which the map was moved across the table at the convenience of the draughtsmen. On the maps all the natural resources are graphically shown, and the features of special interest to the conference have been brought out boldly.

A Nourishing Meal for 5¢

These are times when the poor work to get something to eat and the rich work to get an appetite. Shredded Wheat satisfies both because it is economical and nutritious. Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits with milk or cream, will supply all the strength needed for work or play—at a cost of five cents.

For breakfast heat the Biscuit in oven, pour milk over it (hot milk in winter) and add a little cream. If you like the Biscuit for breakfast you will like toasted TRISCUIT (the Shredded Wheat wafer) for luncheon or any meal with butter, cheese or marmalade.

J. P. Morgan Followed by Detectives During Stay in Berlin.

The Great War on London Rats Has Been Started.

London, May 1.—As is well known on the other side of the Atlantic, J. Pierpont Morgan of New York has been paying a visit to Rome, indulging his artistic taste of studying the matchless antiques of the Eternal city. He has been lionized by the aristocratic society of Rome, and has been asked to the Quirinal. But from the moment he crossed the Italian frontier until he recrossed it on leaving the country, he was kept under the strictest surveillance of detectives detailed for the work. Since the affair of the Ascot cup, and also of other priceless works of art, which, like that, have never been recovered, the Italian government is taking no chances with Mr. Morgan or anyone else. Last year several Van Dycks from the Cattaneo collection at Genoa were smuggled out of the country. They have not been located since, but it is fully believed that the best of them will be found ultimately in J. Pierpont Morgan's collection. The Italian nobility are poor, and Mr. Morgan's money bags give him a power with them which the Italian government does not overrate.

Mr. Morgan so long as he travels around Italy is easily kept in view, but when he gets on board his yacht, the Corsair, and turns up unexpectedly at some historic spot along the coast, it is not so easy to learn what he is up to. Therefore, it is said that on this occasion the Corsair has been followed along the pathless deep by a torpedo destroyer, which in point of speed could make circles around Mr. Morgan's yacht. He has been rather irritated at these attentions, but, on the whole, he is a philosophic individual, and has probably been sustained by a feeling of conscious innocence. It is a new experience for Mr. Morgan, however, to be under the espionage of the police.

Accidents to Domestics.

Since the first of July last an English Herald company has had to deal with over 3,000 cases of accidents to domestic servants, and thirteen of them were fatal. The figures show the large extent to which protection against liability under the new British compensation act has been sought by the householders, and they serve as a warning to the uninsured, who are reckoning on the improbability of accident to domestic servants engaged in harmless household duties. The compensation payable in respect of the thirteen fatalities might have imposed a very serious burden upon the responsible employers, and there is reason to believe that among small householders who enjoy only one servant, the proportion of uninsured is largest.

It is only right to add that some of the claims referred to the insurance company in question belonged to the grotesque order. One claim was from a servant who had swallowed her false teeth. One servant who sat on a needle had been astonished to find it come out at her ankle, and made a claim accordingly. A manageress claimed a good sized sum for blood poisoning due to the constant handling of copper coins. Then there were claims for servants who hurt themselves by walking in their sleep.

War on London Rats.

The great war on London rats has begun.

"One estimate of the damage done by rats during the course of a year has produced a total of $50,000,000. From exhaustive observations, however, which I have made throughout the country, I should place the figure at $60,000,000 or even $70,000,000. The reports of my travelers show, in fact, that only two industries are really immune from these pests —those of the stonemason and the ironfounder.

The above observation was made by C. A. Furu, who with his "rat exterminator," last week commenced a campaign to free the London and India docks at Tilbury from a veritable plague of rats. The damage done by rats at the docks is extraordinary. They gnaw through sacks of grain and spill the contents; attack bales of paper, in which they tear ragged holes; and rip gaps in consignments of cloth and other goods, rendering whole lengths of material entirely valueless. There are twenty-seven sheds at the London and India docks, each of which stands upon an acre of ground. An old man named Lawrence, who for ten years endeavored to check the increasing horde of rats by means of traps and various poisons, calculates that burrowing under the floors of each shed are at least 2,000 rodents. Upon this estimate, which is considered a conservative one, the rat population of the docks is 51,000.

Experience has proved that each rat does damage to the extent of at least one farthing a day. Thus the rats at the docks are responsible for nearly $300 worth of damage a day, or, in round figures, $15,000 a year. The remedy by which it is hoped to exterminate this rat army in a space of six months is not in the nature of a poison. Potatoes are infected with a tasteless germ particularly deadly to rats and mice and then placed in the rat runs. The rats, after eating the potatoes, contract a wasting disease. This, in addition to proving fatal at the end of three or four days, is highly contagious to other rodents.

Nansen Returns to Norway.

London has probably seen the last of Dr. Nansen as King Haakon's representative in this country. The distinguished explorer left recently for Norway and his retirement from the ranks of diplomacy is definitely decided on. It has been known for some time past that he intended to resign office as soon as a convenient opportunity offered, and at the end of last year mention was even made of his probable successor. No one, however, has yet been selected to take Dr. Nansen's place as Norwegian minister in London and all reports on the subject are entirely premature. Norway is still new to her position as a kingdom separated from Sweden, and has not a large supply of trained diplomats. Dr. Nansen himself had no previous experience as a diplomatist, and with his sturdy Norwegian sense of independence was in some respects decidedly unconventional.

On one occasion last year when Queen Maud was visiting London he was seen striding through the streets towards Buckingham palace attired in an ordinary lounge suit and a small bowler hat, and doubtless supremely unconscious that there was anything in his costume that might be unsuited to a royal audience. But this unconventionality only extended to non-essentials. It is no secret that with King Edward Dr. Nansen was persona grata, and there will be general regret that he is ceasing to represent Norway in this country. It may not be generally known that during the winters he has spent here the distinguished explorer developed a great liking for fox hunting, and rarely missed an opportunity of following the hounds.

HE RESPECTED HER.

John D. Crimmins, one of the builders of New York's $13,000,000 Plaza hotel, said recently at a dinner:

"The public confidence in capital was great at the time this magnificent hotel was projected. Now, with the public confidence in capital so weak, it would be impossible to put such a project through again.

"For capital," said Mr. Crimmins, "though apparently so superior and strong, really depends on public confidence. Without public confidence it lies idle and useless. Hence, in its heart, capital respects the public; in fact, it is like the man who lay ill with a nervous disorder.

"The doctor, after he had examined this man a little, shook his head severely.

"'Just tell me, will you,' he said, 'how much whisky you have been averaging daily?'

"The sick man cast a timid look at the door and whispered:

"'Say, Doc, if you don't mind, just go outside and see if my old woman is listening at the keyhole, will you?'"

JOHNSON WAS LOYAL TO BRYAN

Falsity of Printed Slip Circulated by "Bryan Volunteers."

The following letter was published in the St. Paul Pioneer Press yesterday:

To the Pioneer Press—Some weeks since the Pioneer Press published a statement, purporting to have been first made by a Democrat, that during the presidential compaign of 1896 Governor Johnson was not in sympathy with the candidacy of Mr. Bryan, and gave the Democratic candidate that year a most unwilling support, if indeed any support at all. The article states that during the campaign of 1896 Johnson was, in fact, disloyal to Bryan, and did not mention the candidates name in his paper, the St. Peter Herald, after the Democratic national convention, nor did the paper contain "one word" in favor of his election.

The statement referred to has been reprinted by an association of Democratic gentlemen styling themselves "the Bryan volunteers," and sent to to Democrats all over the state and perhaps to others outside of the state. I protested to the secretary of the organization against the circulation of this statement, furnishing him with indubitable evidence of its absolute falsity, unfairness and lack of justification, and he represented that he was willing to be fair to Governor Johnson and not to misrepresent him or to do him an injustice. Yet, despite the convincing testimony of its falsity furnished them, the "Bryan volunteers" continue to send out the untrue printed slip, and refuse to do the simplest justice to a fellow Democrat who has always been true and loyal to the principles of his party and faithful in the support of its fairly declared action.

The files of the St. Peter Herald, which Governor Johnson edited and controlled in 1896, are in existence. A set of them may be seen among the historical society's collections in the new capitol. They prove that Editor Johnson was as loyal a Democrat in 1896 and 1900 as Governor Johnson is today. July 17, 1896, in its first issue after the Chicago convention which nominated Bryan, the St. Peter Herald contained an editorial written by Johnson and making the following, among other declarations:

"Bryan is not unknown. He is acknowledged to be one of the most brilliant orators of the nation, and while he is but 36 years of age, no one disputes his ability and fitness for the office," etc.

Space will not permit the quotation of all the encomiums bestowed upon Bryan in 1896 by Editor Johnson in the St. Peter Herald. The searcher for the truth will find that not a single issue of the paper was unsympathetic towards the Democratic nominee. Finally in the issue of Oct. 30, the last issue before the election, Editor Johnson wrote in his paper:

"Do not let anybody sway you from your determination to vote for Bryan, Lind and Day."

The articles quoted and the references made are from and to the paragraphs on the fourth or editorial pages of the Herald—not from its plate matter or patent outside; the latter always abounded in Bryan items.

To be sure, the greater part of the editorial page of the Herald in 1896 was made up in articles in favor of local Democratic candidates, and of Lind for governor and Frank Day for congress, but the name of Bryan appears frequently and is always commended in the highest terms. The issue of July 24, July 31, Aug. 28, Sept. 25, Oct. 9, Oct. 16 and Oct. 30 are more especially devoted to laudations of Bryan.

In 1900 Editor Johnson's paper was always enthusiastically loyal to Bryan.

There is no hope that the so-called "Bryan volunteers" will do Governor Johnson the simple justice to retract the false statements they have made about him, and, at the risk of seeming officious, I must beg the Pioneer Press, which first published the untrue statement, to print this denial. In this connection I desire to say that for twelve years I have been a Bryan Democrat, and expect to vote for him again this fall, having fairly acquired the habit. I think I am entitled to be called a Bryan regular, since I enlisted in his army in 1896 and have never been mustered out.

A BRYAN DEMOCRAT.

GOLD HARVEST OF THE WORLD

Great Britain Got Five-Eighths of It in 1907.

London, May 1.—It is probable that never in the history of the civilized world has so much of the attention of so large a proportion of the people of both hemispheres been directed to the subject of gold—in its larger monetary and international economic sense—than since the financial crisis which began in America last October. Never has the world seemed in more need of the precious metal in order to balance exchanges, and yet never has the production of the world been so large as in the period in which the crisis culminated.

The most complete return of the gold harvest of the world is that issued by the United States mint, but that official statement is not usually available before the end of April. Meanwhile from other sources a statement has been prepared based partly on official returns and partly on estimates, in comparison with the actual returns of 1906:

	1907.	1906.
South Africa	$148,120,000	$132,900,000
West Africa	5,800,000	4,385,000
Australasia	77,695,000	84,645,000
India	12,795,000	13,105,000
Canada	10,000,000	11,500,000
United States	89,615,000	93,375,000
Other countries	67,000,000	71,500,000

The production of the British empire was as follows:

	1907.	1906.
West Africa	5,800,000	4,385,000
Australasia	77,695,000	84,645,000
Canada	10,000,000	11,500,000

It is a rather remarkable fact that five-eighths of the world's gold was obtained from mines and alluvial washings within the British empire. In the first table it will be seen that the world's estimated output in 1907 was slightly under that of 1906. In some quarters, however, it is believed that the corrected figures will show that it was, if anything, rather more than that of 1906. By far the largest producing area is that of the Transvaal and Rhodesia. Altogether the two produce about three-eighths of the entire crop of the world.

The next largest producing country is the United States, whose output last year, however (according to the estimates of the director of the mint), fell off by $4,500,000. Australasia now takes third place, and the output of Victoria and New South Wales does not now tend to increase, as it did in the second half of last century. Of late years the Australian output has been maintained by the yield of the new fields in Westralia. Russia comes fourth, but this, of course, is inclusive of the mines of Siberia. Mexico comes next to Russia as a gold bearer. Some people hold that Mexico has not yet reached her record in the matter of gold production. However that may be, she has fallen far behind the United states.

PAT'S PERT ANSWER.

Speaking of how quickly foreigners upon landing in America adopt American mannerisms and assimilate the spirit of freedom, Senator Allison tells the following: The senator was horseback riding one morning in New York city, and having occasion to make a trifling purchase, dismounted before a small emporium and, seeing an Irishman standing idly by, called to him, saying: "Here, Pat, hold my horse." Pat, who was but newly arrived from the 'ould sod,' glanced critically at the animal in question, then at the senator, and coolly questioned: "Faith, can one man hould him?" Certainly," said the senator, "he is a quiet animal." "Then, be jabbers," said Pat, "hould him yourself."

Battle Creek Specialist Offers Good Suggestion To Dyspeptics.

It is seldom that a great specialist will give away the secrets of his profession, but occasionally we find one who is more liberal.

A noted specialist on stomach disorders, dyspepsia and appendicitis, says: "I always prescribe the following with the greatest success, for indigestion, acute or chronic; dyspepsia, sour stomach, distress after eating, such as heart palpitation, shortness of breath, constipation, depression, headache and biliousness. These simple but powerfully blended ingredients can usually be obtained at any leading drugstore, or the druggist can obtain them from wholesale firms who supply the profession generally with rare extracts and essences. Mix in a bottle two ounces syrup of Ginger, one ounce Comp. essence Cardiol and two ounces essence of Pepsin. Shake well and take one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal, or before, to excite the appetite, if necessary. For costiveness, a dose at night will do much good. Let children who have stomachache take this freely. Adults can find nothing that will do so much permanent good and at the same time give prompt relief from distress."

HAGGARD ON THE LIQUOR QUESTION

Writer Says Common Sense, Not Confiscation, is Needed.

London, May 1.—H. Rider Haggard writes a letter on the liquor yuestion, in the course of which he says:

"Perhaps in the midst of all the stir evoked by the licensing bill, space may still be found for a letter from a person who for many years has been an active licensing justice of a district which is said, one other excepted, to boast more drinking places in proportion to population than any other in England.

"I suggest that sobriety can best be promoted, not by act of parliament, but by its instillation into the uncorrupted instinct of the young, and by the adequate punishment of the lack of it in the case of the adult offender. Is that punishment adequate at present? I believe I am right in saying that in the last half dozen of 'drunk and disorderly' cases I have helped to try within the past six weeks or so at the two benches on which I sit in Norfolk and Suffolk the penalties were those consecrated by the practice of most courts of summary jurisdiction; fines of from $1.25 to $1.75, the latter if the offender had often been before us, with costs, another $3.25 or $1.75; or as an alternative, a week's imprisonment.

Would Change Penalties.

"Now, I submit that in the interests of the culprit himself and of the public safety and virtue, for no one will deny that a very large proportion of the crime, stark wretchedness and degeneracy of the land has its root in the overindulgence in alcohol, there should be a new scale for this class of misdemeanor, not left as at present to the option of those whose duty it is to try it, but, within certain more or less elastic limits, defined once for all by statute. Under the existing law any person convicted of drunkenness more than three times in the space of twelve months may be sent to an inebriate home for a term not exceeding three years upon conviction for a crime on indictment, or, with his own consent.

"I would alter this as follows: On his first conviction the defendant might be discharged with a warning; that is, in cases of simple drunkenness; on the second, he might be fined in the usual way, and on the third committed to jail; or, what would be far better, to an inebriate home for a certain period, without the option of a fine.

"If, however, the drunkenness should be complicated with violence or with the use of that kind of language in which—for in vino veritas—thousands of human swine are wont to foam out their own shame, then the committal to the inebriate home might be provided for on the second conviction, since decent people, and especially women and children, have a right to be protected from the shouted insult of such words. The drawback to any such plan, of course, is that there are few homes of this kind available, and confinement in the common jail often does more harm than good. Would it not be possible, however, to organize in every prison a department devoted solely to the reformation of inordinate drinkers?

"This is a question upon which I wish to lay special emphasis in the hope that it may receive consideration. Surely what is needed in reference to the eternal riddle of the drink trade is not any violent or confiscatory measure, but the application of a little unbiased common sense."

OVERWHELMING.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt has given for a mascot a fine Dalmatian hound to the Hope Hose company of Tarrytown. A Tarrytown man the other day congratulated Mr. Vanderbilt so profusely on the presentation of this dog that the young millionaire said, smiling:

"Really, you know, you rather overwhelm the animal. He is a good enough dog, but he hardly deserves all that praise. You overwhelm him. It is like the case of the young parents and the first baby. A minister took in his arms a little baby to christen it.

"'And the name?' he murmured, dipping his long, slim fingers in the font.

"'Charles Louis Augustus Rembrandt Frederick Henry Napoleon White,' said the young father calmly.

"'Dear, dear!' said the minister, and he added, turning to the sexton, 'A little more water, Mr. Holroyd, if you please.'"

FARGO HAS BIG SQUAD

McNeil Will Begin Weeding Out Process Next Week.

Fargo Manager is After Cast-Offs From American Association.

FARGO SQUAD.

Pitchers — H. Cook, F. Cook, Tower, Holcomb and Clark.
Catchers — Sheehan, Krumholz, Duggan and McNeill.
Infielders — Burke, Johnson, Kerr, Brookins, McLaughlin and Heuter.
Outfielders — Johnson, Krumholz, Tuttle, Metcalf and Conyngham.

Fargo, N. D., May 1.—Manager McNeill of the Fargo team in the Northern league, is out of the city on a scouting expedition. He is after a crack player, and if he succeeds in landing him there will be joy among the Fargo fans. Some of the men have already reported and are working out. There will be a sufficient number here by the end of the week for a line-up against the Cathedrals in the first game of the season, which has been arranged for Sunday afternoon.

Since the last report of the men signed, Manager McNeill has added several fast men to his string.

Cody Clark, a twirler from Madison, Wis., who made a good showing in the Wisconsin league last year, will be one of the new flingers.

T. E. Heater of Deadwood, S. D., an infielder, will be some more not stuff added to the aggregation. In 1906 he was a regular on the Sioux City aggregation. Last season he played independent ball. He is a friend of Catcher Sheehan and highly recommended by the latter.

Roy Metcalf, a member of the Macalester college aggregation, on the same team with Johnson, already signed, has been added to Mac's force of players. Neither he nor Johnson can come till the college term is over, but they are the stars of their team and should make good here. Johnson lives in Neche.

T. C. Conyngham, an outfielder from the Wisconsin state league, with Fond du Lac last season, is another man on Mac's list. He is reported to be fast and a swatter.

Mac still has lines out for some association players and is confident of landing one or two men for whom he is negotiating. They are star players, but need a little more experience in minor company.

McNeill is exceptionally well pleased with the outlook and by this time next week expects to have a bunch here that will look good to the fans and measure up as strong as the other teams in the league.

Bill McNeil is just getting his gang together at Fargo and they are running into as fine an assortment of weather as anybody could look for, to put a ball player's arm clear to the bad. The other clubs of the league are getting about the same thing farther south, but they have had weeks of good weather and there's more coming.

McNeil's experiment will not work and if Fargo gets away badly in the race, nobody will be surprised. This training trip stunt may be foolishness and waste of money, but if one manager is content to go into his pocket to put his team in condition for the real race, the other managers must do likewise or lose out at the jump-off.

O'Dea, Herr and Morrow have had their squads for about two weeks. The undesirables have been spotted and chased off the lot and men secured, who are less of nuisits. McNeil is just starting. In his woodyard, he certainly has a lot of dead sticks to be sorted out and two weeks will easily be consumed in the process. By that time the season will be on him and the other clubs will be together and working more like machines than unfitted material.

None of the teams will be in midseason form by the opening of the season. They will need the drilling of a month's play before they really strike their gait. But the exhibition games south will give the other three towns just so much of a start on Fargo that the North Dakotans will be handicapped, unless McNeil has gathered a crowd of world-beaters. The fans are willing that the training trips should be taken, if the owners are willing to foot the bills. But if one trains his team for the season, the others should, or there's likely to be a cog loose in the league machinery when they get away in the race.

The new rough-covered ball required by the baseball rules this year, is making a big hit in the big leagues. There's no groveling in the dirt by the pitcher whenever a new sphere is given into his hands, and the games are considerably shortened. The fans are delighted, and the magnates wouldn't change the rule again for anything.

On account of the late date of the adoption of the rule, the minor leagues will not see the rough ball this year. The manufacturers are kept right on the hop to supply the majors with the glossless pellet, and they must get the start of a winter to stock up before they will be ready to dole them out to the hundreds of minor leagues throughout the country. There are any number of glossy balls in stock, and it will take a year to use them up. So, for the accommodation of the manufacturers, the minors will use the old style, the pitchers will still be allowed to rub them in the dirt, and the fans will sweat in agonized suspense until the deliberate twirler is ready to cut loose.

When promoters get to fighting among themselves, the fight game goes under. Watch it go at Milwaukee. A syndicate of rich men has been formed to take over the Hippidrome and stage fights. Chicago promoters are trying to break in, and it is said that Mayor Rose will yield to their blandishments and give them the necessary permits. Tom Andrews and his Badger Athletic club still intends to do business at the old stand.

It's human nature for one man to turn emerald with envy when he sees somebody else pulling down some money which he thinks he ought to have. It's especially true in the fight game, where everybody thinks he can be a promoter and is anxious to try his hand, even if it does mean the ruination of the sport. Scrapping among the promoters puts many a good fight center on the blink, and it will be the ruination of Milwaukee, unless the row is averted. Milwaukee is the only real fight city in the Middle West. With it off the map, the entire scene will shift to the Pacific coast again, and the shifting of promoters may create another row there.

The new Milwaukee promoters have already started the thing by offering a $15,000 purse for Packey McFarland and Battling Nelson. They aren't worth it in Milwaukee. Goldfield purses are for Goldfield only. If Milwaukee promoters watch their aces and deuces, stick to the percentage basis and live in peace among themselves, the game will survive, but otherwise, somebody will be forced to call a halt.

THE CHAMPION IS DEFEATED

Rerolle Loses Brilliant Billiard Match to Charles F. Conklin.

New York, May 1.—Charles F. Conklin of Chicago last night defeated Lucien Rerolle, the amateur champion of France in the international amateur billiard tournament, in the concert hall of the Liederkranz club, by the score of 400 to 341.

While Conklin won out, the Frenchman gave an excellent exhibition of uphill playing, for when his opponent had only 8 points to go, Rerolle rolled up a string of 103 points by brilliant all-round play, falling down on a two-cushion shot by the smallest fraction of an inch. Conklin's average is the best made so far in the contest. Score, 400, average, 13 23-29; high run, 58. Rerolle, 341; average, 11 22-29; high run, 103.

New York, May 1.—The fourth match of the series was played at the Liederkranz club yesterday afternoon. J. Ferdinand Poggenburg of the Liederkranz club defeated Edward W. Gardner of Passaic, N. J., by a score of 400 to 196. Poggenburg's high run was 55, Gardner's 22.

ANNUAL BALL.

North Star Gun Club Entertains at Informal Dance.

The first annual ball given last evening at Folz hall by the North Star Gun club was a most delightful affair.

It was the first large social affair given by the North Star Gun club and every one who had the pleasure of attending was greatly pleased with its success. The company was mostly composed of young married people, just enough being present to afford comfortable dancing room. The music was splendid and every one seemed to enjoy the affair.

One of the most enjoyable features of the evening was the spread served following the dancing. It was more of a dinner than a spread.

The success of the affair must be credited to the following committee, which had entire charge of the arrangements: G. W. Marin, John McKenzie, John Murphy, John McLennan and William Morin.

NORTH BRANCH TO PLAY.

Strong Team Will Go to Wyoming for Game Next Sunday.

North Branch, Minn., May 1.—The North Branch baseball team will play at Wyoming Sunday. The line-up will be as follows: Ervin Ledin, left field; Frank Striker, center field; Albert Larson, right field; John Olson, catcher; Arvid Elmgren, pitcher; John Bergwell, first base; Gilbert Nelson, second base; Fred Olson, shortstop; Norman Beggs, third base; George Olson, utility.

HIBBING FOR TWO GAMES

Kelleys Will Go Against Hardest Team in Northern Minnesota.

Baseball Season in Duluth to Open With Good Games.

The baseball season in Duluth will be opened tomorrow, when the Kelley Hardware team will meet Tom Brady's Hibbing Colts at Athletic park. The game will be called at 3 o'clock sharp, and the two contests, tomorrow and Sunday, should be as good as any semi-professional games Duluth will see this year.

The two games will give Duluth fans their first opportunity to see Brady's Colts since the spring of 1906, when they played the White Sox here. Practically the same team has been held together by Brady, and he has consistently pulled down down all the honors on the range. Last year, against Virginia and the Duluth White Sox, with league players, the Hibbing team scored repeated successes, and Hibbing is satisfied that the club is a world-beater again this year.

The Kelleys have a strong team under the leadership of Frank Wegman. Men have been picked from a large squad to take regular places on the team, and they have all shown good form in practice. Cook will start the game tomorrow, and it is predicted that if he can get control, he will hang it on the Hibbingites. He has all kinds of speed and curves, but is young. Brownlee will be ready to go in if Cook fails. Ernie Hanson, a West Duluth boy, who is as good as any in the semi-professional ranks, will throw Sunday's game.

The teams will probably line up as follows:

Hibbing.	Position.	Kelleys.
Cardoll	catch	Wegman

Calligan	2b	Bernston

Brooklyn Is Lucky.

Brooklyn, May 1.—Rain saved the game for the home club yesterday, when, after Philadelphia had scored five runs in the sixth inning, it descended so heavily as to put a stop to the proceedings, the score reverting to the end of the fifth inning, which gave the game to Brooklyn by the score of 2 to 0. FARRELL HAS OLD CENSUS

Secretary of National Commission Would Put Northern in Class D.

Wants to be Shown That American Cities Have 76,000 People.

Somebody has inserted a flea into the ear of J. H. Farrell and it is bumping its insect head against the tympanum in fierce shape. The secretary of the national commission in a letter to President Lamb of the Northern league announces impressively that the Northern league, as rearranged, has not the required 200,000 population for a Class C league and must therefore drop back to Class D.

The erring secretary has a certificate from the assessment commissioner at Winnipeg showing that city, under the last census, has a population of 110,000. Brandon is conceded to have 14,000. Mr. Farrell wants to be shown that Duluth and Fargo together can furnish the other 76,000 good souls to hold the league in Class C.

With a census of the vintage of 1900 spread before him, Secretary Farrell looks at the puny figures of 53,000 for Duluth and 9,500 for Fargo and instantly decides that he has sufficient evidence. He is standing still, with a log chain hitching him to a post and because he doesn't go ahead, he figures that Western cities don't grow. So he rings for the secretary and starts to reduce the rank of the league.

It's all a joke. The state census of 1905 showed Duluth's population 55,000, a growth of 12,000 in five years. The city directory figures for 1907 give Duluth 80,000 population, so that Fargo may be counted out altogether and still the league would have sufficient population. The secretary's office will be fairly deluged with evidence furnished by officials, who know, and if he persists in the path, which he has laid out in reducing the rank of the league, there will be one grand howl from this Northwest.

It is believed by baseball men all over the circuit that outside influence is responsible for Secretary Farrel's display of ignorance of conditions in the Northern league. A good many baseball men, who paid $500 for players from this league in the last two years, would like to see the drafting price set at $300 again and they may have put the secretary up to the meddling. After the evidence has been submitted, he will not be able to carry out his threat to reduce without showing rank unfairness and it's a pretty safe bet that the Northern league will stay where it is in baseball classification.

SULLIVAN IS EASY FOR ATTELL

"Brooklyn Tommy" Goes Down and Out in Fourth Round.

San Francisco, May 1.—Hopelessly outclassed, "Brooklyn Tommy" Sullivan of St. Louis made a sorry showing last night against the American featherweight champion, Abe Attell.

In the fourth round, after about a minute's fighting, Attell having drawn Sullivan into close quarters, promptly delivered a short-arm right on the chin which sent Sullivan to the mat. In a dazed condition Sullivan regained his footing, and Attell went after him, hammer and tongs. Twice more the St. Louis man went to the floor, finally rolling over on his back. As he was being counted out, a policeman stepped into the ring and ordered the contest stopped.

Owing to a change at the last moment in the articles of agreement permitting Sullivan to weigh in at 126 pounds, the referee was instructed to declare all bets off.

John Frayne won the decision over Fred Landers at the end of a 15-round preliminary.

Beemis vs. Sutter.

Clarence Beemis, a Houghton lightweight wrestler, and Charles Sutter, the Proctor boy, will get together tomorrow night at the Metropolitan in a catch-as-catch-can wrestling match, following the regular performance. Beemis is a newcomer in the local wrestling field, but has all kinds of confidence in his own ability. The men will weigh in at 135 pounds.

18:1 Billiard Game With Sutton.

Chicago, May 1.—Jacob Schaefer yesterday forfeited to George Sutton the world's title at the 18.1 balk-line style of billiards, not being able to defend his championship on account of sickness. This is the third time that Sutton has held the 18.1 championship, although he has never won the title by actual playing. Schaefer forfeited to Sutton in Paris. SUMPTER IS INJURED.

Patriot Pinched Against Rail and Jockey Rendered Unconscious.

New York, May 1.—In the third race at Jamaica, Patriot was pinched in against the rail in the quarter pole and went down. Jockey Sumpter, who had the mount, was thrown. He was picked up unconscious and is said to be seriously injured.

Wolvin Team Organized.

At a meeting held in the Wolvin building yesterday, a baseball team was organized, with James L. Norman, secretary and treasurer and E. R. Ryan, manager. There are about 100 men in the building, who have played ball at one time or another, and a large squad is expected to get out and try for the team. The team will go after commercial teams of the city and on the rangs.

Sox at Freeport.

Today, Manager Morrow and his White Sox open a series of three games at Freeport, Ill., meeting the Freeport team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league. Freeport won the league pennant last year and is out for another this season with a strong team. The games will give the Sox the first real test of the training trip and local fans will be able to form estimates of the strength of the team by the results of the games.

First Street Winner.

The First Street Juniors defeated the Northland Juniors by a score of 21 to 12 at the grounds at Ninth avenue east and First street yesterday. Robert Ames of the First Street Juniors was the star performer.

S.S.S. CURES CHRONIC ULCERS

Whenever a sore or ulcer refuses to heal it is because the blood is infected with poisonous germs or some old blood taint which corrupts and pollutes the circulation. Nothing is more trying than a non-healing, chronic old ulcer. The very fact that it resists all external applications, and ordinary treatments, is good reason for alarm, for the same germ which produces cancerous ulcers is back of every old sore, and especially is this true if the trouble be from any inherited taint. Surface treatment cannot reach the trouble—the blood is at fault and must be purified before a cure can be hoped for. In S. S. S. will be found a remedy for sores and ulcers of every kind. It is a perfect blood purifier—one that goes directly into the circulation and promptly cleanses it of all impurities, poisons and taints. The ulcer can never heal while the blood discharges into it the noxious matter with which it is infected, but when S. S. S. has rid the blood of this cause and freshened and built up the circulation the sore will heal naturally, and of its own accord. S. S. S. begins at the bottom and heals the place as it should be healed and makes a permanent and lasting cure. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any special medical advice desired will be sent free to all who write.

TWO LEOPARDS ATTACK A BOY

Jump Over Bars and Land in Audience at Baltimore.

Baltimore, May 1.—During the performance at the Zoo last night, two leopards jumped the barrier, landing among the audience. A boy, Louis Long, was badly clawed about the face and neck, and a panic, that would almost certainly have meant the loss of many lives, was averted by the prompt action of Police Sergeant Barranger in closing the exit door and allowing only one or two of the terrified people to descend the stairs at a time. There were several hundred persons in the audience when several leopards were sent into the arena, which is surrounded by high steel bars, to go through their performance. Two of them were sulky, and one is said to have been irritated by Long, who was close to the top of the cage. This leopard jumped toward the boy and scrambled over the top of the cage, and was immediately followed by another of the beasts. The first clawed Long savagely. The people in the audience were terror-stricken.

One of the leopards dashed down the stairway into the office, and Sergeant Barranger slammed the door. Then the crowd rushed toward him, but he held them back until they were calm enough for a few at a time to leave the building.

The leopards were cornered, one in the office and the other in one of the dressing rooms by the trainers and returned to their cages.

Long was carried to a hospital, where the physicians were unable to predict the final effect of his wounds, but said his condition is precarious. It was explained that to close all of the wounds would require about fifty stitches.

LAKE IS DRAINED.

Picturesque Wisconsin Spot Spoiled by Dams Going Out.

Baraboo, Wis., May 1.—High water has carried away two dams and an iron bridge on Dell creek, putting two large flouring mills out of business.

The going out of the dams also drained Mirror lake, one of the most picturesque spots in Wisconsin. This was an ideal fishing place and all game fish were swept into the Wisconsin river. Several boathouses were also carried away. The damage is heavy.

The dams and bridge will be rebuilt, but it will take several years to put the fishing on the basis it was before the dams went out.

WAS IN GREAT CHARGE.

Stephen Lyons of Famous First Minnesota Called Beyond.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Stephen Lyons, one of the few survivors of the memorable charge of the First Minnesota regiment at Gettysburg, which stands out as one of the striking military achievements in history, died Wednesday in the Northwestern hospital here. He was severely wounded in the historic charge and sustained injuries from which he suffered to the day of his death. While serving in the Union army he was captured by the rebels and confined for a long time in their prison at Andersonville, the most dreaded of all prison camps. The weight of the horrors of war fell heavily on Mr. Lyons, but without breaking his gallant spirit.

Mr. Lyons was born at Erie, Pa., seventy years ago. After the war he located on a farm near Wayzata, Minn. His wife was Miss Jane Morrison of Minneapolis, who died about two years ago. They had four children, but only one survives them, Charles S. Lyons of Wayzata.

Mr. Lyons was prominent in the G. A. R., with which he was connected as a member of the John B. Wakefield post at Long Lake. The funeral services were held today at Wayzata.

SHOOTERS ARE CONTESTING.

Annual Tournament of Crookston Gun Club is On.

Crookston, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual tournament of the Crookston Gun club began here Friday with weather conditions favorable. The trains last evening and this morning brought many from St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, and points in Dakota, with many of the old timers on deck. Half a dozen ammunition houses are well represented, and about seventy-five had entered one or more of the events before noon. The tournament will last today and tomorrow, closing just in time for Dakota visitors to catch the west bound train Saturday evening. The diamond state championship badge, won last year by W. E. Rowe of this city, will be shot for and $500 in additional cash prizes has been hung up. From the auspicious opening the shoot will be the most satisfactory ever held in the city and the weather conditions point to very high scores, though the fact that the trap shooting season has just opened here, the trap shot artists have not had as great an amount of practice as usual before state amateur championship shoots in the east.

CHINESE HOP FIENDS

Royal Edict Against Opium Traffic is Only Partially Observed.

Government Expects to Eliminate the Habit in Ten Years.

Pekin, May 1.—The official war against opium continues, but with indifferent results, owing to the culpability of many of the mandarins who are addicted to the use of the drug and who simply ignore the orders from the central government. On Nov. 21, 1906, the Chinese government approved regulations for the gradual suppression of opium cultivation and consumption throughout the empire. So wide is the area and so many are the social conditions and interests affected by these regulations that it is impossible to state any generally applicable conclusion as to their present results, and the reports of observers in different parts of the country are so conflicting that judgment must be suspended pending further systematic inquiries. These are now being conducted in every province of China.

Edict Not Observed.

The operation of the repressive edicts has been extremely partial, and in most provinces poppy cultivation has not yet been appreciably restricted, but a definite advance seems to have been made, and proof is given that in numerous districts the consumption of opium has been curtailed. A very large number of opium dens have been closed, and many of the rest have been brought under official supervision. In all government colleges and schools, in the police, and in the army, a rigorous prohibition has been enforced. A number of the mandarins, however, continue to disregard the imperial injunction, so far as it applies personally to themselves. The most gratifying force of public opinion which is said to lie behind it. Several foreign consuls testify that in their particular districts popular feeling favors the prohibition, and say that respectable Chinese are now coming to regard opium smoking in public as "bad form." Practical men, familiar with conditions in China, recognize in the popular anti-opium movement one of the most hopeful signs of an awakening national conscience.

Destroy Traffic in Ten Years.

By the imperial edict the Chinese government announced its intention of completely suppressing the production and use of opium throughout the empire within ten years. Land under poppy cultivation is accordingly to be reduced one-tenth annually, and rewards will be given in the districts where the abolition is completed before the expiration of that period. All opium smokers are ordered to register themselves, stating the amount of their consumption, and no opium may be sold to persons unregistered. Smokers under 60 years of age must decrease their allowance by one-fifth annually. The decree ordered the compulsory closing of all opium dens within six months, and prohibited the sale of smoking requisites after one year. Wine shops and other places of public entertainment may not permit opium smoking on the premises. Shops where opium or anything connected with the trade is sold must be officially registered, and must show an annual decrease in their business, under penalty of confiscation. Officials throughout the empire must set an example to the people, distributing anti-opium medicines and encouraging this reform; they themselves, if opium smokers, must either discontinue the practice within six months or retire from office. These regulations were issued by proclamations throughout the empire, and were welcomed by the press, native and foreign.

Regulations Ineffective.

It is undeniable that the regulations are generally ineffective at present, except in certain large cities such as Canton and Tien-Tsin. In Pekin opium is freely sold today to non-registered applicants, and opium-smoking requisites are still openly on sale. In most of the provincial capitals the public opium divans have been closed, but just as in America, the closing of a public house is often followed by the opening of a convivial workman's club, so here we find consumption transferred to social meeting places where the edict enters not. From many rural districts it is reported that the dens have not been closed, but have been converted into "government offices for the distribution of opium for the benefit of the local officials."

The government has not had the courage of its convictions in regard to the enforcement of the regulation against opium-smoking officials. It is notorious that a very large percentage of the metropolitan mandarins—estimated at 60 per cent—are addicted to the habit, and few, if any, take the decree seriously. In October last two imperial princes and the two chief officials of the censorate were ordered to resign their posts "and give their entire attention to the eradication of their craving for the drug," and in the same edict it was commanded, "as an extraordinary act of mercy," that an additional time limit of three months be allowed to civil and military officials in the provinces who, it was feared, "might not all have obeyed the original edict." Nevertheless, improvement is to be recorded in the fact that in nearly all recent appointments to vacant offices non-smokers have been preferred.

Will Lose $7,500,000 Annually.

In the event of complete abolition of the opium traffic the loss of revenue to be faced by the central government amounts to about $7,500,000 per annum. The loss to the provincial treasuries is largely a matter of surmise, but the best authorities place it at about 25,000,000 taels, or between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000. It is evident that the whole system of government requires that new sources of income be provided to replace these revenues, but of these there is as yet no sign. In addition to the direct loss of revenue from the opium trade, funds will have to be provided for an efficient preventive service as well as for compensation payable to the owners of opium houses and to farmers who discontinue poppy-growing. The financial and economic aspects of the question are therefore serious. The real test of the movement will lie in the reduction of the area under poppy cultivation. The Chinese were not always, as now, a sober nation. Their literature contains many indication that drunkenness was once rife among them, and it may be so again. Already from Kan-su a missionary reports that "the high price of opium has induced people to take to drink."

SEVENTY PER CENT OF WHEAT CROP IS SOWN.

Minot, N. D., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The crop outlook in Northwestern North Dakota is excellent.

Elevator men estimate that at least 70 per cent of the wheat has been sown, and that the acreage sown already is greater than was the entire acreage sown last year.

Men who have traveled throughout Ward county and other northwestern counties say that the farmers are very optimistic and that as far as the spring opening is concerned, prospects could not be better.

The recent heavy rains, and what is still better, the snow, has soaked the soil with plenty of moisture. It seems to be a case where at least a fair crop is assured.

Business along all lines is opening in excellent shape and the prospects for an excellent year in the commercial world are fine as far as the Northwest is concerned.

FIRST AMATEUR GAME SATURDAY

Cloquet High School to Meet Nelson Deweys of Superior.

Cloquet, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Saturday afternoon the amateur baseball season will open in this city, when the local high school team will meet the ball tossers representing the Nelson-Dewey high school of Superior. Rain and snow have hindered practice the greater part of the week, but yesterday afternoon the sandy grounds in Pinehurst park were in fairly good condition. The Superior team has been heralded as a fast aggregation, but since the local team has been sawing wood and saying nothing, they will undoubtedly give the Superiorites a good rub.

The game between the Fitwells of Duluth and the local semi-professionals, which was scheduled for next Sunday to open the season here, has been postponed on account of the muddy condition of the new grounds. Manager O'Neil has a line on a couple of star twirlers, and as the other positions will be filled with A No. 1 stock, he expects to have a team on the diamond this year that will rival any semi-professional aggregation in Northern Minnesota.

EDDY COUNTY IN QUITE A MIX-UP

Republican Convention Resulted in Two Sets of Delegates.

Fargo, N. D., May 1.—(Special to he Herald.)—The Eddy county Republican convention was a mixed up affair, or the reports were greatly misleading. The first advices were that the stalwarts had controlled the convention and selected a strong stalwart delegation to the state convention. The insurgent papers then claimed the insurgents had won out. A long-distance telephone message from Chairman Syvertson of the Eddy county Republican central committee stated that the stalwarts controlled the convention, elected their chairman and secretary, then selected a stalwart delegation. After adjournment, he asserts, the insurgents got together, holding a "rump" convention and selecting an insurgent and contestig delegation to the state convention.

FARGO'S CLEAN-UP DAY PROVED BIG SUCCESS.

Fargo, N. D., May 1.—(Special to he Herald.)—The combination Arbor day and clean up day in Fargo was a success. Today was a legal holiday and all the banks and public buildings were closed. Special exercises were held in the different colleges and schools, after which the pupils of the city schools co-operated with the Civic Improvement league and assisted in cleaning up the city. The results greatly exceeded the anticipations of those behind the movement for the first effort and much good work was accomplished.

COMMITTEE IS OPPOSED

To Making Charge for Use of Water for Power Purposes.

Washington, May 1.—The president's suggestion for legislation authorizing the government to make a charge for the use of the water of streams for power purposes was yesterday negatived by the senate committee on commerce. The matter received consideration before the committee in connection with a bill introduced by Senator Stone authorizing the construction of a dam across the James river, in Missouri, and received a thorough discussion at the hands of the committee. The vote was 3 in favor of the proposition to 5 against it. There was only a bare quorum of the committee present and the result can scarcely be accepted as a final annuouncement of the committeee's policy on the subject.

Among others who took a position antagonistic to the president was Senator Nelson, who submitted quite an elaborate brief in opposition to the president's views. He took the position that such a provision as that desired by the president would deprive the states and riparian land owners of all rights to the use of waters which are now guaranteed by law and concentrate their disposal and control in the federal government, an innovation which, he contended, neither the states nor the riparian owners could afford to permit.

The committee also gave some consideration to Senator Newland's bill for the improvement of the inland waterways, and decided to take up that subject at a meeting to be held next Saturday. The bill provides for the creation of an inland waterways commission, and proposes an appropriation of $50,000,000 a year for the improvement of inland water courses. The sub-committee which has the matter under consideration has reduced the appropriation it will recommend for the first year to $10,000,000.

"STUNG" FOR $90.

Iron River Man Would Like to Find Party Who Caught Him.

Iron River, Wis., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jack Nellermoe would like to find a smooth young individual, who recently "stung" him for $90 in the shape of a check drawn on a bank in another town that proved worthless.

The swindler stopped at a local hotel for a few days and after presenting a check to several people, drawn on a bank in Cumberland for $80 and made payable to one "Tuttle" succeeded in getting Mr. Nellermoe to cash the check. The stranger disappeared and a few days later the Cumberland bank reported that payment on the check, which had evidently been stolen, had been stopped.

MANY SETTLERS COMING.

Bring Household and Farming Supplies and Are Locating.

Iron River, Wis., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eight or ten settlers arrived the first of this week to settle on the lands tributary to Iron River, bringing with them several car loads of household goods, farm machinery and implements and stock. They are people whom Kopplin & Kopplin have sold tracts of land to during the past winter and they have come up to develop farms and make homes for themselves in the new Wisconsin. The lands where they are locating are north of this city in the clay country.

MARINE NEWS

BOATS TAKE OUT GRAIN

Four Carriers Clear for the Lower Lake Ports.

Package Freighters Are Also Beginning to Move Freely.

All four grain carriers, which arrived in the Duluth harbor yesterday from the lower lakes, light for grain, took their cargoes at different elevators in quick time and left again last night on the return trip. In addition to the John Lambert, Robert Wallace, A. D. Davidson and J. S. Keefe, which took their cargoes yesterday and left last night, the William Mills and F. B. Wells, which wintered here, also departed for lower lake ports with grain shortly after midnight this morning. The E. N. Ohl and Grammer are loaded and waiting in the harbor for sailing orders and the J. H. Hoyt and W. B. Kerr are loading. The Hutchinson is expected to begin loading today.

The grain movement, which has given some activity to shipping in the local harbor this week is only temporary. There are few boats, which wintered here, to sail within the next week and few are expected up the lake for grain cargoes. Everything depends upon the ore movement, the date for the beginning of which will be set at a meeting of the Lake Carriers' association at Cleveland May 12. The action of the Lake Carriers association is problematical, but it is freely believed in marine circles that not a cargo of ore will start down the lakes before June 1.

Most of the grain boats which have sailed down the lakes this week will not return immediately. There is a tacit agreement that only early charters and necessary shipments will be made before the lake carriers hold their meeting May 12. There is very little coal bound for the Head of the Lakes, and the grain carriers, on discharging their cargoes, will anchor in the harbor and await developments. The ore trade is the backbone of shipping here, and the real maritime season will not be open until it begins.

The package freighters are moving freely. The Gratwick of the Chicago & Duluth Transportation company arrived on her first trip from Chicago this morning at 12:45, and is loading today. She will leave tonight or early tomorrow morning. The Mahoning of the Anchor line, the second of that fleet, arrived late yesterday afternoon, and the Muney, which arrived Wednesday, has loaded with package freight and a deck load of shingles, and will leave some time this afternoon. The steamer Duluth of the Western line was the first of that fleet to arrive, entering the harbor at 9:45 this morning. Another boat of the same line is en route up the lakes.

The first lumber shipment from this port will probably be made tomorrow. The steamer Adelid Shores, which arrived yesterday morning with a cargo of salt, discharged this morning and went to the Red Cliff Lumber company's dock for a load of lumber for shipment to Jersey City, N. J., via Buffalo.

AMERICANS ARE WANTED

Seamen Think Americans Should be Given Preference on Lakes.

Canadian Owners Give Canadian Citizens the Preference.

That there is an international complication in the labor situation on the Great Lakes is the report among marine men in Duluth, and developments are being watched with considerable interest. One company, advertising for a mate, has specified that the successful applicant must be a citizen of the United States, born or naturalized, and thereby hangs a tale.

Canadian vessel owners last season put a ban upon American sailors on Canadian vessels, it is said. The consequence was that the Americans who had shipped on Canadian vessels, were turned loose and Canadians were shipped in their stead, thus creating an unpleasant feeling between the sailors having their homes on this side of the border.

There has been grumbling this spring. To one American, who had been working on Canadian boats, there were scores of Canadians working on American boats and the American sailors, who were turned off their ships flying the Union Jack, began an agitation against the men sailing under the stars and stripes.

The agitation continues. It is claimed by the men that American citizens should not be allowed to walk the docks, while Canadians hold places with American vessel owners, especially when Americans are discriminated against by the Canadian owners. The agitation has reached the vessel owners and some of them show a disposition to fall in line and employ only American citizens, at least as officers of their ships. The agitators hope to spread it to the whole crew. One officer is known to have been let out because he was not an American citizen. If all the owners fall in line, there will be places for every competent American sailor, for hundreds of Canadians are employed on American boats, and there is not room for them on the boats of their home lines.

NEW CANADIAN PORT.

Government Undertakes Extensive Harbor Work at Port Stanley.

Port Stanley, May 1.—Government Inspector Ross is here to superintend the construction of a big pier here, on behalf of the Dominion government. Both day and night gangs will work, and by the end of the present summer Port Stanley will have a harbor that will admit the biggest vessels on the Great Lakes.

As an indication of the large task the dredging company will have one steam and three sailing barges in commission all the time bringing stone from Pelee Island, a distance of eighty-five miles.

The proposition is to build a breakwater 200 feet to the southwest and then turning at an angle to run 900 feet southeast. This, the engineers claim, will, with the furher deepening of he channel, which will be resumed at once, enable almost any vessel to make port here.

Officers of Mutual.

Paul E. Chandler, elevated from traveling freight agent of the Mutual Transit company with headquarters at St. Paul, to general freight agent of the same line, with headquarters at Buffalo, was in Duluth yesterday with H. S. Noble, assistant general manager of the Mutul line, and H. A. Kimball, assistant general freight agent of the Great Northern railroad.

COAL FOR SUPERIOR.

More Activity in Chartering of Vessels at Buffalo.

Buffalo, May 1.—There was a trifle more activity in coal shipping circles yesterday, the Lehigh Valley doing some business. Among the charters reported were the Clyde, Moravia, Oceanic, Wilkesbarre and Fleetwood for Superior at 30 cents. These boats will load the last of the week or early next week.

Detour Flashlight.

Detroit, May 1.—The new flash light for Detour has arrived and will be operated in a short time. It replaces the old fixed white light and will be much more powerful.

Grain Boats in Port.

Ogdensburg, May 1.—The steamers Morley and Omaha, the first grain boats of the season, arrived at prescott. The Rutland arrived at Ogdensburg.

Ice at Buffalo.

Buffalo, May 1.—Ice conditions at this end of Lake Erie are still bad and some boats are having difficulty in getting through. The steamer Edmonson, from Port Colborne, has been stuck two miles out since Wednesday afternoon.

Load Grain at Chicago.

Chicago, May 1.—A block of 500,000 bushels of wheat was placed for shipment to Buffalo at 1½ cents a bushel. All of the grain will be loaded next week.

No Ore in Sight.

Cleveland, May 1.—Small coal cargoes are offered pretty freely, but there are few vessels on the market. There will be no change in the situation until there is a demand for tonnage at upper lake ports. Lumber cargoes are scarce and there is no ore in sight.

Vidette Returns.

The government yacht Vidette returned last evening from a ten days' cruise around the lakes, during which Port Wing, Ashland, Ontonagon and the Apostle islands were visited. Everything was found in good condition in the different harbors.

The Beautiful Month of May

has been the theme of spring poets since long before Monsieur Du Luth discovered the Head of Lake Superior. May is not always as beautiful here as it might be. WOULD INTEREST MEN OF CITY IN RELIGIOUS WORK

Y. M. C. A. Will Add Assistant Secretary for the Purpose.

New Building Will be Occupied Some Time This Month.

The Duluth Y. M. C. A. has plans for the extension of its work along religious lines, which include Sunday mass meetings for men in some large, central hall, and noonday Bible classes in all parts of the city.

A call has been extended to Rev. J. A. McGaughey of Two Harbors to take the position of religious secretary of the association. At the present time the religious work is in charge of W. H. Lippold, who also has supervision of the educational work. The latter department has grown so rapidly during the last year or two, however, that it already demands all of his attention. More than 300 students were enrolled this year, and as soon as the department enters the new building there will doubtless be a big increase in the number.

The result has been that the religious work has not been pushed in the way that the association directors are anxious to see it.

If Mr. McGaughey accepts the call, he will have full charge of the religious work of the association. Sunday mass meetings for men, at which some of the most prominent platform speakers in the country will be heard, will be conducted. Bible classes for men will be organized and meetings will be held in shops and factories at the noon hour. Bible study and the religious work of the association will be pushed in every way possible. The plans the association directors have in mind may take years to work out, but they aim at making the association a most influential religious body, reaching the men of the city who are not reached by the churches.

Mr. McGaughey, it is believed, is eminently fitted for the new work. He has been pastor of the Presbyterian church at Two Harbors. When he went there, four years ago, the church was a little frame structure, with but a few members. He has been instrumental in building a handsome brown stone building, costing from $12,000 to $15,000, practically all of which is subscribed. The congregation has doubled in numbers.

REV. J. A. McGAUGHEY.

The exact date of the opening of the new association building has not yet been fixed, but it will take place some time this month. The marble workers have caused many delays, but within a few days it is believed that the exact date of the opening can be announced. The committee in charge of the opening ceremonies is composed of Watson S. Moore, Oscar Mitchell, E. L. Bradley, Alfred Merritt and C. A. Smith.

After a hearty exchange of greetings the king was driven to the great palace, where the two empresses were awaiting him. The prefect of St. Petersburg has given orders that the city be decorated with flags on the day of the wedding and that it be illuminated for two hours in the evening.

BODY INCASED IN ICE.

Berne, May 1.—While exploring the Monterosa glacier, yesterday afternoon, a party of guides discovered, in an ice crevasse, a body which they cut out of the ice and brought to town. BISHOP POTTER SERIOUSLY ILL

Forced to Abandon His Participation in Church Affairs.

New York, May 1.—Announcement was made last night that the Right Rev. Henry Codman Potter, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of New York, is so seriously ill that he has been forced to abandon his participation in the affairs of the church.

For a week Bishop Potter has been confined to his home, suffering from the effects of a physical breakdown due to overwork. His condition, which, by his physician and by those friends who have seen him, is admitted to be grave, has been made worse by attacks of stomach and liver trouble.

Bishop Potter is 74 years old and until the day his health gave way he insisted on doing as much work as was done by men much younger and stronger. There was a slight improvement in his condition yesterday when it became possible for him to sit on a couch in his room for a short time. He is still very weak, however.

WON'T ANNUL MARRIAGE.

De Sagan and Mme. Gould Will Find No Priest for Ceremony.

London, May 1.—The Globe's Rome correspondent says he has as authority a member of the Sacred college for stating that the request of Mme. Gould for the Vatican's annulment of her religious marriage with Count de Castellane will be refused, the pope being inflexible in affairs of this kind. Thus Prince de Sagan and Mme. Gould will find no Roman Catholic priest prepared to sanction their marriage.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The laying of the foundation of the new Y. W. C. A. building was begun today. In the excavation work a floor of solid rock was encountered, and it will be upon this firm natural foundation that the foundation stones will be laid. The contract calls for the completion of this part of the work by June 1. By that time the plans for the superstructure will have been completed and the contracts let.

Each day the necessity for the new building becomes more apparent, as the present quarters are entirely inadequate for the various classes and meetings for which there is demand. The dressmaking and millinery classes, which are always a feature of the spring season, are having even more difficulty than usual this year to find place and opportunity for their meetings. The class rooms for educational and domestic science, and the other classes, will be one of the most welcome feature of the new home.

Musicale.

A large number of Duluthians were the guests, last evening, of the members of the Ionic club of the Scottish Rite Masons at a musicale, which was given at the Auditorium. The organ numbers were played by Carl Landi, and the vocal numbers were sung by Miss Jane Everington and George Suffel. Two violin numbers were played by Oliver Colbentson. The program was well presented and gave much pleasure to the guests of the evening.

Informal Evening.

Rev. and Mrs. R. J. Mooney entertained the young girls of the Altar Guilds of Holy Apostles' and St. Luke's churches, last evening, at the parsonage. The evening was a delightful one, and pleasant entertainment was planned by Mrs. Thomas Mathews. Informal musical numbers and dancing were enjoyed. In the dining room Mrs. J. A. Scott presided, and the rooms were prettily decorated in potted plants and ferns.

PUBLIC RECEPTION.

Art School Managers to Receive at the Rooms.

The public reception, to be held tomorrow afternoon at the rooms of the Duluth Art school, is attracting much attention. The school rooms are located on the third floor of the Washington school building, which are across the avenue from the high school at Third street and First avenue east. The board of managers has arranged the reception in order that those interested in the work of the school may meet the director, C. C. Rosenkranz and inspect the rooms and equipment of the school.

The guests will be received from 4 to 6 o'clock, and a cordial invitation is extended by the board of managers to any one interested to attend. The school is a work undertaken by the Women's Council, and although it has been maintained but a few weeks, the response has been encouraging, and it is now expected that it will be self-supporting, an almost unheard of good fortune in the history of art schools. The various classes have been organized and the school is doing splendid work.

The board of managers of the school consists of Mrs. H. C. Marshall, Mrs. J. B. Weston, Mrs. Julius H. Barnes, Mrs. J. D. Titcomb, Mrs. H. S. Mahon, Miss Carey, Miss Robertson, Miss Mary Naughton, Miss Hopkins, Miss Jessie Thomson, Miss Roe, Mrs. W. B. Phelps and Miss Poirier.

It is desired that the men of the city who have shown interest in the work will call tomorrow, and the members of the Duluth Art association are especially invited.

Bridge Party.

At the second of two affairs, at which Mrs. A. W. Hepworth and Mrs. H. J. Kremer were hostesses yesterday, at the home of the former, 1721 East First street, the favors were won by Mrs. C. H. Dunning and Mrs. Frank Fregeau. Bridge was played at ten tables.

May Day Dance.

The Spring Assembly will be danced at the Spalding this evening. The affair will be one of the largest of the series given during the season, as many of the society people have returned from their winter sojourns abroad.

Forward Guild.

The Forward Guild of the First Presbyterian church will meet tomorrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock, with Mrs. F. H. Rogers of 1108½ East Second street.

Personal Mention.

Feminine Reflections.

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

Masculinity covereth a multitude of sins.

Satan and Cupid are chums, who go about together looking for people who have nothing to do.

The most pitiful sight in the world is a man in a big department store looking for the place to buy a spool of thread.

Many a woman has divorced her husband for "desertion" who cheerfully helped pack his trunk and pay for his railway ticket when he left her.

The man who kisses the pretty chambermaid would be horribly shocked to catch his wife winking at the butler.

Their love is mutual when a woman thinks her husband simply perfect—and so does he.

The average man is about as good a judge of women as a woman is of race horses; he picks the favorites by their shape and color.

A man's conscience is made of india rubber—warranted to stretch as long as the fun lasts.

MOTHERHOOD'S JOYS.

Julia Ward Howe Urges Mothers Not to Undervalue It.

"I would not exaggerate even so great a blessing as that of maternity," says Julia Ward Howe in the May Delineator. "Every woman cannot be a mother, and many women in our days have gifts and callings which detain them far from the pains and pleasures of the nursery. Their lives may be replete with good to themselves and their community, nay, to the world at large. Heaven knows that of all women I should be the last to undervalue their labor and their reward.

"But to you young mothers not yet weaned from the vanity of girlhood I would say: If this great blessing of maternity shall visit you, do not undervalue it. Do not whine at its fatigues and troubles. Its reward is worth waiting and working for. A new life will come to you with that of which you are yourself the giver. The minute study of human progress, which now becomes part of the duty, will make you wise beyond your own anticipations. If in giving life you have given death, remember always, that in giving death you have given the immortal hope which lies beyond it.

"The woman who has no children never knows the gerater joy of devotion. Her sympathies, instead of extending themselves, will narrow more and more, and tend to concentrate themselves upon the merely pleasurable experiences and sensations which only lead souls about in their own labyrinthine domain. She may win personal distinction and high fame. She may surely deserve them, but she will be in danger of following the false way which begins and ends in self. If the fates deny her marriage, or leave it bare of offspring, let her win to her arms some motherless child, and study the lesson taught by the dear Christ when he placed a child before His disciples and bade them learn from him the great science of life.

"The beauty of childhood is not easily over-appreciated—the mobile countenance, the flexible muscles, the fair, smooth forehead, the unconscious grace of movement. What a lovely presence is this! It illuminates your whole house, be it a hovel or a palace. The babe newly born, so fine, so soft, so tender! By degrees, it enters into possession of its bodily powers. Soon he follows her about, walks beside her, begins to question her regarding the meaning of all that he sees. He learns to pray at her knee. He goes to school. All the way from infancy to adolescence is strewn with flowers. It has no doubt an offset of anxieties and cares, but would any of us dream of giving up the rose because of its thorns?"

Dancing Party.

The fourth of a series of dancing parties at which the members of Palestine assembly have been hosts, will be given tomorrow evening at the ball room of the Masonic temple.

Devotional Service.

The speaker at the devotional meeting at the Young Women's Christian association rooms Sunday afternoon will be Rev. J. A. Roberts, who will have as his subject "Ideal Womanhood."

About Women.

Lady Suffolk, daughter of Mrs. L. Z. Leiter, is intensely interested in reviving the old Malmesbury lace-making industry. During the winter she has made excellent progress in this work. At her own expense she has equipped classes and provided the premises for their accommodation. She has also engaged experts to instruct the girls in this lost and beautiful art.

Miss Carro H. Clark, the only woman book publisher in the world, has made a remarkable success since the very beginning of this enterprise. From a little village in Maine she went to Boston a few years ago, her only assets being a good education, splendid courage and health and plenty of enthusiasm.

Her first business venture was in keeping a small book and stationery store, but her advent into the publishing business was one of those sudden inspirations which later spell success. Reading the manuscript of Mr. Pidgin's "Quincy Adams Sawyer," she immediately offered to bring out the book on her own responsibility. This venture was a big success, as the many others which have followed have been.

Princess Carl of Sweden, a daughter of King Frederick VIII of Denmark, is a skilled maker of children's toys. Since her childhood she has been an adept in this particular art of designing new and novel toys and putting them together. In the Swedish capital Princess Ingeborg's name is synonymous in this connection with skilled workmanship.

Through Miss Helen Gould's influence more than $100,000 was subscribed last week for the American College for Girls at Constantinople, which was destroyed by fire two years ago. Miss Gould visited the school last year and became much interested in its work. Miss Gould contributed $10,000 of the amount raised as the result of a lecture given by Dr. Mary Mills Patrick at Miss Gould's home. Dr. Patrick represents the college, and it was through Miss Gould's interest that she came to this country to present the work and its needs to American women.

What Retail Markets Offer.

California cherries, 50 cents a pound.
Chives.
Strawberries, 20 cents a quart box.
Green beans, 15 cents a quart.
New beets, two bunches for 15 cents.
Fresh pinapples, 35 cents each.
Leg of lamb, 25 cents a pound.
Beef tongue, 65 cents each.
Columbia river salmon, 20 cents a pound.

Nature has much to be thankful for. The many directions in which she may realize herself should bring satisfaction and joy and peace and happiness and when nature comes to consider the why and wherefore of all existence it might remember just cherries and be content with no other achievement for all eternity. A cherry is the most perfectly satisfying thing in all creation. It is beautiful to taste. It is delicate, gratifying, slightly antilizing, it never becomes common, has a sort of artistocratic aloofness especially at the beginning of the season and meeting the stone in the heart of the fruit is but an added delight. It just saves one from reaching the pinnacle of happiness and, of course, that would mean an immediate descent. But the stone in the cherry keeps you thinking that will be perfectly happy after you have eaten the next one. But it always is the next one.

Cherries are in the market.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

FRANK PATTON,
Who Plays "Hank Jones" in "In Wyoming."

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—"In Wyoming."
METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

"In Wyoming."

"In Wyoming," which will be given at the Lyceum tonight, and tomorrow matinee and night, is without a doubt the best play Willard Mark ever wrote. The story is interesting throughout the entire four acts. The characters are all taken from life and are a correct portrayal of the people who go to make up the inhabitants of the state from which the play takes it name. The scenes and incidents are laid in the beautiful Big Horn valley, the center of interest being the ranch of a well-to-do cattleman. The picturesque scenery is all painted from sketches made on the spot by Edward Fourinet.

"In Wyoming" was produced here by the Mack-Leone players under the name of "Sage Brush" and won instant favor. The cast remains almost the same, with the exception of Will Jerome, who plays the part of Bob Rickards, which was created by Mr. Mack. This young romantic actor has made the success of his career in this part.

Amateurs' Night.

The management of the Metropolitan will offer a new list of amateur acts at the burlesque house this evening. No amateur acts were given last Friday because of the Gotch-Beell event, so that the acts scheduled for that time, as well as those booked for tonight, will be given, insuring a list of would-be headline acts. Mr. Longstreet says the fun making possibilities are greater than ever. In addition, there will be the Jolly Widows' regular show.

The chorus girls' contest last evening was a big hit. Helen Carey won the first prize, May Delmay the second and Kirby and Kirk the third.

SCHLEY FOR CABINET.

Bryan Would Make Admiral Secretary of the Navy.

Washington, May 1.—Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, for secretary of the navy, in William J. Bryan's cabinet.

This is the tip given out here from sources close to the Nebraska candidate for the Democratic nomination, and is understood to be intended to give an idea of what Col. Bryan will do if nominated and elected to the presidency in the way of having practical heads for department chiefs.

Incidentally it is also intended for political effect in Maryland, Admiral Schley's home state, when the Bryan boom needs boosting.

Of this case of "counting the chickens before they are hatched," the Bryan men have this to say:

"It will be the first time in history that any naval officer has received this position. The position of secretary of the navy has always been more or less of a joke.

"The department has been run by the bureau of navigation, and the secretary has not been much more than a chief clerk, who registers the decree of that bureau."

ENTERPRISE.

Success Magazine: A Bladensburg merchant was dozing in his store one day when a little girl with a pitcher appeared in the doorway and asked for a quart of molasses. The storekeeper yawned, stretched himself, half opened his eyes, and then, in an injured tone, said, "Ain't there nobody in Bladensburg that sells molasses but me?"

ARMOUR TRYING TO CORNER MAY WHEAT

Advance of More Than Two Points in Bear's Market.

Both Options Off in Duluth—Flax is Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 1.—Chicago furnished the sensation in the wheat market today. The general tendency of the market was to go lower, but manipulation in Chicago sent the May option in that city upward, a-flying, and caused that would not have otherwise existed, in the same option, at Minneapolis and New York. Both active options were off in Duluth.

Although the other options everywhere showed a loss, Chicago bulls sent May up to 2⅝c over yesterday, at the close today, all of which gives further credence to the rumor that has been afloat for the past week to the effect that the Armour crowd was attempting a corner in May wheat.

The foreign demand kept up here today, something over twenty loads, mostly durum wheat, being worked during the session here.

Minneapolis stocks decreased 1,250,000 bus., for the week and it is estimated that Duluth stocks will decrease 1,500,000 bus., but much of the general news of the day was bearish. Cables were weak, the Modern Miller's report bearish and Argentine shipments larger than clear last week or last year. Argentine shipments of wheat were 2,504,000 bus., against 2,584,000 bus., last week and 3,544,000 bus., a year ago.

Liverpool closed ¼d to ½d lower, Berlin ⅝c lower and Budapest ⅜c higher.

The Modern Miller says:

"A majority of the reports to the Modern Miller says winter wheat condition is excellent, and many of them report improvement. Best conditions are in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Nebraska, Kansas and the Southwest. Deterioration is reported in Illinois and sections of Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas due to excessive rains. Damage by Hessian fly is reported and many fields have been plowed up. There was little loss in acreage except in Texas, where floods caused considerable drainage and in the fly infected sections of ansas."

The May option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, 2⅝c higher in Chicago, ⅛c higher in Minneapolis, ⅝c higher in New York and 1c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ½c lower in Duluth and New York, ¼-⅜c lower in Chicago, ⅛c lower in Minneapolis and 1c lower in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅛-¼c higher in Chicago and ¼d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅛c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Quietness characterized the early dealings in wheat, and values at the opening were influenced by the strength in America yesterday, and ½d higher. Following the opening there was some disposition shown to take profits due to increased pressure to sell La Plata cargoes, and the heavier Argentina exports. The market during the morning session was extremely dull. At midday, prices were ¼d to ½d lower than Thursday.

"Corn was quiet and unchanged. The market was neglected."

Car receipts at Duluth were 16 against 121 last year, and at Minneapolis 133 against 312 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 149 against 433 last year. Chicago received 18 against 35 last year. Winnipeg received 71 against 99 last year.

Primar receipts of wheat were 273,000 bushels, last year, 811,000 bushels. Shipments, 352,000 bushels; last year, 754,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 46,000 bushels.

Primary receipts of corn were 303,000 bushels. Shipments, 347,000 bushels; last year, 439,000 bushels. Clearances of corn were 52,895 bushels.

Wheat was quiet in the Duluth market, and during the latter part of the session prices went off. May wheat opened unchanged at $1.04½, declined to $1.04, rallied to $1.04⅜, declined to $1.03⅜ and closed at $1.03⅝, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday. July wheat opened ⅝c higher at $1.05, declined to $1.04⅜, rallied to $1.05⅜ and closed at $1.04⅝, a loss of ½c from yesterday. September wheat was inactive and closed ¼c lower at 90½c.

Durum wheat closed ½c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 3c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet, but closed stronger. May flax opened unchanged at $1.19, advanced to $1.19½ and closed at that price, a gain of ½c over yesterday. July flax opened unchanged at $1.21 bid, advanced to $1.21½ and closed there, a gain of ½c over yesterday. September and October flax were inactive.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Irregular With May Option Strong. Distant Deliveries Weaker.

Chicago, May 1.—The wheat market was irregular at the opening today, the May option being strong while the more distant deliveries were weak. The deliveries on May contracts were only 250,000 bushels. Covering by shorts sent the price of May up to $1.00¼. Plt traders and commisison houses sold July and September because of the excellent crop prospects. July wheat opened ¼@⅝c lower at 88½@88⅝c, sold at 89c and then declined to 88¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 167 cars against 131 cars last week and 468 cars one year ago.

The feature of the market was the bulge in the May option which sold up to $1.04 on light trading. July advanced to 89¾c. The close was easy with July ⅛@⅜c higher, at 88½@89c. May was up 2⅝c at $1.02.

The corn market was steady because of small receipts. The deliveries on May contracts were 2,500,000 bushels. July corn opened a shade higher to ¼@⅜c lower at 63⅞@64c, sold at 63¾@63⅞c and then advanced to 64¼c. Local receipts were 81 cars with 17 of contract grade.

Prices ruled steady all day. The high point for July was 64½c. The close was steady with July ⅛c lower, at 63⅞@64c.

The oats market was steady. The deliveries on May contracts were 6,000,000 bushels. July oats was ⅛c higher at 45⅝c and sold at 45¾c. Local receipts were 292 cars.

A decline of 5c in the price of live hogs caused an easy market in provisions. July pork was 10c over at $13.40. Lard was 7½c lower at $8.47½. Ribs were 7½c lower at $7.20@7.22½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.02; July, 88¼@88c; September, 84¼@84c. Corn—May, 67¾@67⅝c; July, 63⅝@64c; September, 62c. Oats—May, old, 53⅞c; May, 53c; July, old, 46⅞c; July, 44½c; September, 37c. Pork—May, $13.02½; September, $13.65; July $13.65; July, $13.35. Lard—May, $8.25; July, $8.42½@8.45; September, $8.62½. Ribs—May, $6.92½; July, $7.20@7.22½; September, $7.45@7.47½. Rye—Cash, 81c. Barley—Cash 60@65c. Timothy—May, $4.25. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 99½c@$1.04; No. 3 red, 96c@$1.02; No. 2 hard, 99⅜c@$1.07; No. 3 hard, 96c@$1.05; No. 3 spring, 98c@$1.11; others, nothing doing.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Prices of May and July Wheat Strong, With September Dragging.

Minneapolis, May 1.—An indicated decrease in Minneapolis stocks of 1,250,000 bushels for the weak was a strong local feature. There were 133 cars here against 312 and in Duluth only 16 against 121. The wires brought news of forty loads sold for export and the weather and crop reports were not so favorable. Mainly the local strength came from the fact that to noon there has been no deliveries at all of wheat on May contract, this indicating lightness due to the scarcity of other wheat. May and July were strong, September dragging. Near the close Minneapolis wheat deliveries were given as 215,000 bushels. This broke the market a cent, but it rallied again. May opened at $1.05⅞c high, $1.07¼; low, $1.06⅜; close, $1.06¼. July closed at $1.03½ and September closed at 89⅞c.

Cash demand was not very active, No. 1 being quoted at 2c over May and No. 2 at May price with some ½ under. Close: No. 1 Northern, $1.08 spot or to arrive; No. 2 Northern, $1.06 spot or to arrive. No. 2 wheat, 95c@$1.05. No. 3 yellow corn, 67@67¾c; No. 3 white, oats, 49¼@49¾c. No. 2 rye, 73@73¾c.

The barley market was extremely dull with scarcely any business to report. Close, 52c to 70c.

Flax was in fair demand at 1c over Duluth May price. Close, $1.20¼.

Bran in bulk, $21.00@21.25, with millers reporting good demand.

Prices went up 10c a barrel all around ports mixed. One big company said business was better, but the smaller companies found it dull and some said demand was poorer. Shipments, 37,729 barrels. First patents, $5.45@5.60; second patents, $5.35@5.50; first clears, $4.20@4.30; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

Grain Gossip.

The action of the Minneapolis millers in announcing a willingness to accept No. 2 northern on May and July contracts has been one of the interesting features of the week to the trade. Nearly all of the big millers in the state, including the Pillsbury-Washburn and Northwestern Consolidated companies, have signed the agreement to accept No. 2 northern. In Duluth it has not been necessary for the local milling companies to take any such action, as for some years No. 2 northern has been a contract grade, at a discount, of course, in the local exchange.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Closed Strong With Rallies in the Late Dealings.

Rise in St. Paul Was Chief Feature of the Session.

New York, May 1.—Opening prices of stocks today showed mixed changes from last night, but the majority of prominent issues were lower. None of the changes of those actively dealt in was large, but American Car declined 1¼ and Third Avenue 1. Transactions were on a small scale.

Prices moved nervously within a narrow range and got slightly lower than at the opening, before the market definitely turned upwards. The recovery was due to a moderate demand for the principal Western stocks, particularly St. Paul and Union Pacific. Early losses reached 2¼ in Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic preferred and 1 in American Smelting. Southern Pacific advanced a point.

Prices hardened slowly on light dealings until St. Paul had risen 2, Southern Pacific 1⅝, Delaware & Hudson 1¼, Union Pacific and Iowa Central preferred 1, North American 2¼ and Westinghouse Electric 2. St. Paul preferred declined 2 and Manhattan and American Ice 1. Bonds were irregular.

A quiet accumulation of the standard dividend-paying railroad stocks imparted a degree of strength to the entire market, but there was little of interest to the speculation. Pennsylvania was marked up 1½ to 120⅞ after the announcement of the dividend reduction. Reading, New York Central, Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific and Consolidated Gas also gained 1 to 1¾. Union Pacific and Manhattan 1½ and Southern Pacific 2.

St. Paul continued its leadership of the market and extended its advance to about 3 points on large purchases. The demand otherwise was largely confined to the transcontinental group. Great Northern preferred being lifted 2, Northwestern 1¾ and Union Pacific 2¼. United States Steel preferred rose 1.

The market closed strong and active. Gains were extended in St. Paul to 4⅜; Westinghouse Electric, 3¾; Northern Pacific, 2¼; Chesapeake & Ohio, 2⅜; New York Central, Northern Pacific, Reading, Baltimore & Ohio and National Lead, 1½ to 1¾; Norfolk & Western, Kansas & Texas, Wheeling & Lake Erie and Pressed Steel Car, 1¼. Louisville & Nashville, Union Pacific preferred, Mexican Central and American Locomotive, 1. Immediately reaction followed when room traders sold to realize profits. Prices rallied in the late dealings.

Copper Gossip.

Codez, Boston, to M. W. Lee & Co.: In spite of the lowering of the metal price in this country and abroad, the market for the shares continues to get firmer. There is still but one side to it, and that is the bull side. The features today were Atlantic and North Butte, which latter continues strong. Atlantic has some favorable news on the Atlantic Lodge exploration and besides Superior will start stamping at their mill in a few days. I believe that the consolidation between the two properties will ultimately be effected.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 1.—The cotton market opened easy at an advance of 12 points to a decline of 10 points, near months being higher on the cables, while July was unchanged, and later months under heavy realizing and bear pressure, which was encouraged by the appearance of large selling orders in the hands of recent buyers, better weather in the South and a private acreage report indicating an increase of 4.5 per cent. The market was unsettled and about 16 to 17 points net lower during the middle of the morning.

Spot, closed quiet, 10 points lower; middling uplands, 10.20; middling gulf, 10.40; sales, 21,700 bales. Futures, closed easy; closing bids: May, 8.37; June, 8.35; July, 8.43; August, 8.40; September, 8.32; October, 8.36; November, 8.35; December, 8.49; January, 8.41; February, 8.44; March, 8.48.

THE LIVES OF OVER 200 MEN

Were Lost by the Explosion on Japanese Cruiser.

Washington, May 1.—Commander Dougherty, American attache at Tokio, today cabled the navy department that the total casualties by the explosion on the cruiser Matsushima yesterday, were 207 men. His dispatch is as follows:

"Tokio, May 1.—Matsushima was destroyed at Poscadoros, April 30. Magazine explosion. Loss, 23 officers, 35 midshipmen, 1 warrant officer and 130 men."

DEAD BODY OF ROBBER FOUND

Victim of Stephen Merchant's Shots, Discovered on Prairie.

Winnipeg, Man., May 1.—While tracking the Stephen, Minn., bank robbers from the south border this morning a party of United States detectives discovered a dead body on a prairie, eight miles northeast of Stephen, Minn., the scene of the robbery. The body was denuded of garments and lying a few feet from the corpse was a small pile of ashes, indicating that the desperadoes were taking no chances on identification. The dead man was doubtless the robber shot from the roof of the building adjoining the Scandia State Bank of Stephen, on the night of the robbery, by a local merchant who fired at the robbers.

One hundred men, armed with rifles, are out on the hunt and the people are anxiously awaiting news of desperate encounters at any moment with the remaining members of the gang.

No Positive Clue.

Crookston, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is no positive clues to the Stephen bank robbers. Two suspects are being held at Warren, and Cashier Olson went to Emerson, Man., to look over the two men arrested there yesterday afternoon, but there is nothing as yet to connect them with the crime. Three strangers were arrested on the Great Northern southbound flyer, last evening, at Stephen. They were riding on the bumpers and are held as suspects.

TWO ARRESTED.

Attempted to Murder Man Who Would Not Sign Deed.

Los Angeles, May 1.—O. A. Wildaman, an attorney, and A. P. Sanger, both of Los Angeles, were arrested yesterday on a charge of attempted murder. Guests of the Hollenbeck were startled in the afternoon by a pistol shot in one of the rooms in the hotel. A number of the guests broke into the room and Dr. Bell, one of the occupants, was arrested. He explained, however, that the other men in the room had attempted to make him sign a deed, giving his wife all his property, valued at $100,000, and upon his refusal, they attempted to kill him. Upon this showing, the two alleged assailants were arrested. Bell says that through the machinations of Sanger and Widaman he has been estranged from his wife. Bell owns much property at El Paso, Texas.

VICE PRESIDENT TO GO TO QUEBEC.

Washington, May 1.—Vice President Fairbanks will officially represent the United States at Quebec, Que., during the visit there of the prince of Wales, July 22 to 29, on the occasion of the celebration of the 30th anniversary of the arrival of Champlain. This government also will be represented at the ceremonies by a man-of-war, which probably will be the new battleship New Hampshire, under command of Capt. Winslow.

NOMINATIONS MADE BY THE PRESIDENT.

Washington, May 1.—The president sent to the senate today the following nominations:

To be United States attorney for the district of Montana, James W. Freeman.

To be assistant secretary of commerce and labor, William R. Wheeler of California.

RAILROADS

DEMAND FOR MEN HEAVY

Railroad Work Will Furnish Employment to Laborers.

Crews Shipped From Duluth Today for Extension Work.

The spring opening on the railroads doing extension work has begun. Orders for additional men are being placed in both the Twin Cities and Duluth for additonal crews. Bridge men are wanted in the Montana district, where the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul is pushing through its extension to the coast, and the Soo is also employing more men.

Orders have been placed in this city for more men for the West. Free fare is paid and the men are promised high wages. Track ballasting and the regraveling will also require additional men in the Duluth districts. From this time on more men for railroad work will be required.

A crew of seventy-five men was hired in Duluth this morning for railroad work in Montana. The wages were in somes cases as high as $2.50 a day. Another crew was shipped out last night. This morning the employment offices took on a more lively appearance than has been the case for the past four or five months. Some of the offices were crowded with men, who were signing up for the trip West.

One employment official is authority for the statement that no men need be idle. The work opening on the railroads is expected to provide employment for many of the men in Duluth, while local improvement work will take care of some of the men.

At least some of the roads are not going to pursue a policy of curtailment, in regard to extensions and improvements. From the present indications, many men will be shipped to the West within the next two weeks. The Harriman lines are going to do some heavy improvement work. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul is rushing work to reach the coast by December, and the other lines that have extensive improvements on hand will, it is said, spend a great deal of money in hiring large crews to push the work.

LOW RATES EAST.

The South Shore Road Puts in Its Summer Schedule.

Special rates were announced this morning by the passenger department of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway. These rates apply to Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit and Toledo, via St. Ignace, over the connecting boats of the Dettroit & Cleveland Navigation company.

A round trip rate of $20.50 applies to Buffalo, beginning June 9, and good for return passage until Sept. 15. A rate of $17 has been made to Detroit and return; a rate of $17.75 to Toledo and return, and a rate of $18.50 to Cleveland and return.

There will be five boats weekly meeting the trains of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, at the connecting point. St. Ignace.

WORK ON DEPOT.

Wisconsin Central is About Ready to Begin Construction.

Work on the new Wisconsin Central passenger and freight depot will begin shortly after the first of June, according to advices received at the local office. Just as soon as progress on the excavating will permit, work on the foundations of the new depot will be begun. At the present time, according to estimates made of the excavation work yesterday, it looks as if the first work on the depot proper will begin upon or shortly after the first of next month.

LARGEST EVER.

Deliveries of Actual Grain in Chicago Beat All Records.

Chicago, May 1.—Deliveries of actual grain and provisions on May contracts were today, in the aggregate, the largest ever reported in one day on the Chicago board of trade. One firm, which has been heavily long on for 6,000,000 bushels of oats and 3,000,000 bushles of corn.

Ten million pounds of ribs were delivered, this amount including one lot of 6,800,000 pounds, which was delivered late yesterday. There was also delivered 6,000,000 barrels of pork and 7,000,000 tierces of lard.

LOCKS JAILER IN CELL AND ESCAPES.

Atlantic, Iowa, May 1.—Fred Auterburn, alias George M. Howard, a prisoner, last night locked Jailer Larue in a cell and escaped. Auterburn asked Larue to bring him a cup of water, and as the jailer opened the door to pass in the water, the prisoner bounded out and forced Larue into the cell. The jailer was not found until this morning. The prisoner was being held for the authorities at Tuscola, Ill., where he was wanted on a charge of burglary and horse stealing.

AMBASSADOR LEISHMAN TO BE ASKED TO EXPLAIN.

Washington, May 1.— Representative Murdock of Kansas today took up with the state department the alleged action of Ambassador Leishman in endeavoring to induce Mrs. Bernard Warkentin to sign a paper releasing the Turkish prince, who accidentally shot her husband on a railroad train near Damascus, from prosecution. The state department will request an explanation of the ambassador. The matter has not gone so far as filing a formal complaint against Mr. Leishman and probably will not at least until his explanation is received.

BIG MITT MEN SCARCE

City is Unusually Free From Grafters This Spring.

These People Have Learned to Give Duluth Wide Berth.

Big mitt men, card sharps, burglars, grafters and criminals of all descriptions apparently are afraid of the Duluth police. They are giving the city a wide berth this spring. Probably never before since Duluth was a village has everything been so quiet locally in police circles at this season of the year. There is nothing doing in police court, and about the only arrests are drunks, with now and then a vagrant and beggar. An occasional petty theft, and once in a while a fist fight, is about the extent of the offenses against the laws just now.

This condition is very unusual during April and May. Ordinarily these two months are about the busiest of the year for the police department, owing to the fact that thousands of lumberjacks with their winter's savings are flocking in and out of the city, offering ready money to grafters who make it a practice to get their living from their fellow men by dishonest methods. There are almost as many lumberjacks as usual this spring, and they are pretty well supplied with money, such of them as have been working, but human vultures who in the past have been on hand to rob them are not in evidence this year. The Duluth police treat this class of men pretty harshly when they get hold of them, and this fact probably explains why they are confining their operations to other cities now in preference to Duluth.

Yesterday there were only two arrests made all day. One was a man accused of begging on the street, and the other was a common drunk. Three men lined up in police court this morning, and one of them was arrested only a short time before the grist was due to line up before Judge Windom. One of the three was a beggar, one a drunk, and the other a man accused of threatening to assault his wife. A good deal the same condition has prevailed during the last two or three weeks, and it is an exceptional morning that more than four or five offenders against the law line up in the usual gaist in police court.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Drowns in Tower Bay Slip.

Charles Chaffee, aged 50 years, a resident of Eveleth, Minn., was drowned in Tower bay slip some time Wednesday evening. The body was found yesterday. Chaffee was seen at the Mission about 11 o'clock Wednesday evening. It is supposed that while wandering about on the docks he stumbled and fell into the water. The decedent had been in the city but a few days. He is said to have been a man of good habits and his friends do not believe that he voluntarily jumped into the slip.

Says He Was Held Up.

William Collette of 1408 Tower avenue complained to the police yesterday that he was held up Wednesday evening on Belknap street, near Grand avenue, and robbed of $4. Collette claims that a stranger thrust a revolver in his face and compelled him to give up his money, after which he was told to "move on." He described the robber as a man about 25 years old, 5 feet 8 inches in height, dark complexion and smooth face.

"Amnicon Fred" Sentenced.

Fred Krell, better known as "Amnicon Fred," pleaded guilty yesterday to the attempt to kill John Carey, a section foreman at Amnicon, and was sentenced to a term of sixteen months in the state penitentiary at Waupun. Krell, who has been in jail since last September, was much pleased at the lightness of his sentence. The defendant has lived in the vicinity of Amnicon many years, hunting and trapping. Last September he had an altercation with Carey, who gave him a beating. Krell got his rifle, followed Carey to the Rockmout ticket office and fired a bullet into the foreman's shoulder. Krell remained in hiding for several weeks in a vacant farm house, where he was found half starved. He could not account for his action in trying to kill Carey.

New Wholesale House.

Duluth has a new wholesale house in the Minnesota Fruit company, which has opened with a complete line of fruit and produce at 320 West Michigan street, in the new building adjoining the Wright-Clarkson Mercantile company. The incorporators are Louis M. Goldberg and Moses Goldberg of Wisconsin, and Peter T. Olson of Duluth, who has been connected with the Fitzsimmons-Derrig company and the Knudsen-Ferguson Fruit company for the past fifteen years.

SUBSCRIBERS

To Pennsylvania Bonds Will be Allotted 5 Per Cent of Order.

New York, May 1.—Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who received subscriptions for $20,000,000 of the Pennsylvania railroad bond issue, announced today that subscribers for the bonds who offered to take $15,000 or upwards of them will be alloted 5 per cent of their subscriptions.

AL SELBACH'S BON MOT.

Indianapolis Star: Al Selbach, who played on the Washington team years ago, is in the clothing business in Columbus, Ohio, in the off season, and rumor states that the genial Al and his brother do a fine retail trade during the snow-flying portion of the year.

The other day George Carey, known to Washington baseball fans as "Scoops" Carey, and who is now a resident of East Liverpool, Ohio, the birthplace of the popular Charley Hickman, was in Columbus, and he stopped in Al Selbach's store in order to purchase a suit of clothes.

George bought the clothes all right, but the next day, being in a kidding humor he and Billy Clymer, another ball player, dropped into Selbach's store, when Carey said to Al:

"Look here, Rip, that suit of clothes I bought of you yesterday was a bum fit."

"Well, what do you expect for $15," said Al, "a first-class attack of epilepsy?"

BUTTONS IN DEMAND

The Johnson "Booster" Badges Are Going Like Hot Cakes.

Signifies Spread of Johnson Sentiment in St. Louis County.

If the demand for the Johnson buttons is a fair criterion from which to gauge the popularity of the Johnson movement here, there can remain no doubt of the large following that the governor has for the Democratic nomination for president.

Since the buttons were placed at the counters of The Herald, yesterday morning, there has been a heavy demand for them. The demand comes not alone from Democrats, but also from Republicans who, out of loyalty to Minnesota and their regard for Governor Johnson, hope to see him secure the nomination.

Johnson buttons were a familiar sight upon the streets today and yesterday. Wearers of the first buttons which went from The Herald office were the recipients of many eager inquiries as to where the buttons could be secured. Since the first buttons made their appearance upon the streets, the wearers of "Our Next President" lapel decoration have increased by hundreds.

Now that the active fight for the delegates to the county convention has opened, the political pot is beginning to simmer. The Bryan followers will make a desperate attempt to capture the St. Louis county convention. They realize that they must make a good showing in this county to lend any strength to the cause of Bryanism in Minnesota and their desperate straits have lead the few Bryan workers in this district to adopt strenuous efforts to head off the growing Johnson movement, which is apparently drowning such opposition as the Bryan workers can throw in its way.

The Johnson supporters express no ill-will to Bryan. This is a reflection from the stand taken by Governor Johnson. They believe that Governor Johnson is justly entitled to the support of his own state, and they are meeting with ready and enthusiastic support in this view of the situation. On the other hand many men who have been ardent Bryan supporters for the past three presidential elections, who refused to vote for Alton B. Parker, and who are today friendly to the cause of the "Commoner," have expressed themselves as decidedly in favor of the Johnson movement.

In fact, the number of expressions favoring the Johnson cause, that have come from men who have been Bryan supporters in the past, is one of the most encouraging aspects of the Johnson movement in this district.

The fight against Johnson is being led by men who have personal motives for opposing his progress in Minnesota. This fact is beconing known, and the Bryan workers are not gaining progress because of this knowledge.

OVERWORK CAUSES CRIME.

Renders the Victim Irresponsible for His Actions, Says Noted Expert.

There is no doubt that overwork often unhinges the nervous system and renders the victim irresponsible for his actions, and weakens his power of self control, says Pearson's Weekly.

The banker is confined to his counter, the student is tempted to push his sedentary habits into the hours required for repose, the public man and politician undergo every form of mental strain. The cerebral system is overtaxed, the normal controlling power becomes more or less for a certain time abnormal, not only in his judgment, but in his natural propensities.

To such an extent in this sometimes seen that crime is often the result of this disordered state of the nervous system.

Overwork not only increases the number of the insane, as is admitted by all, but, as I have just stated, is responsible for an increase in crime. Where crime exists there is often bad insanity, and vice versa, so what leads to one result will obviously lead to the other. Increased cerebral activity is the cause of this calamity.

The evils of excessive study generally do not act in one direction only, they manifest themselves in a morbid condition of the organ of thought, which, reacting on the mind itself, disorders its manifestations. Excessive mental thought causes disorganization of the whole nervous system and fibers of the delicately made brain.

It is a well-known psychological fact that suicide is often the result of an overworked brain, and a desire to commit murder can often be attributed to the same cause. These, in my opinion, are two of the most terrible crimes that can possibly be committed.

Excessive mental labor has thus often stolen away many a valuable life which might, with ordinary precaution, have been saved. The attack is often sudden, the brain having been pressed till it can go no further, suddenly collapses and gives way. The long and gallant struggle with circumstances, the work of toil, tells the tale when the brain refuses to further respond. I believe that many cases of crime can be traced to the overwork and overpressure which is going on in our large public schools and our universities.

How often we have the sad history of a bright boy going to Eton or Harrow. He leaves the school with every promise of great distinction, and he goes to the university.

There, perhaps, he obtains a scholarship, his goal is a fellowship. He unfortunately breaks down previous to the final examination, the overpressure he has had at school shows its inevitable results, he gives way to excesses and vices in consequence of his brain loosing its controlling power.

The man of refinement, of genius, of learning, is frequently reduced by overpressure to a mere automation, and, rendered unaccountable for his actions. Overstudy not only affects the mental condition of a man, but also his general health.

A sedentary life is often followed by melancholia, and subsequently by severe brain disease, which often, not being recognized, causes the unhappy sufferer to commit some strange act—it may be harmless, it may be otherwise.

I hold a very strong opinion that before overwork can produce crime in an individual it must first weaken the nervous system and produce an incipient form of mental disorder.

I cannot see that overworked persons can in any way be stated to be a cause for crime unless, as I have said before, the brain is partially affected, and as a result in some cases the mental and moral power of control is lost, and a criminal act is often the direct result.

The evils of excessive study generally, and not simply in one exclusive direction, manifest themselves in morbid conditions of the organ of thought, which, reacting on the mind itself, disorder its manifestations.

Hence, it has often been observed how narrow the bounds are between madness and crime, and how frequently the

IF

You were out of a job—wanted and needed one to supply bread and clothing, you wouldn't think of walking into every store and office in the city and personally asking for work, would you? If you did, it would be slow, tiresome work—and look at the time consumed—you could starve before you saw everybody.

This method of asking for and securing work is out of date. The new, quick, sure, profitable way is The Herald "Want" ad way.

The cost for a Herald "want" ad is but a trifle, and every business man in Duluth reads The Herald.

SWEEPING VICTORY FOR SUPPORTERS OF JOHNSON IN MINNESOTA ASSURED

Opponents of the Governor Cannot Win in Any District.

Dirty Work of the Bunch of Disgruntled Office-Seekers.

Republican Situation in the State Growing Worse Every Day.

St. Paul, May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the time for the Democratic caucuses approaches, the contest for the Minnesota delegation is getting warmer. The opponents of the governor are making a desperate effort to make trouble for him and make something of a showing, even though they know that they have no hope of carrying the state.

The friends of Governor Johnson in charge of his campaign make the positive statement that there will not be twelve counties in the state that will not elect Johnson delegates to the state convention. In the first five districts there will not be four counties against Johnson. Even conceding them Hennepin, which the Johnson men do not think of doing, they will not have 250 out of the 935 delegates in the state convention, and these will be scattered through the state so that no district will be able to elect Bryan delegates.

Never before in a Democratic campaign have such preposterous and brazen claims been made for a candidate as the Bryan men are making for their side of the contest. And in all the pre-convention campaigns of the Democratic party in the state, never has there been such a profuse use of money as is evident in the Bryan campaign. It is asserted that fifty men have been employed going about the state defaming Johnson and trying to win away from him the laurels that he has so deservedly won. They have

NO DECREE OF DIVORCE

Hazelton Fails to Get Divorce on Ground of Cruelty.

Judge Says Defendant is Entitled to Benefit of Doubts.

Detroit, Mich., May 2.—After a long and animated legal battle, one of the most remarkable and interesting divorce cases ever tried in Detroit came to a finish when William Hazelton, former instructor in the engineering department of the University of Michigan, was refused a divorce from his wife, formerly Miss Julia V. Johnson of Duluth. The court room was packed to the door—mostly with men—who stood in dense groups listening to Mr. Groesbeck's long and ardent summing up.

When Mr. Groesbeck had finished, Mr. Graves, Mrs. Hazelton's attorney, rose for his turn, but fell back into his seat when Judge Hosmer's voice broke the silence with the words:

"I do not think I shall want to hear you, Mr. Graves."

Every one sat tensely expectant waiting for what the judge had to say, for few cases of domestic imbroglio in many years have aroused the interest of so many people as that of the Hazeltons.

"While I do not mean to say that the defendant in this case is free from blame," resumed Judge Hosmer, "nor

MURDERED HIS WIFE'S PARENTS

Battle Creek Man Also Attempts to Kill His Wife.

Battle Creek, Mich., May 2.—Angered by an action for divorce started by his wife, Joseph B. Blunt, a liquor salesman, broke into the home of Mrs. Mrs. Blunt's parents, here, today, where she was living with their children, and killed his wife's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Homer S. Jones. Mrs. Blunt, who saw her parents killed, fled, scantily clad, from the maddened man's revolver, rushing out doors into a snowstorm with her baby in her arms. Blunt then came down town and gave himself up to the police. Blunt broke into the house about daylight and rushed into the bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Jones, where they were sleeping, with one of the children in bed at the time. He killed both man and woman, as they sprang out of the bed, but missed his child. His wife, who had been aroused, saw the shooting and saved her own life only by fleeing from the house.

GOVERNOR J. A. JOHNSON SPEAKS AT ROCK ISLAND.

Rock Island, Ill., May 2.—Governor Johnson of Minnesota last night delivered a lecture at the Moline theater. Later he attended a banquet given by the college.

WOODWORKERS ARE LOCKED OUT

Clyde Shipbuilders Close Yards Against Over 6,000 Men.

Glasgow, May 2.—The Clyde shipbuilders this morning locked out 6,000 woodworkers from their yards. This measure is an outcome of the dispute between the Shipbuilding Employers' federation and the shipworkers of the northeast coast, who struck rather than accept a reduction in wages, and who have not been able to get the federation to arbitrate their demands. Lockouts have been decided upon at all the shipbuilding yards in the United Kingdom and workmen in other branches gradually will be locked out. There seems every prospect of a complete stoppage of the shipbuilding industry, a condition that will affect directly not less than 250,000 men.

INCREASE IN RATES

For Hauling Meats to be Made by Southern Railroads.

Will Advance Costs of Foodstuffs to the Consumers.

Washington, May 2.—It appears likely that the anticipated increase in railroad freight rates is about to be made. A few days ago a number of the interstate commerce commission expressed the opinion that within three or four months, unless a decided improvement in railway conditions should take place, it probably would be necessary for the carriers either to increase freight rates or to reduce the wages of their employers. Personally and officially the commissioners deprecated the taking of either horn of the dilemma by the railroads, but he believed it to be inevitable that one or the other course would be taken.

Sooner than was expected, action looking to an increase in freight rates has been taken. The railways of the Southeastern territory have filed with the interstate commerce commission, tariffs, effective June 1, increasing their freight rates on fresh meats materially. The proposed rates will affect

A BURLINGTON TRAIN IS HURLED FROM THE TRACK BY DYNAMINE AT BUTTE

Explosion Lifts One Engine, Turns Over Another, and Smashes Several Cars.

An Engineer is Missing and a Number of Trainmen Are Hurt in Wreck.

Butte, Mont., May 2.—Eastbound Burlington train No. 6, due in Butte at 1:30 o'clock last night, was dynamited about a mile west of the Northern Pacific station at 1:37 o'clock. The explosion caused the first or helper engine to leave the rails, but it plowed along for a few hundred feet without turning over. The second engine crashed into the bank south of the track, a few car lengths from where the explosion occurred and turned over. Every person on the train has been accounted for, except Engineer Bussy of the second engine, who is supposed to be buried under his locomotive. Carl Mange, who was riding on the blind baggage, was taken from a mass of timbers under which he was buried. His arm and leg were broken. Fireman George F. Vale of the second engine was seriously scalded. Both were hurried to the hospital.

Mail Car Wrecked.

The mail car was hurled on its side and wrecked. A cold storage fish car was smashed into kindling wood. Only the front trucks of the express car left the rails. The baggage car was also derailed, only the Pullman remaining on the tracks.

Sheriff Charles Henderson, Under Sheriff Howard Bailey and Deputies Wheeler and Richards were quickly at the scene of the wreck. They were joined there by Sergeants of Police Sinsel and Brinton and Chief of Detectives Charles Bair. The officers at once began an investigation of the affair. The dynamiting is believed to be the work of some tramp seeking revenge for being ejected from a train.

Express Messenger J. B. Valentine was seriously cut by a flying grenade. His escape from death in his car is considered remarkable.

Engineer Tells of Explosion.

A clear account of the explosion and wreck is given by Engineer F. W. Lensie of the head engine. "We were about ten minutes behind time," said he, "and were running at a rate of about forty miles an hour. The line is perfectly straight and we had a clear track. Suddenly there was a terrific explosion and my engine was lifted clear off the track, but quickly settled on the ties, along which it ran for about 300 feet. I applied the brakes, but not before the coupling had broken between my engine and the one following. After applying the air I shouted to my fireman, John Doring, to jump, and we both dropped to the ground as the engine came to a standstill.

"As soon as I realized the situation I hastened to the scene of the wreck and found the second engine turned over on its side. A moment later I ran to George Ehele, Bussy's fireman. He was walking wildly about with his arms and hands terribly shattered and the skin actually falling from the flesh. Ambulances quickly responded, and he was hastened to the hospital."

A LOVE LETTER CENTURIES OLD

Engraved on a Sheet of Clay and Found in Assyria.

New York, May 2.—It seems almost a breach of confidence when Prof. Gabriel Oussami placed before the cold scrutiny of Brooklyn spectators last evening, a love letter written thousands of years ago, by an Assyrian swain to his lady fair.

This swain lived in the city of Ashur and was evidently provoked at the hard-hearted behavior of the young woman.

"Why was it, my beloved," he engraved on a sheet of clay about an inch thick, "that you did not meet me, as you said you would? Why did you bring sorrow to my heart? But, light of my life, could it be that you were ill?"

Assyrian youths wrote their letters in wedge-like characters on soft clay and before dispatching them put them in the kiln.

The professor exhibited an enlargement of the love note to the Brooklyn institute of arts and sciences. The letter was dug up by a party of German students, who were exploring ruins in Assyria.

WIFE OF THE PRESIDENT OF PURDUE UNIVERSITY WITHDRAWS FROM WORLD

Mrs. Stone Leaves Husband to Pursue a Mystic Teaching From India.

Head of University Resigns, But Trustees Insist That He Shall Remain.

Lafayette, Ind., May 2.—President Winthrop Ellsworth Stone of Purdue university confirmed last night a report that his wife has withdrawn from the world, including her husband and family, to pursue a mystic teaching supposed to be imported from India. He and his two sons are heartbroken and would eagerly welcome her back, but are unable to reach her. The circumstances were laid by President Stone before the board of trustees of the university with his resignation, but the board has voted unanimously to retain President Stone in the official position he has held since 1900. Three years ago there was organized in Lafayette a class in so-called Yoga philosophy. Many women and some men in the college town joined the class, which became quite the fad with certain highly educated people. It was taught that the complete power of the Yoga involved "withdrawal" or separation from kindred friends. The last heard from President Stone's wife she was in Germany.

Dr. Winthrop Ellsworth Stone was born in New Hampshire July 12, 1862. He graduated at the Massachusetts Agricultural college and then finished his studies at Gottingen, where he remained until 1888. He met his wife abroad, but married her in this country while he was chemist at the Massachusetts State Agricultural experiment station. He and his wife had lived in Lafayette since 1889, when he became professor of chemistry at Purdue.

ARE PLENTY OF SERVANTS

New Yorkers Have No Trouble Getting Domestic Help.

New York, May 2.—If after-panic conditions have not solved the servant problem for New York housewives, they have at least revolutionized it in some of its aspects, according to the annual report which Commissioner of Licenses John N. Bogert has just sent to Mayor McClellan. The report shows a marked change of conditions from a year ago, largely brought about by the operations of the law of supply and demand. Not once has the business of the employment agencies fallen off, but a surprising reduction in the scale of wages is indicated. A year ago the intelligence offices could not supply domestic servants to all applicants. Now they are overrun with applications for employment and conditions have been reversed.

"The books of 200 domestic servants agencies," says the report, "indicate that the average earnings of cooks in private families have fallen off from $35 to about $32.50 a month, while the wages of house workers have dropped from a range of from $16 to $25 a month in 1907, to $15 to $23 in 1908."

Agencies supplying stenographers and technical and clerical help have also been affected. The report shows that beginners in stenography are now paid $6 and $7 a week, against $8 and $9 a year ago. A significant phase of the situation is the reduction in the number of employes. The same houses which have reduced the salaries of their employes have since January reduced in number their clerical force of all grades from 30 to 50 per cent.

BRIDEGROOM IS NOT GUILTY OF KILLING CHILD

Minneapolis, May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Griswold, the Hopkins bridegroom, charged with manslaughter in the shooting of Benjamin Navrati, 6 years old, was found not guilty last night in Judge Simpson's court, Minneapolis. The jury brought in the verdict at 9:15 o'clock. The trial was begun last Monday and the testimony was all in yesterday morning. The state put in evidence that Griswold fired three shots on one side of the house and two on the other on the evening that he and his bride were visited by the charivari party. But Griswold testified that the bullet which hit the boy was fired by somebody else, a rival of Griswold, and that the shot was aimed at him, missing him and hitting the boy.

Griswold was corroborated in his testimony by the testimony of his wife and that of her father. The boy died the following day.

ENORMOUS PROCESSION

Sixty Thousand Catholics March in Streets of New York.

Many Prominent Men Are Seen Among the Marchers.

New York, May 2.—Sixty thousand Roman Catholic laymen marching in procession today brought to a climax and formally ended the week long celebration of the centenary of the founding of the Roman Catholic diocese of New York. No more perfect day could have favored the parade. The sky was almost cloudless, the air clear and bracing. Along Fifth avenue and through Fifty-seventh street, where the line of march led to the disbanding point, hundreds of thousands of persons were massed and the immense reviewing stand, which had been erected in front of the cathedral, made a picture the like of which was seldom seen. It had been built to accommodate 3,500 persons, and its whole capacity was placed at the disposal of women and children and the distinguished prelates who have been participating in the observance of the centenary. The prelates in their gorgeous robes occupied a space in the center of the stand, and banked around them on every side were the thousands of women and children.

Prominent Men in Parade.

Of all the 60,000 who took part in the parade every man save one was on foot. The mounted man was Brig.-Gen. Thomas Barry, the grand marshal. Behind him trudged the thousands, millionaire and laborer. In the van was a delegation from the Catholic club, among them Thomas F. Ryan, Thomas A. Emmet, Justice W. Goff, Justice Davis and Justice O'Gorman of the supreme court; Bourke Cockran, Eugene Philbin, John D. Crimmins, David McClure and many other men prominent in the city's life.

Many of the large stores and other business places conducted by Catholics had declared a half holiday for today, that their employes might have an opportunity to take part in the parade or join with the other thousands who crowded the streets to review the marchers.

The parade formed at Washington Square well down toward the lower end of the city and moved up Fifth avenue past the cathedral and to Fifty-seventh street, where it was dispersed. The line of march covered a distance of approximately three miles.

FOUR BODIES ARE FOUND IN RUINS

Fire in Chicago Results Fatally to Several Men.

Chicago, May 2.—Two additional bodies, making three in all, were recovered today from the ruins of the plant of the Chicago Reduction company which was destroyed by fire last night, caused by the explosion of a naptha tank. The bodies are believed to be those of William Lanse, a watchman employed by the company, and Stephen Novak. Six men are still missing, according to the police, and it is thought the bodies of some of them may be in the ruins.

Another body, supposed to be that of John Fonus, an electrician employed by the company, was found later in the day, but it could not be recovered owing to the heat from the burning ruins. The body lay on top of a portion of the wall which had been left standing and could be seen from an adjoining building, but efforts of the firemen to lasso the body by means of ropes thrown from the roof of the adjoining building proved futile.

FELL ON PILE OF BROKEN ROCK

Workman Sues Duluth Crushed Stone Company for $5,500.

Suit was filed in district court this morning against the Duluth Crushed Stone company by Robert Altvasser, who claims $5,500 damages for injuries sustained while in the employ of the company at their rock crushing plant in Duluth, Nov. 4, 1907.

Altvasser was employed by the company keeping clear a hole through which the crushed stone fell into conveyor boxes. He charges that he was compelled to stand on the four-inch rim of a box ten feet from the floor. On the day of the accident, it is claimed, the box into which the stone fell, became clogged, and while Altvasser was clearing it, the machinery jarred the box, sending him to the floor among the broken rock. He sustained a fracture of the arm and other injuries.

Negligence on the part of the company is charged, in failing to provide a proper platform, on which he might stand, with a railing for his protection. G. F. Davis is his attorney.

WORKING ON CANDIDATES

Anti-Johnson Clique Try to Influence Governor's Friends.

Efforts Made to Have Them Withdraw as Delegates.

Desperate straits have driven the anti-Johnson clique to adopt desperate methods in an attempt to stem the Johnson sentiment that is sweeping the county. The men who are personally opposed to the election of delegates favoring the cause of Governor Johnson are attempting to persuade men known to be favorable to a St. Louis county delegation instructed for Johnson, to refrain from being candidates for the county convention.

Just what the men opposed to the sentiment favorable to Johnson hope to accomplish by gum shoe methods is difficult to understand. Supposing they should exert influence sufficient to secure the withdrawal from the caucus of some candidates known to be in favor of giving Johnson an indorsement in the county convention, it is hard to see how they can prevent others favorable to Johnson from being elected as county delegates.

It is known that attempts are being made to bring every influence to bear on some of the candidates for county delegates to persuade them from either using any influence in promoting Johnson sentiment, or allowing their names to be used as candidates. The only object that can be hoped for by the anti-Johnson workers is that some less popular anti-Johnson man might possibly be elected as a county delegate.

The clique opposed to the favorable indorsement of John A. Johnson is being driven to the adoption of such methods by the tide of popular sentiment that is sweeping St. Louis county. The men working in the interests of the governor are pursuing their way with an unruffled demeanor. So far they have encountered nothing that has served to excite a show of temper, such as the anti-Johnson faction is giving way to. They have no resentment against Bryan; they are conducting an open fight for the indorsement of their candidate, and are confident of victory.

WILL SHOW THE PUBLIC

Mayor Haven Inaugurates New System for Monthly Reports.

Gives an Itemized Account of All the Work Done.

Mayor Haven is inaugurating a new system of keeping track of work performed in every city department. It shows in detail just what has been done, at what cost, and at what profit, by practically every city employe during any given month.

"People who think holders of political offices in Duluth do not do enough work to earn their wages will have a chance to see for themselves," said the mayor this morning. "There is a general idea prevalent with the public that a man holding down a city job doesn't have to work. This impression is entirely wrong, and hereafter we shall be able to prove it to the satisfaction of everybody interested. As much is expected of a man holding down a city job as of a man working for a private corporation or an individual, and all of them must be efficient and capable of earning the money paid them."

Heretofore there has been a certain slackness on the part of some of the departments in making reports, because many details were not required. The city employes did their work all right, and earned their money, but there was nothing to show for it in the records in many instances. All this is changed under Mayor Haven, and under systems suggested by him all reports have to be made out in detail, and in regular form, showing just what has been accomplished, under what circumstances, at what time and under what expense.

The monthly report of the plumbing inspector may be taken as an example. This position calls for a lot of work, and keeps a man busy all the time, but heretofore he has not been required to make out a report showing all the details of his work. Now he gets out a report showing in an itemized fashion just what has been done during the month. Every job inspected is shown in detail, together with the time such inspection was made. Anybody interested can even figure out how much car fare the inspector should have spent during the month. For all permits issued, the man receiving them must give the inspector a receipt, which comes in handy in case of dispute.

INSPECTOR HAS ISSUED PERMIT

Trouble Relative to Sellwood Building is Finally Adjusted.

A permit for the construction of the Sellwood building, setting the cost of the structure at $225,000, was issued this morning by Building Inspector Kielley, on the advice of City Attorney C. S. Wilson. Tenants have been moving into the building since yesterday, regardless of the fact that a permit had not been issued.

The matter of a permit has been hanging fire for several months. It was withheld in the first place because material used in building was placed on the sidewalk and street, blocking traffic to a certain extent, without permission from the city. The opinion of Former City Attorney Bert Fesler was asked in regard to the matter and, after an investigation, he recommended that a permit be withheld. Acting on this advice, Mr. Kielley refused to issue the permit. Mr. Wilson, the present city attorney, decided that there was no good reason for withholding the desired permit, and accordingly instructed the building inspector to issue it.

MAY ESTABLISH BUREAU TO HANDLE INSURANCE

Mining Companies May Combine for Protection Against Suits.

Insurance Companies Are Withdrawing Form Northern Minnesota.

"The personal injury suits against the independent mining companies in Northern Minnesota have become so numerous in the last year or two, that there is a plan on foot now to establish a central bureau for all the companies, to handle their liability insurance, and investigate all accidents," said Joseph G. Harrison of the firm of Harrison & Jamar, this afternoon, in commenting on the statement made by L. H. Corcoran, which appeared in the noon issue of The Herald, and which is given on another page of this evening's edition.

"The first story which appeared in The Herald Thursday night did not exaggerate conditions a particle," continued Mr. Harrison, who is agent in Duluth for the Travelers' Insurance company. "Minnesota is getting a reputation all over the country for the number of personal injury cases which develop here. It is a matter of common knowledge that there are professional personal injury people among the miners of Northern Minnesota, who make a businesse of hunting up cases against the companies.

"Mr. Corcoran is not familiar with what he is talking about when he says that the Shenango Furnace company does not carry any insurance, and has refused to do so. The Travelers' Insurance company had the policy for years, and found it a profitable one until about three years ago, when the personal injury suits began to come thick and fast. They refused to renew it, and the company then secured insurance with the Ocean at a higher rate. The Ocean company paid out more in six months in settling claims, than its premiums for a year amounted to, and cancelled its policy. The company then insured again with another liability company and still has that insurance. There is one lawyer who has made a living from suits brought against the Shenango company.

"One bad feature in connection with the personal injury suits to be brought any time within six years of the accident. There are suits several years old now being dug up, and tried in the district court. The companies have great trouble getting their witnesses at that late date, and it is this class of cases that the insurance companies fight to the last ditch. Where the insurance company believes that an effort is being made to hold it up on an unjust case, no expense is spared in fighting the case.

"The companies have been getting stuck so frequently during the last year or two, that one by one they are withdrawing from the field and refusing to take risks. Our company now has only one risk in all of the mines in the northern part of the state."

NEW TRIAL GRANTED.

Joseph Otanichar's Suit Against Furnace Company to be Heard Again.

Notice of Judge Ensign's decision granting a new trial in the case of Joseph Otanichar vs. the Shenango Furnace company was filed with the clerk of the district court this morning. The judgment in the original case was against the defendant who petitioned for ajudgment notwithstanding the verdict, or a new trial. In the arguments, attorney E. C. Kennedy appeared for the petitioners and Alexander Marshall in opposition. The petition for a judgment in favor of the company, notwithstanding the verdict, was denied, but a new trial granted, the original verdict being set aside.

Quorum Not Present for Session of Board of Education.

So many members are out of the city that a quorum could not be secured for the regular May meeting of the board of education at the high school last evening. Directors Cobb, Barnes and Stevens and Supt. Denfeld were the only ones who put in an appearance. As soon as the absent members return to the city, the president will call a meeting.

For an hour or so last evening, the directors and the superintendent of schools discussed different topics, informally, the question of a ten months school year receiving the most attention. Supt. Denfeld gave several reasons why the ten months' term was preferable. The length of the school year will be determined by the voters of the community, at the annual school election in June.

THIRD UNIT OF POWER IS NOW IN OPERATION

The Northern Power company has completed the installation of its third unit.

The company planned on installing three units of 13,000 horse power each, which was deemed sufficient for at least two or three years to come. Two of the units have been in operation for several months and the third was completed this week, and is now running smoothly.

This gives the company 39,000 horse power, which is all that is planned to develop for the present. It also provides much better security against accidents, as if any one of the units were temporarily out of commission, the company would still have two remaining. Recently one of the units was being repaired, and the second one broken down, shutting off the power entirely for a few hours. Such an accident will be impossible in future.

CLAIMS SHE OWNS MINE

Suit Involving Title to Burt Property Being Heard.

Case Similar to One Brought by the Rogers Heirs.

Suit was filed in district court today by Mary A. Skinner, administratrix of the estate of John R. Skinner, deceased, against Wellington R. Burt and the Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mines company, which involves the title to the Burt mine, one of the most valuable properties on the range.

The plaintiff claims that John R. Skinner served in the Union army during the war of the rebellion, and, under the soldiers' additional land grant, given him by reason of his honorable discharge, he filed on the e½ of ne¼, section 31, and ne¼ of ne¼, section 32, township 58, north range 20 west, located in St. Louis county, and was in possession of the title to it at the time of his death in 1906.

The company claims that Skinner, in common with many other Union soldiers, sold the soldiers' scrip, given him on account of his honorable discharge, and in July, 1875, signed a blank power of attorney to go with the scrip, on account of a ruling of the land department, requiring that land be entered on under the soldiers' name. The scrip, the company alleges, passed into the hands of James H. Baker of Faribault, Minn., after several transfers, and Mr. Baker entered on the land described. Baker was compelled to use Skinner's name in entering on the land and had the power of attorney filled out.

The plaintiffs allege that the power of attorney was forged, if one existed, and denies that Skinner knew anything of Baker's taking possession of the land.

A history of the transfer of the land is given by the company, it passing from the Nelson Lumber company to Burt, who leased it to the company. It cites the statute of limitations to show that Burt had possession, undisturbed, for fifteen years, and the action would be barred in consequence.

Over $300,000 has been spent in exploration on the property, and its value is estimated at about $3,000,000. Thomas A. Gall appears for the plaintiff and Joseph B. Cotton for the defendants.

The case is similar to the one recently brought by the Rogers heirs.

PROTEST ON POLE LINE

Fight at Council Meeting Next Monday is Expected.

Further Amendments to Theater Ordinance Will be Adopted.

The board of public works yesterday granted the Duluth Edison Electric company a permit to put up a line of poles in the alley between First street and Superior street, from Third avenue east to Eighth avenue east, in spite of the fact that property owners interested had entered a strong protest against the granting of the request of the electric company.

The petitioners will appear before the council Monday evening, and will put in a strong kick against allowing the pole line to be established. It will be within the power of the council to confirm the action of the board, or it can decide otherwise, and refuse the company the desired permission, forcing it to establish an underground line, as demanded by the property owners. There is likely to be a lively fight on this issue, and fireworks may result at the council meeting.

The company claims it cannot stand the expense of an underground line at present, and says if poles cannot be erected the patrons will have to go without necessary service for the time being, but asserts that an underground line will be provided for later on, whether permission for the poles is granted or not. West of Third avenue east, the lines in the alley are underground, but east of Third avenue the wires are strung above ground on poles. There are other pole lines in that vicinity, and the Edison company contends that it would be an injustice to force their wires underground, in view of these circumstances. The board of public works was in doubt as to what action to take in regard to the matter, but finally decided to grant the desired permission, and leave the property owners to fight it out with the council.

Another matter to come up at the council meeting Monday will be the amended theater ordinance. It develops that Mayor Haven does not intend to veto the amended ordinance, as passed at the last council meeting, covering theaters with a seating capacity of less than 200 persons, but merely insists on three other provisions being included in the amendments before attaching his signature to the paper which will make them a law. These provisions are minor ones, and will readily be included, so the amended ordinance will stand as passed at the last meeting, except for the slight corrections.

One of the provisions insisted on by the mayor is that all the small theaters hereafter constructed shall have as many exits at the side, front and rear as the West Duluth building in question; that the asbestos curtain provided shall lap over the sides of the stage, preventing flames from behind getting to the main body of the house, and that water connections, both in the auditorium and on the stage, with common hose, be provided. The West Duluth theater, the Elco, is thought to be safe enough, but the additional provisions will be merely to insure safety in buildings of this description which may be erected in future and operated for theatrical purposes.

The committee which has in hand the matter of an investigation into the four employment office licenses, upon which renewals were held up at the last meeting of the council, will meet Monday and will be ready with a report for the council Monday night.

Fred A. Merritt, proprietor of a saloon in the Manhattan building, has been summoned to appear in person before the council and show cause why his license should not be revoked, for selling liquor on Sunday, in violation of law. The council, last Monday, voted against revoking the license, but Mr. Merritt failed to appear in person. He merely sent in a communication, promising not to break the Sunday law again.

RULING UPHELD.

St. Paul, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state supreme court has filed an opinion upholding a ruling made by it in a previous appeal of a case which has come before it a second time. The syllabus:

International Boom company and Nakasan Lumber company, respondents, vs. Rainy River Boom corporation, appellant.

Syllabus: Upon a former appeal of this case it was held that there was evidence which required the case to be submitted to the jury and a new trial granted. Upon a new trial the evidence was substantially the same, but the trial court directed a verdict for the plaintiffs. It is held that the decision on the former appeal is the law of the case and the order is therefore reversed and a new trial granted.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

FORTY THOUSAND TESTIMONIALS

Received in two years. It is an interesting statement of facts and shows how important Hood's Sarsaparilla is in the home as a reliable family medicine.

"Ours is a New England farmer's home, and as we are twenty miles from a large town, we are obliged to depend very largely upon the family medicines we keep on hand all the time.

"First and Foremost among them is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which we have always found a true friend and helper. My first use of it was when, after a long period of medical attendance, I had failed to receive any relief from my dyspepsia.

"I Suffered Dreadfully, could not eat heartily without distress, and was obliged to be very careful in selecting my food. I do not know of any greater misery that one can suffer than the continual distress, or fear of it, which haunts

"Dyspepsia's Victim day and night. The first bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla gave me positive help, and when I had used four bottles I was in better health than for many years. I have found it

"A Great Spring Medicine to build one up when strength is most needed, to create an appetite, and in short to regulate the whole system. I have lately been taking Sarsatabs, which I find very convenient in form, and very easy to take, and also very beneficial." Mrs. E. L. Berry, West Troy, Me., March 7, 1908.

Under the Pure Food and Drugs Act, no change was necessary in Hood's Sarsaparilla to conform to the law or to public sentiment. It is perfectly safe, pure, genuine and reliable.

Sarsatabs are making new friends daily. While last year sales were doubling, this year they are trebling. Sarsatabs are so handy—enable you to carry Hood's Sarsaparilla in your vest pocket. They are chocolate-coated tablets prepared from Hood's Sarsaparilla itself by distillation and evaporation, and have the same curative properties. Of druggists, or mailed on receipt of price. 100 Doses One Dollar. C. I. HOOD CO., Lowell, Mass.

HORSES SMASH AUTO.

Runaways Crash Into Dr. Robert Graham's New Car.

Dr. Robert Graham's new automobile was badly damaged this morning by two runaway horses, attached to a dairyman's rig.

The auto was standing in front of St. Luke's hospital, where the doctor had moored it, when the frightened steeds came tearing down the street. The touring car seemed to act as a magnet to them for they steered directly for it, running into the machine with a crash.

When the horses had been untangled from the auto, it was found that both had been injured. The dairy rig belonged to a man named Eberhardt, but he was not aboard when the runaway started. There was no one in the automobile.

ON THE IRON RANGES

MANY TAKE FISH IN ILLEGAL WAY

Ruthless Slaughter of Finny Tribe by Use of Dynamite.

Ely, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dynamiters have been active in the past few days in this section. It is no uncommon thing to come upon parties with dynamite and gunnysacks filled with fish at any of the rapids in this vicinity on Saturdays and Sundays. In many cases the dynamiters do their work openly; many such violations have been witnessed by people driving along the roads near the small streams. Many fish are thus wantonly destroyed and the streams and lakes thus depleted of edible fish. Much comment is heard on the inactivity of the game and fish wardens in this part of the state.

TO CATCH FALLUCO.

Italian Alleged to Have Robbed Woman, Will be Arrested.

St. Paul, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Acting on the request of County Attorney Thwing of Itasca county Governor Johnson has requested the state department at Washington to bring about the arrest of Luigi Falluco, who is alleged to have absconded with $700 belonging to Mrs. James Marra of Coleraine and who is supposed to be on a ship that will reach Naples, Italy, in a few days. Luigi, it is alleged, took advantage of a scrap between James Marra and his wife, Ansutta Marra, and induced Ansutta to withdraw her hubby's money from the bank at Coleraine. Then said Luigi, "I will invest this for you," and Mrs. Marra, being obliged to do without her husband's advice, fell for the game. Now Luigi is on the briny deep, while the Marra family, reconciled but flat broke, are calling down the wrath of every Italian saint known upon the jet black head of the financier of Naples.

The governor sent to Washington a description of Falluco and a request that he be arrested. The foreign officials will be communicated with and when the steamer touches either Gibraltar or Naples, Falluco will be arrested and returned to Coleraine to face the wrath of James and Ansutta.

MEADOW MINE SCHOOL PROPOSITION BEATEN.

Aurora, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school election, advertised for Friday, created but little interest, only twenty-three votes being polled. The questions for consideration were: "Shall the district build a one-room school at the Meadow mine location," and "Shall the district sell the schoolhouse at Allen Junction." The former lost by a vote of 13 to 8, and the latter won by 18 to 1.

There are twenty-seven children at the Meadow mine, which are hauled to school and back every day at an expense of $50 per month. Capt. Hudson made a request to cast the vote of the location by proxy, as the voters from the mine could not be present, but was denied the privilege.

WILL ASK FOR $6,000.

Hillside Club Wants Council to Grade Street for Cars.

The West End Hillside Improvement club decided at a meeting held last evening in Alderman Peter Olson's shop, to ask the council Monday evening to appropriate the $6,000 necessary to grade Piedmont avenue so that an extension of the street car line can be made this summer.

The city engineer has estimated the cost of the grading at $6,000 and the improvement club will endeavor to have the city fathers appropriate it from the general fund.

They will attempt to enlist the aid of the school directors in their campaign for the improvement, as a new school house is to be erected on the hillside, to replace the old Horace Mann, and an extension of the car line would be of great benefit to the teachers employed there.

MARINE NEWS

LITTLE ORE WILL MOVE

Docks at Lower Lake Ports Still Badly Crowded.

New Steamer McGean is Coming for First Cargo of Ore.

Cleveland, May 2.—From present indications the ore shippers will not take up freight matters for some time. Only a few of the big freighters that are managed by shipping firms are fitting out, and very little ore will be handled at upper lake ports before the middle of May.

There was some inquiry for ore this week, but up to date only one sale of 50,000 tons for 1908 delivery has been made. Ore is still slow going forward to the furnaces, and shipments for April will not show much of a gain over March.

The docks at this end of the route are pretty badly crowded, and the boats that have long-time contracts are not being rushed out. The new steamer John A. McGean will probably move the first cargo of ore this season. The McGean left here for Fort William with a cargo of coal Monday night. As soon as she is unloaded she will go to the Head of the Lakes and take on a cargo of ore for Indiana Harbor.

Twelve of the largest steamships of the Pittsburg Steamship company are being fitted out. No date has been fixed for starting the boats, and it will probably be the middle of May before they are all placed in commission.

Several of the local coal shippers have done some season business, but the amount of tonnage that has been tied up is small compared with this time last year. Some of the shippers are not ready to make contracts, and with no ore in sight vesselmen are not in a hurry to tie up. The outlook is for a quiet market for the next few weeks.

Single trip chartering is light all around. There is very little inquiry for grain tonnage, and the coal shippers are not doing much business. Most of the Lake Michigan grain carriers that were chartered for the first trip have started, but only a few ships have sailed from Lake Superior ports.

DRAFT IN SOO PASSAGE.

Boats May Load to Depth of 18 Feet 4 Inches.

Detroit, May 2.—President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association has been notified by the United States engineer at Sault Ste. Marie that vessels may safely load to a draft of 18 feet 4 inches, to get through the Soo passage. There is a draft of 20 feet at Lime Kiln Crossing.

CONTRACTS DISPLEASE.

Vesselmen Resent the Prospects of Cut in Coal Rate.

Cleveland, May 2.—Vessel men are dissatisfied with the contracts that are being offered by the local shippers and some of the owners that have taken coal have refused to sign their contracts. The rates named in the contracts are 30 cents to Duluth and 40 cents to Milwaukee, but a clause is inserted which says the vesselmen shall accept a lower rate if a cut is made.

Last year the ore fleet moved 630,975 tons of ore in April, but this year few cargoes have been loaded.

RUSH AT FORT WILLIAM.

Eight Million Bushels of Grain in Store for Shipment.

Fort William, May 2.—The rush of marine traffic at this port at the present time is unprecedentted. Thirty-seven vessels are in port for cargoes, nearly all of them owned in Canada. Shipments by lake yesterday totalled 1,500,000 bushels of wheat. Eight million bushels are now in store here awaiting shipment.

Contract is Awarded.

Maj. Fitch, United States engineer in charge of rivers and harbors in this district, has been notified that the contract for furnishing steel plate for the pier heads at the Superior entry, has been awarded by the department at Washington to the Belmont Iron Works of Philadelphia. At the time the bids were opened, it was thought the G. & W. company of New York would secure the contract as the lowest bidders, but they imposed conditions on the acceptance of their bid and the government would not accept the conditions, the contract going to the Belmont company, the next lowest bidders.

Inactivity in Harbor.

There was inactivity in the local harbor today, with only one arrival and one departure. The steamer Parent arrived from Lake Erie with a cargo of rails and the Northern Queen, laden with merchandise, cleared for the lower lakes. Several bulk freighters are en route light from the lower lakes to Superior for grain and a few boats are loading at the elevators around the harbor, but the trade for the next two weeks will be desultory, and following that, it is dependent for about two weeks more on the action of the Lake Carriers at their meeting in Cleveland May 12.

Chartering Inactive.

Buffalo, May 2.—The chartering of coal tonnage, which had a brief spurt Thursday, has again fallen into inactivity. No business was reported yesterday.

all fresh meats shipped into the Southeastern territory from the North and the West. The new rates will take effect at the Ohio river and Mississippi river crossings, including Memphis, Tenn., and will be effective in all parts of what is known as the Carolina territory that is, the section of the country east of Asheville, N. C., and south of Danville, Va.

Rate of Increase.

The increase will amount to from 3 cents to 10 cents per hundred pounds on all fresh meats. It is the first material raise in the rates on foodstuffs made by the railroads of the country for a good many years. It will mean much to the consumers, as it will probably result in an increase of approximately 1 cent a pound on low grades of meats and perhaps as much as 2 cents per pound on the select cuts.

While the increase to the consumer in the territory affected by the proposed rates is noticeable, it is likely that it is intended as a feeler of public sentiment with a view to making a general raise in rates on all commodities.

It is conceded by tariff experts of railroads that many of the commodity rates of American railways now in force are comparatively low and it is regarded by those who have studied the situation that in view of the increased cost of railway equipment and of railway employes, it may be necessary to increase some of the freight rates. This is a matter, however, which the interstate commerce commission probably will inquire into carefully to determine whether the rates proposed are in any sense excessive or unreasonable. The increase of rates on fresh meats into the southeastern territory is regarded as the entering wedge of a general increase on all commodities and the result of the inquiry into the question raised will be awaited with interest.

NEIL SAYS IT'S ABSURD

Burns' Manager Announces Johnson Must Come to Tommy's Terms.

Report of Fake With Jack Palmer Indignantly Denied.

Chicago, May 2—Tommy Burns' manager, Billy Neil, arrived in Chicago this week and declared Jack Johnson's trip to the other side of the water would be fruitless unless he agreed to the demands made by the champion. The colored boxer has been after a match with the French-Canadian for some time, but has not received any satisfaction from him. Now he has gone to London for the purpose of forcing Burns into a match for the championship. This, Neil asserts, is absurd, because the champion will pay no attention to him until he agrees to the terms offered him.

The heavyweight champion recently gave Johnson an opportunity to meet him in the arena, but Johnson refused to accept the match on account of the proposition made by Burns. Burns consented to fight Johnson, providing he received $30,000, win, lose or draw, but the colored boxer could not see it that way, and declined. Before this he made the statement that he would fight Burns for anything offered. All he wanted was a chance to demonstrate to the American public that he could whip him. It did not seem as if these were his intentions, as when Burns made that offer to him he immediately withdrew.

In speaking of the matter, Manager Neil said:

"I do not think Johnson wants to meet Tommy. If he did he had an opportunity to sign articles when I was in New York. He and his manager, Sam Fitzpatrick, bluffed about their having posted a forfeit of $2,500 to fight Burns, but when I called on them for the money they said they had up, they failed to show the color of it. Johnson will never fight Tommy unless he agrees to the terms. I really think Johnson did not go over to London to fight Tommy, but went there to meet Sam McVey, with whom he was said to have 'faked it' in Los Angeles some years ago."

"Stories sent out about Burns faking with Jack Palmer, and asking Sam McVey to lay down are all bosh," added Neil. "Tommy was offered $10,000 to fight McVey, but previously he had made up his mind not to fight another colored boxer but Johnson, because the latter had been bragging so much of what he could do. In regard to his match with Palmer, Burns would not fight him unless he would put up a big side bet. Palmer's followers even wagered 3 to 1 against him."

TWO MORE SUSPECTS

Crookston Officers Nab Couple as Winnipeg Flyer Leaves.

Ten Arrests in Connection With Bank Robbery at Stephen.

Crookston, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Early this morning, Capt. Vonderbeck, Officer Phillips and Detective George Lally, made two arrests, on the river bank opposite the Great Northern depot, as the Winnipeg flyer was ready to pull out. A man named O'Brien and his partner, Fred Moh were arrested for complicity in the Stephen bank robbery. O'Brien has but one eye. A man answering the same description worked for a farmer near Stephen, for a month before the robbery, and disappeared the night the bank was robbed. Moh, worked for an adjoining farmer. Last fall the one-eyed man supposed to be O'Brien, and his partner, answering the description of Moh, worked for a few weeks, near Donaldson, and disappeared the night the bank there was robbed. They are believed to be members of the same gang. Farmers at Stephen, and Donaldson for whom they worked will come down tonight to identify them. Officers think they did the work, or are accomplices. Neither can satisfactorily account for his whereabouts for the past week.

Eight in Warren Jail.

Eight men are now in the Warren jail in connection with the bank robbery. Three were arrested at Emerson, three at St. Jean, and two at Greenbush. While pretty strong circumstantial evidence has been obtained against two arrested at Emerson, they having $80 in gold, dynamite caps and plenty of ammunition about them, and in addition showed a disposition to avoid attracting attention by tramping out in the country to a farm house a half mile from the village limits to get a meal when there are plenty of hotels and restaurants in Emerson. There is as yet nothing definitely connecting them with the crime.

One of the strangest facts in connection with the entire affair is that not a trace has been found of the horse and buggy which the robbers appropriated the night of the robbery from the stable of Al Dickerson, the lumberman. It is generally believed that the horse and buggy was driven into a thicket where the buggy could not be seen and the horse shot in order that its whinnering would not attract attention.

Going Toward International Falls.

Another belief, which is plausible, is that the three robbers who left in the buggy drove straight east, crossed the Soo and avoiding main roads and farm houses made their way into the swamps of Roseau county and are headed for the Canadian boundary near International Falls. Because of the sparsely settled country this could have been done as the robbers had ample time to cross the Soo before the people in that section were aware that a robbery had been committed, and there would be nothing in the appearance of three men in a buggy to attract attention.

Travelers who came down on the train from St. Vincent last evening who saw the prisoners Sheriff Forsberg brought to Warren this same train were unanimous in the opinion that none bore the earmarks of professional safe crackers with the exception of one of the men who was arrested at Emerson, who looked like a tough customer and refused to do any talking at all.

Many Banks Robbed.

St. Paul, Minn., May 2.—Investigation of the robbery of the Scandia bank at Stephen this week develops that in nine months sixteen Minnesota banks have been robbed of $23,497.18. Notwithstanding the standing offer by the Minnesota Bankers' association of $250 for the arrest and conviction of bank robbers, rewards offered by indemnity companies and the efforts of detective agencies co-operating with village officials, the raids go on.

MINISTER FACES SERIOUS CHARGE

Mandan Man of Cloth Accused by His Young Domestic.

Mandan, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—On the complaint of his domestic, a girl said to be under the age of consent, Rev. S. E. Bosselley, a Methodist minister of this city, faces a serious charge and the affair has caused a sensation. The accused will have a hearing some time today when the affair will be probed and conflicting reports sifted.

The church people have held a meeting and are determined to stand by their pastor, believing him the victim of a conspiracy between the relatives of the girl and the tough element of the city, whom the minister has been attacking in his pulpit and otherwise. The girl stated to a number of persons at the Crittendon home here, where she was for a time, to the sheriff and the head of the Mandan reform school that the brother of her cousin was responsible for her trouble and that she had been threatened if she laid it at his door. Later her relatives are said to have got hold of her and the charge against the minister followed.

WEEKS' SCHEME PROVED UNDOING

Padded Pay Rolls and Got Away, But Was Brought Back.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Albert J. Weeks, until recently employed as pay roll clerk of the Pennsylvania Coal & Supply company, was arrested in Kansas Ciay, on Wednesday, and brought back to Milwaukee to answer a charge of defrauding the company of about $600 by padding the pay roll.

Weeks confessed to officers of the company, last Tuesday, it is said, that he had drawn a check in favor of C. Martin, forged that name to it and cashed it. He was immediately discharged, in spite of his plea that he be allowed to remain in the company's employ until he had made good the alleged defalcation.

As soon as he was discharged Weeks went to Kansas City. After his departure officials of the company discovered that his alleged defalcations would reach a much larger sum than he had confessed to, and a warrant for his arrest was secured. Detective Arthur Burns was sent to Kansas City, and, recognizing Weeks in the street, placed him under arrest.

The method said to have been used by Weeks was simple. He made out the pay checks for the men employed at all the docks of the company. These checks were then turned over to C. B. Whitnall, president, and A. F. John, treasurer, for indorsement. The checks were then returned to Weeks, who turned them over to a man who went to the docks and handed them to the men.

Weeks, it is charged, made out each month one or two checks to fictitious personages for amounts varying from $5 to $25. These checks were indorsed without question by the officials. When they were returned to Weeks he would, it is said, slip the alleged forged ones in his pocket, and afterwards indorse and cash them.

UPPER MICHIGAN HAS LID HABIT

Movement of Regulation of Saloons Growing More Widespread.

Marquette, Mich., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lid closing movement has been making remarkable progress in Upper Michigan lately. It is not many months ago since the saloon business was conducted with little surveillance from the officers and with less regard to the state laws.

The first bona fide clapping down of the lid occurred in Marquette, and strange to say, it was brought about at the instance of the saloonmen themselves. A considerable number of them formed and organization that went in for law and order. They petitioned Mayor Robertson for a period of law enforcement.

Strange reform went into effect here, the area of the tight lid has been greatly extended. Ontonagon citizens complained of the lax observance of the state law in that county. Attorney General Bird took the matter under advisement, and has acted with a vigor that has finally persuaded the saloonmen that he means business. More recently the sheriff and prosecutor of Delta county declared that the law must be observed in that county, particularly in Escanaba, this following an election in which the saloon was the issue and the liquor men were the victors. In this case also, it appears, the attorney general took a hand. Still more recently Houghton county, where the keys of the saloons were popularly supposed to have been thrown away, has joined the lid closing procession. The sheriff has announced that the law must be obeyed, and threatens its full penalties on any violators. He has, in fact, caused arrests to show that he means business. Mayor Keese of Ishpeming was elected on a flat "enforcement of the law" platform and the lid there will soon be clapped on.

SEVERAL THOUSAND SHORT.

Northern Pacific Agent at Valley City Wanted for Embezzling.

Valley City, N. D., May 2.—A warrant has been issued by Judge W. W. Smith of this city for the arrest of H. A. Kesler.

Mr. Kesler is accused in the warrant of defaulting in the sum of $1,000. The complaint is made by the Northern Pacific railroad, whose local cashier and freight agent he has been for a number of years. The accused was very popular and was held in high esteem by everybody in Valley City. When he disappeared his friendes were slow to believe any evil of him and it was thought that he was mentally deranged.

The affairs of the office are in such shape that it is all but impossible to get at the amount of the shortage. It is expected that it is something like $5,000, but it may be more. In order that no mistake may be made in the prosecution, the complaint names but $1,000, which it can be proved without trouble he has embezzled.

Kesler has been jumping about the country pretty lively since he left here. He was last heard from at Columbus, Ohio. The officials are confident of picking him up within a short time.

LARGEST OF CLASSES.

Seventy-One Students to Graduate From College of Mines.

Houghton, Mich., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—President Charles R. Van Hise delivered the class day address to the class of 1908 of the Michigan College of Mines at the class exercises in the gymnasium last evening.

The exercises were out of the ordinary, as the class graduating this year numbers seventy-two, the largest in the history of the only state institution in Houghton county, a college ranking among the best mining and technical institutions in the coutry.

The officers of this year's class are: President, J. Harry Reeder of Calumet; secretary-treasurer, W. C. Holman of Calumet; toastmaster, W. H. Morgan of Milwaukee.

Dr. Van Hise, in his address last evening, gave the newly made engineers some wholesome advice, dwelling upon their future careers and the importance of their profession. Tonight, President Van Hise will be the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the graduating class.

ASHLAND MAN TAKES LIFE IN WAWAUTOSA SANITARIUM.

Ashland, Wis., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank W. Potter, bookkeeper for C. N. Cramer & Co., committed suicide at Wawutosa, Wis., Wednesday evening by shooting. He had been in poor health for some time and was placed in the Dewey sanitarium at Wawautosa about a week ago. It is supposed that he began brooding over his ill health and in a fit of temporary insane despondency concluded to end it all.

Frank Potter was well known in Ashland and well liked by all who knew him, and they will be greatly shocked to hear of his sad end.

Mr. Potter had been at the Milwaukee sanitarium for the past week with nervous prostration.

Ill health, caused by an accident four years ago, was the real cause of the suicide. His books were in perfect condition, and Mr. Cramer, for whom he has worked for a number years, stated that he had lost an invaluable accountant.

The body was brought here for interment.

ESCANABA ELECTRIC PLANT

Nearly Completed and Will Sell Power to Those Desiring It.

Escanaba, Mich., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. Retallic of the Marquette light and power commission, and Manager McCorkingdale of the Marquette County Gas & Electric company, have been here inspecting the plant of the Escanaba Pulp & Electric company at Flatrock, four miles from Escanaba, on the invitation of the management. The plant is unique in the upper peninsula, in that it is the first one of its kind installed to sell current to the general public, either for lighting or power purposes.

The plant is nearing completion and it is expected to have it in operation by July 1. Contracts have already been closed to furnish the city of Escanaba with current, and also the company which operates the Escanaba traction system.

HE KILLED HIMSELF.

Matt Lehtikankes Fired Bullet Into His Mouth.

Calumet, Mich., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—While Coroner Fisher has not completed the inquiry into the death of Matt Lehtikanges, who lived in the Osceola location and worked at the Osceola mine, and was found dying near Florida, enough has been learned to warrant the statement that he shot himself.

A bullet wound was found in the mouth of the decedent, and the lead was located in the spinal column. The theory that the man took chloroform from a bottle that was found lying beside him is now scouted. However, a certain element of mystery still attaches to the man's death.

The coroner's jury will meet Monday evening of next week in Coroner Fisher's office, when the cause of death will be inquired into.

IS AGAIN IN TOILS.

Paroled Prisoner Falls Through Drink and is Arrested.

Marquette, Mich., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Picked up by the Ishpeming police on suspicion of having burglarized a residence, Adam Markle, alias Dan Carson, has been recognized as an old criminal. He admits his identity. Markie is wanted at the state penitentiary at Jackson, and he will be taken back to prison, there to serve a fifteen-year sentence for highway robbery. The man had been liberated on parole after some five years spent behind the bars, and having violated the conditions then imposed he has been sought for many months past. He lays his downfall to drink. He was intoxicated when he committed the robbery, he asserts, and it was because of his liking for intoxicants that he fell from grace after being paroled.

Fargo, N. USE SPLIT LOG DRAG.

Farmers in Red River Valley Using Implements on Roads.

Crookston, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The split log drag is being used by the farmers of this section more extensively this year than ever. Lowell township, adjoining this city, has every road in the township in the finest kind of shape. The township is destricted and after every shower the farmers get out and drag the section of road accerdited to them. The roads are thus kept so rounded and hardened that ruts are unknown, and two hours after a rain the road is again dry, and therefore does not cut up at all.

MILLIONS OF FEET OF LOGS TO BE DRIVEN.

Bemidji, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The firm of Blake & Hawkins, who has been logging on Turtle river, east of Blackduck, will take a drive of 16,000,000 feet of logs from Rebedew lake down the Turtle river to Cass Lake, to be sawed into lumber at the mills of the J. Neals Lumber company. Henry Blake and Fred Hawkins passed through Bemidji yesterday from Blackduck to Minneapolis to close up some business matters connected with the season's logging. Mr. Blake stated that his company had cut and banked on Rebedew lake 9,000,000 feet of logs during the season's running last winter. The timber was the property of the J. Neals Lumber company and is included in the drive with 6,000,000 other logs cut by other parties.

Mr. Blake says that the season's cut was a very successful one for his firm.

"I am not a candidate for governor at this time, but I am a supporter of Governor Davidson and will do all I can in his personal interest. I believe the present governor is entitled to a second elective term."

CUPID FAVORS CRIPPLE.

Escanaba, Mich., May 2.—That the loss of both feet and the prospect of an invalid's life do not detract from man's value in the matrimonial market was proven in Escanaba when Edward M. Wilson was married to Mrs. Agnes Kidd. Wilson lost both feet a year ago as the result of an accident in a local factory, and when he was friendless and without funds he was taken to the home of the bride and cared for. All of the arrangements for the ceremony were made by the bride, as the groom can be moved about only in a wheel chair.

LIVED IN THREE CENTURIES VIGOROUS AND STRONG AT 108

MRS. MARY WILKINS, 108 YEARS OLD.

Mrs. Mary Wilkins of Remington, Ind., mother of Dr. John A. Wilkins of Delta, Ind., is one of the oldest residents of the state, having lived in three centuries and being in her 109th year.

She was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, September 29th, 1799, and came to this country with her husband in 1840. She is the mother of four children, all living. At the present time she is visiting a daughter in Indiana, and is in splendid health. She enjoyed an automobile ride a few days ago and was greatly pleased at the speed. Mrs. Wilkins remembers the crowning of Queen Victoria, and enjoys telling of the experiences and conditions of a hundred years ago.

On January 18th, Margaret Watson, daughter of Mrs. Wilkins, sent the following letter from her mother:

"Dear Mr. Duffy:—I want to tell you about your medicine, it is doing me so much good. I am now a very old woman. I have passed my 108th birthday. Since taking your Pure Malt Whiskey my appetite is better, and I am stronger. I rest better and my daughter, who is 75 years old, says I am getting younger every day. I feel that your Whiskey is a food and that it will keep me alive for a great many years more. Your Malt Whiskey makes me think of the whiskey they make in Ireand. You may put this in the paper if you want to."

Thousands of letters like Mrs. Wilkins' are received from grateful men and women who cannot ay too much in praise of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for the benefit derived from its use.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens and sustains the system; is a promoter of health and longevity; makes the old young and keeps the young strong.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It is the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Price $1.00. MODERN MIDAS TO MAKE GOLD

R. M. Hunter Declares He Has Realized Dream of Alchemist.

Chicago, May 2.—Has the dream of the alchemist of old been realized in the dawn of the twentieth century?

Eighteen months hence, Rudolph M. Hunter says, he will be manufacturing 24-carat gold at the rate of $100,000,000 annually. Transmutation of silver and baser metals into gold is his secret, and he declares he can produce the finer metal in quality to defy the government experts as to its origin, and in quantity to keep the Philadelphia mint busy the year around.

Mr. Hunter is in Chicago attending to the final details of getting a huge plant at Philadelphia into operation. Behind rock walls, without windows and with a single door to the turreted and feudal-like castle, which is to have $500,000 worth of delicately tuned machinery, this modern wizard promises to revolutionize the gold crop of the world.

Mr. Hunter is an inventor and engineer of standing in the scientific world.

LABOR

CONTRACTS ARE MISSING

May Day Sees Few Agreements Signed by Union Men.

Two Label Leagues Are Active—May Start Union Store.

For the first time in the history of labor in Duluth no agreements between the building trades unions and the Builders' Exchange were signed by the contractors on May 1. The first day of May has always been the date set for the renewal of contracts or drawing up of new ones betwen the union employes and the employers, but contracts calling for the recognition of the unions are absolutely contrary to the principle of the open shop, and of necessity cannot exist when the open shop policy is in force.

The open shop has in no way affected the Cooks, Waiters' and Waitresses' union. Restaurants are still run on closed shop basis. Yesterday a struggle between the proprietors of restaurants and the cooks and waiters was threatened. The union presented its annual contracts for renewal and for a few hours the situation looked dubious. It is said that if certain restaurant proprietors had been able to get waiters from the Twin Cities as they tried to do by telephone Thursday night, they would have refused to sign and would have declared for the open shop. But no non-union waiters were forthcoming and the restaurant men signed rather than close up or run short handed.

"Down with the price of the Merry Widow hat. If we can't get headgear cheaper, we'll start a millinery department in our union label store.

"None of our husbands, brothers or sons will be allowed to work in open shops, as long as we can raise a hand to earn a living ourselves. Open shop means sweat shop, and we will do all in our power to prevent the establishment of such in this city."

These were the sentiments strongly expressed by the members of the Ladies' Independent Union Label league, last night at the meeting in Kalamazoo hall.

Each woman present swore they would have no deserters from the ranks of unionism in her family, and firmly evinced their belief that every man should stick to the principles of unionism to the last. If the men can not get work on a closed shop basis, then the women would take the reins in hand and earn the livelihood for their families. The employers must be made to agree to union policies, they say, even if the end has to be brought about by the wives, sisters and daughters taking in washing or going out scrubbing.

The members of the league are going to start a fund for the establishing of a union store. The members of the league propose that a millinery store, run on union lines, be started also, either in connection with the big union general store, or by itself. They complained that the milliners of the city are "robbers," and that the prices they ask for hats are ridiculous.

If the women do well in their project they will unite with the men who are planning to start a union store.

The league's membership is rapidly increasing. Eighty membership tickets were properly signed last night. Mrs. W. A. Warnecka, president, congratulated the league on its success in the campaign for new members. She also made a strong plea to every member to insist on only union goods when they are shopping. She recommended a few brands of flour and condemned the rest.

After the business session Joseph H. Selleck, vice president of the Lathers' union, spoke on unionism. Miss Swanson, Miss Bushman and Mr. Peterson sang several selections.

Mrs. R. H. Hood, 17 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, will entertain the women of the league at tea next Thursday afternoon.

The principal item of interest in labor circles at the Head of the Lakes this week was the action of the Superior builders' exchange in filing articles of incorporation with the register of deeds of Superior and declaring for the open shop. Heretofore the builders' exchange of Superior has not been an organized body, but in preparation for the May 1 presentation of contracts from the building trades unions for signing, the members organized under the state laws and announced that they would no longer recognize the unions. No new contracts were forthcoming and the old ones expired at 12 o'clock Thursday night without renewal Friday morning. So the Superior builders exchange is no longer bound to employ only union labor.

Though the builders exchange has declared for open shop, no non-union men have been employed by the contractors and no new wage scale has been set. Consequently, conditions continue unchanged except for the lack of contracts. What will be the result when non-union men are employed, remains to be seen. Probably Superior will go through the same battle that has been waged in Duluth for seven months. So long as only union labor is employed, the labor leaders say no friction will arise, open shop or no open shop.

In the Great Lakes lockout, no trouble is said to have been encountered by employers so far. All union men are said to be signing individual contracts.

The Women's Union Label league, No. 230, is growing rapidly. Applications for membership are coming in right along. The organization is turning every energy towards promoting the buying of only union label goods. Union firms which sell union goods and employ union help have asked for the endorsement of the league. The next meeting will be held at Columbia hall Monday night.

The Adella Shores, which is loading at the Red Cliff Lumber company's dock, is the first job of the season for the longshoremen. About twenty-five men have been employed on the job. Steady work ought to be coming from now on for the longshoremen, as boats are beginning to come in pretty regularly.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has been invited to attend the convention of the state federation, to be held at Winona the week of July 8. President George B. Howley and Secretary William McEwen extended the invitation. Both are anxious to have Mr. Gompers make a personal inspection of the conditions in Minnesota.

Mr. Gompers, in a letter in reply, to the invitation, said that the Minnesota body could be assured of the co-operation of the American Federation of Labor in all its undertakings, and that he would be pleased to visit Minnesota if his affairs at Washington would permit him to leave in June. He said that he would not know definitely until May 15, when he would let them know whether he would be able to attend the Winona convention or not.

Mr. Howley, as a special organizer, has been traveling over the state in the interests of the American Federation of Labor. Last week he was in Rochester, where new unions are being started among the building laborers, painters, clerks and teamsters are being started. Towards the end of the week he went to Faribault, where several new unions are being organized. Either today or the first of next week he will go to Fargo, N. D., to see what the prospects are for a settlement of the open shop controversy that is being fought there between the unions and the contractors.

The membership of the unions in Minnesota has reached the highest point in the history of the state body, and the state officers predict that the convention this year will be the largest and most satisfactory ever held.

To Restore Life.

It is said that a prominent scientist has discovered a method to restore life to animals and people apparently dead, by alternately pumping the gas out of the lungs and pumping oxygen in, to produce artificial respiration. The best thing to put new life into an ordinary tired, worn-out individual is a glass of golden grain belt beer. It is a wholesome nerve food and restores the energy to weary body and brain. ISSUE PERMIT FOR SELLWOOD

City Attorney Will Not Prevent Occupancy of Building.

City Attorney C. S. Wilson says he sees no reason why the occupancy of the Sellwood building should be blocked, and says he will not take legal proceedings to stop people from occupying the structure. It is understood that Building Inspector Kielley will be advised to issue a permit. Formal application for a permit has been made by owners of the building.

True to their promise, the contractors yesterday threw open the doors of the Sellwood, and today a number of business and professional men are moving in. The City National bank also started to move into its new quarters in the Sellwood today.

NEW GARY IN TEXAS.

United States Steel Corporation to Enter the Southwest Fields.

Texas City, Tex., May 2.—The United States Steel corporation is to lend its assistance in making a great deep water port and industrial center of this city, which is situated on the mainland just across the bay from Galveston. It is stated that Texas City is to be made the manufacturing and distributing point of the United States Steel corporation for the Southwest and more Southern foreign countries, particularly Mexico, Central America and South America, which will be placed in close touch with this port when the Panama canal is finished. It is said that this place is to be made another Gary, Ind.

As a preliminary step in its plans the company has acquired iron ore beds in the vicinity of Rusk and New Birmingham, Tex., embracing more than a thousand acres, and has options on practically all of the iron ore deposits of the Llano district, situated about 280 miles northwest of here. It was also acquired large holdings on the water front in Texas City and a site for its proposed iron and steel plant. It may be some time before the work of building the big plant here is started, as the financial depression has caused a temporary postponement of the plans.

Pending the completion of the Panama canal the United States Steel corporation will reach the trade of the countries bordering on the Pacific and that of the Orient by way of the Tehuantepec National railroad and the connecting steamship lines. The Wolvin Steamship company has inaugurated a regular steamship service between Texas City and the Gulf port of Mexico, including Coatzacoalcos, or Puerta Mexico, as it is now called, which is the Atlantic terminus of the Tehuantepec National.

It is stated that large coke ovens will be established here immediately, and that much preliminary construction work of the big plant that is to be erected later will be done during the current year.

VERY FRIENDLY TO JOHNSON

North Carolina Democrats Look With Favor on Governor.

Raleigh, N. C., May 2.—A Charlotte, N. C., special to the Times says: "I am in favor of sending an uninstructed delegation to Denver," said J. H. Weddington of Charlotte to a representative of the Raleigh Times, in this city, yesterday, while discussing the present political outlook. Mr. Weddington is a member of the state Democratic committee and is one of the oldest and most influential leaders in the state, and this expression, coming from him just at this time, is very significant of the wonderful change of opinion that has taken place in this state within the last few weeks. Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota, the candidate for the presidential nomination, was being discussed when Mr. Weddington said: "I am in favor of sending an uninstructed delegation to Denver and letting them use their own judgment and cast the ballot of the state for the best man, and for the man who can bring victory to the Democratic party. If we are going to instruct for one man, why not send one man instructed and let him cast the vote of the state for that man, and then come home? We should not send a delegation there bound to one man, but a delegation free to deal with the conditions as they find them at that time."

This same spirit seems to be growing among the leaders of the state, and where the sentiment a few weeks ago was decidedly for Bryan, it is now for Johnson, or for an uninstructed delegation. Mr. Weddington is the president of the Craig club in Charlotte, and he has for years been the leader of the Democracy in old Mecklenburg, and he has been known throughout the whole South for his valiant work for Democracy. There are thousands in the state who will heed this advice.

The consensus of opinion in the state at the present time, both of the press and of the conservative leaders, is that North Carolina demands a candidate who can win, and if this grand old Democratic state should be counted in the Johnson column, it will not surprise some who are watching the trend of affairs in this state at the present time.

PROSECUTION SPRINGS A SURPRISE IN RUEF CASE.

San Francisco, May 2.—The prosecution sprang its first surprise in the case of Abraham Ruef, the former dictator of this city, on trial for bribery, when Assistant District Attorney Renev late yesterday afternoon moved the dismissal of fourteen indictments against J. E. Green, president of the Park Side Realty company a co-defendant of Ruef in the case now being tried, in order that Green might testify against Ruef.

Judge Dooling dismissed the indictments against the defendant and ordered his discharge therefrom. At this point an adjournment was taken until Monday.

GET $63,000 FROM THE WELLS-FARGO COMPANY.

Laredo, Texas, May 2.—The Wells-Fargo Express company has reported to the authorities of Torreon, Mexico, a loss of $63,000 in Mexican currency, which they claim was taken from a through safe on their City of Mexico train. The money was consigned to one of the banks of Chihuahua. Two arrests have been made in Torreon, although it is not believed by the officials that the men who were arrested have the money. It appears that one of the agents of the company boarded the express train at a station between the City of Mexico and Torreon, afterwards leaving the train. It is said that he was the only man who was in the car who knew the combination of the safe. He has not yet been apprehended.

is to learn as to the relative standing and reliability of the leading manufacturers of medicinal agents, as the most eminent physicians are the most careful as to the uniform quality and perfect purity of remedies prescribed by them, and it is well known to physicians and the Well-Informed generally that the California Fig Syrup Co., by reason of its correct methods and perfect equipment and the ethical character of its product, has attained to the high standing in scientific and commercial circles which is accorded to successful and reliable houses only, and, therefore, that the name of the Company has become a guarantee of the excellence of its remedy.

TRUTH AND QUALITY

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing, therefore we wish to call the attention of all who would enjoy good health, with its blessings, to the fact that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and the use of medicines dispensed with generally to great advantage, but as in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time, the California Fig Syrup Co. feels that it is alike important to present truthfully the subject and to supply the one perfect laxative remedy which has won the appoval of physicians and the world-wide acceptance of the Well-Informed, because of the excellence of the combination, known to all, and the original method of manufacture, which is known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. and the same heretofore known by the name—Syrup of Figs—which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States, in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., that the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

"IN WYOMING."

Willard Mack's Play Presented at Lyceum by Capable Cast.

"In Wyoming" opened at the Lyceum last night with a fair-sized audience. The play is a rewritten version of Willard Mack's "Sage Brush," and tells of the trials and struggles of the early settlers of Wyoming, when that state was in the midst of Western strife. A pretty love story is interwoven with the action of the play, serving to complete a well-told story of Western frontier life.

Edward P. Jerome ha sthe leading role, that of "Bob" Ricketts. Mr. Jerome acquits himself with credit in the role that Willard Mack created. Miss Beatrice Meade has the feminine lead, and as Jennie Summers adds to her local reputation.

Miss Kitty Cameron, Miss Louise Farnum, Frank Joyner, Will Fitzsimmons, John Hefferon, Frank Patton and Charles Anderson complete the efficient cast.

"In Wyoming" will be repeated this afternoon and evening. The play will close its season's engagement with the performance this evening.

FOR MORE THAN TEN YEARS

Dr. Rea Has Been Curing Cancer by the Hypodermic Needle.

Patients whom he has treated report no re-occurrence of the disease. Cured by hypodermic injection, which reduces the growth and allows nature to act. About 10 years ago, Dr. W. D. Rea, a prominent physician of Louisville, Ky., treated and cured a cancer of Mrs. Phillip Trout, Mt. Vernon, Ind., of a cancerous affection of the face. This treatment at this time, while experimental in a way, was so efficient and satisfactory that it was almost a surprise to Dr. Rea himself. As a result of this form of treatment Dr. Rea was led to believe that if a cure could be made so readily and easily in one person it would certainly have like effect in others. Therefore he began a series of investigations and experiments, which have covered a period of several years. Dr. Rea preferring not to make any announcement of his cure until three years ago. Since that time he has announced the cure of his remedy and has treated and cured patients in all parts of the United States, and has demonstrated both to himself and to the general public that his treatment is certainly a terror to the disease. Dr. Rea's form of treatment is a fluid, devoid of any poison whatever. This fluid is injected hypodermically in and around the growth, which kills the growth as effectually as though the disease never had existed.

We herewith publish the names of some of the more recent cures Dr. Rea has made:

Mrs. G. W. Balderson, Elliott, N. D., cured of cancer of the nose by one treatment.

L. Stouton, Huron, S. D., cured of cancer of the lip.

Mrs. Gust Hambrich, Wheaton, Minn., cured of cancer of the leg; cured in three treatments.

Stewart Hanson, Cokato, Minn., cured of cancer of the nose; cured in one treatment; no pain, no stoppage from business.

Mrs. Robt. Twis, Redfield, S. D., cured of cancer on the feet, two treatments.

Peter Lees, Emmit, S. D., cured of cancer on the face, in one treatment.

Mrs. J. C. Allen, Esterville, Iowa, cured of large cancerous growth behind the ear.

W. A. Thompson, Duluth, Minn., cured of bad cancer on the face in two treatments.

Mrs. James Smith, Bonaparte, Iowa, cured of cancer of the stomach.

Miss Christy, Hohoka, Mo., cured of tumor on the face.

Mrs. G. W. Varco, Austin, Minn., cured of large cancer on the breast.

Mrs. Lewis Beckel, London, Minn., cured of cancer on the nose.

Mrs. Margaret McKee, Duluth, Minn., cured of cancer on the face.

S. J. Brewster, Browns Valley, Minn., cured of cancer on the nose.

John Consbruck, Hastings, Minn., cured of cancer of the face in two treatments.

Mrs. Margaret Gangloff, Denison, Minn., cured of bad skin cancer on the face in one treatment.

Wm. Reid, Little Falls, Minn., cured of cancer of the lip in one treatment.

Chas. Jeffs, Owatonna, Minn., cured of tumor on the head and scalp with one treatment.

H. H. Klemsetarud, Twin Valley, Minn., cured of cancerous affection of the mouth.

Mrs. John Seffron, Hastings, Minn., cured of cancer of the hand.

J. M. Gates, Deercreek, Minn., cured of two cancers on the face in two treatments.

Mrs. Josie Droskowski Little Falls, Minn., cured of cancer of the throat.

A. C. Mirer, Ormsby, Minn., cured of a chronic fungus cancer by Rea's treatment. This treatment was administered by Dr. Doran, who is an associate partner of Dr. Rea. Only two treatments were necessary to completely cure and eradicate the disease.

Rea Bros. & Co., manufacturing chemists, are the sole owners of this treatment. At their offices, 329 Boston Block, Minneapolis, Minn., they will examine and treat all those interested who will call on them.

To those patients who live at a distance arrangements can be made with Dr. Rea to supply the local doctor with the treatment and the cure can be made at home.

Special to The Duluth Herald:

Dr. Rea will make his next regular professional visit to Superior, Superior hotel, Friday, May 8th, from 9 a. m. until 8 p. m. Duluth, Minn., St. Louis hotel, Saturday, May 9th, from 9 a. m. until 8 p. m.

Dr. Rea has been visiting Duluth for the past ten years. Has made many remarkable cures, and has succeeded in establishing a large practice and an enviable reputation.

SAFE INVESTMENT

Good Position

Some days ago, under the head of "A Great Opportunity," I made the announcement that a young man who wanted to start in business in Duluth, "the Pittsburg of the West," would find an interest for sale and a position offered in a grocery concern. Numerous answers were received, and as I was called away about the time of inserting the ad, there were a number that were not replied to. Money is not so much wanted as the right man. The money would be used to develop the business, but is useless without the right man with it. No better opportunity offers for a young man than this. Can soon show you. Address as before. O. L. THE METHODIST GENERAL CONFERENCE

Great Church Gathering to Open at Baltimore Next Week.

Matters of Great Importance to Methodists to be Discussed.

Ten Bishops to be Chosen and Dr. Forbes May be One.

BY REV. EDWARD J. GRATZ,

Pastor of the M. E. Church at Two Harbors.

The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will convene at Lyric hall, Baltimore, Md., next Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock. At Christmas time in 1784 the first general conference was held in the same city, and the Methodist Episcopal church dates its origin from that time. One hundred years ago, in Baltimore, a written constitution for this church was adopted, so that the meeting there this month has more than ordinary significance.

The general conference is held now once every four years, and consists of an equal number of ministerial and lay members, who are elected by the various annual conferences. About 800 delegates will assemble in Baltimore next week, representing more than 3,000,000 members resident in the United States, and more than 290,000 from nearly every part of the world. The delegates from the Northern Minnesota conference are all well known in Duluth. Rev. Robert Forbes, D.D., heads the delegation. Dr. J. B. Hingeley and Rev. E. C. Clemans, D.D., are the other members, who represent the ministers, while the laymen are represented by W. J. Dean of Minneapolis, J. S. Ulland of Fergus Falls and T. H. Martin of Duluth.

Dr. Robert Forbes is the official head of the largest benevolent board of the Methodist church, if not in the United States, being the corresponding secretary of the board of Home Missions and Church Extension, and will be a prominent figure at the conference. Dr. J. B. Hingeley was elected, four years ago, as the secretary of the general conference, and will in all probability be retained in that position, having by his genius for detail proven himself to be a master in that work. His first assistant will probably be Rev. E. C. Clemans, D.D., presiding elder of the Duluth district. Northern Minnesota Methodists may well be proud of the men who are representing them at Baltimore.

The general conference is the only legislative body of the Methodist Episcopal church. It has full power to make rules and regulations for the church, and reviews in detail the work of the various officers and boards elected and created by it. It elects the general superintendents, the Methodist name for bishops, and the corresponding secretaries, who are at the head of the various benevolent societies.

NORTHERN MINNESOTA DELEGATES TO GENERAL CONFERENCE

MINISTERIAL DELEGATES.

J. B. Hingeley, Robert Forbes. E. C. Clemans.

LAY DELEGATES.

T. H. Martin. J. S. Ulland. W. J. Dean.

It also elects the editors of the Christian Advocate and the other official publications of the church.

This conference will be of unusual interest, because of the large number of bishops or general superintendents it will have to elect. The largest number elected at any one conference was eight, which was done in 1872. It is quite possible that ten new bishops will be elected during this month at Baltimore. During the last four years six of the bishops have died, four of whom were still in the active service, so that the board of bishops was overworked to take care of the great and growing interests of this great church. Many prominent churchmen have been mentioned for the episcopacy, among whom are Dr. Robert Forbes and Dr. J. B. Hingeley. Both of these men are well and favorably thought of by the church at large, so that it is quite possible that Minnesota will furnish a member for the board of bishops.

Among the questions that will be considered of vital importance to the church are the amusement question, the restoration of the time limit and the consolidation of the Eastern and Western publishing houses. Eight years ago, at Chicago, the five years time limit was removed, so that now a Methodist preacher can remain at a charge an indefinite length of time. There are many who are agitating a return to the old time limit of four or five years. At nearly every general conference for many years the amusement question, or paragraph No. 248, has been up for vigorous discussion. This paragraph enumerates certain forms of amusement which are tabooed. An effort is being made to remove this paragraph and make the question of amusement a matter of the individual conscience. This paragraph has been a center of contention ever since it was enacted in 1872. So far it has come through every general conference. What will be done with it at Baltimore, this month, can only be conjectured.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Chicago Record-Herald: Did anyone ever know a man to be converted and saved while he was sitting behind a big hat?

Washington Herald: A Boston clergyman has asked that his salary be reduced from $2,500 per annum to $1,200. Most folks will look upon this as setting a bad example, even if the man is a clergyman.

Boston Transcript: It is difficult to see how any spiritual end could be gained by having the members of congregations who cannot sing undertake to whistle the hymns, as a Pittsburg pastor suggests, but such attempts would undoubtedly enliven the services.

Baltimore American: A clergyman has discovered that women are responsible for war, because they enjoy seeing men in uniform. At the same time, they cannot said to be responsible for music for the same reason, yet there are plenty of band uniforms that have much more gold lace on them than the uniforms of the army or navy. In spite of tradition to the contrary, the masculine "because" is often quite as devoid of logic as the feminine.

Springfield Republican: In a sermon to a negro congregation in Baltimore on Sunday Cardinal Gibbons laid emphasis upon that which Hampton Institute and Booker T. Washington's school at Tuskegee have long insisted upon—the necessity of a proper home life. Cardinal opposed si ti nuq ano pamod suoqiq to greatly improve the home conditions among the negro race, leading to better parental control and training, even with the meager incomes that most of them are restricted to. The home should be the nursery of good citizenship.

been using every conceivable means to attain their end, a sample of their methods being contained in the card which they sent out a week ago, bearing the caption, "Which shall rule, men or money?" They are doing all in their power to discredit and defame the man who has twice brought victory to his party in this state, a man whom Republicans vie with Democrats in honoring, a man who has brought more fame to the state than any other man in many years. They are trying to strike down this son of a Swedish immigrant to gratify their lust for office, and in their desperation they have branded him as the tool of the "interests," and every other thing they could think of. Had it not been for this bunch of disgruntled office-seekers, Johnson would have had a unanimous vote in his own state, and no voice, except from a Republican, would have been raised to detract from his honors and from the fame which his public record and his ability has brought him.

But when the primaries come, next Wednesday, and the county conventions on Saturday, these people will be so overwhelmingly defeated that they will take to the woods or run after the band wagon and beg permission to climb on it. They have threatened to organize rump conventions, and take the contest to the national convention, but when they see how they are hopelessly in the minority, they will not have the brazen confidence to bring their contests to the national convention.

The most notable thing about the contest has been the difference in the conduct of the campaign. The Bryan men have confined themselves mostly to slander and defamation of Johnson's character, and have made it a campaign of personalities entirely. The Johnson people, on the other hand, have refrained entirely from personalities and have not said anything in any way derogatory to Bryan's character or his issues. They have confined themselves to presenting Johnson as a candidate, because of his availability and his probability of being a winner.

One peculiarity of this contest has been the inconsistency of the Bryan men in charging Johnson with being the candidate of the "interests." Not in a single state have the Johnson people made any alliances of any sort nor in any way connected in their campaign with any of the old political machines or rings that have controlled politics against the interests of the common people. Yet the Bryanites in this state forget this and charge Johnson with being the candidate of the "interests," and at the same time they forget that Bryan has made peace with such men as Roger Sullivan in Illinois and Tom Taggart in Indiana. Not many months ago Bryan was up in arms against Sullivan and declared that never would he accept support from him or have any negotiations with him. But now he has made peace with him in order to get the Illinois delegation, Sullivan in turn to be the national committeeman from that state.

The Republican situation in this state is getting worse every day. The three candidates for governor, Heatwole, Jacobson and Young, are still in the field, but are not making any campaign nor winning any friends. Instead their friends are drifting away, and the situation is getting into such shape that if Johnson is not nominated for the presidency, but should run again for governor, he would have a walkaway. And not only that, but any other of the dozen or more available Democrats who might be nominated could be elected with comparative ease.

Next Tuesday will see the end of one of perhaps the hottest municipal campaigns this city has ever seen. The result is uncertain on account of the large number of voters who have registered this year, who did not vote two years ago. The total registration is close to 36,000 as compared with less than 31,000 two years ago. But the Democrats are confident of victory and the Republicans are not making any big claims.

The campaign has to some extent been a repetition of the campaign Duluth had this winter, in that an attempt has been made to make it a campaign with law enforcement as an issue. McKibbin had the indorsement of the Law Enforcement league before he was nominated and that issue has been to some extent forgotten. McKibbin at first tried to say that he would enforce all the laws, but later he came to the conclusion that there are many laws which it would be impossible and many others which it would be impracticable to enforce, so he came out with statements in his speeches to this effect and intimated that the mayor would select what laws would be enforced and which would not. And Lawler points to the fact that the lid laws are enforced in St. Paul now, that no mayor could do otherwise, and promises that he will enforce the laws as well as McKibbin could hope to do. Lawler points to the long record of the Democratic party in this city and what it has accomplished, the excellent school system, fire department, water system, police department and park system. And he asks what reason there is for a change.

The result, as stated, is uncertain, but a big majority for Dan Lawler would not be surprising.

that she did not try to make the complainant subservient to her ways, and while I believe that if she had understood the spirit of the gospel as well as the liter, she would have been an otherwise Christian, yet I am not authorized to grant a decree of divorce on the ground of cruelty from the testimony offered in this case.

"If a bill of complaint had been filed in 1905, a different conclusion might have been reached. Whatever fault there was with the defendant since that time has been condoned. Since no great evidence of acts of cruelty are attributable to her, that cannot be explained by her condition she is at least entitled to the benefit of all doubts.

Sidelight on Case.

"Sidelights have been thrown upon this case which I cannot disregard. The complainant knew that his wife was without means, that the child was his as well as hers, and, outside of the actual expenses of the birth, he contributed nothing toward their support until compelled to do so by this court. He knew that she was without money and scarcely in a position to obtain remunerative employment after the birth of her child. He filed no complaint against her until after a criminal complaint had been filed against him. I feel that the effect of her conduct upon him has been exaggerated, and I feel constrained to dismiss the bill of complaint."

"Of course we're going to appeal this case," said Attorney Greesbeck. "Just as soon as possible. How could we do anything else."

Mrs. Hazelton Talks.

Mrs. Hazelton, paler and more wan than she has been before showed no exaltation over her triumph. "Glad?" she said, as the tears rolled down her cheeks. "How could I feel happy when Mr. Hazelton feels this way toward me. I don't know yet what I'm going to do. First of all I shall have to rest. Oh, I'm so very, very tired—just worn out and upset. I say now, what I have said all along, that all this bitterness and misunderstanding will pass away, and out of the darkness there will come light and peace and understanding. I know my husband better than any one else does. I understand him so well. He is not developed yet—he will grow, and some day he will see things in their true light, and then we shall be happy together. This has been a terrible trial to me, but I know that it has worked for good and that I shall be stronger and better able to endure because of it."

LAUNCH MAKES RAPIDS.

International Falls, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—James A. Mathieu, manager of the two big sawmills at Rainy River and Spooner, was here this week, looking after taxes on several pieces of land his companies hold in Koochiching county. Mr. Mathieu made the trip here from Spooner in his private launch. Very few gasoline boats are able to come up through the Sault rapids, but Mr. Mathieu made the trip without any trouble.

LYDIA E.
PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

No other medicine for Woman's ills in the world has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

No other medicine has such a record of success for woman's diseases, or such hosts of grateful friends as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for feminine ills, Inflammation, Ulceration, and consequent Spinal Weakness.

It has relieved more cases of Backache and Local Weaknesses than any other one remedy. It dissolves and expels tumors in an early stage of development.

Irregularities and periodic pains, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility, quickly yield to it; also deranged organs, causing pain, dragging sensations and backache. Under all circumstances it acts in harmony with the female system.

It removes that wearing feeling, extreme lassitude, "don't care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, dizziness, faintness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy or the "blues." These are indications of Feminine disorders, which this medicine overcomes as well as slight derangement of the Kidneys of either sex.

Women who are sick and want to get well should refuse to accept any substitute for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A SCHOOLBOY'S PLAN.

Wants Lake Shore Park Turned Into a Playground.

To the Editor of The Herald:

As there is at the present time a great deal of talk about playgrounds for children of Duluth, I wish to give you what I think might solve the problem.

As the city already owns the plat of ground between Twelfth and Thirteenth avenues, below London road, I think it would be most satisfactory and well located site for a place of recreation and sports.

I would suggest that first this plat be leveled off so that all of it could be flooded for a rink in the winter time, making a large sheet of ice at less expense.

As in playgrounds of this sort, it is always necessary to keep the girls and the boys apart, I suggest that the end of the lots be fitted up with apparatus, one end for the girls and the other for the boys. The space in the middle could be made into a most excellent baseball field and general playground for all, and it could be used for a football field in the fall.

STAPLES STOCK YARDS

Will Cover Forty Acres, Much of Which Will be Filled.

Staples, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Pacific Railway company commenced work this week on the extensive stock yards to be established at this point. The yards will cover forty acres and the company will "fill" the whole of this with gravel. The land at this place is rather low and it will be necessary to raise it considerable. To do this it will require a steam shovel, a gravel train, a steam unloader and many men for several weeks. The company will get their gravel from Philbrook, where the shovel is stationed, under the foremanship of Engineer Youngbrook. The unloader will be run by Nils Lifquist. One hundred and ten Italians will be kept at work leveling off the gravel after it is unloaded. The company expect to unload an average of 100 cars per day.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER. ABOUT THE TIME OF HIS POLITICAL RETIREMENT.

LORD LISTER.

BY DEXTER MARSHALL

(Copyright, 1908, by Dexter Marshall.)

THE thirties, forties and fifties of the nineteenth century seem a long way back in the dim and distant past to the most of us now in the thick of things. Yet for all that we are still blessed with the presence of a goodly number of prominent men and women who, not only by their years, but also by important works, link us with the simple days when our grandfathers and great-grandfathers were engaged in the task of running the world and its children.

Edward Everett Hale, Julia Ward Howe, Donald G. Mitchell, Thomas Wentworth Higginson, Charles Eliot Norton and Timothy Dwight, all venerable and highly revered "institutions" of New England; John Bigelow and D. O. Mills of New York, Goodwin Smith, Sir Charles Tupper and Lord Strathcona of Canada, Florence Nightingale, Sir John Tenniel, Sir Joseph Hooker, Lord Lister and George Meredith of England, ex-Empress Eugenie, Count Leo Tolstoi, James B. Angell, Victorien Sardou and Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria-Hungary—these are some of the more famous links with the middle decades of the past century. With the exception of the two last named, all are either near the 80th mile stone, or have left it behind, one or two having done so by as much as ten years. The emperor is 77, while the French playwrigth is a year younger.

Let us see just how these men and women by their works bind us to the days of our grandsires' power.

It was in 1856 that Edward Everett Hale became pastor of the South Congregational Unitarian church of Boston, whose pulpit he has filled ever since. By 1863, when he published anonymously his most famous novel, "The Man Without a Country," he had gained fame as one of New England's leading divines and public men.

Donald G. Mitchell, who is quietly passing his remaining days at his farm home, Edgewood, within sight of Yale's towers, wrote, "The Reveries of a Bachelor" in 1850. Two years later he produced his second great work, "Dream Life," and he became assistant editor of Harper's when that magazine was founded.

John Bigelow, "the first citizen of New York," in 1849 assumed joint proprietorship of the New York Evening Post with William Cullen Bryant. From then on until the outbreak of the Civil war he was one of the country's famous newspaper editors and publishers.

Six years before Bigelow became a business associate of the author of "Thanatopsis," Julia Ward Howe, with her husband, began editing the Boston Commonwealth, a little paper which played an important part in rousing and formulating anti-slavery sentiment in New England. All through the fifties Thomas Wentworth Higginson devoted his energies to stirring up the North, and particularly New England, against slavery. He went to Kansas in the interests of the Emigrant Aid society, which had for its object the populating of that territory with emigrants opposed to slavery; he was told by John Brown of the raid he intended making three years before that event occurred and he was one of the first male exponents in this country of woman's rights.

As all the world knows, the reaper of real glory in the Crimean war, begun in 1854, was Florence Nightingale, who introduced sanitary nursing methods in the allied armies, and thus saved thousands of lives; and who, after her return from the front, became the promoter of the trained nurse movement which was spread all over the world.

Tolstoi's first important service was in the Crimean war also. As an officer of artillery he was at the siege of Sebastopol and the three sketches of the seige that he wrote at that time, or shortly after, gave him his first "fame as a great pen master." It was in the fifties, also, that Tolstoi took his first trip abroad, became bitterly disappointed with modern civilization and began to form the peculiar philosophy which marks him as a world-character today.

George Meredith, England's present day first man of letters, whose eighties anniversary was celebrated in February, produced his first, and what many critics hold to be his finest, novel in 1859. The same year "Adam Bede," George Eliot's first novel, was published—and its distinguished author has been in her grave these many years. Eight years previously Meredith had published his first volume of verse.

As a molder of college youth James B. Angell, president of the University of Michigan, dates back to 1849, when he was assistant librarian of Brown university. A year or two later he became Brown's professor of modern languages and literature; in 1860 he was editor of the Providence Journal; in 1867 president of the University of Vermont, going to his present position four years later.

Timothy Dwight, president of Yale from 1886 to 1899, started his career as a teacher of college men two years later than President Angell. He, too, is in his eightieth year, but is no longer active, going into retirement when he gave up his presidency. It was in 1851 that Dwight became a tutor at his alma mater, of which he was destined to become head thirty-five years later. In 1858 he became professor of sacred literature and New Testament Greek in the Yale Theological Seminary. This post he held until he took the presidency of the college.

Five years older than Dr. Dwight is the distinguished Canadian, Goldwin Smith. From 1850, three years after he was called to the English bar, to 1868 he was that country's leading champion of university reform, and he had a large hand in instituting much needed reform at Oxford in the late sixties. From that day to this he has been looked upon as one of the really great scholars of England, this country and Canada, in each of which he has labored in responsible positions for the advancement of higher learning.

Canada's other two notable links take us back to the thirties and forties. It was in 1838, when he was 18, that Lord Strathcona, for years head of the great Hudson Bay company, entered the employ of that company as a clerk in Labrador. Then he was known as Donald A. Smith. During the forties and the fifties he got to know the trappers' Canadian wilderness better than any other man in the company's employ—the company at that time was sole governor of millions of acres of snow-covered northland—and his selection as resident governor in 1869 was practically inevitable. From 1845, when, at 24, he was elected to the provincial assembly of Nova Scotia, until 1900, when, at 79, his constituency for the first time failed to return him to political life. Sir Charles Tupper was a great political power first in Nova Scotia and then in the Dominion federation, formed in 1870.

It was D. O. Mills, who will be 83 in September, who organized the finances of the Pacific coast in the '50s and '60s. Francis Joseph's career as the head of Austria-Hungary dates back to the stirring days of the Kossuth revolution. In 1854 Sardou had accepted his first play, which he always has felt would have been a success had not the stage lights gone out at a critical moment and thereby roused the risibilities of the audience. This was the night of the third production.

From 1853, when she became the wife of Napoleon III, until she fled from Paris, in 1871, Eugenie, now one of the world's most pathetic figures, exercised an important influence on French history. The first time that she ruled France as regent was in 1859, when her husband was warring in Italy. Her influence on woman's dress, first apparent in the '50s, is strongly felt to this day, as the average American husband could feelingly testify.

It was in 1850 that Sir John Tenniel—that plain John—joined the staff of Punch. There he remained until the beginning of the present century. In that time he drew more than 2,000 of its famous weekly cartoons. As Punch was only nine years old when Tenniel went with it, and as he was in charge of the cartoon department for nearly forty years, it is no exaggeration to say that upon his work the reputation of Punch largely rests. Sir John was 30 years old when he began to draw fanciful initial letters for Punch, these letters, together with its weekly cartoon on some national or international event of deep importance, giving it its fame above all other features. Americans who were men and women during the Civil war will recall the cartoons that Tenniel drew against the North. These and his sympathetic cartoons following Lincoln's assassination established his name on this side of the Atlantic.

Ten years before Tenniel's attachment to Punch Sir Joseph Hooker, since the forties among the leading botanists of the world, went to the Antartic with the famous expedition of Sir Thomas Ross. He brought back thousands of species of plants hitherto unknown to the civilized world, and the book he wrote about them and other Antarctic flora discovered by various botanists established his scientific reputation. In 1850 he completed a three years' expedition to the Himalayas, making remarkable additions to the world's botanical knowledge. Son of the famous botanist who founded at Kew Gardens, Eng., the most complete botanical museum in the world, the family devotion to botany reaches back 100 years.

Sir Joseph Hooker is 90; Lord Lister, father of antiseptic surgery and revolutionizer of modern surgery, is ten years younger. Becoming assistant surgeon at the Edinburgh Royal infirmary in 1856, Lister insisted on absolute cleanliness and the use of deodorant solutions in the surgical wards; for at that early date he had arrived at the conclusion that the dread wound diseases following operations, which made every one look with horror on a surgeon, was caused in some way by the atmosphere. Thus he took the first step toward antiseptic surgery before the '60s.

In 1863, when Pasteur published his discovery that fermentation and putrefaction are caused by bacteria, Lister at once realized that the so-called wound diseases were caused by bacteria. He thereupon took steps to sterilize the air in the neighborhood of operation wounds and to kill the bacteria in the wounds—and antiseptic surgery had arrived.

As a result of Lister's study of wound disease, dating back to the '50s, most of the deadly hospital diseases of two generations ago have disappeared entirely. Formerly hospital gangrene was one of the most common of wound diseases. Today it is so rare that the average surgeon or physician now practicing never has seen a case of it.

These links number, all told, twenty-one. It is interesting to note that only two have devoted themselves mainly to business during their long careers—D. O. Mills and Lord Strathcona. Two have put their greatest efforts in government—Emperor Francis Joseph and Sir Charles Tupper. The fame of the two others—Florence Nightingale and Lord Lister—rests on their work for suffering humanity. One, Sir Joseph Hooker, a scientist; another a dramatist, Sardou, and still another a dethroned empress. All the other links can easily be classified as educators, college, pulpit, or literary—Angell, Dwight and Smith as college, Hale and Higinson as pulpit, and all five, together with Bigelow, Norton, Julia Ward Howe, Meredith, Mitchell, Tolstoi and Tenniel, as literary uplifters of a high order.

Just as they are stronger in number, so are the educators on the whole, more active at the present day than the other links. D. O. Mills and Baron Strathcona have retired, to all intents and purposes. So has Sir Charles Tupper, while Francis Joseph, weary though he undoubtedly is of the cares of state, is in such a position that he can retire only when death comes in at the door. At 90, Sir Joseph Hooker is very feeble.

On the other hand, Florence Nightingale, invalid though she has been practically ever since her return from the Crimea, was only lately deeply interested in promoting district nursing among the London poor. Edward Everett Hale is chaplain of the United State senate, still preaches and still directs the work of the Lend-a-Hand clubs, which he originated. John Bigelow, in his 91st year, is engaged in important literary work. Tolstoi, to the constant regret of the Russian government, is very active, indeed, with both pen and voice. Goldwin Smith recently undertook a trip to the mother country, and his writings are continually appearing in newspapers and magazines on both sides of the water. Dr. Angell shows no diminution of energy as head of the University of Michigan. Since the beginning of the present century Thomas Wentworth Higinson has placed five books in his publishers' hands, and his shorter writings have been numerous.

For a man who is supposed to have retired George Meredith was extremely active mentally on his 80th anniversary, and only two or three years ago he made the world sit up and take notice by his advocacy of limited marriages. "And they'll come in time, too," he declared, "but first there'll be a devil of a row."

Since the beginning of the present century Sardou has produced two noteworthy plays, one a failure and one a success. The voice of Julia Ward Howe is still raised, when occasion demands it, in behalf of the rights of woman and other features of her long life's work. Though he is now emeritus professor of the history of art at Harvard, Charles Eliot Norton proves through his magazine articles and other literary activities that he is not yet wholly on the retired list. Newspaper dispatches from Europe at rather frequent intervals offer similar evidence regarding tender-hearted and modest Lord Lister, who balked when he learned of a newspaper's plan to name him as one of the sixteen most famous men of England.

Either during the days of our grandfathers' power, or later, nearly every one of these links performed works of far-reaching results. Julia Ward Howe stirred the world with her "Battle Hymn of the Republic." As a powerful influence over her husband, Eugenie caused the invasion of Mexico by the French and the subsequent death of Maximilian, and a few years later she had much to do with bringing about a change in the map of Europe, to France's discomfiture and Germany's gain.

Kansas was saved from slavery by the work of Thomas Wentworth Higginson and those associated with him in populating that territory with abolitionists and other opponents of slavery. Sir Charles Tupper helped to bring the Canadian federation into being, and during the seventies, eighties and nineties held one high and responsible office after another in the ship of state, at one time being premier. The mere mention of the fact that Lord Strathcona is the head of the Hudson Bay company is sufficient evidence of his far-reaching work; but in Canada he also is known as one of the men who made possible the Canadian Pacific, binding the two shores of the Dominion with the steel bands of commerce.

Timothy Dwight found Yale a college when he became president, and when he stepped down from that post Yale was a university of world-wide fame. The University of Michigan of today is largely the result of the ideas of James B. Angell, and for years it has been the model for other state educational institutions to go by; Goldwin Smith, as already mentioned, helped to reform educational methods at Oxford in the sixties, and since then thousands

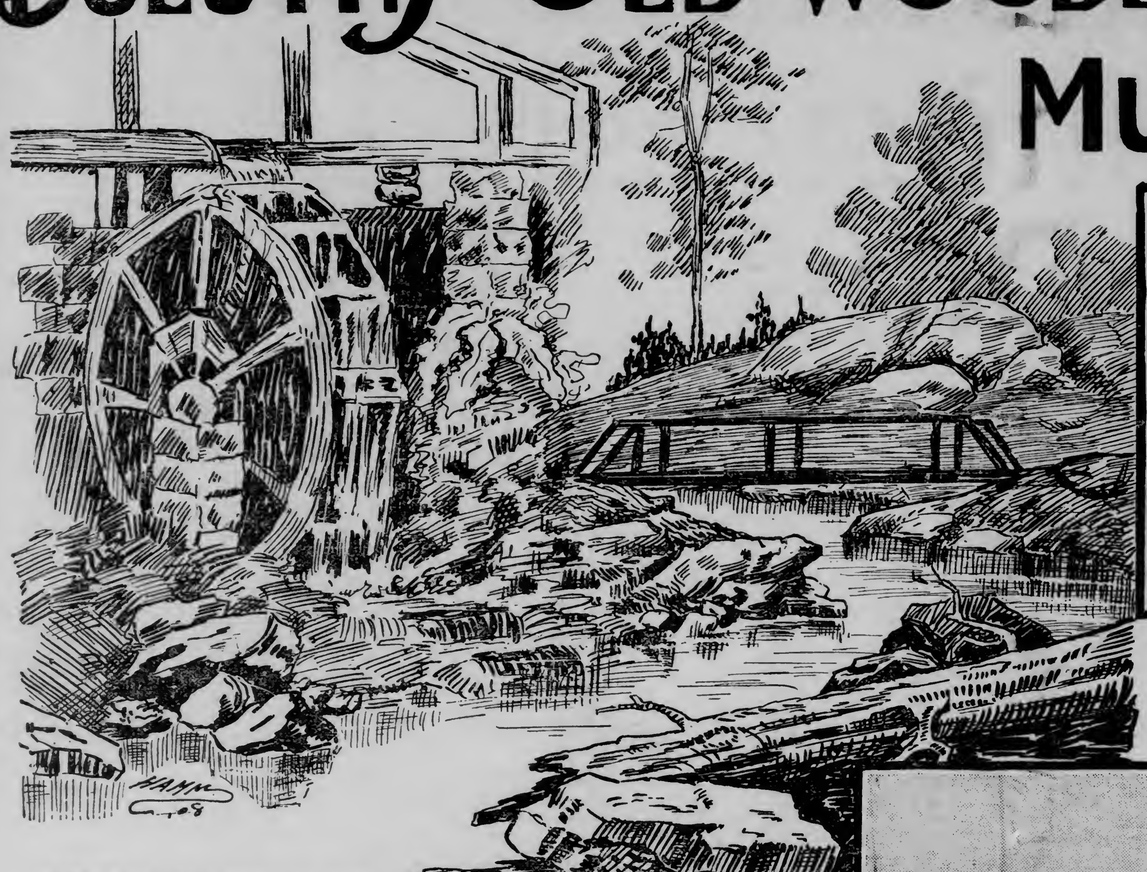
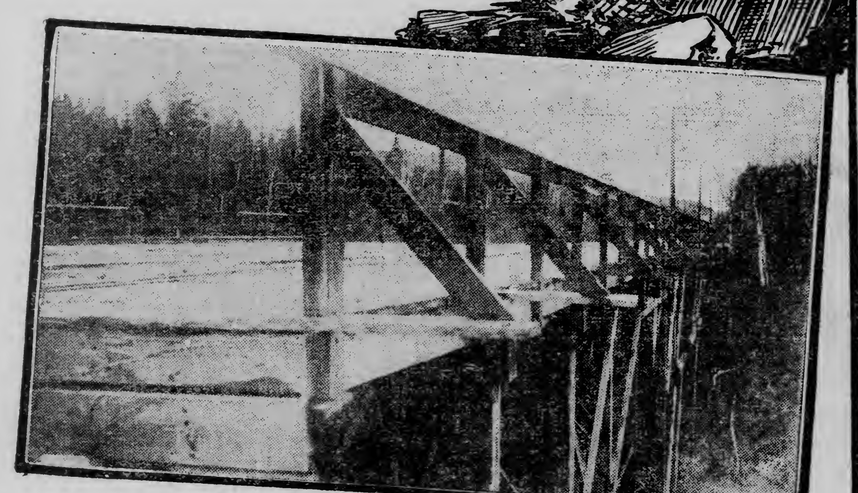
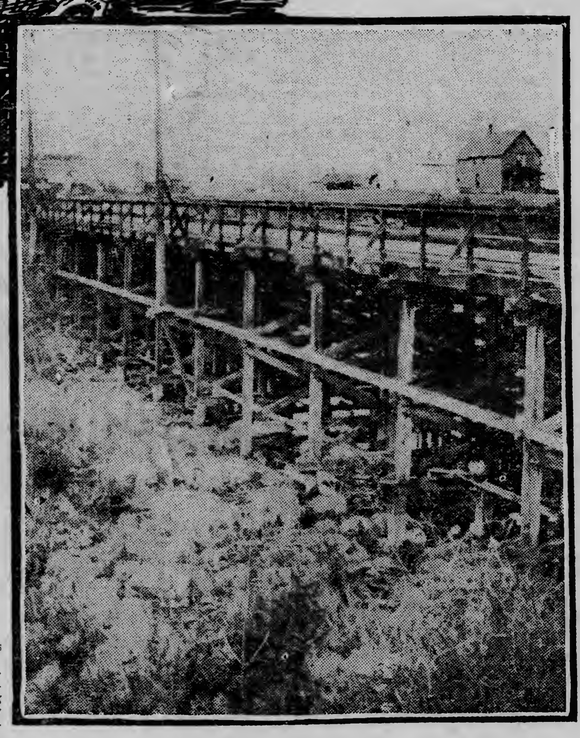
Just How These Venerable Links, All Except Two Being Near Eighty or Over, Won Name and Fame in the Long Ago---A Big Majority of the Links Have Been Engaged Largely in Literary Pursuits ---A Surprisingly Large Number still in Active Harness---Who Has Conferred the Greatest Benefit on Mankind, Lord Lister, With His Discovery of Antiseptic Surgery, or Florence Nightingale, Who Gave the World the Trained Nurse?

DULUTH'S OLD WOODEN BRIDGES MUST BE REPLACED







Within the next decade Duluth will establish a reputation for her bridges. If plans of the present administration carry out, probably it will be known as a city of beautiful bridges, and other cities of the country will point to it as an example which should be followed.

At the present time there are 169 of these structures inside the corporate limits of Duluth. They are anything but pleasing to the eye as they stand now, but the mayor and city engineering department are planning to have them replaced with concrete at the earliest possible date. The reconstructed bridges will be built with an eye to beauty as well as with an eye to service, and the general effect will be a very pleasing one, for better and more artistic results may be obtained with concrete than with any other building material.

It would be an impossibility for Duluth to reconstruct all these structures at once, because of the immense outlay of capital required, but Mayor Haven has announced that he will veto any resolution providing for the construction or reconstruction of wooden bridges in the city, and as the ideas of the engineering department coincide exactly with those of the mayor in this regard, it is certain that no more of the old-fashioned bridges will be built or rebuilt.

The city is now engaged in its annual inspection of bridges. An inspector employed by the engineering department, and another employed by the board of public works, are working in conjunction in this matter. They look over all bridges together, and make reports to their respective departments. In this manner all delay is done away with, and neither the board of public works or the engineering department has any cause for complaint. The new system was only adopted this spring, and it is working out in good shape.

The life of a wooden bridge is rather short, and as most of those in Duluth were constructed at about the same time, almost all of them are badly in need of repair. Where the needed repairs are so extensive as to make the rebuilding of the structure seem practicable, rather than repairing it, concrete or steel, or concrete reinforced by steel, will be used in the rebuilding. If it is found that the city cannot stand the expense of concrete construction just now, the repairs will be of a temporary nature until such time as city finances are in such shape as to stand the drain called for by the concrete work. Concrete is more expensive to start with than wood, but it is cheaper in the long run, for the material will practically last forever.

Bridges in the parks will be among the first to receive the benefits of concrete bridge construction. It is one of the mayor's pet schemes to have the structure on Third street, just below Lincoln park, built of this material, and the improvement will be provided for at the earliest possible moment. Particular pains will be taken to make the Lincoln park structure a delight to the eye.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Annual All-University Athletic Meet to be Held May 9.

Active Campaign by Equal Suffrage Association is Closed.

Minneapolis, May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual all-university athletic meet will be held on May 9, which is far enough away to allow considerable outdoor practice. The athletic board has made liberal provisions in the way of prizes, a good medal being given for first, a silver medal for second and a bronze for third in each event. The full intercollegiate program will be run, including the 100-yard and 220-yard dashes, the high and low hurdles, the quarter and half and mile runs upon the track, also the high and broad jumps, steeple vault, hammer, shot and discus in field events.

An addition has recently been made to this program, which, it is believed, will add greatly to the interest of the meet. This is a half-mile inter-fraternity relay race, four men to run for each fraternity and each man to run 220 yards.

The Sororities have offered to make three banners which will be awarded to the relay teams winning first, second and third places. At the winter meet nine fraternities were represented. It is believed that the sorority banners will induce twice the number to enter the contest. It has therefore been decided that the races on May 9 shall be preliminaries, run in three heats, the heats being arranged by lot, the first two fraternities in each heat being entitled to run in the finals, which will be held at the time of the freshman-sophomore games May 22.

Last night in Iowa City Clarence M. Harter represented Minnesota in the Northern oratorical contest. He was representative by virtue of his winning first place in the Pillsbury contest held last month. The subject of his oration is "The Necessary Struggle," and deals with socialism. The contest is under the auspices of the Northern Oratorical league, which is composed of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Northwestern, Iowa, Michigan, Oberlin and Chicago. Minnesota was admitted in 1900 and since then has won first place on two occasions.

The last cap and gown spread of the year passed into history Tuesday night with a gale of merriment. Instead of the usual toasts, limericks were recited. Two that made a special hit were:

To extol the sonnet
Put bees in your bonnet
And conjure you t'live only for art."

Miss Comstock was lauded thus:

"There is a young woman named Ader,

And though at our chaff
She tried not to laugh,
Still, there were times, you know,
when we made 'er."

EARNINGS GROW UNDER IOWA 2-CENT FARE LAW.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 2.—The 2-cent fare law has been anything but a failure in Iowa. The first reports of the railroads filed since the new act became a law show an increase in passenger earnings.

The net gain as shown by the reports of the Illinois Central, Wabash, Iowa Falls Short Line, Minneapolis & St. Louis, Iowa Central, Burlington & Cedar Rapids, Rock Island and Great Western was $383,057. The report of the Minneapolis & St. Louis shows a loss in passenger earnings of $21,000. Since this road is one of the two which has attacked the law in the federal courts, the figures are of importance. The Iowa Central, its associate in the suit, shows a gain in passenger earnings of $8,700.

INCREASES IN OIL SHORTAGES

By McDermott and Warner Reported by Public Examiner.

St. Paul, Minn., May 2.—An additional shortage of $4,755.20 in the accounts of John A. McDermott, former state oil inspector, and of $5,526.12 in the accounts of F. G. Warner, his predecessor in that office, were reported by Public Examiner Anton Schaefer yesterday, in his final report on the examination of the accounts of that department during the incumbency of these two men.

This report covers the entire period from February 1903 to November 1907, being from the beginning of Mr. Warner's term to the close of Mr. McDermott's. The first report on Mr. McDermott's account covered only the collections in Ramsey, Hennepin and St. Louis counties, and disclosed a shortage of $6,199.75, which was turned into the state treasury by W. E. McEwen, the present oil inspector, through his monthly reports, except the last payment of about $3,400 which was turned in separately. The present report makes the total shortage in McDermott's accounts for the entire state $10,954.95.

The previous report of Mr. Warner's accounts showed a shortage of $12,010, this report covering only the Minneapolis and Duluth divisions. The total shortage as now reported is $15,536.92.

The reports were turned over to Attorney General Young, who will take the matter up with George W. Peterson, his assistant, who has had direct charge of the oil investigation, to determine just what course the legal department will take. Both former inspectors were bonded in the sum of $5,000.

NEW JERSEY BANKER ENDS HIS EXISTENCE.

Manasquan, N. J., May 2.—Morgan Delancey Magee, president of the First National bank of Manasquan, killed himself yesterday by firing a bullet into his head, while standing on a dike in the Manasquan Inlet. His body was found lying on the piles. He evidently planned that it should fall into the water and be carried out to sea by the falling tide.

When the death of President Magee became known, the bank closed its doors by order of the stockholders and directors of the institution, pending an examination. Magee is said to have worried over the health of his son and some personal investments. He leaves a widow and a family.

SENTENCE AFFIRMED.

Lansing, Mich., May 2.—The supreme court yesterday affirmed the conviction and sentence of Philip A. McHugh and Charles P. O'Neill, two prominent young attorneys of Detroit, who were held in contempt by Judge Connolly of the recorder's court at Detroit for failing to proceed with a murder trial at the time set by the court. The attorneys were fined $250 each and McHugh was sentenced to thirty days in jail.

TELLS OTHER SIDE OF THE PERSONAL INJURY CASES

Attorney Says Some Mining Companies Are Never Sued.

Blames Attitude of Insurance Companies for Numerous Suits.

"I think the public, generally, should understand that there are several interesting phases to the personal injury business of the district court," said L. H. Corcoran, one of the well-known local attorneys who has tried a number of personal injury actions in this county, referring to a recent news article in The Herald, calling attention to the large number of damage cases that are before the court this coming term.

"There are two sides to every proposition and it seems only fair to give both, if either one is to be stated.

"Prior to the strike of the miners on the ranges, last summer, the Oliver Mining company had not had a lawsuit for as much as a year. The Oliver company employs 160 men, where any other independent company on the range employs one man. On account of the strike and financial depression the company was compelled to employ, and did employ, a lot of farmers in the place of miners, men who were more accustomed to the hoe than the use of dynamite. As might have been expected, the result was a number of accidents of a more or less serious nature, due to the inexperience of the men and their unfamiliarity with the dangers attending mining operations.

Never Been Sued.

"In regard to the independent companies, those who carry the so-called indemnity insurance, I would say that there are one and, perhaps, two independent companies that do not carry casualty insurance and neither of these, during the time they have been in business in St. Louis county, have had a lawsuit on account of any accident. The Republic Iron & Steel company might be mentioned as one instance of an independent company whose name has never appeared on a court calendar in a personal injury case. There is a good reason for this. The Republic company does not carry any indemnity insurance. The company takes care of the widows and children and the funeral expenses of the men who are killed in its employ.

"On the other hand, the Shenango Furnace company, which carries indemnity insurance, has had more lawsuits, and has taken up more time of the district court and the jury, has paid out more money in litigation for records, to the printers, etc., than the Steel company has paid out during the same period. The Shenango company did this on the operation of only two mines.

"The trouble seems to be that the small operator depends on the insurance companies to protect him and the insurance concerns would rather spend their money in litigation and to high salaried officers and shrewd adjustors than to pay an honest claim to the widows and the children of men killed in the employ of a company carrying the insurance.

"When the head of a family dies and leaves a wife and children, it is a certainty that somebody will have to provide for that family, in order that they do not become a county charge.

"Before there was any such thing as a casualty or indemnity insurance policy in this part of the country, personal injury cases were rare and scarcely ever heard of in the district court of this county. The insurance companies, with their board of directors, possibly 2,000 miles away, undertake to say what is right or wrong as between employer and employe. The insurance companies interfere with the business between the employer and the employe and compel the unfortunate people depending on an injured employe to hire a lawyer and carry the litigation through to the last ditch. The attorneys are compelled to put up money to carry on this litigation and, in many instances they have to support the widow and the children of the dead man until the case can be disposed of in the court of the last resort.

"The Shenango Furnace company, I believe, has had more litigation for the reason that it has carried an insurance policy for $5,600 on every man in its employ. The insurance was carried by the Travelers' Insurance company, which concern had the declared policy of fighting a claim through the courts instead of settling, adjusting, or giving up one dollar on a claim, no matter how meritorious it might be.

"According to the statement of the company's local representative, this was an experiment for one year. The result can easily be learned by turning to the court records of this county and those of the supreme court for the past year.

"The result of this experiment has been that the Shenango company with only two mines operating has paid out more in litigation than the Steel company. That the experiment will not be continued is a matter of common knowledge, as the company has parted with its general manager and refused to continue its indemnity insurance."

WOMEN VISIT THE PRESIDENT

Delegation of the Wage Earners Received at the White House.

Washington, May 2. — President Roosevelt expressed his view regarding working women's clubs yesterday, in addressing 600 New England women who make their own living, and who are in Washington sight-seeing. The visitors are members of the National League of Women Workers. Both the president and Mrs. Roosevelt gave a cordial greeting to the workers and shook hands with them. The president addressed them as follows:

"It is a very real pleasure to greet you today. I often meet delegations here in the East room of the White House, all of them I am very glad to see, and I can say with entire truth that there is none that comes which I could be more pleased to see than this. I would not be fit to hold the position that I do hold, I would not be a good American if I did not take a peculiar interest in exactly the kind of clubs which is represented here today.

"I think it is highly typical of our people that we should be able to gather together for social and intellectual betterment, and interested though I am in such organizations of men, I am even more interested when they are managed by and controlled in the interests of women, and particularly working women, working girls. If I were asked to point out what in my judgment was the fundamental difference between the United States and any other country, even the most advanced, I should say that the fundamental difference in our favor was the different attitude taken here toward women; the greater chance that the woman has for combining with a life of duty the chance of self-improvement.

"Of course in any movement for betterment there are always dangers. I do not know very much about women's clubs, girls' clubs, but I do know about men's clubs, and thoroughly though I believe in them, I now and then meet a man who mistakes the means for the end, whose life is led as an adjunct to the club, instead of the club being an adjunct to his life. I suppose there are occasional instances of this kind in the women's clubs. In any movement it is always a little difficult to combine the two principles of doing your work well and yet of having as good a time as is compatible with doing your work.

"There are always a certain number of people who ever try to be to be anything but drudges, and a certain number of others who make having a good time the be-all and end-all of life, and I think these working women's club strike the happy medium as well as any organizations that I know. I believe in them with all my heart; I am glad to see you as representatives of them here today and I wish you all possible good success in the future."

SPORTS OF THE WEEK.

WHITE SOX ARE COMING

Duluth Team of Northern League to be Here Next Week.

Exhibition Game With Kelleys at Athletic Park Thursday.

Next week, the Duluth White Sox of 1908, with new faces, new costumes, new acts, will arrive home after almost three weeks of working on more southerly, but almost as chilly diamonds, as that at Athletic park. The fans will have a chance to see them in action a few times and then it will be away for the plains of Manitoba for clashes with the Winnipeg Maroons and Brandon Angels, before returning to perform before their very own.

Truly, with the Sox this season, it is many are reported and few stick. Manager Morrow has been swinging the ax for two weeks and he isn't through yet. Men are reporting every day and the stream to the camp is off-set by one away from it. In one direction, hopeful, smiling faces are traveling and in the other, there is nothing but dark, dismal, dank despair. By the time the team reaches Duluth, Morrow hopes to have all the rough edges lopped off and a spick, span, well-oiled machine primed for the inspection of the fans.

The first opportunity to inspect will come next Thursday, when Clyde Ziegler's Kelley Hardware team will go against the prospective pennant winners in the Northern league. The fans have not yet forgotten last year's performance, when the despised and semi-pros grabbed off the first game of the local season from the proud leaguers. Neither has Ziegler. The happiest moment of his life was May 10 last year, when Ernie Larson fanned Jim Haney for the last out, with the score 3 to 2 in the Kelley's favor. Zieg wants to repeat. The West Duluth boy will again be sent against Kuehnow's pets and if he can score another victory, Ziegler will chase four times around the ball park for very glee.

But the result of the game is immaterial. It will give the fans a chance to see the team work out and to get a line on the players before they go to the Canadian wilds to start the season. The Kelleys will give them a competitive workout and that's always better than mere practice.

Monday and Tuesday, May 11 and 12, the fans will get one more look at the men they will be expected to support during the season. Judge Brady's overgrown colts will appear at Athletic park and the scenes of 1907 will probably be repeated. If the Hibbing nine can beat the Sox, Brady wouldn't trade places with Ban Johnson, himself. There will be some rivalry in those two games and the fans will have a chance to see the Sox working with something at stake, even if it is be not a pennant. After the last game of the Hibbing series, it will be away to Canada until May 23, when they open here with the Winnipeg Maroons.

The Sox are at Freeport for a three days' series now, and Monday they jump to Madison for a similar clash with Howdy Cassiboine's Wisconsin-Illinois leaguers. Thursday morning, they land in Duluth and go on in the afternoon with the Kelleys. Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Virginia fans will be given exhibitions of Northern league ball.

George William "Josie" Krick, successor to Wix Tredway's honors as ladies' day pitcher, reported to Morrow at Freeport yesterday, and Jacobson, the Sioux City recruit, is due today. There's still another, Pearl Ciercen of Winona, Minn., will report at Freeport and will try for a job flinging them over. Still another is Francis, a lanky youth from Wooster, Ohio, who is with Brady's Hibbing nine now, but who has signed a contract with Kuehnow. Francis is a big fellow with college experience and some record in the student ranks.

The squad is certainly well fixed in pitchers. There are Murray, Brandt, Krick, Haney, Jacobson, Hogan, Ciercen, Kerr and Francis. If Morrow can't pick a squad of four men from that gang that will make the batters of the Northern league tear large-sized chunks out of the atmosphere, there's something wrong. Al Cummings may come along also. There'll be such a surfeit of high class flingers that Duluth will be peddling them all over the circuit. Somebody's certainly due to have disappointment labeled out in large doses.

Baker, who was secured from Madison of the Wisconsin-Illinois league, will very probably not stick. His record of last year speaks for itself, and strings are out for a classy third-sacker. Williams will be availabe about June 15, when he gets out of college, but the third corner is an important spot in the infield, and it cannot be indifferently guarded, even for a month. Coggswell an old Central leaguer, who is highly touted by the manager of the South Bend team, is the latest possibility for the job, and there is still a chance that Toot Thompson, Houghton's shortstop last year, who is also held by South Bend, may be secured. Thompson is preferable to Coggswell, as his ability is known, but if the redskin goes to Artie O'Dea, which is also a possibility, Coggswell will be secured and Baker canned.

Taken altogether, the chances for a one-two team look good. A lot of experimenting is necessary to get any kind of a team together and form a perfect aggregation right at the jump-off. There is one man for every job, and every effort is being made to secure the right one.

The exhibition games now being played are giving every opportunity to get good lines on the men, and Morrow's observations are bearing fruit. Unless the other teams spring some large-sized surprises, Duluth will be in the running from the start, and everything will be done to land another pennant for the center field flagstaff, which has longed for championship for two years.

The Northern league will not be dropped back into Class D. The knockers may pound the anvil until their hammers wear away and weary joints will do the bidding of evil minds no more, but in the face of the evidence submitted to him, Secretary Farrell of the national commission cannot in fairness take the action he contemplated when he wrote to President Lamb of his intention to set the Northern league back in classification.

Somebody has been exceedingly busy whispering in the ear of the man, who guides the destinies of the minor leagues and the magnates of the Northern are on a still hunt for his scalp. Should he be found, there will be a few words interchanged, at least, which will set ears tingling.

The statement that the circuit hasn't 200,000 people is absurd on the face of it. All over the United States it is known that Duluth is a city of 80,000, Winnipeg's actual population is 110,000 and nobody would presume for a minute that two cities of such magnitude would be hobnobbling around with towns, which, combined, couldn't furnish the other 5,000 to make up the figures. Brandon has fully 14,000 people and Fargo, about 12,000, so it is hard to see how anybody can back up charges by facts and have the league set back.

Several parties might have interested themselves for different reasons in starting the agitation. Their work will certainly not bear fruit, and, like the wearer of the small mustache in the melodrama, it's their turn to slink behind the scenes and leave the league to its own resources.

The big false alarm, Hackenschmidt, who disgusted American lovers of good sportsmanship by displaying a wide yellow streak, taking several thousands of dollars, and then running back to England yelping like a whipped dog, wants to get one across on the English and is in a fair way to succeed. He has signed articles for another match with Gotch to take place in England or France for a purse of $10,000 to be donated by a syndicate.

A lot of alleged sportsmen, who will fall for a fight between Gunner Moir and Bill Squires, are likely to bite at any game that is handed to them and there'll be no surprise on this side of the water over their paying to see Gotch maul Hackenschmidt all over the mat. The articles have been mailed to the world's champion and he will certainly sign them. He would be foolish if he didn't. It's easy money for him. He knows he can beat Hackenschmidt now and he'll probably do it in less than two hours. Tommy Burns didn't get quite all the money in England and Hack will be able to pick up a few pennies throwing dubs.

The fight between Tommy Burns and Bill Squires, scheduled to take place May 11 in England, has been called off because the club failed to put up the money, and another piece of change has slipped through Tommy'ss hands. After picking up so much lying around loose crying for somebody to take possession of it, Tommy's heart must be nearly broken by the failure of the club to donate a few more thousands to the fund he is gathering for the proverbial rainy day. When Tommy returns to America, he will be able to share honors with John D. in the cartoons, especially if anybody stoops for the holdup he is trying to pull off in connection with a match with Jack Johnson.

Regardless of how many times they go down and out or how many times crowds kiss them for stalling, the Sullivan Twins, Jack and Mike, get the money. From Portland, Me., to San Francisco they have fought, and Jack even invaded Alaska. Neither one of them ever showed real championship form, but they keep plugging away, giving good fights and worrying some of the younger men, who are after the honors at their weight. Next week Jack will go against Stanley Ketchell. The Ketchell boy should win and will without a doubt. But Jack will get a nice piece of change out of it and will be backed for more just as soon as he recovers. There's no stopping the Sullivan Twins.

UNHOLZ IS CONFIDENT

Boer Thinks He Has Chance With the Old Master.

Chicago, May 2.—If Rudolph Unholz beats Joe Gans in their fight in San Francisco this month for the lightweight championship, he says he will not give Packey McFarland a chance to fight for it.

This is the information contained in a letter from Unholz, who is now training at the Union hotel, San Mateo, for the battle with the "old master."

This, in part, is what Rudolph has to say of his coast plans:

"This is all settled that I am to box Gans here May 14, and we will draw a tremendous house. I consented to meet him in a twenty-round contest only because I am getting a gurantee of $3,000, win, lose or draw, along with a privilege of 25 per cent of the gross, which, I think, will amount to at least $5,000.

"The weight will be easy for me, and I am already within a few ounces of it and feel fine and strong. There is plenty of fresh country air at this place and it is an ideal training ground.

"Nearly all the people here think I will be easy for the black man, but the Boer will spring another surprise on them, I am sure. If I don't beat Gans then I will be content to step aside and let Packey have a fly at him. But, should I win, I am going to make Packey wait for a battle with me. It will be a long time before he will get a chance if I can succeed in holding him off."

Of course, now that McFarland and Gilmore have split, Unholz may change his mind. Fighters change their minds often. Notice how Rudy changed his when offered fat inducements to meet Gans? He declared he never would tackle the black man in anything short of a forty-five-round engagement.

Packey, when told of Unholz's remark, declared that Rudy needn't mind about him (Packey), for when Gans got through with the Boer no more would be heard of the South African.

TRICKS IN WRESTLING

Many Devices Employed by Unfair Exponents of Grappling.

Oiling the Body One of Oldest Tricks Known to Game.

When George Hackeschmidt accused Frank Gotch of having oiled his body in their recent match at Chicago for the catch-as-catch-can championship of the world, the Russian Lion evidently overlooked the fact that such a trick is one of the oldest and most easily practiced tricks known in wrestling, according to Hughy Leonard, instructor in the art at the New York Athletic club, says the New York Times.

The ruse was introduced in this country as far back as thirty years ago. It is generally supposed to have had its origin in England, but some of the old books on wrestling describe the trick as having been popular among the grapplers of ancient Rome.

"Old timers, or persons who know or understand the primitive rudiments of the wrestling game," said Leonard, "will tell you that this is the first trick a scheming and ambitious wrestler will try his best to learn. The idea comes as natural to him, apparently, as it is for a resourceful boxer to cultivate the knack of adjusting his gloves in such a manner that the hair stuffing will be far away from his knuckles in order to add extra power to his blows.

"Oiling the skin makes the body slippery, and in this way it is extremely difficult to get a good hold on your opponent. There are various ways of applying the oil, but it must be executed deftly, so as to deceive a referee. Some wrestlers use cold ceram, and rub it into the skin each day for three or four days before a match.

"The cream in this way gets into the pores, and as soon as the men begin to perspire the oil comes to the surface and the body becomes very slippery. Liniments and other oils are often used, principally by foreign wrestlers, especially Turks, who eat a lot of greasy food.

"There are other tricks employed in the game, and I can recall one practiced on me when I was first starting out as a wrestler. I met a fellow named Jack Smith at Nelson at Nelson hall, on East Fifteenth street, this city. Smith was an Englishman with the reputation of being a fast, clever wrestler. Billy Muldoon backed me in the match, and as it was practically my first contest of improtance I was determined to throw Smith in a hurry and win.

"While I was in my corner waiting for the call of time I observed that Smith's skin, particularly about his arms, was very smooth and white. As he was apparently naturally swarthy I became suspicious. I turned to Muldoon, who was behind me, and told him to examine Smith's body. Muldoon did so, but could not discover anything radically amiss.

"So the match went on, and after we were on the mat about about thirty minutes I found that Smith's body was oiled. Well, I had hard work to gain a fall, but I finally threw my opponent in an hour and a half bout. By the time the next bout started the oil had disappeared and the second fall was easy for me.

"There are lots of other tricks used by wrestlers who do not care to rely on fair means to beat their opponents. When I acted as referee in the first match between the late Yousouf, the Turk, and Ernest Roeber for the Greco-Roman title. Yousouf sprung an entirely new one on me. However, he did not get away with it, for I promptly disqualified him and gave the contest to Roeber.

"Yousouf, after the men had been tossing each other over the mat, finally grabbed his own wrist, and rushed at Roeber. Then, with the forearm, he jolted Roeber in the ribs, and the latter fell off the stage. It was a foul of the most pronounced kind, but a trick just the same. It was executed very cleverly, too, and had a layman been in the ring the chances are that the Turk would have escaped detection. The thrust loosed all the ligaments of Roeber's ribs, and he was disabled for several days.

'Using the rails to scratch and the thumb to gouge a man's eyes or injure him in some way has been tried very often. I don't blame a man for trying it if the referee stands for it."

George Bothner relates a tale which is interesting. The principals were two-third rate wrestlers.

'I acted as referee in the match which took place in a New England town several years ago," said Bothner. "After ten minutes the man who was evidently the less clever of the two allowed his opponent to get on top. The upper man had not been in this position more than a minute or two when he suddenly keeled over on his back and became unconscious.

"I was frightened, for I thought the man had suffered a stroke of apoplexy or an attack of heart failure. I bent over him and saw that he was still breathing. I assisted him in his chair and one of the promoters of the affair rushed to leave the ring, and held him. I got close to the man who won and was almost overcome by a smell which seemed to emanate from the wrestlers' head. I investigated and found that the fellow had smeared his hair with some poisonous preparation.

The fumes were strong enough to render any one unconscious or nauseate him. I took the fellow to task and he confessed. He said that when he allowed his antagonist to get on top he did it with the intention of having his opponent to come in contact with the preparation, which he knew in time would do its work. He said he had acquired the trick from a German wrestler who also had some knowledge of chemistry. The preparation, he said, did not act until perspiration set in.

'I wanted to have the fellow arrested, but he pleaded so long and hard that he was allowed to go. His victim recovered in a little while, apparently none the worse for his experience. Although the trick was an effective one, but for the fact that the men were in fine condition it might have ended fatally."

Bad Attack of Dysentery Cured.

'An honored citizen of this town was suffering from a severe attack of dysentery. He told a friend if he could obtain a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, he felt confident of being cured, he having used this remedy in the West. He was told that I kept it in stock and lost no time in obtaining it, and was promptly cured." says M. J. Leach, druggist, of Wolcott, Vt. For sale by all drugists.

UMPIRES HANDLE MEN

Both Big Leagues Have Good Staffs of Arbiters.

Some Players Kick Because it is Only Natural for Them.

That a baseball umpire life's not a bed of roses even in these times of strict interpretation of the rules as to good order in the playing field and the firm support given the indicator handlers by the presidents of the big leagues, will be generally admitted. Even if the players are well under control, the "umps" have their troubles in being the targets of abuse for the fans in the stands. The umpire is a human being, although there are times when thousands of fans would be willing to swear to the contrary.

President Harry Pulliam of the National league and President Ban Johnson of the American have almost solved the umpire question. That is to say, they have brought that end of the game to as near perfection as in the opinion of well-posted baseball men it ever will be. This has been done by standing by the umpires through thick and thin, provided they are right. No more can a club owner or a manager dictate as to the assignments of umpires or have men removed from the staff, as was frequently the case in former years.

The National league staff for the season comprises Henry O'Day of Chicago, Robert Emslie of St. Thomas, Can., J. E. Johnstone of Newark, N. J., W. J. Klem of New York, Charles Rigler of Massillon, Ohio, and Frank Rudderham of Providence. The first four named are all veterans, who have long since shown their ability and are practically National league fixtures.

Rigler made his debut in the fall of 1906. His work last year suited some players and fans and not others. The pitchers of the world's champion Chicago Cubs claim that Rigler is "too much minor league." They say that they fear to take a chance and curve a third strike over the plate when a batter has three balls and two strikes on him, as Rigler always looks for a straight ball.

Frank Rudderham was long a successful minor league pitcher. Last year he essayed umpiring and made good at once in the Southern league. He was given a brief trial in the last month of the 1907 season by President Pulliam and did so well that he was signed for further trial this year.

Hank O'Day states clearly the umpire's position: "I have been charged with being severely strict on the ball field," says Hank, "but I guess if the records were consulted it would be found that I have removed fewer players from games than any other man handling the indicator in either of the big leagues. Unless a player insists on openly violating the rules or becoming too abusive in remarks directed at me I manage to handle him without ordering his removal. I would very much prefer to have players come out boldly and kick than to have them throw sacractic smiles at me and make sneering remarks to other players that are meant for me. When they talk to me I can get back at them, but there is no way of retaliating when they content themselves with showing their teeth."

The American league umpires for the season are Jack Sheridan of Los Angeles, "Silk" O'Loughlin of Rochester, Tommy Connolly of Natick, Miss.; Tim Hurst of Ashland, Pa.; William J. Evans of Youngstown Ohio, and A. J. Egan. The veterans of the staff known to and popular with all American league patrons are Sheridan, Hurst, O'Loughlin and Connolly.

Evans, who is a journalist in winter, made an impressive debut last season. His work justified his retention by President Johnson. The young umpire had a serious experience in St. Louis last fall, when he was hit on the head and badly injured by a pop bottle thrown by a frenzied fan in the bleacher seats. Evans recovered quickly and worked out the season against the wish of President Johnson. Egan, the new comer, formerly pitched for the Providence Eastern league club. He umpired last season in the American association, and did so well that Ban Johnson signed him.

"Silk" O'Loughlin, as spokesman for the American staff, gives an insight of the relations between players and umpires that should be of interest to the fans.

"If umpires were to take to heart," says "Silk," "all the sallies that players make at them during a season, they would surely finish in the booby house.

"Some ball players can no more help kicking at an umpire than they can help their flair growing. They were born aggressive, and they have been pugnacious from the cradle. It would be unfair to treat these fellows, who are all right off the ball field, as players are treated who have complete control of themselves and throw insults at umpires with deliberation, without being angry at anything in particular.

"It's all in the game. The boys'll be bucking the umpires as long as the game endures, but the bitterness will slough away in time and the players and the public will perceive more and more clearly all the time the difficult nature of the arbitrator's job. Much has been said and written about this habit that ball players have, and apparently cannot break themselves of entirely, of disputing decisions. The practice dates back for many years. As far back as 1869, in an account of a game between the famous Atlantics of Brooklyn and the Excelsiors there appeared the following:

"We hope to see the boys' play of disputing over the decision of umpires entirely done away with." Many years have passed since that was written, and the players still dispute what in some quarters it is argued should be the sacred decisions of the judges of play. Nowadays the best umpires in the game make allowances for the state of mind a player is in while engaged in a close contest.

The following extract from a New York paper printed in 1867, President Harry Pulliam of the National league reads to his umpires when they gather for the annual spring conference:

"Kelly says that Peck's dummy has created quite an excitement on Ann street. Dressed in a full baseball rig, he looks quite natty. Scofield of the Haymakers did think about bringing the figure over to the Union grounds to act as umpire in the Haymakers-Eckford game yesterday, but a young man named Monell was found who answered nearly as well."

A GREAT COOK.

In a lecture, entitled "The Christmas Dinner," Mrs. Charlotte Clayton-Terence, the cooking expert of Cleveland, paused to condemn the cook of the average country hotel.

"She," said Mrs. Clayton-Terence," resembles the woman of whom two men were talking.

"'But, can she cook?' said the first man.

"'Cook?' said the other. 'You bet she can cook. Why, she could get a hotel job if she wanted to. Hang it, man, that woman knows thirty-two distinct names for bread pudding.'"

SCHOOL CUP IS AT STAKE

Three Teams Will Play Series for Northern Trophy.

Blaine and Centrals to Meet in Duluth Next Saturday.

The customary series of games between the Duluth Central, Nelson Dewey and Blaine high school baseball teams for the possession of the Northern Hardware cup has been arranged by the athletic authorities of the three schools. The series will open next Wednesday, when the Centrals will play the Nelson Dewey team at Superior, and for some weeks to come high school spirit will run high as the three nines battle for the championship of the Head of the Lakes and the trophy, which goes with the title.

Next Saturday the Centrals will meet Blaine at Athletic park here and the game will be the important one of the high school season here. Blaine and Duluth had a neck and neck run for the cup last year. Blaine finally won, but it was only after the hardest kind of a struggle and the Duluth boys are out to retrieve this season. The rivalry between the two schools has always been intense and it will find just as much expression in the game next Saturday as it does in the annual football contest.

The Central boys are working out just as often as the weather will permit, and the squad is showing up in fine shape. There were a few losses by graduation last year, but the candidates for the vacant places are numerous and able and no apprehension is felt among the students. Cummings and Cook, who will divide the twirling, are both in good shape and Spencer's catching will hold up that end of the battery.

TOO EARLY FOR FISHING

Wise Ones Waiting at Home for Better Conditions.

No Big Catches Will be Made for Two Weeks Yet.

Despite the fact that over two weeks of the time allowed by law for the catching of brook trout has passed, the fishing season in Northern Minnesota hasn't really opened yet. A few catches have been reported but they are very few. The majority of those, who have taken the elements by the forelock and tried to start something have received nothing but jolts and were compelled to come home and go back to the meat diet without so much as tasting the toothsome trout.

It's altogether too early. April 15, may be a spring date, when viewed by people living in the southern part of the state, but up here it's still winter and today, May 2, doesn't seem so very late in the gay springtime. Old fishermen are hanging back. They know better than to freeze themselves trampling through woods and wading streams at this early date. They are only getting their tackle in shape and setting their fisherman's patience working to help them wait until there's a possibility of their pulling something out of the streams.

eetimez'oyegymost'e ocmfw cm cm cm c

Those, who have been out, have come back empty handed for the most part, but brimming over with advice. The streams are too high, the waters are dirty and the woods are far from inviting. The wise ones are taking counsel and biding their time. When they do go out, they'll make those who took the early trips look like farmer boys with a twine line and a bent pin.

There'll probably be nothing doing for about two weeks yet. Then, if the weather man sees fit to lift the icy grip of winter, there'll be some joy in the woods and real gladness may come to the fisherman. Until that time, he who makes a catch should file himself to Wall street and buck the market. A man with his luck could win a fortune on a dollar.

Savannah Anxious to Have Races for the Vanderbilt Cup.

New York, May 2.—The place for the automobile race for the Vanderbilt cup will not be decided immediately. Representatives of the Savanah auto club conferred yesterday with W. J. Vanderbilt, Jr., regarding the advantages of Savannah for the race.

Messrs. Vanderbilt and Thompson explained that an immediate decision would be impossible. Later, Mr. Thompson said that it may be possible to obtain a race circuit nearer New York than Savannah. He said that if the race takes place in the North it will be held in October. Should the race go to Georgia, it will be deferred until November.

CINCINNATI WANTS SINCOCK

Calumet Boy at University of Michigan Turns Down Offer.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 2.—Herbert Sincock, a sophomore medical student from Calumet, Mich., has received an offer to pitch for the Cincinnati National League club. He says he is holding off until June, and even then may not sign. Sincock has been ineligible to play varsity ball on account of his failure to pass in one subject last semester. He has now removed the condition and probably will twirl against Beloit Saturday. He is regarded as Michigan's expert pitcher.

The Sincock referred to in the dispatch played with Calumet in the Northern-Copper Country league for a time last season and his work made a favorable impression. He won six games and lost nine, but that is no reflection on his ability, considering the misfit aggregation he had behind him. Sincock has all that goes to make a pitcher—a good physique, speed, curves and a head. He lacks experience alone and would hardly do for major league company without that.

MANY CANDIDATES.

Wolvin Building to Have Strong Nine in Local Field.

The candidates for the baseball team to represent the Wolvin building offices this year have their first work-out this afternoon, on the grounds at Thirty-second avenue west. There are about twenty candidates for the team and they match up well with most of the amateur and semi-professional nines of the city. Enthusiasm among the office employes is marked and the boys expect to hold together and play Saturday dates all summer, with some of the strongest teams of the district.

The five companies quartered in the Wolvin building have come forward with subscriptions for the purchase of uniforms, and the list is now going through the entire building. The boys expect to raise a sufficient amount to equip themselves completely with uniforms, bats, masks, balls, etc. They will not make their appearance in a game for several weeks yet, but will practice frequently, so that every candidate may have a thorough try-out before the team is picked.

He made the high run of the tournament with 120 in his fifteenth inning, which beat Rebolle's record of 103 made last night. Poggenburg's high run was 44; average, 13 4-18.

GOOD SPORT IN DAKOTA

Three Race Circuits Will be Busy in Flickertail State.

Purses of $6,500 in Grand Forks for Last Week in July.

Followers of the race horses in the Northwest will find plenty of sport this season. This will be particularly true in North Dakota and Southern Manitoba will not be far behind. A number of Duluth horses will be campaigned on the circuits and are expected to get some of the money.

Three racing circuits will be represented in the Flickertail state, the Northwestern North Dakota circuit, the Central circuit of North Dakota, and the International. The sport will open June 1 and continue until August. Two big meets will be held in Manitoba, at Brandon and Winnipeg, and other individual meets are scheduled throughout the province.

Nine meets are scheduled in both the Northwestern and Central North Dakota circuits. The Northwestern offers purses aggregating $25,000 and the Central, $35,000. M. C. Bacheller, secretary of the big Grand Forks fair at Grand Forks announces a program of $6,500 for the last four days of July and exceptional purses are offered by Winnipeg and Brandon. The last two towns are engaged in a squabble over dates and have settled it by selecting the same dates. Winnipeg holds a seven day meet, closing July 17 and Brandon a five day meet closing the same date.

Many horses are now in North Dakota for training. Quarters have been established on the fine track of the North Dakota State Fair association at Grand Forks where a fast bunch of speeders are getting their early work and in a short time more will be doing the same. Good sport has been the rule in the past in North Dakota but it will be better than ever this season.

The dates of the North Dakota Central circuit are: Casselton, June 3, 4; Fargo, June 9-12; Couternay, June 16-18; Carrington, June 23-25; Wimbleton, June 29-July 1; Cooperstown, July 3, 4; Valley City, July 7-10; Jamestown, July 14-16; Fessenden, July 21-23.

For the Grand Forks meet, the stake entries close May 22 at 11 p. m., and class entries, July 1. For the running races, entrance closes at 6 p. m. the day before each race. Following is the program for the Grand Forks meet:

GRIFFIN IS COMING.

Australian Featherweight is After Fight With Abe Attell.

New York, May 2.—A cable dispatch from London says that Charley Griffin, the Australian feather-weight champion who whipped Bowker Monday, intends to sail for New York within a fortnight. Griffin said today:

"I am going after Abe Attell and am prepared to fight him under almost any conditions and I think I can beat him."

Griffin is a sturdy lad, 24 years old. He has been fighting for four years and has a long list of victories.

In the fifth with Bowker the odds were 3 to 1 against Griffin.

The London sporting world is aroused over the prospect of a match between Burns and Johnson, and there is much criticism of Burns because he insists upon impossible financial conditions for the match. The general sporting opinion of London is that Burns ought to meet Johnson. This is editorially pointed out in yesterday's Sportsman.

MADE HIT WITH BASEBALL FANS

Governor Johnson Held a "Fanning Bee" at Detroit.

BY JACK F. CREMER.

"Say," said Sliver, breaking through the door and closing it quickly, "I guess this Johnson party is poor, what? Not only is he the little old original spieling kid, but he's some pumpkins at the sport thing.

"You see, he was sore because it was too cold for him to go to the game yesterday, and he sat around moping because he couldn't see Ty Cobb.

"Well, last night, when the proletariat is passing in review touching mitts with the big smoke, I pegs in in the Pontch and gallops over and grabs him.

"'Quick,' says I, 'Governor Johnson is about to expire because you've neglected him.'

"'Back,' says Ty, 'your sparker's jumping. He don't want to see me.'

"'Sure he does,' I insisted; 'come with me,' and I lugged him around in line.

"Well, we gets a hold of Bill Thompson and the mayor does the honors. Say, was the guy glad? Take it from me, pals, this was the big light for him. He forgot all about 150 of the hoi polloi waiting to lap fingers, and stands there and chins with Ty while I lugs in Claude Rossman, who was hiding in the lobby.

"And does this Johnson person know the game, does he? I'll bet he keeps all the box scores and figures his own dope.

"'How are you hitting?' says he to Ty.

"'Not very good,' says Ty.

"'It's all right,' says the guy. 'Things are breaking bad for the team. You boys will soon hit your stride. You'll hit better this season than last because this new sacrifice hit rule will help.'

"And away he goes with that line of talk. Say, he knows all the players who ever paddled around St. Paul and can give you the pitching records off-hand of about all the good ones in the country. Says he to Ross:

"'I wanted you boys to beat the Cubs. Man for man you've got a better team, but you had been playing under such a strain that it was only natural that you lost. But if that one passed ball hadn't lost you the first game, I believe you would have won the series.'

"I'm going out and make a book that Johnson gets the ball players' vote right off the bat. He smiles like Bill Donovan, and he certainly is there with the winning shake.

"The governor who can hand you all the baseball dope and then talk to the high brows is the one best bet for president."—Detroit Journal.

ELWOOD GETS DATES.

Long Branch, N. J., May 2.—The officials of the Monmouth County Trotting association announced yesterday that they had received notice from the Grand Circuit stewards that the application of Elwood Park had been accepted.

Elwood Park succeeds Providence, which has been dropped. The first race meet under the new arrangement will be held from Aug. 31 to Sept. 7, the dates originally assigned to Providence.

FIRST GAME OF SEASON

Kelleys and Hibbing Play Opener at Athletic Park.

Teams Are High Among Semi-Pros of Northern Minnesota.

The fears of Manager Ziegler of the Kelley Hardware ball team that the weather would go back on him and he would be forced to call off the games scheduled with Hibbing at Athletic park this afternoon and tomorrow, were dispersed this morning, when the sun came out and all danger of a snow storm this afternoon passed. The first baseball game of the season goes on at Athletic park this afternoon, and the Kelleys will go right after the pride of the Mesaba range.

Brady has a fine team again this year. For five straight years he has won the championship of Northern Minnesota in independent ball, and he does'nt intend to lose the title this year without a great struggle. Nearly all of the old men, who make their home at Hibbing, are back on the team, and several classy pitchers have been recruited to hold up the battery work. Brady has six boxmen on his squad now, and he intends to work all of them in the two games here, as they have had little work thus far, and will not be able to go the whole route.

Max Cook, the high school boy, who is developing into a good pitcher this year, will start the game for the Kelleys this afternoon, and he will be relieved during the game by Brownlee, a new man in the local field. The opening of the season is marked by a parade at 2 o'clock, and both games will be called at 3 o'clock.

Tommie Larson, the West Duluth boy, will go in the box for the Kelleys, and he intends to throw the entire nine innings. He has had considerable work this year and his arm is in fine shape. Ziegler has all kinds of confidence in his ability to hold the Hibbing sluggers in check, and he looks for a victory, at least tomorrow.

The Kelleys have already arranged a long schedule of games, most of them outside of the city. Next Sunday they open the Cloquet season by playing the home team there. May 16 and 17 Virginia will be played on Virginia ground, and May 23 and 24, the following Saturday and Sunday, the hardware boys will appear at Hibbing. May 30, Decoration day, May 31 and June 7 are still open on the schedule, and the Kelleys will go to Staples for a game June 14.

The game scheduled between the Fitwells and Cloquet at Cloquet tomorrow has been called off on account of the poor condition of the grounds at the lumbering town. The management of the Cloquet team called up Thursday and called off the game. The date was too late to arrange another game for tomorrow, so the Fitwells will be idle.

SUTTER VS. BEEMAN.

Charles Sutter, the Proctor lightweight, champion of the Head of the Lakes, and Charles Beeman of Houghton, Mich., will go on the mat at the Metropolitan opera house this evening after the regular performance. Sutter has had no matches for several weeks, but he has kept in condition and is in shape to handle the Houghton man. Nothing is known of Beeman here, but he claims to have the goods. The men will weigh in at about 135 pounds and the match will be catch-as-catch-can, best two in three, pin falls.

Mantell-Donovan Draw.

Dayton, Ohio, May 2.—Frank Mantell of Providence and Mike Donovan of Rochester fought twenty rounds to a draw here last night. The weight was 150 pounds at 3 o'clock.

BANKERS IN CLOSE RACE

Leaders of the Bowling League Have But One Game Margin.

Match Next Friday Night Will Decide the Championship.

Next week is the last of the season of the Duluth City Bowling league and interest is running high in the final results. The championship lies between the First National Bank and Fitwell teams, the Bankers leading the Fitwells and the league by one game. Next Friday night the Bankers and Fitwells will get together in the last match of the season and on it hinges the championship. If the Fitwells can win three straight games, they will take down the honors. The Bankers must win two to hold their place at the head of the column. Two victories for the Fitwells will mean a tie and another match to decide.

The cellar championship is still in doubt also. The Columbias and Big Duluths are tied at the bottom with a percentage of .474 and the Centrals are little better off with a percentage of .476. The Oak Halls have third place cinched.

The Big Duluths drew themselves to the front in team average during the past week, finishing with 916 to the Fitwells' 914. Sam Olsen still leads in the individual averages with 194 for fifty games and McLean, his nearest competitor, is far away with an average of 185. The averages follow:

RAIN AT FREEPORT.

White Sox Unable to Play First Game of Series.

Freeport, Ill., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth team of the Northern league, in charge of Manager W. E. Morrow, is in Freeport and the men are stiff and sore from practicing in the chilly weather of the past week. They collided with another rainstorm here yesterday and were unable to play the first game of the scheduled series. They will play this afternoon and tomorrow, going to Madison for a game Monday.

AT THE LYCEUM

Grace Cameron in "Little Dolly Dimples" Wednesday and Thursday---Al. G. Field's Greater Minstrels on Friday and Saturday.

The title of C. Herbert Kerr's musical operatic drama ,with dainty Grace Cameron as the star, is "Little Dollie Dimples," which will open at the Lyceum, with a Wednesday matinee, May 6, and continue Wednesday and Thursday. The story of this merry comedy, which is now in its second year, is told in two acts, and the scenes are laid in and about New York city. In the first act Miss Cameron is seen as a street waif. She wanders away to Paris, receives an education through a good friend, who discovers that she is a great singer, and presents her to one of the leading managers in Paris, who stars her in his opera. While playing some of the smaller towns, the company gets stranded. She returns to America, her old home, which she left in despair six years before. On her arrival she is introduced to many of her old friends of former years, but none of them seem to recognize her as the former waif, "Dollie Dimples." In time she makes known to her old friend, Robert Loraine, her visit to Paris, etc. This knowledge puts him on to a scheme whereby he secures for her the money and property left to her many years before by the death of her uncle; and in the second act of the play she, as the witch, forces a confession from Mayme Green and Alexander Comstock, a lawyer with a shady reputation, that they had robbed her of the estate by false representations, and before she finishes with them they are glad to turn the entire estate over to her without any trouble. All goes well, and Dollie is made happy with the knowledge of love that Robert Loraine had shown her during her troubles.

Supporting Miss Cameron are such well-known artists as Al Lawrence, mimic; Miss Florence Langdon Tempest, character old woman; the famous baritone, Louis London; Phoebe and Jessie Cardownie, America's famous dancers; Will Philbrick, character comedian; Daisy King, soprano; the famous Elm City Quartette, and America's greatest musical act, the Criterion Musical Four, and the renowned pony ballet and Broadway show girls.

FIELD'S MINSTRELS.

Famous Blackface King Will be at Lyceum Next Week.

The many offerings that Al G. Field has compiled in his Greater Minstrel Show this season are de luxe and incomparable. The types that he has conceived for the amusement and edification of theater goers are the cherished possessions of the English-speaking race. Minstrelsy, as presented by Al G. Field, is an amusement that has a wholesome influence, and gives unalloyed delight. No one in the realm of minstrelsy has delved so deeply into the secrets of the darky heart as Al G. Field has, and he has this year prepared numerous surprises for his patrons. The newspapers of the cities through which the minstrels have passed are unanimous in the verdict that this year's performance simply reflects the high standing of the Al G. Field Greater Minstrels as an organization. It will appear here at the Lyceum, Friday and Saturday matinee and night, May 8 and 9.

LYCEUM NOTES.

News and Gossip of the Attractions Coming to Duluth.

"Brewster's Millions," the amazing success of the past year in New York and Chicago, will be presented at the Lyceum soon.

The managers, Cohan & Harris, declare in a note on the program that they leave it to the audience to decide whether the play is farce, melodrama or tragedy. The dramatization of McCutcheon's book does not touch very strongly on either the comic or the tragic, but while it lasts it does amuse. The storm at sea, showing a yacht being pitched about is a most effective bit of realism.

W. P. Cullen has made a big revival of Pixley & Luder's famous musical comedy success, "The Burgomaster," and will present it at the Lyceum this spring with a large cast, headed by Gus Weinburg and Ruth White. These two sterling players are the originals in the roles of the genial old Peter Stuyvesant, burgomaster of New Amsterdam, and Willie, the gay youth, who leads the governor around New York when he is reincarnated. The company will number fifty people. The production is an especially handsome one. The costumes have been revised and are all new. Especial attention has been paid by Mr. Cullen to the voices of the chorus, as well as to the beauty of the feminine portion. "The Burgomaster" was the first of the Pixley & Luder pieces to gain popularity, others being "The Prince of Pilsen," "King Dodo," and "The Grand Mogul." The music is of the singing and whistling variety and it is said that more copies of "The Tale of the Kangaroo" and "I Love You" have been sold than of any other songs brought out in musical comedies.

Among the many plays that will be seen in Clay Clement's repertoire during his engagement in the city will be the "New Dominion," which is from the actor's own pen. The play is a comedy drama in four acts and tells a beautiful love story.

Mr. Clement will appear with a very strong supporting company. In the cast will be seen Miss Kathleen Kerrigan, who is Mr. Clement's leading lady, and a lady of exceptional ability. Every play will be dressed and staged with the very best and to the smallest detail. A complete production is carried for each play and this engagement will, without doubt, be the dramatic treat of the season.

The contrast between Kate and her half sister, Wanda, in the new college play for girls, "Cupid at Vassar," is clearly shown by the spirit which animates each in the working out of her college life. Sincerity and insincerity could have no better exponents than the two sisters here portrayed. Both are in love with the same man. Both are daughters of the same mother, but here the similarity ends. The play comes here in the course of a few weeks.

CLAY CLEMENT,
Who Will Be at the Lyceum May 14, 15 and 16.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

Joe Oppenheimer's Fay Foster Company, With the Original Gotch-Hackenschmidt Wrestling Match Pictures, Will be the Attraction.

Joe Oppenheimer's Fay Foster company will provide a merry week's entertainment at the Metropolitan during the ensuing week. There will be all of the usual features, including the regular matinees, a chorus girls' contest Thursday night and an amateur night Friday.

Mr. Oppenheimer has been a director of burlesque for a long time and he is popularly supposed to know what is what. In the past, the Fay Foster company has always made good with the Metropolitan's clientele and it is expected that this season will prove no exception.

In addition to a lengthy vaudeville bill, there are two stirring burlesques, "Dress Parade," and "Manila Bay," both of which are from the facile pan—or typewriter—of the "Great Carroll."

Harry Cooper is the principal funmaker and he is completely surrounded by capable assistants, including the well known dancer, Mlle. Eller. The chorus is said to be large and very pretty, and will be seen in a score of musical numbers, including "My California Poppy," "Yona From Arizona" and "Won't You Be My Teddy Bear."

As an added feature, the original moving pictures of the now famous Gotch-Hackenschmidt wrestling match at Chicago, will be given in every detail. These pictures are said to be marvels of modern mutoscopic photography.

AT THE BIJOU

Celebrated Violinist Will Be the Feature of the Coming Week's Attractions. "The Phantom Rival" a Clever Comedy Sketch.

The Bijou offers many clever vaudeville attractions for next week. On the bill will be the celebrated violinist, Oscar Loraine. The following notice is from the Winnipeg Free Press, where Loraine is appearing this week:

"As a headliner it would be difficult to choose betwen Oscar Loraine and the Eddy family. Both of these acts are of the first water and were received with about equal applause. Loraine is a violinist. There can be no doubt of that. In calling him a master of the soul-stirring instrument it is not likely a mistake would be made. He is a finished artist and was excellent in his impersonations of famous violinists. First, in view of the audience, he 'made up' as Jan Kubelik, while next he appeared as Rigo. Last he performed in the character of Ole Bull and it was probably in this latter role that he was at his best."

One of the best comedy sketches presented at the Bijou in some time will be Lillian Hale and company in "The Phantom Rival." Miss Hale is one of our best known leading women and is now in her first season in vaudeville. She is supported by excellent talent, including Sager Dean, who is the author of "The Phantom Rival." He is also a clever actor and the sketch offers an abundance of good comedy from start to finish.

A bright singing and dancing act will be offered by the De Lacys, who are a pair of youngsters with exceptional ability in their line. They also introduce several character imitations of the highest order.

Another act of singing and eccentric dancing will be Harry Pilcer, whose original ways and eccentric step dancing have made him a well known favorite in vaudeville.

An act of strength, skill and grace will be given by Ehrendall Brothers, who are marvelous equilibrists, and present a feature gymnastic act, introducing the most difficult feats of head to head and hand balancing, as well as feats of balancing never done by any other gymnasts.

Isadore Silver will sing one of the newest illustrated songs, entitled "What's Good Enough For Washington Is Good Enough For Me."

The moving pictures will be two comedy subjects entitled "How I Won a Pig," and "Animated Snowballs."

Matinees are given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved in advance by either telephone. A special school children's matinee will be given Saturday afternoon, and performances Sunday afternoon and night.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

"The Wolf," a Melodrama of Northern Canada, Not an Emphatic Hit---Latest Cohan Musical Piece Makes Fair Impression.

New York, May 2.—It is not often that the New York public is invited to an avowedly melodramatic performance on Broadway, for melodrama has a sinister sound in the ears of Gothamites, and everything that bears the name is unreasoningly associated with the thrillers of the 10, 20 and 30 cent playhouses. But with a boldness that inspires admiration Eugene Walter frankly paraded his new play, "The Wolf," at the Bijou as a "melodrama of the Canadian Hudson Bay Country," and almost won out.

I say almost, for in the face of the diversity of opinion which the critics have expressed in regard to the latest offering of the author of "Paid in Full," one is obliged to be careful in using positive terms. I am reliably informed that Walter produced this play in the course of one strenuous night, and certain internal evidence of crudeness in construction and distorted character drawing lends color to the legend.

"The Wolf" is less a succinct dramatic unit than it is a dramatized episode, founded upon elemental conditions of technical and psychological requisites and leading up to one intense and thrilling climax which closes the play. Despite these sundry evidences of haste, one may safely venture to say that there was not one person present who did not enjoy the vigorous English and half-English, the stimulating atmosphere and the breezy characterizations of the masculine portion of the cast as well as the poetic glamor thrown over the simple individuality of the Swedish-Scotch heroine, the only woman in the play.

The plot dealt with the eternal triangle in a simplified manner. The scene is far up in Northwestern Canada in the languorous autumn. The action opens at the cabin home of Andrew McTavish, a Scotch settler, whose Swedish wife ran away with a handsomer man and left him as an heirloom the yellow-haired Hilda. This Scotchman is an obstinate Presbyterian and sees in Hilda only the reincarnation of her mother's wickedness.

An American engineer named MacDonald is surveying a railroad through that section of the country and is availing himself of McTavish's cabin as an office as well as a domestic abiding place. This MacDonald has a plausible exterior, but as we learn from his garrulous young assistant, George Huntley, is a devil of a fellow with the women and has a wife and child in Chicago while posing as an eligible candidate for the simple Hilda's hand before the irascible old Scotchman.

MacDonald seeks to beguile the fancy of this poetic child of nature, intending to destroy her happiness as he did that of a previous victim, whose pathetic story of love, desertion and suicide has already been made familiar to the audience. Now appears on the scene the light-hearted Jules Beaubien, a young French-Canadian of independent fortune, who has come that way for three years to pay his silent tribute of admiration to the wildwood charms of the yellow-haired Hilda. Jules soon learns what MacDonald's plans are; he also learns that MacDonald is the mysterious unknown who drove his sister to her ruin. From that moment we realize that, despite the outward suavity of the two men toward each other, a death struggle between them is somewhere impending.

This crisis is forwarded when MacDonald persuades the Scotchman to allow him to take Hilda with him to the States on a plausible pretext, and Jules Beaubien steps in his way, strikes him in the face and escapes with Hilda down stream.

This makes an effective climax, and when we meet them again it is in the trackless wilderness of the Canadian Rockies. A canoe is carrying Jules, Hilda, Huntley and Jules' faithful ally, Batiste le Grand, a Hudson Bay trader, down the river. Night has overtaken them, and Hilda is tired, but Jules and Batiste know that MacDonald is relentlessly on the trail to avenge the blow and wrest Hilda from the young Canadian's protection. It is here that Hilda admits her love for Jules. But their lovemaking is short. Persuaded by Jules, Batiste and Huntley take Hilda into the canoe and pursue their journey alone. Batiste knows that Jules will tarry there to await the coming of MacDonald. A graphic scene is enacted when the expected moment arrives, with Jules near the camp fire. We almost feel the presence of the avenger in the enveloping loom, and wonder when the blow shall fall.

We have not long to wait. As the young Canadian crosses the circle of the light a shot is heard, and there is a moment's silence. Then a form stalks out of the darkness and bends over the prostrate figure. For a moment we imagine that vice has triumphed over virtue. But in that moment Jules is on his feet. A terrible struggle ensues. We can see only two writhing human bodies entwined in mortal combat and made indistinct, almost invisible, by the shadows of the night. At last the struggle ends. One of the men lies prostrate. The other stands over him erect. Which is the victor, which the victim? The audience is thrilled by the suspense, and it is not until the lighted match held over the face of the prostrate man reveals the living face of the hero. The moon shines coldly through the trees, casting a gray light upon the scene. The end is near. The long, reverberating "halloo" of Jules is echoed by a faint cry from the river far away. We know that it is the answering signal of the faithful Batiste in the canoe, and as the young Canadian starts to descend the rocky declivity to the stream the curtain falls.

This is little more than an episode, and we notice that the author adheres strictly to at least one of the dramatic unities, for the three acts narrate the events of one day. There is much in the construction that reveals the wires by which the mechanism is operated, and if the play should meet with success, the author should be honest enough to impute half the credit to the six players who interpreted "The Wolf." As Hilda, Ida Conquset appeared. The character is not essentially well drawn, though interesting, and Miss Conquest made all of it that was possible. William Courtenay has seldom appeared to better advantage on Broadway than in the picturesque corduroy sombrero and red waist scarf, with the blue flannel shirt of the French Canadian. He demonstrated that in spite of his long practice as a dress-suit actor, he appears far more at home in something closer to nature. Walter Hale played MacDonald, and proved proportionately as interesting as did Courtenay, but of course we cannot decently give our sympathy to the villain of the play. Sheridan Block gave a characteristic impersonation of the coarser breed of inhabitant, and Thomas Findlay was the Scotchman to the life, except that he failed to bring out with sufficient clearness at times the intended severity of the creation. One of the best performances of the evening was given by a young actor named George Probert, who played Huntley, a minor part, but well worked up as a light comedy hit.

Several weeks ago a musical show called "The Flower of the Ranch" entered New York without blare of trumpets and without the usual heraldry of the press agent and appeared at an obscure, uptown theater. In less than a week it had advertised itself as an unpretentious but very excellent musical production. Its history resembles that of "The Top of the World" last fall, which came to stay one week and remained all winter at the Majestic, and finally was taken to town with Mabel Barrison, Joseph Howard and sundry new musical numbers and settled down at the Majestic, prepared to stay all summer.

produced for the first time at the Garden theater Monday evening. It deals with a revolutionary intrgue, but failed with a revolutionary intrigue, and it is probably destined to share the fate of the majority of this season's productions at the Garden playhouse. Its quality may be judged by an expression in the review of the play appearing in the Times: "No one as yet has written a revolutionary play that amounted to anything, but no one can be recalled who has written one quite so foolish as Mr Vroom's.

George M. Cohan's latest musical melange, "The Yankee Prince," succeeded Victor Moore at the Knickerbocker Monday night with the author himself in the cast as Percy Springer. The piece utilizes all the essential factors that go to make up a Cohan show, and may be said to rank midway between his unsuccessful "Fifty Miles from Boston" and his eminently successful "Little Johnny Jones." The piece was well received by the audience and will probably hold its own on Broadway for some time to come.

Jeffreys Lewis will not play her annual stock engagement in Washington this year, although there is a demand for her. She left this week for Chicago, where she will resume her role in "Twenty Days in the Shade." She had a fine tribute paid her when Charles Frohman cabled from London to take her out of the cast at the Savoy and put her in "Toddles" at the Garrick. The local people cabled Frohman not to take Miss Lewis out of the cast of "Twenty Days in the Shade," as she was the backbone of the piece. Back came Frohman's answer: "'Toddles' also needs backbone." It did. It was soon withdrawn, and Miss Lewis is sent to Chicago to resume her spinal function.

Mme. Komisarzhevsky, the Russian actress, appeares to be still under the influence of the hoodoo which has obsessed her ever since she set foot on American soil. It will be remembered that she came here at her own expense with one of the best companies seen here in many years. She then passed under the management of a Russian impresario, who laid out a tour for her which embraced Williamsburg. There the police one night stopped the performance because the owner of the newly built theater was unable to show a license. On Tuesday evening the madame appeared at a Russian benefit in Webster hall, a small place down town. Her act was a short one, but it consumed time enough to enable a sneak thief to enter her dressing room during her absence on the stage and rob her of two valuable brooches, one of which was presented to her by the czar. The police were immediately notified, but at last accounts the valuables had not been recovered.

It was necessary to cancel "The Lion and the Mouse," one of Henry B. Harris' attractions which was to have played at the Park theater, Boston, in order to allow Rose Stahl in "The Chorus Lady," another of his attractions, to remain there. "The Lion and the Mouse" was booked to open at the Park on Monday, April 20, but Miss Stahl has taken Boston by storm, and it has been decided by Charles Frohman, Rich & Harris to allow her to remain, and switch "The Lion and the Mouse" to the Hollis Street theater. Thus Mr. Harris finds that he is in competition against himself.

The latest version of Buffalo Bill's Wild West show opened an engagement at the Madison Square Garden last week. Col. Cody was greeted with the usual enthusiasm as he rode into the arena at the head of his Congress or Roough Riders. Two of the new features were "The Mighty Avalanche" and "The Prairie Fire." A bit of sport that took the audience by storm was a game of football on horseback, played by a team of cowboys and a team of Indians fresh from the reservation. The first night's contest resulted in a decisive victory for the Indians by a double score, and for a little while a pandemonium of excitement and enthusiasm fairly shook the big building as the Indians were declared the victors. The game is played in this manner: An immense ball is placed in the center of the arena and two opposing teams of horsemen endeavor to push it to either end of the enclosure. To score a point it is necessary to push the ball between two goal posts. The battle of Summit Springs was reproduced with sensation effect and Maj. Gen. Carr, who actually commanded the troops on the occasion of this battle, one of the last real fights in American Indian warfare, sat in one of the boxes on the opening night.

Although Otis Skinner is now nearing the third month of his engagement at the Hudson theater in "The Honor of the Family," the attraction still remains one of the most popular ones in the metropolis. Mr. Skinner has never been seen in anything that gives his refined and scholarly art a more attractive setting than the role of Col. Philippe Bridau in the Balzaccan comedy. Indeed this distinguished actor and his delightful play are so very popular that they will probably keep the Hudson theater open for some months to come.

Heinrich Conried has come out in strong approval of the proposed New theater. The retiring director of the Metropolitan opera house, who has also builded the popularity of the famous German company at the Irving Place theater in New York city, says that the proposed house is the realization of dreams he has had ever since he first came to this country thirty years ago. Mr. Conried says that the first thing he noticed upon his arrival in America was the lack of substantial interest in a state or endowed theater. This he has dreamed and dreamed of being the head of such an institution, and as the years flew by he became more and more convinced that the scheme was plausible in this country. He has advocated it ever since and in numerous addresses before college societies and universities he has pointed out the crying need for such a theater, and also cited how it would be possible to organize and maintain a house upon the high plane needed. That the start has been made upon the building Mr. Conried holds is a most favorable sign, and he is optimistic as to the chances for the successful maintenance of the theater once it is opened.

The popular impresario has some fine ideas for the new theater. He says that first of all it must be an educational institution to foster the best there is in the world's drama and bring it within the reach of discriminating American theater-goers. When one thinks how much could be accomplished by this sort of a theater its need is all the more fully appreciated.

YANNA,
The Parisian Sensation, With the Fay Foster Company.

The Conried scheme is to have one responsible directing head for the theater, as is the case with the famous continental playhouses, the Comedie Francais in Paris, and the Burg theater in Vienna. Under the authority of the board of directors would be gathered about the manager in an advisory capacity sculptors, painters, professors of universities, critics, in fact, recognized authorities and specialists upon art subjects. A play under their watchful guidance would be produced that would at once establish the standards of pronunciation, emphasis, manners, archaeology, costuming, scenic equipment, etc.

Turning to the vital question of the repertoire Mr. Conried says that such a theater should foster the world's best works. He advocates a season of thirty weeks, the allotment for each revival. These would include plays ranging from the ancient Greek dramas down to the recognized works of the present day. The merit of the drama would count under all circumstances, and the country of its author would have no significance. Mr. Conried holds that the long run is deadening to effort in this country, and for that reason he does not think a play should be kept going more than three weeks.

He favors a company made up of the best actors obtainable, and whose positions depended upon their talent and ability, such as is the case at the Comedie Francais.

The widespread influence of such an institution would be so great that it would be immediately felt. It would set up standards which we do not possess. It would lift the theater above the sordid plane of commercialism and mere entertainment places, and it would bring within reach of those desiring it the standard dramas of all times and countries.

As Conried has pointed out the idea seems Utopian, but he has seen the insatiable interest in theatricals in American grow until he thinks the demand is ripe for just such an institution, and he hails the movement of a body of wealthy men in New York who are behind the new theater as the commencement o f tnis era of brilliant promise.

Frank Keenan, during a recent performance of "The Warrens of Virginia" at the Belasco theater recently, fell over a carpet and broke several tendons in his right foot. In spite of the pain he continued to play till the curtain fell on the last act. That night his foot was swollen to double its size, but the actor did not give up and played every performance until he had completely recovered from his injury. Hardly had Mr. Keenan got over his mishap when Charlotte Walker, who is jointly featured with Mr. Keenan in "The Warrens of Virginia," had to pass undtr the doctor's care. Her trouble was even less romantic than her associate's—a plain but excruciatingly painful case of "shingles," which bereft her of sleep at night and peace by day. Nevertheless she appeared at every performance and every matinee. The public never rallied that they were witnessing a most heroic effort on the part of the young woman to suppress the intense pain that was driving her almost to distraction.

In a recent magazine article Arnold Daly says he did not mean all reviewers when he attacked the critics, but that he had in mind most particularly the writers for the New York newspapers. In his customary style Mr. Daly has his say, and as he was roundly berated for his earlier remarks his explanatory effort is rather interesting:

"I do not quarrel with the critics who criticise," says Daly, "but I do object to the man who assumes the critical task making himself an object of ridicule at my expense by allowing his personal bias to enter into his writings.

"As a rule, the fault I have found with the New York critic is that with one or two exceptions he is not equipped for his work. When he has arrived at the point where he has the names of a dozen plays at his finger ends, a nodding acquaintance with three managers and the dignity of having two pet dogs and one baby named after him he assumes to decide the delicate points in the differentiation of a character as portrayed by the actor and the playwright.

"Because I have had a difference of opinion with a critic I object to his taking his personal spite into the theater with him, placing it on the extra seat he has been supplied with and then going down to his office and writing a half column of balderdash about why I shouldn't try to thrash him when I meet him.

"But I have reached the point where I refuse to worry about such things as New York critics, save that I intend they shall always remember that I am playing in New York if I happen to be. Incidentally, I might remark that the only quarrel I have, of the critical kind, lies directly in New York, where the critics don't criticise, because they can't."

The Barnum & Bailey circus vacated the Garden in New York last week to make room for the Buffalo Bill show. The big tented season opened last week in Brooklyn, and for the remainder of the spring the Barnum & Bailey outfit will stick to the eastern territory, while the Ringling show will cover the Middle West and Central states. The Buffalo Bill show will fill in territory not immediately touched by either of the big shows. This arrangement is made by the Ringlings, as they now control all the big shows and can route their various enterprises without serious conflicting of days.

WHEN STAGE "GHOST" WALKS

Mysterious Envelopes Make Lively Times Behind the Scenes—Snatches of Tragedy and Comedy, Mark Disappearance of the Envelopes.

Those who have seen "The Girl Behind the Counter" on a Tuesday evening at the Herald Square theater may or may not have noticed any extra enthusiasm among the performers on the stage as the curtain goes up on the second act, but it's there just the same, says the New York Times. While the opening chorus is singing the orthodox we're-here-because-we're-here-because-we're-here-because-we're deeply interested in something or other, presumably broiled lobster, every single girl from Verna to Stella to the one who has the nerve, mind you, to call herself Jane, knows full well that Manager Sammis has fetched from the box office eighty-six mysterious envelopes and has set up a little table in the wings, just outside of Lew Fields's dressing room, and has announced that he is ready to meet all comers from Connie Ediss, the heavy champion of the world of song, to little May Naudain, who gets thrown violently into the air whenever she tries to tip the scale. Somewhere among those eighty-six envelopes is the salary of everybody in the show—that of Lew Fields, even, which is popularly supposed to be rolled to him in a barrel, actually fits into one of those momentous pieces of stationery. As the great bells in the various church towers solemnly toll the hour of ten minutes past 10, Manager Sammis takes his place behind his improvised treasury, becomes for the nonce The Man Behind the Counter, and with the dignified diction befitting the solemn occasion, bawls out: "Come on, girls!"

"Original Pony Ballet."

But the greater part of the company is delayed on the stage by glow worms. In other words, they have to buzz gracefully while May Naudain gives her personal opinion, set to music, of the aforementioned bright bugs. Hence they envy the pony ballet, who aren't working just then, but are walking about airily in the wings with one eye fixed on Manager Sammis and the other likewise.

As soon as he cries "Come on, girls!" one of the six ponies, or balletesses, or ballettes, or whatever they call themselves, rushes over to the treasury with a full power of attorney for the bunch, affixes her signature and the words "Original Pony Ballet" to a document by the side of Mr. Sammis, grabs one bulging envelope and, her fingers twitching with the curse of Mammon, goes away from there. For the pony ballet is a company within a company, incorporated under the laws of Piccadilly or the Strand, or Drury Lane, or some equally important part of the British empire, and it is paid each Tuesday as an individual, although it is composed of six girls. Miss Elizabeth Hawman, who is the fourth one from the right—or is it the second one from the left?—usually dismembers the pay envelope Tuesdays and serves it up piecemeal in the dressing room. Anyhow, she did last Tuesday, saying "Thank you!" in French with a charming London accent.

Whereupon it was Connie Edis' turn to take a fall out of the treasury, which she did. And then, with a fine swishing of skirts, came Louise Dresser. Louise, as all who have seen the show are aware, wears a priceless cloth-of-gold confection by Worth, Paris, freely adapted and reconstructed for the American stage by the Decolette company, unlimited, of New York and the Garden of Eden, and it is so very, very priceless that Louise can't swish about in it behind the scenes in the careless way affected by the little girls who seldom get knee deep in skirts. So, when she sweeps up majestically to the treasury to pocket her weekly Yellow Peril she has a colored lady's maid swish out behind her, to hold the train of cloth of gold far from the madding crowd of microbes and dust particles and unprincipled whatnots which, were it not thus, would simply love to board the said train for a free ride.

Having looked contemptuously at her salary, just as if it were a mere speck on the horizon, Louise veers suddenly, so suddenly that the colored engineer at the throttle of the train is almost ditched, and returns to the roundhouse.

An Onset of Indians.

Then May Naudian ends up her disquisition on glow worms as near to the keynote as she can get on such an agitating day as Tuesday, and the chorus, with a shout as of Comanches on the warpath, only higher, dashes headlong at the treasury, almost overturning it and Manager Sammis and whatever else happens to be in the vicinity. In vain the treasurer calls for near order and theatens everything from a $1 fine to the sack direct if the rough house does not stop at once. All he achieves is an Indian-file formation of the ex-glow worms, but that doesn't do much good, for the ones in the rear of the line, overcome by greed, push the front of the line violently, causing it to topple over into the treasury, and muss things. But eventually the manager gets really serious, so the girls say, "Shush!" to each other and come up one by one like well-behaved children to sign the great document and get their 18 per, or somewhat more if they are statuesque and have been intrusted with vitally important lines in the show, such as "Oh!" and "I'll tell you."

Elsa Reinhardt, for instance. She is so statuesque that whatever she walks on immediately forgets its regular job and resolves itself, for the time being, into Elsa's pedestal. So she gets forty per, or says she does. Yet, statuesqueness or no statuesqueness, Elsa is not allowed to take liberties, as she learned to her sorrow last Tuesday, when she glided up to the treasury and found within her envelope $1 less than her salary.

"Oh, Mr. Sammis,' she said petulantly, "why have I been fined a dollar?"

"Because last Friday, instead of being on the stage, you slipped away to drink a glass of lemonade."

"But I was simply fainting from thirst, Mr. Sammis."

"Can't help it."

At this juncture Lew Fields, who has been changing from a glorious red suit by Worth, Paris, into a waiter's costume by Moe Levy, Manhattan and Brooklyn, emerges from his dressing room. Elsa immediately tells her grievance to him.

"I can give you girls salary, but not sympathy," says the comedian, escaping hastily in the direction of the stage.

So Elsa Reinhardt, itinerant statue, resigns herself to the inevitable.

As she flounces away toward the dressing room, a demure little Pierrette is mean enough to ask: "Elsa, won't you have another lemonade?"

Each girl fined was, of course entirely innocent, but Manager Sammis, for all his facetiousness, is shockingly hard-hearted, so every delinquent climbs upstairs to the dressing room $1 minus, making way for another incidental divertisement, namely, Marion Whitney, statuesque lady, snowy neck and piles of hair, who insists that Mr. Fields promised her a raise of $10 for shapeliness, while declaiming the line, "Yes, yes." But Mr. Sammis has absolutely no record of the promise in question, so the incident is closed with a bang.

George Beban, the funny Frenchman, then elbowed his way up to the treasury and tears open his envelope with Gallic frenzy.

"Sammis" he sputters, "I wish you wouldn't pay me my salary in one hundred-dollar bills. Eet ees so difficult to make change. I cannot pay my creditors. I cannot eat. Do not do it! Oh, sacre bleu. Zis foolishness! Stop eet, stop eet!"

And thus it goes on through alternate snatches of tragedy and comedy, just as everything in life does, be gho, until there is only one envelope left on the table; a bulky envelope, bearing on the outside this inscription:

"Mr. Fields!"

But remembering the effect on his heart when Mr. Beban talked one hundred-dollar bills, the reporter decides to take no more risks, so he makes an obeisance to all present and vanishes without waiting to see Mr. Fields unseal the prize package of the evening.

PAID FARE FOR FIRST TIME

W. S. Chadwick "Dug" for Transportation for the First Time.

W. S. Chadwick today paid railroad fare or the first time in his life, and he isn't so awfully young, either. He called up the Great Northern city ticket office yesterday afternoon, and the following conversation ensued:

"Great Northern?"

"Yes."

"Who's talking?"

"Hills."

"Say, Hills, this is Chadwick. "I'm going down to the Twin Cities tomorrow. Kindly send over a pass, with ticket entitling me to a seat in the chair car."

"Sorry, but I can't do it, Chad; law won't let me, much as I would like to."

"But I have never paid railroad fare in my life."

"You'll have to begin now, or else get your ideas of the outside world by the photographic and newspaper method. Too bad."

"Too bad," echoed Mr. Chadwick, and he hung up the receiver.

It isn't because he hasn't traveled that Mr. Chadwick has never paid railroad fare. Probably he has seen as much of the United States as any man in Duluth. But he has done it on passes furnished by kindly disposed railroads. Now that is all cut as for Mr. Chadwick is out of the railroad business. The law says that no man not employed by a railroad shall be allowed free transportation. Therefore he must pay.

"Even before I was old enough to go into the railroad business myself I did not have to pay fare, for several of my older relatives were connected with railroads, and were able to get me transportation," said Mr. Chadwick, in speaking of the affair. "If I wanted to go anywhere, all I had to do was say so, and some one would hand me out a pass. That was in the good old days, when there was no law against granting free transportation.

"As soon as I became old enough, I engaged in railroading and remained in the business until last winter when I left it to go into business for myself. It so happens that I haven't done any traveling since leaving the union depot, where I was engaged in the capacity of ticket agent, so I haven't been called upon to pay railroad fare. Now, however, I am going to Minneapolis. It seems funny to have to dig."

SVEA-NORMANNA SINGERS IN DECIDING CONTEST FOR TROPHY

The Normanna Male chorus and the Svea Glee club, which for four years have been holding annual vocal bouts, will settle the question of supremacy tomorrow night. Each has now won two contests.

The two societies have been practicing for weeks, and an elaborate program has been prepared for the event. Andrew Nelson of the Svea club will act as master of ceremonies. In addition to the contest numbers, Mrs. Leo Ball, soprano, and Oliver Colbentson, violinist, will be soloists. Miss Elizabeth Morton will be accompanist. Aside from the musical numbers, Clarence B. Miller of Duluth and Irvine L. Lenroot of Superior, two well known men at the Head of the Lakes, will speak.

The committee in charge of this final friendly singing contest between these two well known and popular musical organizations, is composed of six members, three from each society. They are: C. J. Halling of the Normanna chorus, chairman; Andrew Nelson of the Svea club, secretary; C. E. Johnson of the Svea club, treasurer; Edwin Peterson of the Svea club; K. L. Fenny and B. Sande of the Normanna chorus, are the others.

The selection of the judges of the contests is kept a close secret until after they are over. A well-known out-of-town musical authority has been chosen as one of the judges, and he will chose two others. These judges will sit in the audience, and their positions will be unknown to the contestants. Every precaution will be taken to guard against the identity of the judges being known until after their decision has been awarded.

ADVANCE IN WOOD PRESERVATION

Methods Have Undergone Marked Change in Last Few Years---Business That Figures Prominently in This Country's Industrial Life.

"Timber thoroughly treated with proper preservatives will last almost indefinitely," says a government expert who is an authority on wood preservation. "Engineers have known for years that this is true," he continues, "but up to the present time, at least in America, complicated and expensive plants have been necessary for the work and wood preservation has often been too expensive an operation to allow treated timber to come into general use."

Methods in wood preservation have undergone a marked change in the last few years, however, and the work which a few years ago was limited to a few experiments carried on in scattered parts of the United States has grown with such rapidity that wood preservation has become a business which figures most prominently in the industrial life of this country.

Each year railroads are treating an increasing portion of their cross ties, miners their mine props, farmers their fence posts and the men of many other industries are bringing preservatives into play to close the pores and prepare the timber they use to resist the fungi which cause decay. The work points the way to one of the chief means of the conservation of the nation's forest recources, for as the length of the life of timber is increased the drain upon the forests is lessened, and more wood made available for use.

In nearly all localities in the Rocky mountain and Pacific states is found an abundant supply of certain kinds of timber which have only a slight commercial importance. Engelmann spruce, lodgepole and other kinds of pine, aspen, and cottonwood are only a partial list of the kinds of wood which are strong enough and abundant enough to win high value for construction purposes, were it not for one single defect which has prevented their general adoption. When exposed to the soil and weather they decay so rapidly that they have to be renewed too often to justify their use.

Dead timber of lodgepole pine and other species also is found in large tracts, but is sharply discriminated against by all consulting engineers and contractors. As a matter of fact, the dead timber provided it is soud, is just as good as green timber of the same species, and, indeed, in some ways, is even more valuable. For it is well known that thoroughly seasoned timber is both stronger and more durable than the same timber when green. Timber which was killed by fire or insects, and which is still is in a sond condition, differs from green timber chiefly in being thoroughly seasoned—that is to say, it is stronger, more durable and lighter. And so not only are the freight rates considerably reduced, but a better grade of timber is secured.

Even in a thoroughly seasoned condition, lodgepole pine, Engelmann spruce, and the other species mentioned above, are by no means durable woods when compared with Douglas fir, Oregan cedar, and the other kinds of wood which are used so extensively in construction work. And before they can successfully compete with such timbers, in spite of their lower price, they must be made to last longer under unfavorable conditions.

After several years study, the United States forest service has proved that in many cases the complicated and expensive plants are not necessary for the proper treatment of many kinds of timber; and that many of the timbers which decay most rapidly in the natural state, are among the easiest and cheapest to treat. Many of the species mentioned above offer little resistance to the entrance of the preservative. The principle of the method is to immerse the thoroughly seasoned wood in a hot bath of the liquid, leave it in for a few hours, and either plunge it into a cold bath of a preservative, or else run out the hot liquid from the treating tank, and fill it up again with liquid of a lower temperature. This requires only the simplest kind of machinery, and the cost of operation is so slight that even cheap timbers like fence posts and shingles can be treated by the average farmer of small means.

Although the forest service, by extensive experiments in all portions of the country, considers that the practicability of the process has been conclusively proved, more or less difficulty has been encountered in inducing others to adopt the process on a commercial scale. In order to demonstrate beyond any doubt that the process is adapted to commercial treatments, the service has arranged to erect small treating plants—semi-commercial in size—on several of the national forests. Tests will be made on the local timbers, and careful record kept of the cost of the work. The treated timber will then be placed in permanent position, where its future durability can be compared with untreated timber of the same or other kinds.

Three such plants will be erected this spring, and it is expected that they will be in successful operation by early summer. According to the present plans one plant will be erected at some locality on or near the Black Hills national forest, South Dakota, another on the Holy Cross national forest in Colorado; and the third on the Henrys Lake national forest, near St. Anthony, Idaho.

The investigations in wood preservation by the use of creosote, which is nothing more than the dead oil of coal tar and zinc chlorid, are considered of such importance by the government that one branch of a bureau in the department of agriculture—the "office of wood preservation" in the forest service— is given over entirely to the work of experiments in co-operation with railroad companies, mining corporations and individuals who desire to prolong the life of the timber which they use. Advice and practical assistance is furnished all who request it of the forester at Washington.

He had used them with marked benefit, and on his recommendation I got a box and began treating a bad case of backache and kidney disorder, which had troubled me severely all last winter. There was an acute pain in my back and loins, and the irregularity of the kidney secretions was most annoying. It prevented sleep at night. The first box almost rid me of the trouble, but I continued using them until I had taken two boxes, then not a trace or symptom of the trouble remained. I used Doan's Ointment for itching hemorrhoids with equally fine results, and it is needless to say that I am an earnest indorser of both remedies."

TO YOUNG VOTERS.

The sterling character, the splendid career and the inspiring example of John A. Johnson cannot fail to appeal to the young men of the nation.

That is why, in Minnesota today, the young men of his party are rallying in his standard with earnestness, aggressiveness and enthusiasm.

At the primaries next Wednesday, when the voters will show their pride in the honorable fame that Governor Johnson has won for himself and his state by electing Johnson delegates to the county conventions, the young men will have a large share in the result.

Though he is still a young man himself, his successful participation in public affairs has won him a place that makes his career an inspiration to the youth of the land, a message of hope and a promise that merit shall not go unrecognized and unrewarded.

Born in a small Minnesota town, struggling every foot of the way up by sheer force of character, persistence and indomitable courage, Governor Johnson became a state senator, running as a Democrat in an overwhelmingly Republican district; he was advanced to the governorship, winning as a Democrat in an overwhelmingly Republican state; and he is now a conspicuous figure as a presidential candidate. In every task that has come to his hand he has done well—he has "made good;" and those who have watched his career know that if nominated as the Democratic candidate he will not be abandoned by the magnet of success that has attended his career, and that if elected he will conduct his high office as he has his less important ones—with an unswerving devotion to the right, with a steadfast and consistent adherence to the cause of the plain people, and with a patriotic and highminded love of the land which was that of his parents by their adoption, and which is his by the heritage of birth.

Young men of Minnesota, you had a large part in making this man governor of your state, and you have never had occasion to regret your stand. Now help to endow him with higher honors still, and be sure that if you do he will conduct himself with credit to you and to the nation, as he has conducted himself in the past with credit to you and to his native state.

Go to the caucuses Wednesday, and MAKE IT STRONG.

PERSONAL INJURY SUITS.

Thursday evening a local article in The Herald presented a review of the personal injury litigation in this county that was nothing short of startling.

It was stated that for this month alone suits asking damages aggregating nearly $700,000 have been begun. Those filed last month, and noted for the May term of district court, will bring the total up to $1,000,000. One company alone, the Oliver Iron Mining company, is called upon to defend suits demanding nearly $150,000.

The calendar of the May term of court, just beginning, contains nearly seventy personal injury cases, and if all were tried in their order, the court and the jury panel would be kept busy until Christmas.

The Herald has from time to time pointed out that President Roosevelt is right when he says that employers and not workers should bear the risks of employment, but that does not mean that personal injury suits should be encouraged. It means, rather, that they should be averted and put out of existence altogether by a system of laws that will reduce compensation for personal injuries to employes to a stable, just and compulsory basis. It means that there should be laws providing that where men are hurt as an incident to their employment, and it is proper that their employes should compensate them, the compensation should be fixed by law without recourse to expensive and interminable litigation.

The expense of this personal injury litigation is enormous. It occupies the time of judges, juries and court officials; it piles up court expenses that the people, in part at least, have to pay; it compels large employers to maintain elaborate and expensive machinery for handling such cases; it compels those who are hurt and who are justly entitled to compensation to share their recompense with attorneys.

A workman in a factory is hurt while at work. In some cases where the employers have adopted a just policy, they will take care of him and no litigation is necessary, but these cases are few. In most cases an attempt is made to settle for a trifling sum, and if this fails the employe is compelled to sue. He has to fight against a machine that is lavishly equipped with resources to repel just such attacks, and the fight is a losing fight for him. Even if the employe wins, after prolonged delays, obstructions, appeals, demurrers, etc., the costs and attorneys' fees eat up the cream of his victory.

Besides, the existing system is inevitably abused. Cases are brought on trifling pretexts, in the hope of forcing a settlement or of finding an unusually and unheedingly sympathetic jury. Injuries are exaggerated, or are claimed where none exist. The system is bad for both sides, expensive and injurious to employer and employe, and profitable only to the attorneys in the long run. Besides, it is wasteful and expensive to the public.

All these evils would be obviated by a system such as all other civilized nations have except this one, whereby the terms and conditions of the liability of employers would be justly, fairly and definitely fixed.

THE "DUTCH TREAT."

Before the pall of panic passed away last winter, and when everybody was sitting tight and waiting with fear and trembling what might come out of it all, poverty got to be rather fashionable in New York. It is always fashionable in certain circles of New York and other places, circles far below the vision of the society that takes to itself the capital initial and whose unemployment does not mean the cessation of the bread-buying income; but in this case it became fashionable in really fashionable circles. That is an old story now, but the New York newspapers of current issue relate a new manifestation of that fashionable poverty which is very interesting, very suggestive and, if it becomes fashionable enough, very promising.

This is the "Dutch treat" dinner. They don't call it that. They use the term "joint" dinner, which is not nearly so illuminating as the former and more generally recognized term. "Joint dinners" might mean anything, and are as likely to be taken for dinners making a specialty of beef joints as for anything else. But everybody knows what the "Dutch treat" is. It means that everybody buys what he wants and pays for it.

It would be a good thing in this country if the "Dutch treat" become a universal practice, applying not only to dinners but to other things—to liquid refreshments, for instance. There is no need to describe the iniquities of the American treating habit. Meant to embody good fellowship, it more often embodies ostentation and vulgar display of wealth, and thereby it breeds envy, pain and heartaches among those who are unable to keep up the pace.

There is hardly a man who drinks, no matter how generous he may be, that does not deprecate and regret the treating habit. Two men meet, and one invites the other to "take something." This done, the other feels obliged to "buy" also, and he buys. Two more come in, and there is "more of the same." In short, the men who went in to have one social libation go home with their tongues thick, their wits clouded, and their pockets lightened by a dozen drinks or so.

As often as not a man will in this way lavishly spend the price of several days' provisions for his family, and then go home and upbraid the housewife because the roast for dinner cost 13 cents more than he thinks she ought to pay for it.

It is really a very absurd practice. Without it, drunkenness would be much less common, homes would be much more prosperous, and family relations would be much happier.

When a man goes into a shop to buy a garden rake he does not hail a friend and buy him a garden rake, too. There is no treating in calico, breakfast foods, beekstead or shoes. Yet if there must be treating, people would be farther ahead if they exchanged treats of this nature than they are when they exchange treats of liquor until each succeeding drink becomes a more foolish work of supererogation, and of cigars until their pockets are filled with smokes which are as likely as not to be broken before they can be used.

If the treating habit cannot be extended to cover useful articles, it should be abolished. More power to the "Dutch treat."

GOOD AND BAD IN EXCHANGES.

Hiram N. Sager, president of the Chicago board of trade, published recently in Harper's Weekly an article entitled "Prosperity and the Exchange," which has been put into pamphlet form for the purpose of general distribution.

It shows why the great trade marts of the country are essential to the conduct of its legitimate business, and is intended to combat the prejudice that has grown up throughout the country against the stock and food products exchanges of the nation.

It was hardly necessary to consume so much space in a mere defense of the stock, grain and produce markets of the United States. They do a noble service. The country could not get along without them. In general, their proceedings are marked by the highest integrity. Dishonesty and double dealing are quickly detected and promptly punished, because as a rule millions change hands upon these exchanges upon mere word of honor. Sales or purchases in great amounts are made without a scratch of a pen to hold the parties thereto.

There is no fight, and there should be none, against the legitimate functions of the great exchanges which have been provided for the transaction of business in grain, foodstuffs, cotton or stocks.

The fight should be against the abuses that have grown up upon these exchanges; against the distortion of their legitimate functions into mere gambling enterprises. While these abuses loom so largely that many people do actually attack the exchanges themselves, this is shortsighted and mistaken, and should not be encouraged.

The legitimate dealer on any of these exchanges is doing an important and indispensable service to society. The grain dealer who sees that the farmer's wheat gets to market, that it commands the best possible price, that it is insured and protected along its route; the miller, who buys grain for his mill and who protects himself and the consumers by hedging his trades through dealings in "futures;" the stock broker, who handles the securities of other people upon reasonable commission: these men are performing a legitimate and necessary function.

But when upon this system of necessary and legitimate business is built up a superstructure of pure gambling, great evils result, and it is against this pure gambling and its evil brood of disasters that society should fight.

There is no excuse for the stock-watering operations on the stock exchange; there is no excuse for margin-trading whereby men buy what they do not want and never expect to get while others sell what they do not possess to men who do not want it; there is no excuse for the parasites of the grain, cotton and provision exchanges who perform no useful function in facilitating the exchange of commodities, but who are upon these exchanges simply to gamble in the prices of the people's food, and who spread a spell of danger and disaster by their lying manipulations of these prices, producing disastrously low prices when they are successful bears, and dangerously high prices when they are successful bulls.

HEALTH HINTS TO MOVERS.

The "merry month of May" introduces the moving season, which witnesses the height of a habit to which the restless, discontented and changeable American people have become firmly addicted. It is a wasteful habit, an expensive habit, and manifestly it is one lacking in satisfaction, since in most cases one move succeeds another, and most movers agree that it is usually a case of out of the frying pan into the fire. But it is a fixed habit, and shows no signs of lessening. Not even the harsh truth in the saying that "three moves are worse than a fire" restrains the movers.

But there is one feature of the practice of moving that usually gets overlooked, and that is its relation to health.

When you move, Mr. Renter, do you ever stop to investigate the healthfulness or unhealthfulness of your new location?

Do you ever inquire what, if any, contagious diseases have been harbored in your new home?

For instance,—and this is most important,—do you think of finding out whether anybody has died from tuberculosis in the house or flat into which you are moving or have moved?

If you haven't thought of these things, it is time you did. The germs of consumption, unless aggressively attacked and thoroughly destroyed, have an unhappy habit of loitering, breeding, multiplying and of lying in wait for new victims. Observations by health departments in many cities have shown this conclusively. Before it was known that consumption is highly contagious it used to be a source of wonder why it was that there should be so much of it in certain tenements. There is no wonder about it now; we know why it is. It is because the germs have been hospitably permitted to multiply and to seek new victims.

The Chicago health department has issued the following notice to movers:

> Some people will move into houses where tuberculosis has existed, and in such instances will jeopardize the health and lives of their families without even suspecting danger. All persons moving into apartments about which they have no knowledge as to the previous occupants should make diligent inquiry and ascertain, if possible, if the house has been infected by the presence of a case of tuberculosis. Consult your physician upon the subject. In case you learn that a tuberculosis victim has lived or died in the house, communicate the facts to the department of health, and the premises will be disinfected.

This is advice that should not be ignored. While it is issued in Chicago only, it applies here. While the promise of the department to take action applies only to Chicago, be sure that your local health officer will gladly take similar action if you make him aware of its necessity. The Duluth health department disinfects houses in which consumptives have died, and if you ask it will most assuredly disinfect houses in which consumptives have lived and from which they have moved.

LEGALIZED SLANDER.

Happily, the charges against the character of one of the nation's greatest woman actors which recently appeared in an Eastern divorce case have fallen flat. This is partly due to the fact that they were withdrawn, but more largely to the more splendid fact that the woman thus assailed had stood for years so high in the esteem of the people that the charges were received with incredulity in the first place. But the incident carries its lesson, and it should therefore have value and do much good.

A phrase connected with the deplorable incident sticks to the memory persistently. "After fuller investigation," declared the attorney who drew the papers in the divorce case, "we find that there is no basis for the charges."

The complaint was therefore withdrawn. But the mischief had been done, and had the object of the charges borne a less conspicuously flawless reputation or had she been less widely known, the dirt would have stuck, and no amount of withdrawals or retractions would have wiped it out.

"After fuller investigation," the charges were found baseless and the papers withdrawn. If that "fuller investigation" had come first, as it should have come, those papers would never have been filed and those charges would never have reached the public.

It was the duty of that attorney to satisfy himself that the charges in the complaint were susceptible of proof before he drew the papers and filed them. He must have known that great publicity would follow; that great harm would be done; that if the charges were not true an irreparable injury would be perpetrated.

We don't know just what the code of legal ethics provides in such cases, but is quite clear that no lawyer with due appreciation of the solemnity of his office would have done what this lawyer did. It is considered unprofessional to cultivate litigation or to advertise; it is even criminal to do the former. It is certainly unprofessional to make public groundless charges against an innocent party, and it ought to be criminal as well.

Nor does it help in the least to be told that this lawyer's action is unprofessional, and that high-minded lawyers wouldn't do such a thing. What is needed is some protection to the public against lawyers who either do not bother about ethics or who do not think of the consequences of their acts.

The charges in that divorce complaint were libelous, and those who made them are as deserving of punishment as a newspaper would be that made them with equally slight reason. Newspapers do not take for granted the maddened and heedless assertions of a jealous husband or wife; lawyers should not be permitted to take them for granted either.

Sixteen Minnesota banks have been robbed in nine months. It is time some of these desperate adventurers were shut in by prison doors.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Ivan Ringstad of Northfield, was treated to a mild shock at the St. Louis hotel yesterday. He received news of the burning of the Northfield public school, the fire occurring at a time when all the pupils were absent from the building. The very room where the little daughter of Mr. Ringstad recites her lessons, directly over the furnace was completely destroyed. Other rooms had their floors completely burned away and the stairs reaching to the second and third floors were also entirely destroyed.

"I have good news for you," was the way Mr. Ringstad's wife informed him of the burning of the school house. The ramshackle building had been condemned by the building inspector, and since the catastrophe near Cleveland, Ohio, where scores of children were burned to death in just such a fire trap, the people of Northfield had vainly protested against the permitting of children attending school in a building where the risk of fire was so great.

By some happy fate the fire occurred when there were no children in the building. It is useless to attempt to speculate on what loss of life would have occurred should the fire have occurred during the presence of the children in the building. The building has three stories, like the Ohio school house, and like that structure, the upper stories were reached by winding, tortuous stairways. An examination of the ruins disclosed the fact that both of the stairways were cut off by the course of the flames. The burning of the school house at Northfield would have probably added its dark chapter to current history, had not some guilding fate destined the fire to occur at a time when the little ones were absent. Under such circumstances the people of Northfield regard the fire in the light of "good news."

Shades of ancient monarchs! Joel Heatwole smoking the pernicious cigarette.

Joel has been accused of many things by the partisan press, but never does memory extend to an accusation embodying the puffing of the obnoxious coffin nail. According to a traveling man, who was at one of the local hotels yesterday, a paper in the southern part of the state has accused Joel of the aforementioned crime. It has used this accusation as an argument against Joel's fitness as a political leader.

William Travers Jerome daily puffs many of the highly manufactured pills, if current report is true. But then William Travers lives and cultivates opinion in little old New York, where they look upon the foibles of men, and especially of public officials, with a gaze that has been blunted by the many strange sights that form the Broadway show. Out here it is different. If Joel—naughty boy—has really been puffing the pill, his constituents will probably sit in solemn conclave and pronounce judgment thereon.

However, the traveling man, who, by the way, hails from near Joel's ballwick, comes out flat-footed and declares that Joel never smoked one of the pills in his life. He is a staunch believer in the innocence of Brother Heatwole of the charge. He opines that it is political spite that concocted the cigarette accusation. He says that Joel can prove an alibi.

This—the accusing of men of public life of smoking cigarettes—is a new form of political wet clay flinging. It opens up vast possibilities, too. If the charges prove true, some enterprising tobacco company should go down the political line closely scanning the facts in every politician's record, and, once ascertaining whether he smoked cigarettes, might use the habit as a means of advertising.

It is hoped that no heated controversy will grow out of the accusation leveled at Mr. Heatwole.

A Handsome Edition.

The Milwaukee Journal celebrates its twenty-fifth anniversary fittingly and characteristically by issuing an elaborate silver jubilee number which is a credit alike to the city whose wealth and progress it celebrates and the newspaper whose enterprise it proves. The Journal prides itself upon having, throughout its career, "done all in its power for its city and its state." Adding "its country," this epitomizes the duty of a newspaper, and the Milwaukee Journal has by doing this well deserved the success that has come to it.

THE WEATHER.

This morning a shrill, cutting wind swept down out of the north, but the sky was clear and the sun was warm, and altogether it was not such a bad day after all. It was cool last night, the thermometer getting down to 26 degs., and the weather man says there will be freezing temperatures again tonight, but tomorrow he expects to be warmer.

A year ago today a driving snow storm began the day, but it did not last long, and the temperature was mild.

The sun rose this morning at 4.50 and sets tonight at 7.19, making 14 hours and 29 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Barometric depressions overlie Lake Huron, the western plateau region and British Columbia. During the past twenty-four hours these disturbances caused rain over Pacific coast districts and rain or snow in the lake region and central valleys and higher temperatures in the South and West. A high pressure area that extends from Manitoba to Kansas is attended by freezing temperatures in Saskatchewan, Manitoba, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Nebraska, and heavy to killing frosts in the Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys. Indications favor partly cloudy and continued cool weather in this locality tonight and Sunday."

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Accommodating Spirit.

In certain communities a very important function is discharged by a person known as an "accommodator." She is usually a single woman, well advanced in life, who comes into a home when some emergency arises. Maybe, the cook has left or a new baby has arisen or company from a distance has unexpectedly arrived. Whatever the emergency the accommodator is on hand giving the lift that is almost indispensable to keep the family clockwork from running down. A very useful as well as obliging individual is she and her task is not a simple one. She has to adjust herself to various kinds of families and various kinds of labor. The good, faithful, agreeable "accommodaor" has a halo about her even if ordinary persons do not at once discern it. I should like to chant her praises in poetry and song had the muses endowed me with those gifts.

But this plain, everyday, often unappreciaed but important "accommodator' furnishes me with a text from which to speak a few direct personal words about the blessed quality of being accommodating. Did we ever apply this special test to our characters? We may be virtuous and high-minded and all that, but can we fairly be called accommodating? We always appreciate the exercise of that quality in men with whom we trade. The hotelkeeper who looks after our comfort in little ways, the butcher who sends around the cut of meat cheefully on a "hurry order," the friend who does not forget to forward the address which you want so much—such as these receive a pompt and good measure of gratitude. Oh, yes, it probably pays in commercial transactions to be accommodating, but I refuse to believe that the thousand and one little services rendered between mistress and maid, between employer and employe, beween man and man are the outcome only of a cool, calculating spirit that looks entirely to the profit that may return on one's own head. I prefer to think that they grow out of the innate kindness of the human heart.

It is true that certain perils arise from the possession of this accommodating spirit. They who have it are liable to be the prey of lazy and designing people. To trot all over town doing errands that do not realy belong to you is as foolish as it is unprofitable. To go to places or to stay away from places simply to gratify the wish of another person when you know that compliance with his desire means physical or moral damage is to become for the time being his slave. To accommodate another at the cost or harm to oneself is very seldom justifiable. The only possible circumstance that can permit such a sacrifice is the good that is bestowed upon another. But right here one wants to think the problem through before acting. Will it really be for the ultimate advantage of Jones if, as he requests, I accommodate him with that little loan of $5? Will he not in that event be just a trifle more shiftless and improvident?

Sometimes, too, a preacher is tempted to be too accommodating in his pulpit work. If he modifies his message because he knows that a certain man on the broad aisle does not relish any allusion to ill-gotten riches or another prominent member never wants to hear the word evolution mentioned, he loses the prophetic note and becomes a mere echo of the pews. Not so did Elijah of old when he said to Ahab "Thou are the man."

The accommodating spirit needs to be supplemented by backbone. But given that, none of us is likely to be too accommodating, and few of us are as ready as we ought to be, to do them a good turn even at the sacrifice of a little time or ease. The more we have of the spirit of Him who came not to be ministered unto but to minister the more constantly and the more wisely shall we accommodate ourselves to and serve others.

WALTER PRESTON BROWNLOW

By SAVOYARD.

(Copyrighted, 1908, by E. W. Newman.)

IF the Republican party of what is called the reconstruction period—1865-75—had been magnanimous or sagacious, instead of vindictive and foolish, there would today be a militant Republican party in what were the seceding states, some of which would be reliably Republican and others almighty doubtful. But the fanaticism of Sumner, the malice of Stevens, and the folly of Morton prevailed, and the most odious despotism, the Anglo-Saxon ever saw, was created in the reconstructed states. It was a proud people, who could forgive and forget injury, but that has not forgiven and will never forget the humiliation of negro domination.

Conkling and Morton both repudiated—the first in the senate and the other on the stump—negro suffrage at the North. The scheme was to hold the South in subjection by the negro vote, and thus overcome any disadvantages that might accrue to the Democrats of the North by changes of public opinion. But the Ohio election of 1897 and several appeals to the people of New Jersey, New York and Indiana convinced the Republican party that it must be re-enforced by the colored troops at the North as well as the South, and hence the fifteenth amendment, that was incorporated in the Constitution in 1870. If the beaten and overthrown South had been treated as England recently treated the Boers of South Africa—that is to say, if the mind of Lincoln and the heart of Greeley had guided Republican councils—the Union would have been as completely restored by 1870 as it is in 1908. But they would not have it so. The South was given to the negro to toss in a blanket, and he was not equal to the sport. The superior race asserted itself. The negro was put aside. The South was solid, and the Southern Republican party is only a bread and butter brigade, at the orders of every Republican administration at Washington.

But there was and is a real Republican contingent in East Tennessee. There was a Union sentiment fostered by Andrew Johnson, William G. Brownlow, Thomas A. R. Nelson, Horace Maynard—the latter a Narragansett Indian from Rhode Island assimilated by the sons and grandsons of the men who fought King's Mountain—and others of lesser note. These men, except the Rhode Island genius, had no thought of abolishing slavery. Indeed, Parson Brownlow hated an abolitionist, and there have been poorer he did a secessionist, and Johnson made a syllogism by which he demonstrated that an abolitionist was a secessionist, and a secessionist an abolitionest, and there have been poorer syllogisms, too, than Andy's. Brownlow's hatred of the abolitionist came from the belief that it was the mission of that guild to drive the South to secession. There never was an intenser Southerner than Brownlow, but his clear vision saw that secession meant Southern ruin, and that is why he so bitterly denounced it and so intrepidly combatted it.

It is a warlike race—Scotch-Irish, Anglo-Saxon—and though East Tennessee contributed to the Confederate army a fair quota that people sent more men to swell the Union ranks than did any community of equal population of any state of the North—more than Vermont, more than the Western Reserve. Suppose these men had been "disloyal"—how long would Garfield and Morgan have remained in Eastern Kentucky? When would Burnside have got to Knoxville? Ay, when would Sherman have reached Atlanta? To combat the East Tennesseeans, who wore the blue, the Confederacy was necessitated to materially weaken Lee, and seriously weaken Bragg.

There is a vast difference between the East Tennesseean and the Middle Tennesseean. Perhaps Andrew Johnson and Isham G. Harris were less dissimilar than John Balfour of Burley, and John Graham of Claverhouse, but they were wide asunder, as were Parson Brownlow and Bishop Polk, Thomas A. R. Nelson and Gustavus A. Henry. Leonidas C. Houk was a Tennessean of the mountains, and Edward W. Carmack is a Tennessean of the blue grass, but their types are as distant as Highland and Lowland.

One would think that to make a Republican party at the South intelligent politics would begin in East Tennessee, where dwell men native and to the manner born. But after the war the South was overrun with adventurers from the North—carpet-bagers as they appropriately called—whose mission was to be turnspits in the kitchen of the satrap. Tennessee got a share of them; not nearly so numerous as her sisters further South, but a plenty. It was one of the counts of the indictment Thomas Jefferson drew against King George III that his majesty had sent a gang of carpet-bagers across the ocean to govern his subjects in the colonies, but they were comparatively few and their mischief comparatively innocuous in contrast with swarms that overran the prostrate South of the reconstruction area and eat out her sustenance.

Walter Preston Brownlow is a nephew of Parson Brownlow. He represents the First Tennessee district in congress, of which body he has been a member since 1897. He is the natural leader of the Republican party of Tennessee, but the postoffice department at Washington, through a Yankee from Massachusetts, a Mr. Hitchcock, was not very well pleased with Mr. Brownlow's political conduct, and undertook to depose him from the leadership. Gossip has it that Mr. Hitchcock had in contemplation a delegation from Tennessee to the national Republican convention of 1908 favorable to the nomination of George B. Cortelyou for president. Mr. Brownlow did not fall in with that view, and then it was that Hitchcock undertook to build up a machine in Tennessee that would depose Brownlow from the primacy. H. Clay Evans, a native of Pennsylvania and carpet bagger from Wisconsin, was set up to head the machine, and his lieutenant was a Mr. Sanders, another carpetbagger, probably from Ohio. The bread and butter brigade was put under the command of these two; but it developed that Mr. Cortelyou was not a candidate for president. Yet the Evans faction prevailed—the postmasters fought nobly—and the Evans ticket was nominated, to be disastrously beaten at the polls.

Brownlow was nominated for congress in the First district and Alfred A. Taylor, as Republican, was nominated to oppose him by a bolting convention. It was hoped that the Democrats would vote for Taylor, but they nominated J. H. Caldwell and gave him 9,145 votes. Brownlow was elected by a big majority, though Taylor polled 6,700 votes.

Recently there was a state convention held at Nashville, to send delegates to the Republican national convention, and on that occasion the two factions clashed. On the night before the Evans-Sanders people seized the hall and held it until the next morning, when the Brownlow-Oliver folk came down the mountains, took possession, held the convention and went home. The other fellows—the bread-and-butter troops—then held a separate convention and appointed another set of delegates. What the national convention will do about it remains to be seen

In a practical sense—results obtained—Walter P. Brownlow is possibly the most successful man in congress. I mean that no other man has "got so much for his district," when we consider that there is no large city in it. I saw a computation of the appropriations voted, and they are simply enormous. Brownlow has a way of seeing clearly what he wants, and then he sets about to get it, and rarely does he fail. A gentleman related to me some weeks ago that he wanted something done by the senate, and after repeated failures he went to Brownlow, who had not the least personal interest in the thing, and asked his aid. Without the slightest hesitation, Brownlow went to the senate committee, to whom the matter had been referred; remained two hours working with the committee, and when he came away his efforts had been successful. He is an executive. He knows how to manage men, and that is what has made his services so valuable to his district and his state.

Brownlow served an apprenticeship at the tinners' trade. Then he was for some years a locomotive engineer. In 1876 he became a reporter on the Knoxville Whig and Chronicle, of which his famous kinsman, Parson Brownlow, was editor. Not long thereafter he purchased the Jonesboro Herald and Tribune, of which he has since been the editor, as well as the proprietor. He has attended five Republican national conventions as a delegate—twice from the state-at-large—from Tennesseee. He was long connected with the Republican state committee, of which he was two years chairman. In 1881 he was elected doorkeeper of the national house of representatives—the Forty-seventh congres. He was repeatedly chosen the Tennessee member of the Republican national committee, a position he yet holds. He was twice the Republican nominee for United States senator. He was six times returned to congress, and is today the ablest and most distinguished Republican in Tennessee. Not even W. O. Bradley of Kentucky has attained more importance as a Southern Republican than Walter P. Brownlow.

I do not know of any other Southern Republican who would not wither under the frown of a Republican administration at Washington, but Brownlow lives in a white district that numbers nearly three Republicans to one Democrat. There a Republican can live without bread and butter from Washington. Had it been as it is in other parts of the South, Evans would now have Brownlow's scalp dangling at his belt. If the administration will leave hands off, Walter P. Brownlow will dominate his party in Tennessee more effectually than Henry C. Lodge dominates his in Massachusetts.

But when did a Republican administration allow the Republican party of any Southern state to govern itself?

That is one of the reasons why there is no real Southern Republican party.

NEW WORLDS FOR OLD. By H. G. Wells. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.50.

This is a sane, reasonable and dangerously convincing study of Socialism by a Socialist, a philosopher and an accomplished literateur. It presents a view of Socialism that, perhaps without suspecting it, a very large number of people in this country already hold, and that without interfering with their membership in the old parties.

Socialism, in one form or another, will be a factor that is much to be reckoned with in the immediate future in this country. The Socialist party in 1904 cast nearly half a million ballots for its presidential candidate, and it will largely increase this vote at the coming election. Socialistic ideas are permeating the great parties, slowly, almost unrecognized as such, but certainly. Economic thought is taking more and more to the view that society owes a duty to its integers that it has thus far neglected, and it is a form of Socialism whenever the exercise of this neglected duty is urged. The evil conditions that bred Socialists have been growing, until recently at least, more and more acute.

In view of these facts it is well for every thoughtful citizen to make himself acquainted with what Socialism is, and especially with what it is not. This book tells what it is and what it is not in a most cogent, sane and reasonable manner. Nothing is to be gained by nursing false and exaggerated ideas of Socialism, or by combating it by the fruitless and wasteful method of setting up false standards of Socialism and then ingenually bowling them over. The book is characterized by clarity of vision, breadth and breeziness of expression, and by utter freedom from passion and prejudice. It is a clear expression, without cant, of an earnest spirit developing its ideas through the medium of fine literary workmanship.

Mr. Wells is not a Marxian Socialist, of the Debs stripe, who sees conditions clearly enough, but proposes an abrupt, untimely and therefore impossible and impracticable remedy. Such a state as the Fabian Socialist—Mr. Wells is a Fabian Socialist—conceives as the ultimate product of social evolution—can only be brought about by degrees—by evolution, not by revolution. Wells represents the clear-minded, critical, but nevertheless optimistic Socialism which realizes that there is much to be done before its plans can be embraced, in their entirety, anywhere. Speaking of himself, the author says: "He calls himself a Socialist, but he is by no means a fanatical or uncritical adherent. He does in all sincerity regard its spirit, its intimate substance, as the most hopeful thing in human affairs at the present time, but he does also find it shares with all mundane concerns the qualities of inadequacy and error. It suffers from the common penalty of noble propositions; it is hampered by the insufficiency of its supporters and advocates, and by the superficial tarnish that necessarily falls, in our atmosphere of greed and conflict, darkest upon the brightest things. In spite of these admissions of failure and unworthiness in himself and those about him, he remains a Socialist."

Many whose judgments are accurate and whose visions are keen tell us that the next great struggle will be between individualism and Socialism; that the competition of greed must inevitably give way, through the processes of economic evolution, to the competition of service which the dream of Socialism contemplates. That this is at least measurably true is made clearly evident by the tendencies of legislative policies and public demands in this country. Individualism, through gross abuses, has killed itself. Competition is dead, for all practical purposes. Monopoly, of one sort or another, is the ruling factor. The evils of private monopoly are unquestionable and unquestioned. The Socialist would substitute for it public monopoly, and declares that it is the only remedy possible. The subject is worth understanding clearly, and a reading of this limpid book will provide a thorough realization of what Socialism promises and professes.

THE NEXT STEP IN EVOLUTION. By Isaac K. Funk, D.D., LL.D. New York: Funk & Wagnalls Company. Cloth, 60 cents.

This little booklet is a study of the probability, significance and character of the second coming of Christ. The author believes that "Christ came the first time into men's visions by coming on the plane of their senses; He comes the second time into men's vision by lifting them up into his plane of spiritual comprehension. It means a new step in the evolution of man." Evolution, the immutable universal law of being and of growth, is as firmly established as any other law of nature in the minds of men. By the "eternal analogy" it is found applicable not alone to biology but to economics, metaphysics and spirituality. It is no more arrested and complete today than it was before Mesozoic reptiles gave way to the advent of man. What it will ultimately bring forth no man may say, but any man may speculate, as Dr. Funk has speculated, though few will speculate with such clarity, breadth, depth and spirituality of vision. It is a thoughtful, striking work, with a bewildering rapid fire of epigram and a thought-compelling and interest-arresting flow of ideas.

KARL MARX; Biographical Memoirs. By Wilhelm Liebknecht. Chicago: Charles H. Kerr & Co. 50 cents.

An interesting and intimate relation of Marx, the Jean Jacques of the economic uplift, by one who was near him during the years of his activity. It is told in a fresh and racy style that has lost nothing in the faithful translation by Ernest Untermann. In English it is a charming narrative.

THE COAST OF CHANCE. By Esther and Lucia Chamberlain. Indianapolis: The Bobbs-Merrill Company. $1.50.

Few modern forms of fiction have attained the popularity that has come to the mystery story, which is a development from the cruder detective story of an earlier day. And the chief test of workmanship in a mystery story of an earlier day. And the chief test of workmanship in a mystery story is the manner in which interest is sustined and spurred while the mystery itself is kept concealed until the climax. In too many so-called mystery stories there is no mystery. The author has to pretend that there is one, and the reader has to pretend that he believes in the make-believe. The machinery that works the show protrudes constantly, and while there may be interest in witnessing the ingenuity with which the author develops his plot processes there is no such thrill as a story of that character as there is in one where the reader is kept guessing right up to the time when it is exactly proper—the "psychological moment"—for the disclosure of the secret. This has been accomplished in "The Coast of Chance" with unusual success. The heroine is fooled, and so is the reader, unless, indeed, it be a reader of more than natural powers of discernment. The mystery looms fascinatingly from the beginning, even to the extent of causing some rather ordinary doings to take on an unwonted interest. But swift-moving action quickly develops, carrying the reader breathlessly to the unsuspected climax when, amid pleasant thrills, the curtain is drawn, the closet door is opened, and the mystery stands bare.

THE DISINHERITED. By George Wallace. New York: J. S. Ogilvie Publishing Company. $1.

This is not a novel, but in some respects it is more engrossing. In a series of observations of travel the author makes a sympathetic study of the conditions of various peoples of the world existing in want and misery. To find so many starving in a land of plenty excites the traveler's wonder until he finds that the bounties of nature have been seized by a privileged few, while the common people have been disinherited. The writer's style, while unpretentious, is charmingly simple and direct, and has the force of earnestness. He discusses Socialism and other remedies for present conditions, and brings clear-headed thought to their consideration.

THE PRIMA DONNA. By F. Marion Crawford. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.50.

In this absorbing tale this experienced and accomplished author has produced, as a sequel to "Fair Margaret," a mystery story of unusual power and interest. Action proceeds from the very beginning, where an explosion puts out the lights at the Metropolitan opera house while the prima donna is singing in the mad scene from "Lucia." She goes on with her song, thus preventing a panic in the audience, and is immediately afterwards summoned to the manager's room to receive the dying confession of a young woman that "He did it"—meaning Van Torp, the millionaire to whom she is engaged, but who at a former time had proposed to the prima donna. The mystery is as to what Van Torp did, and as to what his relations are to the dead girl's deaf and dumb little sister and to a woman who comes to his rooms at night and receives large sums of money from him. While it was apparently not the author's intent that he should, Van Torp assumes the center of the stage and keeps it. It is a vastly entertaining and thrilling mystery story, and one that will grasp the reader from the beginning with a grip that is not relaxed until the last page. It is in Mr. Crawford's best style, and will probably appeal to a larger circle than the old time clientage that has followed him through his prolific career.

EVOLUTION, SOCIAL AND ORGANIC. By Arthur M. Lewis. Chicago: Chas. H. Kerr & Co. 50 cents.

A volume of popular lectures which trace the early beginnings of evolutionary thought in Greece, outline the general theory of evolution as discovered by Lamarck and Darwin, discuss Weissman's theory of the non-transmission of acquired characteristics, DeVries' theory of mutation, Kropotkin's "Mutual Aid," etc. In each lecture the relation of evolution to Socialism is clearly explained.

GOETHE'S FAUST; a Study in Socialist Criticism. By Marcus Hitch, Chicago: Chas H. Kerr & Co. 50 cents.

The attempt made here is to show that the ethical standards which are taken for granted by great writers are definitely related to the economic foundations of the society in which they lived and wrote; as they well might be since such ethical standards as the vast majority hold are acquired in the same way. The idea is that the "ruling class" imposes its moral ideas upon the "subject class" through the poets and authors which the former has supported in the main, though that can hardly be true today. While the book is an interesting and not unprofitable study of "Faust," it is marred by flippancy and unnecessarily colloquial English.

HUMAN, ALL TOO HUMAN; a Book for Free Spirits. By Frederick Nietzsche. Chicago: Chas. H. Kerr & Co. 50 cents.

From a Socialist publishing house comes a translation of this amazing little work by the most amazing and mystifying philosophical figure of the nineteenth century. It is full of characteristic Nietzsche sentiments, which he advocates deem to be an earnest attempt to clear away the rubbish of conventionality and custom from the subject of morality, but which many people—doubtless very benighted but nevertheless very respectable people—believe clears away much of the morality as well.

Among the Magazines.

Of peculiar personal interest in the May Century is "The Prince of the Power of the Air," the article upon which Edmund Clarence Stedman was engaged at the time of his death, printed from a full, but not a final, draft, of which the first paragraph was Mr. Stedman's last written words. The article refers to Mr. Stedman's study of the subject and his remarkable forecasts, reviews what has been accomplished or undertaken in aeronautics by various governments, and discusses the menace to Britain's isolation. Dr. Bell has a letter in the same number commenting favorably on Mr. Stedman's paper. The text of Th. Bentzon (Madame Therese Blanc) and drawings by Andre Castaigne make the leading feature of the issue notably strong. "Literary Rolls of Honor in France" is a picturing of the Academie Francaise, the Academie des Goncourt, and the Committee of Women, of "La Vie Heureuse." Another of Mr. Sigismond de Ivanowski's brilliant portraits, reproducing in color, Miss Mary Garden as "Mellsande," is the frontispiece of the number; with a sketch of this distinguished American singer by Henry T. Finck.

Scribner's Magazine for May opens with an article on "The Charm of Mountain Climbing," by William Williams, a New York lawyer who has for many years been a member of the Alpine club. He was a member of one of the earliest expeditions that attempted to conquer Mount St. Elias. This paper treats of mountain climbing as a healthy and not overhazardous out-door sport—one that any person in good condition can enjoy with reason, provided the risks are understood and avoided. The paper is devoted principally to the Alps, and is illustrated with some of the most remarkable views ever taken. The second part of Richard Harding Davis's serial "Vera, the Medium," reveals the amusing surroundings of charlatanism, and also brings out the inherent charm and sincerity of Vera against this strange background.

Putnam's and The Reader for May gives the last chapters of "The Coast of Chance," by Esther and Lucia Chamberlain; "Thieves' Honor," a tale of Wales, by T. W. Stevens, with illustrations by J. W. Norton; "The Child," by Lily A. Long, with illustrations by C. J. Post, a story of the Far West involving cattle thieves and soldiers; and "Smilley's Tragedy," a humorous sketch by Arthur E. McFarlane, illustrated by J. R. Shaver.

The Nile, marvellous river of the centuries, receives unusually sympathetic treatment from Marie Van Vorst in the article which opens Harper's Magazine for May. The mystery of the river, its vagarious course, the merchant boats that ply it, the old-world memories and present-day activities that people its banks are described with extraordinary charm, and further pictured by the drawings in tint of Andre Castaigne. Frederick Trevor Hill describes "Wall Street in Colonial Times," the second article in his new series upon Wall street. "Through London by Canal," by Sydney Brooks, gives a remarkable view of London, caught, as it were, from the rear, in a phase indescribably quaint and inviting.

The Popular Science Monthly for May opens with an article on some new viewpoints of nutrition by Prof. Russell H. Chittenden, director of The Sheffield Science school of Yale university, and well known for the experiments which have led him to conclude that the amount of food, especially of meat, eaten by nearly every one is excessive.

The complete novelette, "In a Fair Country," by Adeline Knapp, which opens the May number of Smith's Magazine, represents about the strongest work that this author has ever done. It tells interestingly the love story of an American girl who goes to the Philippines as a school teacher, and gives incidentally a vitally interesting picture of the life of the Americans, men and women, who go to our insular possessions.

In People's Magazine for May is the second of a series of illustrated poems by Alfred Damon Runyon. The first of this series, entitled "Toots McGann," appeared in the April issue of People's, and told the tale of a Chinese army instructor who marched his men, without orders, of course, to the relief of a besieged legation. In the present poem, "To Those Who Stay," Mr. Runyon offers a toast to "the new recruits just landed," who have to stay behind when the transports sail away, bearing the older soldiers home.

Among the leading articles in the Technical World Magazine for May are: "The Romance of Transmission," by George Frederick Stratton; "Frog Farming an Industry," by W. E. Meehan; "To Cut One-third From the World's Fuel Bill," by Robert Franklin; "Gun That Makes No Noise," by P. Harvey Middleton; "To Prevent a World Famine," by F. Knorr; "American Soldiers Will Fly," by Raymond C. Black.

The Smart Set for May opens with a brilliant novelette by Elizabeth Robins, entitled "The Mills of the Gods." A more unusual story has seldom been printed in a magazine. With the consummate art for which she has become famous, Miss Robins depicts the character of a noble ne'er-do-well, handsome, fascinating and cruel. How he wins the hand of a beautiful young girl about whose personality there is a veil of mystery and how a woman of his early youth works out an exquisite revenge, can only be told by the brilliant author.

An heiriess seeking a titled husband describes frankly just how she feels about it in "Princess," by Ludovic Halevy, in Young's Magazine for May. Frankly a sex-problem story, "The Revolt of Roxanna," by Maude Fuller Hopkins is a strong piece of fiction that every young woman should read. "Over the Wire," by Howard Laurie, and "The Duplicity of Shinji-San," by Aubrey Lanston are rollicking comedettas, while among a dozen other blithe tales are "The Genesis of Billy Wynn," by Catherine Carr; "Pierette," by "Gyp"; "An Incident," by Fred Jackson.

The principal features of the May number of the Review of Reviews, are, a group of three articles dealing with America's national assets, entitled, respectively, "Checking the Waste of Our National Resources" (illustrated), by Guy Elliott Mitchell, of the United States Geological Survey, "A National Inventory" by Richard H. Edmonds, and "The New American Farmer," by Herbert N. Casson; an account of Canada's recent material progress by Agnes C. Laut; an exposition, from the Socialistic viewpoint, of "International Socialism as a Political Force," by George Allan England.

William J. Locke, author of "The Beloved Vagabond" and "The Morals of Marcus," begins a new serial, "Simple Septimus," in the May American Magazine. In the same number William Allen White writes a character sketch of Taft, and as far as the special advantage of acquaintance goes toward measuring Taft justly, White's article is as good as knowing the secretary of war for twenty years. "Mr. Dooley" writes on "The End of Life." This is an extraordinary article on Death. Ray Stannard Baker reports "An Ostracized Race in Ferment." This is the story of the conflict of negro parties and negro leaders over methods of dealing with their own problem.

Ainslee's for May has a story by H. F. Prevost Battersby, entitled "Three Ways of Love," which is in the author's best vein. Readers of Ainslee's know what this means, for he has been a frequent contributor; indeed, this magazine has published all of Mr. Battersby's short stories that have appeared here.

The May McClure's is a strong fiction number. "In the Dark Hour" is a stirring story of tropical love and adventure, by Perceval Gibbon, author of "The Second-Class Passenger." Lucy Pratt's Ezekiel reappears in a delightful story, "In Charge of Trusty." "War on the Tiger" carries the reader through jungles, on the trail of the man-eating tiger. Other stories following more familiar paths are James Barnes' "The Silly Ass," "The Radical Judge," by Anita Fitch; "The Lie Direct," by Caroline Duer, and "The Misadventures of Cassidy," by Edward S. Moffatt.

The Atlantic Monthly is perenially interesting, and the May issue is no exception to this rule. The leader is a startlingly clear-sighted article by Thomas Mott Osborne, formerly mayor of Auburn, N. Y., now a member of the public service commission, and is entitled "Has the Democratic Party a Future?" Andrew D. White contributes an excellent article entitled "The Statesmanship of Stein," the first of a series of two papers dealing with the famous German minister. "Prohibition in the South" in its most recent phases is discussed by Frank Foxcroft. Max Eastman of Columbia university writes a brilliant essay on "The New Art of Healing."

Coursing blood and the call of the outdoor world! Only the very brightest of fiction can now hold the interest—such a story, for instance, as the complete novel in the May Lippincott's: "The Pirate of Alastair." Rupert Sargent Holland, the author, will be pleasantly remembered as the writer of that clever book, "The Count at Harvard." He has invested his new tale with a healthful outdoor atmosphere. You will feel that you, too, would like to be on that remote corner of the Maine coast, taking part in such stirring adventures as befell Felix Selden. Lippincott's always excels in the matter of short stories, and this month is no exception to the rule.

"The Wonders of Underground New York" is the title under which Edward Wildman describes in the May issue of The World Today the MeAdoo tunnels under the Hudson river and the great transportation facilities thereby gained. C. H. Forbes-Lindsay writes of "The Revival of the Waterway," with special reference to the conference called to meet at the White House in May to consider the conservation of our natural resources. What "Philadelphia's Commercial Museum" is doing to increase America's foreign trade is told by Paul T. Cherington.

Is there a source of wealth—a place or thing from which all the gold in the world is derived? This question has often furnished matter for interesting speculation, and has been the source of much in the way of both fiction and adventure. Through all the placer camps of the North there are tales of the mother lode, the source of the gold and nuggets that sprinkle the streams. Some people find it harder to stand prosperity than misfortune—the principal character in "The Mother Lode," by A. M. Chisholm, which appears in the May Popular Magazine, had too much of a good thing.

Herman Pfeifer's beautiful prize cover gives much distinction to the May Woman's Home Companion. Another notable are feature of this magazine is a full-page reproduction of William Balfour Ker's painting, "Memories." An aged civil war veteran is carrying his company's colors in a Decoration day parade, his eyes almost closed in reverie. Behind him crowd the vague, shadowy forms of the gallant youths who followed the colors with him nearly half a century ago.

In the list of fiction for The Housekeeper for May there are two particularly clever stories, "Roxana's Proposal," by Anne Warner, and "His Failure," by Emma Lee Walton. For the first, imagine a girl who has looked forward to a proposal from infancy; then the auspicious moment—the automobile breaks down, and as a parting word after the strenuous day, "Oh, I forgot, I meant to propose this morning."

The fine picture of a yacht bowling along under a full spread of canvas on the front cover of the May American Boy, speaks eloquently of the seashore and warm breezes. He will be a curious boy whom the contents of this number does not fully please. "Jimmy Jones, Pirate;" "Four Boys on the Mississippi," and "That Dillingham Boy" increase in interest. The short stories are numerous and interesting.

The Engineering Magazine for May gives the leading place to a discussion of Japan's manufacture and importation of iron goods, by M. Kawara, a native engineer. Mr. Kawara concludes that the great expansion which may be expected in domestic manufacture will not prevent the importation of certain classes of iron goods on a large scale and that the Japanese trade offers to the manufacturers of the United States an attractive field for exploitation.

The May number of Success Magazine contains an argument for a tariff commission by H. E. Miles of the National Manufacturers' association. There is an article by Kenneth Augustine upon Wilhelm Funk and his art, and one by James L. Ford about "The Men Who Manufacture Fame." The May number of Gunter's Magazine—the first issue under the new ownership of Street & Smith—has made its appearance. The May Gunter's is a handsome magazine of 160 pages of clear, well-printed text, all fiction, and sells for 15 cents. There is a half-page illustration at the head of each story, and in many cases there are large pictorial tail-pieces. An attractive frontispiece drawn in water-color by C. H. Grunwald, and printed on fine paper, forms a full-page illustration to the complete novel with which the magazine opens.

The May number of Popular Mechanics contans a graphic pen picture of target practice by the United States fleet at Magdalena bay. This article is written by one of the gunners and is of thrilling interest from start to finish. "The Troubles of the Trouble Hunters," by C. F. Carter, is a delightful sketch about the experiences of the experts whom manufacturers esnd out to find out why machines they have sold won't work. A great merit of this article is that everyone can understand and enjoy the humor of it.

Casson; "Miracles of Modern Surgery," by Robert Sloss; "The Girl Who Goes on the Stage," by Harris Merton Lyons.

The wonderful voyage of our battleship fleet from Hampton Roads to San Francisco has attracted world-wide attention and has aroused intense enthusiasm on the Pacific coast. In recognition of this great and unexampled naval feat and of the universal interest in it, the current issue of Leslie's Weekly, the American Navy Number, presents a wealth of illustration and letterpress commemorating the event. On the beautiful cover in colors is shown an especially good portrait of the famous commander of the fleet, Rear Admiral Evans, while on the inside front is printed a striking picture of the flagship Connecticut moving at full speed. Two pages are devoted to photographs recording the fleet's long cruise, and two other pages display the individual vessels in attractive style.

The May number of the Keramic Studio is bright and crisp with new designs, and contains a volume of information and instructions interesting to the china colorist. "Jack in the Pulpit" is the colored study for May. The Fleur de Lis in black and white is a very pretty design and the salad bowl and plate will appeal very strongly to those looking for a conventional study. The Happy Hour study department offers suggestions and advice to those in trouble, and will prove a great boon to those who patronize it.

Harper's Weekly for May 2 is rich in timely and attractive features. Paying tribute to the season, it publishes a number of articles and pictures which will appeal to the ubiquitous baseball lover. E. B. Moss, an authority, writes informingly of the prospects of the national sport for 1908, there is a vivid page of "fan" snap shots, a delightful poem, "Play Ball!" that will be committed to memory by many an enthusiast, and a very funny page of drawings by Kingston Hengfer. In graver vein is an article, "The Scourge of the Yaquis," telling how American life and capital in Mexico are being menaced by a handful of savages. Sydney Brooks tells how thoughtful Englishmen regard our difficulties with our ambassadors. The ways of the loan sharks as they are to be observed in the back-waters of city life are graphically told. Robert Hichens' gripping serial story, "A Spirit in Prison," is continued, and there are other features that will commend this issue to the intelligent reader.

SOCIETY

MANY of the local society and club women are actively interested in the Duluth Art school, and the studio tea which was held at the rooms this afternoon, was one of the most important affairs of the week. The classes have been meeting for some weeks, but this afternoon's affair was the first to which the general public was invited, to meet C. C. Rosenranz, the director of the school, and the members of the board of managers. Congratulations were extended those who have been actively interested in the school for the splendid progress which has been made. The guests were received by Mrs. Henry C. Marshall and Mrs. J. B. Weston, with Mr. Rosenranz, in the director's studio. At one end of the room the tea table was laid. A green cloth was laid and the appointments were in copper. Copper candlesticks and tea kettles were used and a copper brazier filled with pink roses formed the centerpiece. Presiding at the table were Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge and Mrs. R. E. Denfeld. Members of the board of manager assisted about the rooms.

The receiving hours were from 4 to 6 o'clock.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

The May Festival.

Subscriptions have been pouring in during the past week for the second May festival, and the patrons' list will show a decided gain over last year. Friday of next week is the last day that subscriptions will be received to be included in the patrons' list. The plan will be at Westgaard's music store. Tuesday evening the Oratorio society took in hand the festival arrangement of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," arranged and orchestrated by the great Elgar, of "Dream of Gerontius" fame. This edition has been specially published for the Duluth May festival, and at the opening concert it will have its first performance in America. It will be the first number at the concert Monday evening, May 18, and it is more than likely a request will be made for its repetition in which case it will be the concluding number at the evening concert, Tuesday, May 19. Another choral number which will be given its first performance in America is Hamish MacCunn's choral ballad for full orchestra and chorus, "The Wreck of the Hesperus." This is a wonderfully descriptive setting to Longfellow's well known poem, and to do this work the orchestral score and parts have been imported from London.

All the solo arias by the soloists will be given with full orchestral accompaniments. Md. Reyner will leave for Minneapolis, Thursday to rehearse the Symphony orchestra in the choral works to be presented at the festival which includes four cantatas and four individual arias by the different soloists.

One of the greatest treats of the festival will be the cantata at the matinee, "Into the World," by Benoit. This work will be sung by the High School Musical society, consisting of 100 voices and 100 voices from the public schools of the city. This work has been prepared by Mr. Reyner and Mr. Constance, whose co-operation and hearty support is deeply appreciated by the directors of the Oratorio society. The greatest orchestral work of the festival, Beethoven's C Minor symphony, will also be given at the matinee performance. In fact, the matinee will be as important musically as either of the evening concerts.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS' PAGE

WHEN PUSSY PIGGIN WAS RESCUED. A STORY OF THE WEST

BY MAUD WALKER.

The story which is about to be related happened many, many years ago in the Far West. That is to say, the scene of action was at that time called the Far West, for it belonged to that region of country west of the Mississippi River, but east of the Rocky Mountains.

And in that far-away land there were at the time of my story no railroads—such as honeycomb the country now, and there were no large cities, either. The towns were few and far between, and roving bands of Indians wandered here and there, sometimes becoming very hostile toward the white men who were encroaching on their territory more and more, and driving them from their hunting grounds.

And the "White Settlers," as the frontiersmen were called, traveled from the more civilized states to the new country "Out West" in big covered wagons that were drawn by oxen or mules, horses seldom answering the purpose of drawing the heavy burdens, for their strength and endurance were not adequate for the travel.

One fine spring day a white-canvased wagon was seen going over the prairie road leading toward the setting sun. Inside this wagon, and on the front seat, sat a man and a woman. The man held the lines which guided a pair of well-built mules that were trotting along as if the burden of the wagon—household goods piled high inside it, and the human beings on top it all—were of no consequence.

As the mules trotted along the woman on the front seat would occasionally turn to someone inside the wagon behind her and say: "Now, Nannie, stop that bawling. You know well enough that we couldn't go all the way back—eight or ten miles—just to git a cat. There'll be plenty o' cats whur we're a-goin' to, mind that. Never yet seen a place whur white folks lived that there wan't plenty o' squallin' cats."

"But it ain't any ole cat 'at I want," came a mournful little voice from the depths of the wagon, away inside under the canvas cover. "I want Pussy-Piggin."

"Au, she ain't no punkins," came another voice from inside the wagon, a boy's brusque voice. "I'd be glad to be shed o' her if 'twas me."

"I want Pussy-Piggin," wailed the little voice, which was plainly that of a little girl.

"Well, ef you'd a-missed her after we'd just started we'd a-gone back fer her," said the man on the front seat, who was none other than the father of the voices from the inside of the wagon. And the woman beside him on the seat was his wife, and mother of the little ones tucked away inside. "But we can't go back now, as we're a good piece frum thar now."

"Ah, yonder's a house!" cried the boy's voice, and a dirty little masculine hand was thrust from beneath the side of the wagon cover, pointing toward a little frame shack that stood like a dot on the prairie. Then the faces of the two children might be seen peeping from under the wagon cover, interested in anything that spoke of animal or human life on that prairie where there was such a dearth of it.

But even as she peeped at the lone "settler's" shack the little girl kept on crying softly and murmuring every few minutes: "I want my Pussy-Piggin."

"I reckon we'd better stop thar an' water the mules an' fix our own snack," said the man, meaning by "thar" the frame shack. And within a little while the moving wagon had pulled up in front of the "settler's" shack and the driver had called out: "Hello, thar!" But as no response came from the inside of the shack the man in the wagon got down from his high seat and went to the pine-board door and pushed it open. The place was deserted, the "settler" having "pulled up stakes" and moved away. Soon the movers were inside the shack, the woman setting some cold victuals—from the messbox in the wagon—upon an old pine-box table which remained in the shack. During the noon hour, while the mules ate their dinner and rested, Nannie—the little girl from the wagon—sat very silent, meditating deeply. After a while she said:

"Pa, I'm goin' to git out an' look around a little. I want to find my Pussy-Piggin."

"Why, child, you can't find her around here," said the father. "She's back in the settlements, whur we come from. Don't you remember we left her with Aunt Sally Brown?"

"I want my Pussy-Piggin," wailed the little girl, and her father, seeing that she was about to cry herself sick, said:

"Well, I'll tell you what we'll do. We'll go back after her. We'll go back to Aunt Sally's and get Pussy-Piggin and bring her back with us."

"Oh, goody!" cried the little girl, clapping her hands and smiling through her tears. "I'm glad we're going back after her."

"Well, I'm not," said the boy, with a frown. "I don't like that cat, and I don't see why we have to go back after her."

"Because your little sister wants her, and we're going back after her," said the father, firmly.

"Well, I'll be glad to get back to Aunt Sally's, anyway," said the boy. "I'm tired of this trip, and I'm glad it's almost over."

"Yes, we'll be back there in a few days now," said the father. "Maybe there's some settlers over thar. I'll git on one of the mules an' ride over an' see if I can git some sticks fur a fire. It's good five mile to the next crick whur we'll be able to git wood."

And so the father rode over the hill—a mile away—and returned with a few sticks of green cottonwood with which he made a little campfire in the yard. And soon there was some hot water in the coffee pot, which was given to Nannie to drink, some of it being used to dip clothes in to lay over the badly-behaving stomach. But in vain! Still did Nannie bend double and weep, declaring, "I can't git in the wagon till tomorrer, ma, I jest can't. I'm too sick. Can't we stay here all night?"

And so the afternoon passed away with Nannie still complaining, the cramps in the "stummick" apparently no better. And the parents were too much alarmed about her to try to push on that day, and decided to remain in the deserted shack till the following morning, when, if the child was able, they would pursue their journey.

That night, soon after they had partaken of their supper, Nannie surprised them all by saying: "The stummick-ache is goned, an' I can eat some bacon and bread, ma." And you may better believe the father, mother and Sam were delighted that she had recovered from her very painful sickness of the entire afternoon. So she was given a good supper and then told to go to sleep. The parents had brought the bedding from the wagon and had made up beds on the floor.

As Nannie lay very quietly, eyes tightly closed, her mother, thinking she was asleep, whispered to Sam to go to bed and make no noise during the process. Then, she and the father soon crept quietly into their bed, and were soon slumbering soundly.

After the house had been silent for about half an hour, and Nannie felt sure that she could creep out of bed without disturbing the sleepers; she got up and went ever so softly from the shack, drawing the door shut after her. Then she flew towards the mules, that were tethered to grass near the house. "Ah, I'll ride on Ginger," said Nannie, leading the larger of the mules toward the wagon. There she found the bridle, and after some difficulty had the bit between old Ginger's teeth. In another minute she was astride his back, riding off down the road toward the east.

In another minute she was astride his back, riding off down the road toward the east.

And those in the little frame house slept on and on, not waking till dawn. Then the father rose and looked towards the little pallet-bed where Nannie had been lying, intending to inquire of her—should be be awake—how she was feeling after a good night's rest. But to his astonishment he saw an empty bed. He spoke to his wife and she, still drowsy, declared that Nannie had just gone out to look about, and would probably come in within a few minutes.

The father, mother and Sam were soon up and dressed, and Sam went out to call his sister, while his father went to feed the mules, hoping to make an early start on their journey. Can you imagine the wonder of them all when they failed to find Nannie, and discovered the absence of one of the mules?

"Oh, it must have been some prowling Indians!" wailed the poor, distressed mother. "They must have crept in while we slept and stole away our darlin' child. Oh, what can we do?—what can we do?"

"Say ma," said Sam, after a few moment's thought, and while his father was bridling the other mule, preparatory to starting to the nearest town to give the alarm, "I bet Sis has gone back after Pussy-Piggin. She said yesterday, while we was in the wagon, that she meant to steal away at night an' take one of the mules an' ride back for Pussy-Piggin. I bet that's whur she's gone."

And so it dawned upon the parents, too, that their little girl had gone on a dangerous trip over a lonely prairie road, beset by Indians and wolves, to fetch her pet cat. Hurriedly the father mounted the remaining mule and rode off towards the old place they had left on the previous day. The mother and Sam remained at the temporary camp, the former praying silently for the safe return of her precious child.

In the middle of the afternoon the waiting woman and boy saw two mules coming over the prairie, on one a man and on the other a little form, clad in a pink calico dress, which fluttered in the warm breeze. In their eagerness to greet the returning runaway, and her protector, the mother and brother went down the road, waving their hands in welcome.

After a few minutes all were together, and the mother, after clasping lovingly the little hand of her daughter, said:

"Why, child, how could you do such a thing? And you was so sick all afternoon, too. It was dreadful!"

"No, ma, I wasn't a bit sick. I was pretendin', just to keep us from goin' on, fer if we'd a-gone much further I couldn't a-gone back fer Pussy-Piggin. An' Pussy was so glad to see me. She jest come runnin'. She must a-bin awful lonesome round that place whur there wasn't a soul except herself."

"But, child, don't you know it was wicked to pretend you was sick—an' to go off that a-way. Why, we wus scared to death." And the poor mother bent an injured look on the little girl.

"I s'pose I wus wicked," admitted Nannie. "But I reck-o-leckt that I heard you say onct that of two evils we must choose the—the—littlest. Well, it wus much wickeder to leave my Pussy-Piggin thar alone to starve than it wus to pretend like I was sick. An' I meant to get back before you wus awake, I didn't know it would take so long to go there. I couldn't ride very fast for old Ginger jolts so. But, pa, show ma an' Sam Pussy-Piggin."

Whereupon the father, smiling indulgently at his kindhearted little daughter, took from the breast of his coat a tiny blue-eyed, fuzzy kitten, that sat blinking at the light and stretching its mouth as if very sleepy, though contented in its nest.

"You see, ma," said Nannie. "Pussy-Piggin is an orphan, an' I'm her stepma. So, I couldn't let a little fib an' a dangerous ride in the night-time keep me from doin' my duty to her, an' I love her like she was my own—jest as you love me, ma. An' you wouldn't leave me to starve, would you, jest because you'd got started without me?"

"No, my child, I'd go to the end of the earth for you if you'd get lost from me," said the mother. "And you shall not be scolded for this act, for I see plainly that we should have gone back for Pussy-Piggin."

"Well, she'll never be left again," declared Nannie. "I'll watch out for her just as you an' pa watches out fer me'n Sam."

LITTLE NED'S APPREHENSION.

Ned stood by the nurse, looking intently at his baby sister that was being lulled to sleep. "Ain't she nearly unconscious?" asked Ned in a whisper, alluding to the baby.

Nurse nodded affirmatively, continuing to sing a lullaby.

"Then stop singing or you'll sure kill her," declared Ned.

Undaunted Billy.

Billy Johnson was a fellow
  Living in the town:
And he made moon-eyes at Sally—
  Little Sally Brown.

But young Sally didn't like him,
  So she passed him by:
But our Billy was a hero
  And again did try.

To win the favor of Miss Sally,
  And one day did take
To the little girl in question
  A big ginger cake.

But Miss Sally turned her nose up;
  Tossed her flaxen curls;
Then refused the cake, so Billy
  Said, "There're other girls."

Double Limerick.

Once there was a big old Thomas Cat
Who lived in a long alley that
  Had no end anywhere,
  And was old Tom's despair,
For the people all yelled at him, "Scat!"

Once there was a young puppy-dog, black,
Who came in that alley, 'way back,
  And he met Tom one day,
  Then ran fast away,
For Tom owned that alley. Alack!

LITTLE PAULINE ROGERS

BY HELEN DAVIS.

Pauline Rogers was a quiet, sweet-tempered girl of 14. Her mother was a widow, and kept a few boarders to help out with the living expenses of her little daughter and herself. After the death of Pauline's father—which occurred a year before this story opens—many of the little girl's former friends became rather cool in their manner toward her, feeling that the daughter of a boarding-house keeper was not their social equal. Pauline's father had failed in business just before his death, his financial loss probably being the cause of his sudden illness, which ended so sadly for his wife and daughter.

At first the changed attitude of her friends caused Pauline many very unhappy hours, but her mother's consolation and council helped her to get over the loss of friendship of such girls who looked more at the social position and financial standing or the parents of their associates than at the little comrades themselves. One girl especially that Pauline had been very fond of, Grace Van Horn, had openly cut Pauline soon after the news of her father's failure in business had been spread abroad. And even after the poor man's death, and when a kind word was so much appreciated by his widow and orphan daughter, the vain little Miss Grace Van Horn did not show her old school friend enough respect to come and offer her consolation. The other girls of her acquaintance were very kind to her during the first few weeks of grief and worldly loss; but even they soon cooled in their manner toward Pauline, their mothers setting the example by striking the name of Mrs. Rogers from their visiting lists.

"Of course, the poor thing," meaning Mrs. Rogers, "can't expect to go in society now, for not only is she in mourning, but is financially ruined. They say Ben Rogers didn't leave hardly anything for his wife and child. So, under the circumstances, she can't possibly expect to continue in our set." So spoke Mrs. Van Horn, mother of Grace.

And so Mrs. Rogers opened her beautiful house to strangers, taking boarders to help defray expenses. Among the boarders installed in Mrs. Rogers' house was an old man, a stranger in the town. He had heard of Mrs. Rogers' house upon his arrival in town and had gone there directly. Although he brought with him no references as to character Mrs. Rogers declared that his kind old face and low, sympathetic voice were quite enough to warrant her in admitting him as a guest into her home.

"Why, the poor old man is crippled," exclaimed Pauline when she came in from school on the day of the strange boarder's arrival. "See how he limps, mamma. And his hands tremble so on his cane!" The old man alluded to was walking about the front yard and Pauline had caught sight of him from her mother's room window.

"Yes, he seems quite feeble. I asked him if he were alone in the town, if he had no friends or relatives here, and he replied that he was not only alone in this town, but in all this big world."

Pauline's sympathies were roused at once in behalf of the old man, and that evening she went into the library, whither the old man had gone after dinner, and offered to read to him if he wished her to do so.

"Ah, come here, little daughter," said the old gentleman, smiling at Pauline. "Come, tell me your name. What? You are the daughter of my hostess? Well, then I shall see much of you, shan't I? I hope we will become great friends this summer."

"Then shall you remain in town all summer?" Pauline asked the question with some surprise. All her life she had thought that to remain in town all summer would be very, very hard to bear on account of the insufferable heat. Of course, she and her mother had remained at home all the previous summer; but their circumstances would not permit of their going out of town. But Pauline could not conceive of any one stopping in town during the hot season unless obliged to do so.

"Yes, I shall stay right here unless—" And the old gentleman paused. "Yes, I think I shall remain in town right along—indefinitely."

"Oh, there is always a nice cool place on the east side of the house, way round under the trees," said Pauline. "And we have a nice rustic bench. But an easy rocking chair would be better for you. The rustic bench is only comfortable to look at." And Pauline laughed merrily.

"I am sure we are to be great friends," declared the old gentleman. "Come, read to me from this volume of verse. I know you can read with expression."

Pauline drew a chair close to the old gentleman and read aloud to him for half an hour, after which he thanked her earnestly and said he must retire to his own room as very old people were like very young ones, they must go to bed early.

"Mamma, what's our old gentleman's name?" asked Pauline, joining her mother in the sewing room. "Well, child, what will you say when I tell you he did not give me his name?" replied Mrs. Rogers. "When he came to see about room and board he paid me in advance for a week's accommodations. I said I would give him a receipt, but he shook his head, saying he never had business transactions with people whom he could not trust. Then, as he was going out I asked whom I had the pleasure of enrolling in my register. He turned and looked at me with such a quaint smile, saying: 'Just call me the Old Man, for I'm quite sure you will not have another boarder as old as I am.' Well, I felt so sure of his honesty that I made no objection to his coming in without a name. He is doubtless a bit eccentric, but a man of fine character."

"Maybe the dear old man is in some sort of trouble," said Pauline. "I do hope we can make him happy and comfortable during the summer."

The days wore on and Sunday came. As Pauline was going to her room to dress for Sunday school and church she heard the Old Man call to her from the porch. "Little one, will you conduct me to your church? Being a stranger here I do not know the way. Besides, my old legs don't walk as nimbly as they used to, and I feel more certain of myself when I have some strong young person beside me."

"Oh, yes Sir," said Pauline. "I shall be so glad to take you with me. When Pauline led the Old Man down the church aisle that morning several of her old-time friends looked at each other and smiled knowingly, whispering little would-be witticisms about the queer-looking old man who accompanied her. "Is he Father Time?" whispered Grace Van Horn to Marie Temple. "Look at his walk—his gait, I should say. It resembles the limp of a dray horse."

Marie Temple laughed softly, whispering back: "Same poor old relative, probably, whom they did not know when they 'knew better days,' but who is good enough to visit them in their boarding house."

"Wonder who his tailor is?" whispered Grace Van Horn. "Guess he must have lived during the early ages. He is an antique."

"Yes, I should think they would set him on the mantel, or put him in the cabinet," whispered Marie. "Just note the whiskers, will you?"

"Needs a shave," snickered Grace. Then the stern eye of a lady sitting in the same pew with them caused them to become silent.

A few days afterwards Pauline was helping the Old Man down town to a shop where he wished to make some purchases, and passed Grace Van Horn on the street. The latter pretended not to see her former acquaintance, but Pauline saw an amused smile playing on her proud lips as she turned her head away. But today Pauline did not mind the cut, and when about to pass Grace she said in a friendly voice:

"Grace, I'm sorry to discover such a weakness in you. I used to have a great deal of admiration for you, and it hurts me to find you so unworthy."

Grace merely lifted her head in the air, glanced at Pauline as though she were some insolent street beggar, and passed on.

And so the time wore away, and Pauline found herself quite happy in spite of their changed circumstances. She was so busy all day, helping her mother, practicing her music (which she did not neglect, even though she had no instructor) and reading and chatting to the Old Man. But there seemed to be something on the Old Man's mind, for so often when Pauline was reading to him he would stop her in the middle of a sentence to ask her to go over the passage again. Then, he had not paid his board, except for the first week, and twice he had borrowed small sums from Pauline, who had gladly loaned to him what little money she had saved toward some sheet music that she wished so much to buy.

One afternoon Pauline was reading to the Old Man in the library. Suddenly he put out his hand and stopped her. Then he said:

"Pauline, what would you and your mother do were I not to find the money to pay my board? Would you turn me out? Speak plainly, for I must know the truth—and at once."

Pauline laid aside the book and drew her chair close to the Old Man.

"No, sir," she said in a voice full of tenderness. "You are welcome here as long as you wish to remain. If you have no other friends in the world but mamma and me, you may call our house your home for—always."

"But the money, child? Do you mean to say I can stay without paying?"

"Yes, sir, you may stay without paying if you have no money. You are old and alone, and mamma and I are very fond of you. If you are in need, do not worry about your board and room. Mamma will tell you that under no conditions would she have you fret over the small sum you are indebted to her for. You shall be one of the family, sir, and mamma and I shall do all that poor people can do to make you comfortable."

"But suppose the other boarders should make an objection to your keeping me—a nameless beggar, one might say—in your house?" asked the Old Man.

"But nobody except mamma and I will ever know your circumstances," said Pauline. "It's very hard to be poor, sir, and as mamma and I have had a taste of poverty we know all the more how to sympathize with another fellow-creature in distress. You shall have all the attentions that we have been in the habit of showing you, sir. Somehow, I think of my own dear old grandpa, who died several years ago, when I look at you. It would have been very hard to bear had anyone been unkind to him because he couldn't pay his way. Dear old grandpa, he was very poor, too, for he gave all his wealth to his sons—my papa being one of them. And papa gave him a home till he died. Then dear papa made some unwise investments and lost all he had gotten from grandpa. So, you see, I know that it is very hard to be poor. But let us not talk of it any more, for the day is so warm and you need a nap under the trees. Come——"

"Yes, the day is warm," said the Old Man, "and I've decided to go into the country for the remainder of the summer." Pauline looked at him in astonishment, and saw him smiling a most gentle and glorious smile. "Ah, my little treasure, with a heart of gold, I'm not a poor old man at all; I'm your old grandpa's brother, and have more money than I need for myself. So, hearing of your poor mother's dilemma, I decided to come here incognito and study her worth and yours. I have relatives in the West who are after my money—but I know their plans. Were I poor today they'd turn their backs on me tomorrow. This morning I had the same conversation with your mother that I've just had with you, and she assured me of her love and protection just as you have done—and you both thought me a nameless old tramp."

"No, no," cried Pauline, "we both knew you to be good and noble, and pitied you because you were friendless and poor."

"Ah, but I have the truest friends in the world, my little one, and now we're all three going to enjoy the good that the money I have been piling up these many years can bring to us. Your mother does not know my secret; I wanted to tell it to you first, Pauline."

"Ah, then you are Great-uncle Dan, and not poor and friendless at all?" whispered Pauline, tears of emotion and happiness in her eyes.

"Yes, I'm that old chap, and I've come to take care of your brave mamma and yourself. And now just let these upstarts in town try to snub you, my little one."

"Grace, I'm sorry to discover such a weakness in you."

Revelations in Lingerie Blouses

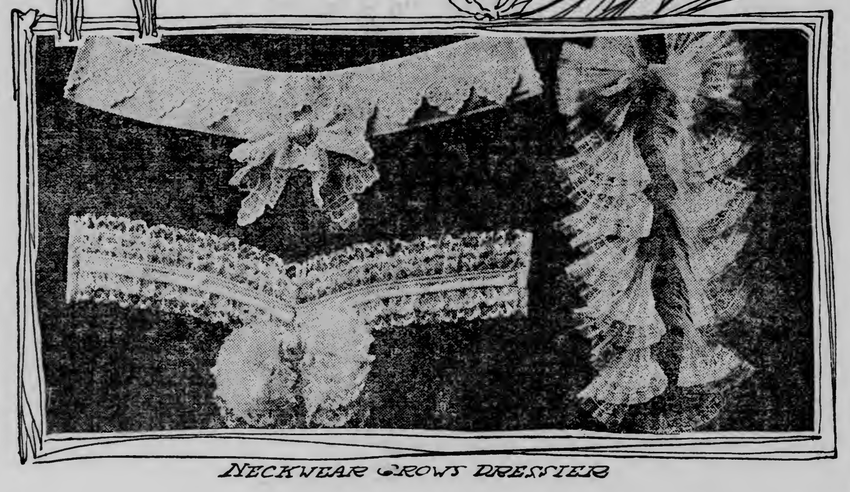
THE "PAPILLION" OR BUTTERFLY WAIST.

A GEISHA LINGERIE WAIST.

GEORGE BAKER

SLEEVES AND BODY ARE CUT IN ONE.

DRESSY BLOUSE OF EMBROIDERED BANDS AND CLUNY INSERTION



NECKWEAR GROWS DRESSIER

Decided Novelty in New Designs - The One-Piece Butterfly Model - It Suggests the Old Time Dolman - Spring Models Decide New Sleeve Lengths - Neckwear Accessories - Belts to Accompany Tailored Suits and Pretty Blouses.

The apparent fall from grace of the lingerie blouse in the past winter's dressing seems but to have strengthened its cause for the springtime. Already has it subjugated the fair followers of Dame Fashion who ever clamor for the new. The lingerie blouse is not new, we all know; we have had it for—well, more seasons than a mode is usually allowed to thrive, but the designs in which it is exploited this year are decidedly new and original, not to say exceedingly pretty and universally well liked.

The Butterfly.

With the butterfly idea soaring so high in tailored coats and costumes, it is but natural that such an effective and novel element of fashion should find a use in dressy separate blouses of the lingerie type in which the number of designs is necessarily limited.

This injection of a new design into a department of dress absolutely suffering for new ideas comes just at the right time, when women are happy to revert to sheer wash blouses after a season of costume effects in heavier and warmer materials suited to the temperature of the winter season.

The new dressy blouses differ very materially in one respect from those of any other season or year. Very little plain material is used in any of the designs; sometimes it is lacking altogether, the waist being made entirely of lace and embroidery bands varying in width. If used at all, it appears more as a trimming rather than a foundation upon which to lavish the lace and fine needlework.

The Papillion Waist.

This butterfly or papillion model, the latter being more generally applied to waists, is the most novel thing yet seen in blouse designs. The flat pattern is in one piece, sleeves in one with the waist body, and underarm seams only. With this in hand the skilful seamstress may dispose of beautiful embroidery insertions entre deux, with laces and strips of batiste or linen, plain or tucked, and motifs and medallions of varying size and elaborateness. Sometimes narrow insertions are arranged to form a yoke, pointed or square, outlined with bandings that run in suspender fashion from front to back of waistline. For the unduly long-waisted figure this style waist is admirable, the short underarm seam and broad shoulder giving a short-waisted effect, which the square yoke helps to accentuate.

The papillion sleeve is short, three-quarters, and finished simply with a very narrow cuff or none at all, when a double or triple lace frill is the means of ornamentation.

A Comfortable Model.

It might be imagined that this waist is uncomfortable, so decidedly does it resemble the oldtime graceless, comfortless dolman, but such is not the case. Its sleeves are cut with sufficient fulness so that the arms when raised suffer no retrictions and the body does not disarrange itself from its position at the waist line.

One of the handsomest models of this persuasion is a hand-made affair combining three kinds of lace and a small quantity of the sheerest handkerchief linen. Baby Irish and Valenciennes of narrow width alternate in a yoke, the original square shaping of which is altered by the inset appliques of Venise above a wide band of blind embroidered linen in daisy pattern set across the bust and joining suspenders of the same trimming running from back to front of waist line. Below this bust band of embroidery are puffings of the batiste of equal width, entre deux with the narrow Val. The sleeves are alternate rows of the embroidery, lace insertions and the material, with the tiniest of cuffs of the Irish bands, finished on either edge with narrow Val. frills.

Valenciennes Much Used.

Valenciennes lace enters largely into the construction of these lingerie confections. There seems to be no substitute for this pretty, delicate trimming. The French genre is the more favored, not because the patterns are any more attractive than those in the Normandy and German laces, but their filmy texture seems more adapted to use with sheer materials such as our lingerie blouses employ.

The entre deux idea is particularly favored in this year's models—in fact, it is one of the important features which strongly contrast the designs of this year with those of last. With the finer, sheerer bands of needlework the Val. laces are used, but they are not more fashionable than the clunys, which alternate with bands of eyelet embroidery in the closer weaves of linen.

The Yoke.

Very practical though dressy waists are simple models, with a shallow shoulder yoke of the embroidery into which the fronts are slightly gathered. The backs are also gathered into the yoke, though not as much as the fronts, for the flat back is as important a consideration in separate waists as the most elaborate costumes. This shoulder yoke appears in many of the plainer waists. It gives a straight, clear-cut shoulder line and affords a trimming feature which is attractive.

Japanese Effects.

Despite the fact that the Greek influence is upon our fashions this spring and the Japanese idea seems to have experienced somewhat of a setback, oriental models in waistdom are not lacking, and they seem to be quite as enthusiastically accepted as the rather extreme one-piece papillion. This, even more than the papillion, inclines to the short-waisted effect, but as long as short waist and elongated skirt linens are the fashion, every woman, long and short of waist, will wear these new designs. Sometimes this effect is offset by the surplice design of the body, which shows a pointed yoke simulating a chemisette. In one model the mandarin oversleeve is of such size as to almost [illegible] the underpuff of plain material gathered into a deep cuff of lace and embroidery matching the jumper-shaped body. Jumper effects in dressy waists are prevalent. Many of the best designs offered us so far are along these lines, and it is quite evident that the many friends of the lingerie blouse will welcome this universally becoming mode in this department of dress.

The Surplice.

Less extreme models of surplice persuasion show the fronts extending over only the top of the sleeve. This design is suggested for the woman who, regardless of the vogue of short-waisted effects, prefers something which will tend to lengthen the waist while it broadens the shoulders. One such model is of Valenciennes insertions entre deux with embroidery tucks of linen. The fronts are arranged surplice-wise either side of an inset chemisette of the lace alternating with tucked bands of the linen on the cross. The sleeves are tucked in clusters, inset with triple rows of the lace and gathered into cuffs of the lace and linen.

Sleeve Lengths.

Sleeves have been a much-discussed subject in the past late winter weeks, but now that the new waist models are here the short sleeve—that is, the three-quarter length—is an assured thing for another two seasons, at least. This, of course, pertains to dressy blouses, though the full-length model is not altogether omitted from dressy lines. In tailored and semi-tailored effects, such as the new colored striped lawn and batiste models which are creating such a furor in plain effects, the long sleeve and no other length is seen. These nuisances are really very stunning, especially when worn with a suit of a color complementing the tone of the waist's colored stripe. They have stiff white linen collars of turnover design with narrow applied bands of the waist fabric.

The Color Note.

The introduction of a bit of color in lingerie waists is quite worthy of comment at this writing. Dainty, delicate colored embroidery edgings that are nothing but tiny buttonholed scallops with bandings of tiny polkadots are used in some of the most fetching designs. The frill front waists are particularly alluring when embellished with this pretty trimming.

Hand Embroideries.

A touch of colored hand embroidery on lace and net and lingerie waists is very effective when it complements the tone of the suit it is worn with. Polkadots of colored silk outline the edges of a shoulder yoke or wander over the surface of a pointed chemisette or square yoke, but their number is always limited, so that the colored note is never found to be objectionable. Very often a touch of color is seen in the little silk bows or fancy pendant neckpieces that elaborate waists of a dressy character, but the use of color is always discreet, and therefore artistic.

Neckwear.

Much of the fancy neckwear seems to have been fashioned with the idea in mind that it could be worn with dressy as well as plain waists. Heretofore, when elaborate neckwear was the fashion, we always used it to dress up plain waists, but this year it is of such a character that the dressier waist may employ this accessory without criticism. Sometimes the colored note is expressed in the colored stock or jabot, which is a very sensible idea, for in this way it is possible to wear one waist with a number of different colored suits and yet have the color note in the waist complement each one of them.

Belts.

Fancy belts of colored leather with handsome buckles of novel design in gilt and silver will accompany the tailored or lingerie waist and the tailored street suit for spring, whether the latter be of a for spring, whether the latter be of a novelty worsted, broadcloth, serge or one of the highly favored rough silks that we are shown and taught to recognize as shantoong, mandarin and other oriental effects. But as summer advances and we begin to lay aside our wraps, the always becoming white belt will doubtless make the same place for itself that it has in bygone summer fashions ever since we have known the shirtwaist.

Attractive Gowns for Dove Parties

Repeatedly has it been asserted that women dress for each other, yet it is noticeable that the thrifty members of the fair sex invariably reserve their freshest and most becoming toilettes for those occasions when men are in evidence, and that at "dove" parties the majority of the gowns worn have either seen their best days or been palpably rejuvenated in one way or another.

One of the best-dressed women of a fashionable suburban district who is noted particularly for the daintiness of her afternoon party frocks, declares that they never cost her a penny beyond the wage of a seamstress. She makes a habit of putting aside every discarded gown, with a view to its future "making over" possibilities, and now that the contrasting waist and skirt are so greatly the vogue, finds it easy to have a variety of dainty house costumes at minimum expense.

Two most fetching afternoon toilettes were evolved from a three-piece black velvet street suit and a white and black foulard frock. The foulard's jumper, with its white net waist and sleeves, seemed at first glance a hopeless rag, although its skirt was in good condition, as was also the one of black velvet which had a three-quarter coat and a waist of the 1905 brand. Having ripped both waists and the coat apart, steamed the velvet and cleaned the silk, the amateur carefully cleaned and mended the net blouse and tacked upon it suspenders made from strips of black velvet taken from the body of the waist, thus evolving a wonderfully becoming black and white gown, quite nice enough for a small dinner in her own home or for a visit to the play. From the now waistless foulard frock, the long velvet coat was transformed into one of continental type, simply by trimming off its double breasted fronts, and allowing them to open over a waistcoat evolved from scraps of the silk, piecing out the coat sleeves with the uppers of the velvet waist sleeves and finishing them below the elbow with wide turned-back cuffs of foulard edged with velvet bands.

A charming little bridge coat was made from a white brocaded silk skirt of ancient cut and worn alternately with a variety of separate skirts, and the same surgeon of old clothes redyed a faded black point d'esprit, trimmed its frayed skirt flounce with narrow taffeta bands and wore it with a short coat made of black-grounded pompadour silk or the original lace bodice discreetly covered with a skeleton jumper of wide pale blue satin ribbons.

White fabrics will nearly always combine happily. For instance, with a white broadcloth skirt—about the most useful asset in the feminine wardrobe—may be worn white lace or net or silk blouses, and even if the coat of such a suit be quite impossible for street use it may be transformed into a modish house jacket by removing the lining, belting it at the back and sides, shaping the buttonholed fronts to reveal a fancy silk waistcoat and shortening and slashing the sleeves to display net undersleeves. Any of the light colored pongee silk suits so frequently seen on the streets last autumn may be similarly treated with satisfactory results.

In considering the possibilities of remodeling the wardrobe one should never lose sight of the usefulness of ribbon and bias bands as trimmings. If a short skirt is to be pieced into a demi-trained one ribbon or silk bands may be placed about the lengthened hem and over the joining of the train seams, and if the skirt be too narrow panels of dyed lace or fancy ribbon may be inserted at front, sides and back.

That plain and fancy silks may be artistically blended was demonstrated by a clever woman, who evolved a smart-looking costume from a decidedly passe black voile, with a quantity of broad black-and-white striped ribbon purchased at a bargain sale and put aside for the day of need. The ribbon stripes were used horizontally to border the skirt and tunic drapery, and perpendicularly to form the bolero and half-Japanese sleeve, which concealed the signs of wear on the bodice. The same idea might be carried out with a pale blue, pink or mauve gown.

Lingerie materials are the standby of many girls and young matrons who cannot afford a variety of fresh afternoon party costumes. Of these the robe frocks are best, as they can easily be put together at home, but in cold weather such dresses should always be worn over a high-necked and long-sleeved silk slip, else they will look unseasonable. The value of having a variety of silk slips is not generally appreciated. Preferably they should be of princess shape in taffetas or peau de soie, not necessarily of the most expensive kind. With a good pattern almost any girl may make one that will fit and hang perfectly and at slight cost, as usually but 10 yards are required.

Neat shoes are an important accessory of the afternoon party costume, but to be always exquisitely shod requires a large income. One resourceful girl paints her soiled white kid evening shoes to match her several house gowns and another used bronze polish because that tinge accords well with most colors. A good investment, however, is a pair of black satin slippers, which always look dainty and are inconspicuous.

Fashion Notes.

Corset designers are putting forth every effort to produce models that will give the classic figure lines so much sought after in these days and conceal all superfluous flesh. A crosswise skilful boning across the top of the back of one splendid model effectually flattens the back just below the shoulders, and the same corset shows a bust boning that effectively supports and suppresses the bust to fashionable proportions. The brassiere top corset, though not as practical as it might be for warm weather wear, will be worn by many women determined to acquire the well-molded long and classic lines, especially those who prefer the dainty handkerchief linen or nainsook corset cover to the snug-fitting tailored brassiere. For the extremely long models the boning is carried down over the hip far enough not to conflict with personal comfort, the sections of batiste or stockinette and elastic fabric extending from the hips well to the knees in many models. It is claimed that such models will do wonders in reducing flesh and molding the figure to correct proportions.

Quaint and fetching headgear for small tots is seen in the new bonnets of straw and various fancy weaves and different colorings. A dear little Quaker shape is of the genuine soft panama with face and neck frills of pale blue ribbon set on with a heading of fancy satin straw that looks like dress braid. Here and there in the ruffles is set a tiny pink rosebud. This pretty confection has streamer ties of the ribbon. Another of a novelty braid is in maize color. This is fashioned to turn back over the side and stand up in a peak at the top. It is trimmed with white satin ribbons. Still another has long ties made into tiny rosettes with long loops at either side, one end crossing to the opposite side under the chin and fastening with a baby pin.

For genuine comfort in house footwear nothing quite equals the soft Indian moccasins now sold in all up-to-date shoe departments in all sizes for men, women and children. They are prettily ornamented with beadwork in true Indian style, with beads that contrast artistically with the soft brown, gray or natural yellow tone of the skins. They are ideal negligee footwear for traveling, being easily crowded into the smallest space in bag or suit case.

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

HUNDRED STAMPS DROPPING

Within Radius of Thirty Miles in the Orogrande-Dixie-Elk City District in Idaho—Indicates Stability of District.

Spokane, Wash., May 2.—More than 100 stamps are now dropping within a radius of thirty miles in the Orogrande-Dixie-Elk City district in Idaho, southeast of Spokane, and many more will be added before the close of the season. More gold is being taken out of this district now than at any time previously in the history of quartz mining in that part of the Gem state, and the outlook is that it will become one of the leading permanent gold producing districts in the Northwest. Electric power and railway transportation facilities are being installed and other improvements will follow. This is what A. Allardyce, one of the owners of the Charter Oak property, said during his stay in Spokane:

"In the Orogrande district the Hogan mine, which is now owned by the Butte-Orogrande corporation, is preparing to put its 20-stamp mill in operation and will work thirty-five men. The mill is being refitted, after a shut-down of two years. The property is well developed, more than $80,000 having been expended in the work.

"The Twin Butte property is ready to run with a 10-stamp plant. This consists of rolls and crushers instead of stamps. Preparations have been carried on all winter. The Umatilla property is also preparing for a season's run with a 10-stamp mill, and is spending $100,000 on a power plant on the Clearwater river, which it is hoped will be in operation this season.

"The Thunder Mountain mine has just installed a new sixty horse-power boiler, which increases its boiler power to ninety horse-power. Its 10-stamp mill is running night and day, after having been closed a year. A new strike of ore was made at the 300-foot level, a few weeks ago. The ledge is nine feet wide, and carries gold values of from $9 to $100 a ton. Development in this district has shown in all cases that the ore grows richer with depth.

"The Danforth property in the Dixie district, is being improved with a 10-stamp mill, which has already been shipped from Denver and is expected to arrive soon. The property is a comparatively old one, and it is estimated that present development exposes ore enough to run the mill five years.

"The Eagle mill, which has been closed two years, has been reopened and the property is being worked by lessees, who have been developing all winter. The 10-stamp plant is now in operation with an ample supply of ore.

"The Buster mine at Elk City, is running day and night. Preparations are being made for adding ten more stamps, and development is being pushed down to the 400-foot level.

"There are now five stamps on the Espy property. The mine has worked

IS AFTER CLARK PROPERTIES

Old Report Revived That the Amalgamated is to Take Over the Clark Interests in Montana—Said That Senator's Demand of $27,000,000 Was Considered Excessive.

Butte, Mont., May 2.—With periodical frequency the rumor is again being freely circulated that W. A. Clark has disposed, or is about to dispose of his mining and other industrial interests in Montana to the Amalgamated Copper company. As usual, the report is emphatically denied, but notwithstanding the denial there is good reason to believe that the Amalgamated Copper is extremely anxious to acquire the Clark interests in Montana, and doubtless little but the matter of price stands in the way of a consummation of a deal in this direction.

From the best information obtainable it is well founded that negotiations were pending about two years, and that the price named by Senator Clark at that time was about $27,000,000, the transfer to include all the mining and lumber interests in the state, together with the street railway in Butte and the Butte Miner. The only property not to be included in the contemplated sale was the W. A. Clark & Bro. bank. It is understood that at that time the Cole-Ryan interests, party to the negotiations, were unwilling to place a greater valuation than $10,000,000 on all the properties, exclusive of the bank. Consequently the negotiations were not concluded.

The renewal of the rumors of sale probably grew out of the misunderstanding during the period of curtailment, recently, between Senator Clark and the Amalgamated company. It is asserted by the Amalgamated officials that there was a mutual agreement by which both the Amalgamated Copper company and Senator Clark were to reduce their copper output 50 per cent, and that also Senator Clark failed to keep the agreement. It is also said that Senator Clark's failure to reduce the output of his mines and smelter in Montana was the real cause of resumption of operations by the Amalgamated company March 1, at a time when the condition of the copper metal market was worse than when the order to close down all properties, with the exception of the Boston & Montana, came last fall.

Clark representatives assert that he did reduce his output 50 per cent as agreed upon, but figures fail to substantiate the assertion. The actual shipments of ore from the Original and West Stewart properties, Clark's principal producers in the Butte camp, during the month of March, 1907, before the demoralization of the copper market, amounted to 22,581 tons and in May it increased to 24,104 tons. The curtailment period commenced in September, 1907, but the output at the Clark mines dropped off only to 20,718 tons, and the lowest month was November, when 17,774 tons of ore were lifted from the Original and West Stewart mines.

It is readily observable, therefore, that during the past five months beginning with October, the production was little less than normal for the preceding months before the curtailment agreement was entered into.

Color is also lent to the rumor of consolidation of Clark and Amalgamated interests by the fact that certain improvements and buildings, which it is understood were necessary and contemplated a few months ago in the Clark properties, have been indefinitely postponed.

The Ida-Montana company is preparing to resume work on its properties in the eastern part of the district, adjoining the mines of the Amazon-Butte company, and will spend $10,000 on additional machinery. The shaft at present is but 555 feet deep, but will be sunk to 1,200 feet. On the 250 foot level a vein sixty feet wide has been opened that contains seven feet of good commercial ore. Some very rich specimens are being exhibited, and there is some good ore in the bins. The vein strikes through the center of the Amazon-Butte ground. The Ida-Montana company is owned chiefly by Michigan men. A meeting of stockholders will be held in Butte the latter part of this month.

Sinking on the Raven shaft by the Raven Mining company was suspended some time ago and the development work has since been confined to crosscutting, but with no great success. A crosscut has been driven to the vein on the 1,100 foot level and work is going on there now. Supt. S. H. Treloar has resigned. The shaft is 1,100 feet deep on an incline, which gives a vertical depth on the vein of about 750 feet. It is generally believed that a vertical depth of 1,000 or 1,200 feet is necessary to get copper ore.

Preparations are being made to resume work on the Pilot-Butte claim, owned chiefly by Milwaukee capitalists. It is located in the North Butte district and among big mines.

For the month of March the North Butte company earned, net, $194,000, from the production of 3,457,265 pounds, the largest single month's production in the history of the company. These earnings are at the rate of nearly $6 per share for this stock. The present Washoe smelter contract becomes effective in June, next, and continues three years. At the recent annual meeting of the company it was stated that it would be the policy of the company to accumulate a large cash surplus during the operation of this contract. While it was not yet determined that the North Butte was in position to operate a smelter of its own, either on account of proper smelting mixture, or from the daily tonnage, this would be looked into carefully and it would be a question that would engage the attention of the directors in the coming two years.

It was also stated that the litigation over the one-fourth interest in the stock of the Berlin Mining & Development company not owned by the North Butte Mining company to sell to it their interest whenever the courts should finally determine whose the quarter interest was, and

GREAT WESTERN MOUNTAIN

In Coeur d'Alenes is Scene of Extensive Development Work—Great Western is the One Property of Most Prominence.

Wallace, Idaho, May 2.—The Great Western Mountain, two miles east of Burke, strongly resembles in both geological structure and topographical appearance Snowstorm mountain. The formation of both mountains is quartzite—the mineral making rock that furnishes a majority of the more famous Coeur d'Alene mines.

The Great Western mountain takes its title from a local mining company bearing the same name. On this mountain is the scene of extensive development operations that is proving uniformly successful, the Great Western, Excelsior, Champion and other properties being under systematic exploration. The Great Western, however, is the one property of most prominence, due to its uninterrupted development during the past four years and its excellent equipment, which include electric driven compressor, machine drills, repair and blacksmith shop, storehouse and spacious boarding house. The development of this property to date consists of a 1,400-foot working tunnel and 200 feet of drifting and crosscutting of a vein that has width of thirty-five feet and which discloses a vast tonnage of milling ore in close association with varying quantities of galena. Present indications point to a future producing mine of great magnitude, in some respects resembling the Snowstorm mine at Mullan. It may be justly asserted that the Great Western has "been mined to obtain results," while it is equally true that it has had the benefit of both progressive and careful management. Every dollar received for development has been made to count, and this is a compliment to Manager Thomas H. Scott, who started in to make a mine four years ago and to date has accomplished results that would do credit to the manager of any of the district's dividend paying mines. Messrs. Scott, Fred Kratzer, M. Cyr and James Girton are the principal owners of Great Western stock.

THE CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT

Recent Strike on Flourine Mill Showing Well---Stratton Independence Cyanide Mill Being Tested on Various Grades of Ore.

Colorado Spring, May 2.—The recent strike on the Flourine mine, owned by officials of the Portland Gold Mining company, Cripple Creek, is showing well. A four-foot vein is yielding ore carrying twenty to 154 ounces in gold per ton. The work is being prosecuted in a winze sunk from a drift in the old Blanchard tunnel. Large bodies of low grade ore exist. A cyanide mill to treat the product is talked of.

The Vindicator mine, Cripple Creek, is outputting a car daily from the Whitney-McMullen lease No. 2 shaft, 800-foot level, where the vein is fifteen to eighteen feet wide. The ore averages $40 per ton. A three-foot vein in the 600-foot level is yielding $6 ore. Screenings from this vein average $16 a ton.

The Stratton Independence cyanide mill, Cripple Creek, is being tested on various grades of ore. It will soon be treating the Stratton Independence mine output, 6,500 tons monthly. The mill was erected at $250,000 cost under the supervision of Philip Aragil of Denver. Ore from the big dumps as well as a large tonnage of low grade oxidized ore will be treated. Some custom ore may be treated.

The Trilby Mines company will shortly begin the construction of a cyanide mill of fifty tons initial daily capacity. The company is in a large body of good ore on the eleventh level. The ores are being reserved for the projected mill.

The 3,600-foot aerial tramway, with a capacity of eighty tons per shift, connecting the Cresson mine with the Eclipse mill, Cripple Creek, is in successful operation. The cost of transportation is placed at 5 cents a ton, a saving of 50 cents a ton, or $1,000 per month over the old method.

The Cripple Creek plants have established forty or more electric hoists throughout the district, thus adding to the output by lessening the cost and expediting the lifting of ore. The Portland mine is operating an electric compressor with a capacity of fifty drills. The Findlay, Cresson, Little Clara, Hull City and other mines are equipped with electric compressors.

The properties of the Buffalo and Cripple Creek Gold Mines company, on Grouse mountain and Beacon hill are to be expertly exploited. The properties are being developed by the Miner and Newell tunnels, the latter 1,200 feet long. At 1,099 feet from the portal a dike forty-five feet wide between granite walls has been encountered, the ore assaying $4 to $30 a ton. The properties have lain idle for years.

The Isabella mine, Cripple Creek, is producing between fifty and sixty cars of $60 to $100 ore monthly. The company is operating from the eighth to the eleventh level, inclusive, in the main workings, and is breaking ore from several bodies ranging from three to fifteen feet. The Isabella mill is treating 125 tons of $6 to $8 ore daily.

TO BECOME PRODUCER SOON

Keweenaw May Enter Producing List Latter Half of Year—Franklin May be Taken Over by Quincy—Expected That Lode Will be Reached Soon in Ojibway.

Houghton, Mich., May 2.—There is some prospect that the Keweenaw Copper company will become a producer during the latter half of the present year. The Keweenaw company controls, through stock ownership, the Phoenix Consolidated, which has a stamp mill that is available for treating rock from the Medora shaft of the Keweenaw company. The mill is neither large nor modern but will serve admirably to furnish facilities for an extended mill test of Medora rock. The Medora shaft is now about 1,000 feet deep and fully a mile of underground workings have ben driven, and a stockpile of nearly 50,000 tons of stamp rock has been accumulated, from dead-work, there having been no stoping done.

The decision of the Franklin management to gradually discontinue operations at the old Franklin mine raises possibility of the Quincy Mining company taking over this property, as officials of both managements agree that this mine is of more advantage from the standpoint of operations to the Quincy than the Franklin, as the former can easily extend its present workings on the Pewabic lode into the old Franklin mine and operate it more profitably than at present. A director of the Quincy company states that while it might be to the advantage of the Quincy to operate the old Franklin mine, there is no necessity for immediate action toward taking over that property, and a decision on this question might not be forthcoming for some time, particularly as it was only a comparatively short time ago that the company purchased the Arcadian property.

News from the Ojibway would indicate that the lode will be reached very early in May, as the crosscut is more than half way in on its way to intersect the formation. When found it will be opened upon, and if as rich as the drill cores would indicate, there will be another mine added to those working the Kearsarge formation.

Little is being said of the work going forward at the property of the Superior Copper company, over adjoining section 16; of the continued opening up of uniform stretches of good stoping ground at the 6th, 7th and 8th levels, and the disclosing of satisfactory values in the levels above, as the drifts are extended into new ground. The shaft is down below the 9th level and crosscutting to the lode at that point is now under way. That the rich copper chutes hold down promises to be again confirmed, in the drifts to be run at the 9th level, and will add another big bunch of ground reserves to the rapidly accumulating resources of what gives evidence of becoming another big mine on the big Baltic lode.

President Watson in the Wyandot annual report says: "The event of preeminent importance in the Lake Superior copper district the past year was the disclosures of rich copper ground in the newly-discovered lode on the Lake property, formerly belonging to the Old Belt company. The character of this lode is such as to promise unlimited permanency; and, if this promise is fulfilled, its development will mark an epoch similar to those established by the discoveries and developments of the Baltic lode, the northern extension of the Kearsarge lode, and at a more remote period, the Calumet conglomerate lode.

"This discovery has recently become of the very greatest importance to the Wyandot property, as a result of a special study regarding the occurrence and identity of this lode by Dr. Lane, state geologist, and his assistants. It is now the opinion of the best-informed mining men that the conglomerate that underlies the Lake lode is No. 5; and, if this opinion proves correct, we have every reason to believe that we shall disclose the Lake lode in our crosscut within 1,200 feet east of our No. 11 shaft."

The Wolverine company will have produced in its fiscal year to end June 30 between 9,000,000 and 10,000,000 pounds of copper, showing but little change from the output of the 1906-07 year. During the year Wolverine has been obliged to spend but little in new construction, in contrast to the other Stanton properties, and this single item is expected to show a decrease of about $20,000 from the $43,000 so expended last year. There is no construction ahead of Wolverine for years to come, and unless something unforeseen happens this item in the company's cost sheets will continue to be very small. The rock turned out from this property runs very evenly and the copper output per ton of rock will show but little if any change from the last

WARREN DISTRICT IS QUIET

Much Attention Being Paid to Development Work at Circle Mines---New Calumet & Arizona Furnace to Start in July.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 2.—The local mining situation during the past week was again featureless, there being very little change in the metal market, although it had been expected that there would be a material betterment in the quotd price. Because of the continued depression the various local companies are still devoting a great deal of attention to exploration and development work.

The new Copper Queen power house will soon be ready to go into commission, and work is being rushed on the underground part of the new system, so that the hoisting of ore can be done by the new method about the same time that the power plant will be in operation.

At the Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg mines development work has engaged practically all of the attention. Production from the different properties is maintained at about the same level as last month.

At the Warren shaft sinking is steadily progressing at the rate of about 1½ feet per day. The management has offered the men a bonus for all depth gained over a certain amount each month and the men are putting forth every effort to make an exceptional record. There is no change noticeable in the formation yet.

At the Shattuck mine the usual exploration work is being carried on with about twenty men working. A number of bids have been submitted on the proposed new smelter, but they will not be opened and considered until all bids are in and the management is said to expect to receive a number more. It is thought that it may be six weeks yet before all bids have been received and after that it will take some time to carefully examine the same and make the award.

At the smelters of the district, located at Douglas, there has been nothing of special interest during the past week. Construction work is being pushed at the Calumet & Arizona along the lines planned long ago and which contemplate doubling the capacity of this reduction plant. It is expected that a new 500-ton furnace will be ready to put into commission during the month of July.

At the Copper Queen one of the furnaces was cooled last week, leaving only seven in commission. The reason given for shutting down this furnace was that the converters had been unable to handle the matter as fast as it was received from the furnaces and one was put out of commission until the converters could handle the accumulated surplus of matter. It is stated that the eighth furnace will be soon set to work again.

AN OPTION BY EASTERN MEN

Secured in the Beaver Carbonate Company in Utah---Silver King Consolidated Ready to Start When Metal Markets Warrant.

Salt Lake, Utah., May 2.—C. O. Ellingwood has secured an option on more than a controlling interest in the Beaver Carbonate company, operating in Beaver county, for New York and Boston men. The deal has been on since last fall, being delayed by the financial depression. In the old days the Beaver Carbonate, then known as the Carbonate and Rattler, produced approximately $900,000 in silver lead ore that averaged 47.5 per cent lead and 100 ounces in silver. Much milling ore remains untouched. When the ground was bought and the Beaver Carbonate company organized rather than go to the expense of rehabilitating the old workings and retimbering the old shaft it was decided to sink a new shaft of three compartments. This shaft is now down nearly 600 feet and is expected to cut the ledge by the time the 700 mark is reached. If the ledge at the point of contact fails to show the rich shoot developed in the old mine, drifting of only 270 feet will be necessary to reach the old shaft. The old mine was abandoned because of water and lack of railroad facilities years ago.

Thomas Kearns, general manager of the Silver King Consolidated, at Park City, after a two days' examination of the company's property, said that the mines are prepared to resume production on twenty-four hours notice. "This will be done," he said, "when the metal markets and the smelter situation will justify it." Mr. Kearns said that since the formation of the Coalition company, over $100,000 had been spent in the enlargement of milling facilities and other surface improvements and in connecting the southern workings with the Alliance tunnel.

In the Cedar mine, Beaver county, the fissure found on the 225-foot level is disclosing some of the richest ore ever found in the mine. Samples assayed show 350 ounces in silver and 25 per cent lead. This ore shoot is in territory hitherto unprospected, and is seventy-five feet further in the mountain than any other working in the mine.

The Little Beaver Mining & Reduction company has bought the five patented claims of the Vicksburg Gold & Copper company in North Star district, Beaver county, for $40,000. The Little Beaver is operating the Kitty Clough, which has lately been making promising developments and which is near the Vicksburg ground. The Vicksburg has been opened to some extent and has in sight considerable ore, running from $10 to $14 in gold and from four to five ounces in silver to the ton.

The Scranton mine in Tintic is soon to resume operations. The Scranton produces lead and zinc and has not shipped since last December.

The new mill built by the Daly-Judge company at Park City to handle the zinc ores of the mine is virtually completed. The initial unit will handle fifty tons of zinc middlings a day.

GOLD SHOWING NEAR BUTTE

Discovered in the Foothills of the Grass Roots---Company Organized to Work Five Claims Located Along the Ledge.

Butte, Mont., May 2.—Within an hour's drive of Butte, over one of the pleasantest roads in this part of the country, a property which promises to become of considerable importance is being opened up by the Butte Gold Mining & Milling company, recently organized in this city. The property is located close to the first trestle on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, in the foothills west of the right of way, with Basin creek running through the eastern part of the group.

In the early days there was considerable placer mining on the company's ground, and many thousands of dollars were taken out. As a quartz proposition, it is of only recent development, but as gold values are found from the grass roots down, the future is extremely bright, and the district promises to witness great activity during the coming summer months.

The property consists of five full claims along the ledge, besides five acres for a millsite and about 160 acres of placer ground. The discovery shaft was sunk on the ledge at the extreme east end, of the Silver Dollar claim, and the permanent shaft, of the two compartments, is being sunk a short distance west, at about the center of the claim, and is now down to a depth of nearly thirty feet. The formation on both sides of the ledge is the Butte granite, and the walls appear to be well defined. The vein varies in width from eight to thirty feet, and in the main shaft is now making into the quartz. There is every indication that the vein will prove permanent and it already is showing a tendency to widen out. The dip is very slight and to the south, having the same trend as all of the great veins of the Butte district. The vein appears to be a true fissure and appears to follow a nearby contact, on the footwall side, between granite and rhyolite in almost a parallel line through the entire length of the property.

While much of the ore is rich in gold and silver, and the high grade could be shipped to the smelters with much profit, the proposition as thus far developed, would appear to be one of cyaniding. Some of the ore taken from the discovery shaft has given assays as high as $34 to the ton.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Operations Suspended at Two Mines on Menominee Range—Excellent Showing at South Dunn Exploration, in Crystal Falls District—Few Lake Shipments Expected Before June.

With the exception that the workings are being kept free of water, all operations have now been suspended at Ogiebay, Norton & Co.'s Bristol mine at Crystal Falls, Menominee iron range. The property had been operating with a reduced force since last fall, and recently additional men were laid off. There is a large stockpile of ore on hand. No sales have yet been made, and with the market showing no indications of early improvement it was decided to suspend production entirely. The duration of the shutdown is indefinite. It will depend altogether upon the state of the iron trade when operations will be resumed.

Another shutdown is that at the Mineral Mining company's Nanaimo or Beta property at Iron River, on the Menominee. Most of the pumps have been pulled and the mine will be permitted to fill with water. The Konwinski exploration of the same operating concern also has been added to the idle list. This is a promising property in the Iron River district. The Norway mine of the Cambria Steel company, at Norway, will not resume operations until its produut is needed, which will doubtless be some months yet. Work was recently stopped, in part for the purpose of substituting electrical for steam as the motive power. The Steel coinporation has appropriated for the erection of twenty or more five-room dwellings in the Stambaugh field, but it is understood building operations will not be started until the mining industry experiences a revival. The houses are not needed now.

The Calumet mine of Pickands, Mather & Co. continues in commission on a small scale, but is not expected to forward any ore this season. The product last year was 51,090 tons. The work in hand is largely confined to the sinking of a new shaft. This will be put down something over 200 feet, half of which distance has already been made. The Calumet is located in section 8-41-28, in the Metropolitan district of the Menominee. Some miles to the west of there, in the Felch Mountain field, a second shaft is going down at the Huron Mining company's Groveland property. It will be connected with No. 1 shaft at the first and third levels. Some excellent ore is being met with in the new ground, the grade being better than that mined in the old workings, which averaged approximately 48 per cent iron. It is expected to make a considerable shipment this season. For the time being both the Groveland and the Calumet are each employing only twenty-five men.

Good Showing at Sonth Dunn.

An excellent showing is being made at the South Dunn exploration, a property at which the Buffalo & Susquehanna company is at work in the Crystal Falls district. The shaft is down some 200 feet and considerable crosscutting aas been done. The main deposit has not yet been encountered, but with ore of very fair grade showing on the dump and with the underground conditions entirely favorable, it will be rather surprising if the property does not develop into a mine. The South Dunn is equipped with a boiler plant, a hoist and an air compressor, and it has all needed buildings. A force of thirty men is employed. Operations were started last December.

The Steel corporation, which recently took an option to explore the old Manhattan property, some miles to the south of the South Dunn, has commenced work there. The lands will be thoroughly tested. Both diamond drilling and trenching will be done. There are 160 acres in the Manhattan tract, and there is every indication of the existence of ore. The property adjoins the old Mastodon mine on the south. A small lense of ore, evidently a continuation of the Mastodon deposits, was opened in 1889, but the work was not long continued because of lack of funds and until now—nearly twenty years—the tract has been entirely neglected.

In raising to another level in No. 1 shaft at the Pewable Mining company's Pewable mine at Iron Mountain, Menominee range, there was recently encountered, hundreds of feet below the surface, a remarkably beautiful cavern. The scene it presented when the miners suddenly broke through into it was akin to that of a fairy cave. The vug was lined with crystals and iron pyrites which sparkled with brilliancy even in the dull candle light. The cavern was 65 feet in length, with an average width of 35 feet and a height of 25. Vugs such as these have been met with before in the Iron Mountain mines, but it is doubtful if any has ever been encountered of such truly magnificence as this one.

The Empire mine, a newly developed property in the Cascade district of the Marquette range, is not expected to be on the active list this season. However, this will depend entirely on whether sales of ore are made. The property is a milling proposition and can make its product economically. It is controlled in Chicago, but is operated by Oglebay, Norton & Co. It made its initial shipment last season, when 40,000 tons were sent out. The Gillette farm, nine miles southeast of the city of Marquette, has been taken over under option by the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company and will be tested for ore. A diamond drill is in commission. There is belief that a continuation of the deposits now being developed in the Swanzey district will be found in the vicinity. The adjoining Pellseler farm is under opton to Marquette parties.

Stripping at the Leonard.

The Steel corporation's Leonard mine, in 58-30, in the Hibbing-Chisholm district of the Mesaba, will be a scene of vigorous stripping operations this season. A contract for the removal of 3,000,000 cubic yards of overburden was awarded recently, and the work is now in progress. The Leonard, which adjoins the Steel corporation's Clark property, was acquired last year from the Great Northern interests. The mine has been operated both as an underground and a milling proposi-

IMPORTANT STRIKE IS MADE

In the Great Bend at Diamondville, Nev.---Old Line Point Camp Causing Excitement---Mineral Belt Four Miles Long.

Goldfield, Nev., May 2.—Official announcement has been made of an important strike in the Great Bend at Diamondville. The ore shoot was found late last year, but before it could be proved, labor troubles came on, and the mine was shut down. Since resumption a winze has been sunk fifty feet below the 300 level of the inclined shaft, on which the ore was found, and the same grade of ore uncovered. James R. Davis, who has been working the property on a lease, decided he has a mine and made the announcement—the first made in connection with the mine in two years. He estimates the ore exposed in the vein, two to three feet wide, to average $269 a ton. Seventy-five tons have been shipped, and regular shipments are to be made hereafter from half a dozen slopes. The developments in the Great Bend are regarded as highly important to the Daisy, as the Great Bend ore shoot was encountered in one of the big Daisy dykes, in which the latter company has never probed below the shattered oxidized zone, the sulphide ores hitherto shipped coming from a cross fissure.

Old Lime Point, thirty miles to the south of Goldfield, is exciting the mining center of the state. It is a lead, silver and gold camp. Two Utah men have opened up a mine, the Great Western, from which a shipment of fifty tons brought returns of $10,000. The mine is opened to a depth of 120 feet, and its owners say it is capable of producing 100 tons daily if it were possible to get enough teams to haul the ore to the railway. A new town has been started near the find, which is called Hornsilver.

Mining men have discovered that the mineral belt is four miles long and contains six parallel ledges which show values of gold, silver and lead at the surface. There has been a scramble to buy ground or obtain leases. In the Great Western the main ledge, to which work is confined, measures thirty-two feet between walls, of which four feet runs $150, three feet from $200 to $500 and the balance averages about $40 a ton. In the higher grade ores the gold contents are about 1½ ounces to the ton.

Gold Mountain, Nev., May 2.—Six bars of gold bullion, weighing 1,585 ounces and worth $26,000, were sent to Goldfield a couple of days ago. The bullion was the cleanup from fifteen days' operation of the Round Mountain company's Sunnyside mill. It is the best run the mill has made. The mine known locally as the

THE ARIZONA COMMERCIAL

W. J. Bennie Selected as Superintendent, With H. A. Colling as Assistant---Both Shannon Company Men---Development Work to be Rushed.

Globe, Ariz., May 2.—A change in the management of the Arizona Commercial Copper company's properties has been made. W. J. Bennie has been selected as general superintendent and is now in the city looking over the properties. Mr. Bennie is superintendent of the Shannon Copper company's properties and will maintain his residence at Clifton, making frequent visits to Globe as his new duties will necessitate. He is one of the best known mining men in the Southwest. Mr. Bennie succeeds H. V. Snell, who sent in his resignation as superintendant about a month ago.

H. A. Colling, who until recently has been in the employ of the Shannon Copper company at Clifton will officiate as assistant superintendent. Mr. Colling has had many years of experience in the mining business and will undoubtedly prove a valuable addition to the working force of the Arizona Commercial.

Patrick O'Neil, for the past two years foreman of the Captoe mine of the Greene-Cananea company, Canada, and who for ten years prior to that was foreman of the Pennsylvania mine of the Anaconda Copper company of Butte, has been installed as foreman of the Arizona Commercial. He is said to be one of the best men for the place in the country.

With the installation of a hoist and power drills at the Eureka shaft, work of sinking will proceed more rapidly. Two large sinking pumps have been received and will be installed when needed.

President Amster is greatly pleased with the development in the Black Hawk mine in both the east and west drifts, the ledge being forty feet in width carrying good values in copper and silver.

The change in the management of the mine evidently means that it is the intention to crowd development work from now on out and that the properties will be seen classed with the greatest producers in the Southwest.

VOODOOISM NOT DEAD

Queer Ideas and Practices Which Still Sway Superstitious Negroes Even in this Country.

VOODOOISM dead? Don't you believe it. Let the negro alone and he will go back to it swiftly and surely. Thousands of Southern blacks have never got away from it."

This was the emphatic declaration of a man who, though he was born in the southern part of the United States, has spent the later years of his life in the British West Indies, says the Charleston News and Courier.

"We have managed to stifle it in this country," he went on, "and the English have done a good deal in the islands they govern. But it flourishes openly in Haiti, and is no secret in the French or Dutch colonies. As for our own country, I would take my oath that nine darkies out of ten, even of those who call themselves Christians, would ooze voodoism if you stick a pin into them.

"In the West Indies the name is obeah, not voodoo; but the ideas and the practices are much the same, even worse. The blacks go to the obeah man to get vengeance when they have a grudge, and they're not in the least particular where the vengeance stops. The obeah men are expert poisoners, and there isn't a doubt that they accommodate their patrons who can pay well enough.

"In some of the West Indian colonies the whites themselves have to take obeah into account in their dealings with the negroes. I mean that a negro who has a grudge against a white person won't hesitate to try to work obeah on him—or her, either.

"Generally it goes no further than putting evil charms in the way of the person to be injured; but one hears hints of suspicious deaths and unaccountable illnesses. When you laugh at such an idea the old-timers shake their heads."

Another American who has spent several years in the Dutch West Indies confirms the above. He says that the negroes there enjoy the aid and comfort of a bakru, whose services are secured to them through the good offices of the obeah man. A bakru is the spirit of a dead person.

He is annexed to one's menage by going to the graveyard at midnight in the last quarter of the moon, approaching the dead man's grave by taking two steps forward and one step back, and then calling politely, but firmly, upon the spirit to enter your service. This matter of politeness is a most important feature of one's intercourse with a bakru.

If one desn't observe the rules of courteousy, and bid the bakru good morning and good night, say "Thank you" and "Please," and otherwise propitiate his ghostly highness, he is likely to play one such trick as will make one regret the day—or night, rather—that one ever engaged a bakru. But if you are mild and respectful to your bakru he will prove an excellent servant.

In the morning you can dispatch him to the market with the injunction to pick out a good load of wood and save it until you come after it. Then you can loiter over your other affairs without giving the wood another thought. The bagru will ride him to the market, pick out the best wood and keep it for you. The owner of the wood may try in vain to sell it. He can't; and that's because the barku is sitting on it.

An obeah man or obeah woman is resorted to as a rule for help in working a spite or in getting a wish, especially the wish to bask in the love of some particular person. Some of these charms are rather extraordinary. For instance, if a lovesick girl will take some of her hair, burn it, rub it to a powder, and put it into the food of the man whose love she pines for, she will have her wish.

The most efficacious of these love charms is said to be the mixing of nine drops of one's blood with the food to be eaten by the adored. This method works marvels, making the hitherto indifferent person a slave to the charmer.

The newly awakened love amounts almost to madness, and is a sure thing until it is disposed of by another charm. If the charm worker will administer a kick or a blow, the foot or the hand with which it is given having been dipped in water in which cedar leaves have been boiled, the madness will disappear.

One way of getting ahead of a rival is to secure his shoes and wear them over night. This promises that you shall figuratively step into his shoes, as you have already literally done.

If you want an enemy to die, get the obeah man to work a charm which causes the feathers in your victim's pillow to form into some sort of a nondescript creature; nobody is quite clear what it is, bird or animal. The important point is that it forms very, very slowly and only at night; but as the process continues your enemy wastes away, and when the creature in the pillow is complete your victim dies.

Another way of getting revenge is to tear a live bird apart and put the wings in your enemy's pillow. If you want to be particularly cruel, put some grains of corn in the pillow of your victim's child.

What will that do? Simply keep the child from growing any more. Common ways of trying to work obeah are to sprinkle graveyard dirt on a doorstep, to put dead leaves in front of a door, to hang a crooked stick over it, and so on.

Of course, if you are black yourself and somebody is "setting obeah on you," the first thing you do is to hustle up to where your own special obeah man or obeah woman lives and get busy at counter conjuring. It is always a wise precaution to keep a "frizzly" hen on the premises. If she can be induced to eat any of the charms left for your destruction, you will be saved.

Salt, too, is an excellent article to have on hand. If you sprinkle salt on charms left by your enemies, and then burn them—the charms, not (as you might like) your enemies—you are again saved. In the South today, if you go into a negro cabin where a dead body lies you will often see a little dish of salt on the breast of the corpse.

If you think a person has captured you, throw salt after him. Indeed, salt is good for many more things than sprinkling on birds' tails.

An Englishman, writing to Chambers' Journal, a few years ago, admitted that in spite of laws and punishments, obeah was commonly practiced today, even in the British West Indies. When caught, the obeah man is flogged and imprisoned, but the cult continues in secret.

It is mighty hard, moreover, to catch the obeah man, even though it is perfectly well known who he is. As a rule, he lives in some out-of-the-way place, and the negroes are in such terror of him that they won't betray him to the authorities, and won't testify against him, even when he is caught.

People who have lived long in the West Indies can easily pick out an obeah man from a crowd of negroes. He may be dirty and ragged and disgusting, but he has an air of authority which is unmistakable. If threatened by the obeah man, a negro will turn as gray as ashes from sheer terror.

In spite of the fact that there is a law against working obeah, some of the white planters themselves resort to it, or to a show of it. In order to protect their crops from the wholesale stealing of the negroes they conspicuously display at the edge of their fields articles which are recognized as charms, such as a skull, or a bottle of dead cockroaches, or a little coffin full of pieces of bone, feathers and hair. The negro believes that these charms will fix him if he trespasses.

There is a simpler way of warning off marauders; at least it is not against the law, as the placing of obeah charms is. The planter whose crops have been disturbed has only to remark nonchalantly in the hearing of the negroes "Oh, I don't care! I've got the footprint."

Before long the terrified culprit will come to him with a full confession. The belief is that if the soil is taken up and burned that particular darky will never steal again, and for the excellent reason that he won't get another chance.

The negroes are very shy about admitting to the white folks that they believe in obeah. As for answering questions concerning special beliefs they become most uncommunicative at the first display of curiosity.

If they don't pretend absolute ignorance of the whole subject—"Doan' know nuttin' 'bout dat. Dat's sump'n I nevuh did hear of!"—they say bluntly: "Tain't good fur white folks to know 'bout such things!" Most of them when questioned by white folk declare that they don't take any stock in obeah, but if you ask them to cut down a silk cotton tree they'll back off in a blue funk. Silk cotton trees are the chosen residences of "duppies" and "jumbles," and they are therefore the objects of a negro's very respectful consideration.

The obeah man is a very shrewd person. For instance, when he is approached on the subject of buried treasure he is always prepared to divulge the exact locality where it is to be found. He is not afraid of being discredited, for he adds to his directions the information that the place is guarded by a "duppy," which he describes with a horrible miuteness of detail.

Or perhaps it is a huge snake which has charge of the treasure. In either case it will be perfectly hopeless to attempt negotiations unless the treasure seeker will agree to give his soul to the "duppy" or the snake.

While voodooism is by no means as common here, or at least not as frankly admitted, the negroes of the South still believe in conjuring, their animals are still tricked, and they have a thousand superstitions, about human beings, birds, animals, the moon, the wind—every detail of daily life, in fact. For instance, any peculiarity of personal apearance is supposed to be the sign of some hidden power.

To be conjured—or cunjured, as it is pronounced—is bad enough. But to be conjured by a blue-gummed negro is almost fatal, and to be conjured by a blue-gummed negro with one blue eye and one black one is absolutely deadly.

The rain crow is the center of the whole cloud of superstitions. For instance, if you happen to be seeing spirits and have no taste for it, take a rain crow's egg, break it in water and wash your face in it. That will cure you of any ordinary attack of seeing things.

A well known way of making one's self proof against "conjure" is to put red pepper in one's shoes and a silver coin between one's toes. Nobody but a darky could stand the red pepper, but they don't seem to mind it, and have even danced in pepper-lined shoes, turning a peaceful party into a bedlam of sonorous kerchoos.

It may be a useful hint that if a negro finds a coat or any other article of dress neatly folded with a stick lying across it he will be loath to appropriate it. This, however, does not apply to the Northern negro, who is much freer from superstition than his Southern brother is.

If anything is made in a flat, tight bundle and fastened by pins crossing each other diagonally—like this, X—it will be pretty safe from a superstitious darky. The X is often used by them. It is the binder, making a charm or a precaution doubly effectual.

While the terms obeah and voodooism are used more or less interchangeably, the two cults are not altogether the same. Obeah is rather worse than voodooism. It is a more desperate resort. Its vengeances are more deadly, its practices more revolting.

In the negro republic, it is asserted, human sacrifices are not uncommon in the celebration of the obeah rites. Haiti is the hotbed of the worst form of obeah worship—a fact which was given by the man first quoted in this article as proof of his statement that the negro, left to himself, will return to his old beliefs and practices.

SOCIALISM AND "FREE COMPETITION"

Individualists, single taxers, anarchists, Bryanites and Jeffersonians have charged the Socialists as advocating an economic system that, once instituted, would fall little short of becoming or being a sort of state despotism. All adherents of the above schools (if such they may be termed) strongly emphasize the essentiality of an economic system that shall permit an absolutely "free competition" to reign between man and man in the social state and in the economic relationship. They hold that the cause of the ills in present society can be traced to the monopoly and special privileges conferred by government upon the few, and mention specifically the "protective tariff," "land grants," "patent monopoly" and "money monopoly" as being basic causes. These advocates—all of them—pride themselves in quoting Herbert Spencer, "that man has a right to do what he pleases so long as he does not come in conflict with the equal rights of any other man."

Perhaps it does not occur to some of these gentlemen—those who are afraid of the term anarchist—that the fundamentals of anarchism are based upon just this argument. The logical deduction of this statement, if attempted in our everyday life, would anticipate leaving all men free to do as they pleased, restrained by neither state nor individual, subject to no rule or law but that of self. The anarchist believes in no government but that of self, no restraint but that which the individual would impose upon himself. He assumes, as a matter of course, that men would do the right thing, that their consciences would impel and restrain them from aggressing upon the rights of others. Tell me, you Jeffersonian Democrats, have I missed in your position? You are against federal restraint; you are against state restraint in your personal business; you hold that each man should be left free and unhampered in his business; you want government to cease protecting trusts and say that, if special privileges were to be elliminated, the gigantic corporations would fall of their own weight. Let us see if your conclusions are true, if it really be possible to smash the trusts.

We know it to be a fact that in new communities free competition absolutely reigns supreme, that wages are high and that prices of commodities are also high. We know that, as the community becomes more settled, the population becomes more stable, that wages go down, that prices also go down, and that the cause of the fall in wages as well as in prices is resultant in both instances from the fact that labor has become more plentiful on the one hand, and that more men have embarked into business. The facilities are easier to hire help, wages down to the cost of subsistence, and because of the fact that competition has evolved in the business world, where we find a great number of individuals all aiming to obtain the business, prices as a consequence tend towards the elimination of profits, with the further result that the fierceness of the struggle between the competitors brings about a clash that ultimates in the destruction of the weakest, and the combination of the strongest into the corporation or trust.

We Socialists contend that the trust principle is a good one, inasmuch as it completes waste, facilitates production and cheapens cost. The evil of the trust lays solely in the fact that the benefits of such combination go to the few shareholders, and result also in the unemployment of a good many wage-workers who no longer are necessary under the new regime. The antidote of the Socialist, therefore, is not the abolition of the trust, which would necessarily anticipate—if trusts could be abolished—the reversion back to primitive methods of wealth-production—but it would mean the capture of the trusts by the people and the control and regulation of them in the interest of the population of the country. Let us have a universal trust in which all the people shall become equal co-partners, and the logical sequence would be that the benefits resultant from trustified industry would be shared proportionally by all the people—that is the co-operative commonwealth to which we Socialists aspire.

FAMOUS LINKS WITH OUR GRANDSIRES DAYS

of students have been trained along the lines laid down by him and his associates on the reform committee.

Edward Everett Hale's Lend-a-Hand clubs have gone round the world to the amelioration of the burdens of no one knows how many people. He, too, was one of the first promoters of the widespread Chautauqua movement. All this is in addition to his most famous novel, which gave the world the phrase, "a man without a country."

It was John Bigelow who discovered Ben Franklin's autobiography in a rubbish heap in France, when he was minister to that country, and, after editing it, gave it to the world. Without this autobiography the world would lack its present insight of one of the first great Americans. The plants that Sir Joseph Hooker has added to the botannical knowledge of the world number tens of thousands, literally. One of literature's latter day classics is "The Reveries of a Bachelor." It is to be found in every library of the land, and it still profoundly affects its thousands as it did in the days of our grandfathers. D. O. Mills, through his famous Mills hotels, has shown how the respectable poor may be housed and fed at reasonable prices.

Two Workers for Mankind.

But important and far reaching as have been some of the works of most of the links, it is undisputed that none other has done so great service for mankind as either Lord Lister and Florence Nightingale. The one has made the average surgical operation a means to health and not, as before antiseptics, a last resort to save life. The other has given the trained nurse, with all the attendant blessings, to the world's sickroom.

Which has conferred the larger benefit on mankind? England herself has found it difficult to decide, evidently, judging from the honors she has conferred on each.

When Florence Nightingale slipped quietly into England after the Crimean war was over, in order to avoid a demonstration, she was given a testimonial of £50,000, subscribed by the people. By devoting this testimonial to the foundation of the Nightingale home for the training of nurses, she not only increased the love of the nation for her, but soon demonstrated to the public that sanitary and intelligent nursing is as essential to life in time of peace as in time of war. From that day to this Miss Nightingale has been one of the idols of England; in fact, the whole world. Hers was the second name to be placed on the roll of the Order of the Red Cross when it was created. Recently King Edward decorated her with the Order of Merit, and still more recently the freedom of the city of London was conferred on her. Only one other woman has been similarly honored, the late Baroness Burdett-Coutts.

Lord Lister has been formally honored not only by his government, but also by medical societies the world over and by people generally familiar with the results of his revolutionary discovery. Created a baronet in 1883, fourteen years later he was made a baron; he is sergeant surgeon in ordinary to King Edward; was surgeon extraordinary to Queen Victoria and has been the head of two of England's most famous scientific societies—the Royal society, from 1895 to 1900, and the British Association for the Advancement of Science, 1896.

Her sympathies aroused by the tales of hospital horrors from the Crimea, Miss Nightingale volunteered to lead a band of women nurses to the front, and so revolutionized the methods of caring for the sick and wounded everywhere. His sympathies aroused by the terrible death rate following operations in the hospital to which he was attached, Lister began his search for a way to cut down the death rate, and so revolutionized surgery. Miss Nightingale, at the front, would brook no army red tape in connection with the thousands of sufferers under her charge. Once, when medical stores were refused her because they had not yet been inspected, she herself directed the breaking down of the door and the carrying away of her life sustaining stores. Lister's insistence that his wards, assistants, nurses and patients be kept scrupulously clean verged on the tyrannical, but, like Miss Nightingale's calm discregard for military red tape, it produced results.

By walking up and down the rows of wounded in the hours of the long night, carrying her little lamp and here stroking a fevered forehead, there giving a drink of water, again cheering with a word or smile, Miss Nightingale endeared herself to every soldier with whom she came in contact. Thus the name of "the Angel of the Lamp," by which she became known the world over, and which Longfellow used for the theme of his beautiful poetical tribute to its bearer.

Kindness, too, has been one of Lister's characteristics, through kindness of a gruffer kind. For years following his great discovery the demands on his time for professional services were simply enormous; yet he always managed somehow to find room for an errand of mercy or love. Meeting by chance a country physician who had been a student under him, Lister asked after the other's mother. On learning that the old lady was suffering from a dangerous external growth he immediately put aside all thoughts of other work, made a long railroad journey to the patient's bedside, operated successfully, practically refused to take even the grateful son's tearful thanks for pay, and returned the same day to the city to take up his regular work where he had dropped it for friendship's sake in the morning.

As quickly as Miss Nightingale's fame spread throughout Europe and America, following the first reports to the world of her work in the Crimea, so quickly did news of the result of Lister's antiseptic treatment spread throughout the medical profession. An incident that occurred in Munich a few weeks after the announcement by Lister of his discovery did a great deal to make the medical world fall in line behind him without any delay.

The head of a certain Munich hospital has been greatly worried over the fact that 80 per cent of all patients in the surgical ward died of gangrene. Indeed, the ward had become so infected that there was talk of burning it down. About this time news of Lister's discovery reached Munich, the hospital dispatched a surgeon to Edinburgh, he returned enthusiastic, antiseptic surgery, as then practiced, was introduced in the ward, and in a few weeks there were no more cases of gangrene—the epidemic had been stamped out by spraying the atmosphere with a carbolic acid solution and flooding all wounds with a similar solution.

This was the first form of antiseptic surgery, the flooding of the wound being for the purpose of killing all bacteria placed in the body during the course of the operation. Today, of course, as is well known, antiseptic surgery means the prevention of infection—not the cure of infection—by the sterilization of operating instruments, operating rooms, operators, assistants, bandages, etc., etc. This final step was not long in following the second—the first being Lister's insistence on cleanliness—and in it, as in the others, Lister himself was the leader.

It is rather interesting to note the widespread affectionate regard in which most of our prominent links are held. What reader does not feel a sort of reverence for Edward Everett Hale and Julia Ward Howe? To thousands of college men President Angell of Michigan and ex-President Dwight of Yale are known by affectionate nicknames. Any one who has ever read "The Reveries of a Bachelor" has conceived a strong regard for its gentle author. When Sir John Tenniel retired from Punch on the anniversary of his fiftieth year with that paper he was flooded with testimonials of affection from all parts of the British empire. It is generally admitted that the love his people have for Francis Joseph has been a strong factor in keeping his patchwork empire together for over half a century. Because of his bold stand against the Russian autocracy, and in spite of his queer philosophy, Tolstoi is seen through the world's spectacles as a lovable old man. And so on, pretty well through the list of the links.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Repairs in Branch Mint Company's Mill Completed ---Homestake Company Now More Active Than Ever Before in Its History.

Deadwood, S. D., May 2.—At a meeting of the directors of the Branch Mint Mining company, held here, the board of directors was increased from five to seven. Three new directors were chosen. E. G. Burgess, John Ohnels and Michael Hecht, all of New York city. General Manager and President James D. Hardin still retains a place on the board. The company has been making some experiments and found repair necessary in the 500 ton mill. These have been completed and one third of the stamps are now dropping.

The Homestake Mining company is now enjoying a period of activity greater than any other in its history. One of the principal projects now is to get the new regrinding plant in operation. Preparations are also being made for a new foundry building that will require most of the summer to construct. It is to be erected on the Terravilla side of the workings. Work at the Pocahontas mill consists in installing an electric system.

Another new mill has just been put into commission. The Minnesota Mines company has started up its 200 ton plant at Maitland and is preparing for a steady run. The mill treats by the cyanide process and uses Chilean mills for crushing. Its motive power is furnished by the Black Hills Traction company.

The Minnesota Mines company is owned exclusivily by Minneapolis and Minnesota men, the president being Frank E. Little. During the last few years, and particularly the last two, the property has been well and systematically developed, mainly by a shaft that has reached a depth of 165 feet, and some good ore bodies have been opened up.

Shipments from the United States assay office here and from the Homestake Mining company continue to be unusually large. The Homestake is still shipping about $600,000 worth of bullion every month. The new mills in commission and the old ones that have resumed or increased their capacity have brought the output of the other properties up until it is going not less than $400,000 a month. This gives the Black Hills a total monthly outpt just now of approximately $1,000,000 worth of bullion.

under the great disadvantage of having no transportation facilities. Taree shipments of ore from Stites netted $225 a ton after having been packed three miles on horseback, thirty miles by wagon and then sent by rail to the Tacoma smelter.

"A 10-stamp mill is now completely equipped and running in the Newsome district, adjoining the Elk City district. A dredge put in by New York capitalists is also preparing to run, and as soon as the snow goes off there are four machines that will be put to washing gravel.

"People do not generally know the extent of the mining operations in this section of Idaho, and the fact that there are 165 stamps now installed and working, besides several others which will be put in this summer, indicates the stability of the district. All Central Idaho lacks is adequate transportation facilities."

Sunnyside has been opened by an inclined shaft 400 feet and connection made with the vein on five levels. On the third, fourth and fifth levels the ore bodies have greatly increased in size as well as in value. The ore is now milling better than $50, and on the third and fourth levels there are several stopes, in which the values approach $100. The mill produced bullion to the value of $128,650 during the eleven months prior to March 1, and in March produced $38,000.

The Round Mountain Sphinx, owned by Salt Lake men, has a Huntington mill installed and ready for operation. The Sphinx is opened to a depth of 200 feet.

The Round Mountain Hydraulic company, which has a lease on the placer deposits at the base of the mountain, has built several miles of 12-inch pipes to carry water for sluicing, and now has one giant in operation. A second giant will be placed in commission within a few days.

IS AFTER CLARK PROPERTY

that the money to pay for this interest had been in escow in the First National bank of Butte for two years. It is the intention of the North Butte company, as soon as it shall secure this stock, to retire it all, and merge the Berlin holdings into the ownership of the North Butte. The Berlin was a company organized at Butte, at the time the North Butte was negotiating for its Speculator holdings, to secure, for it, title to various properties, notably the Berlin and ajacent claims, which the North Butte management then considered of great prospective value.

There have been highly encouraging developments in the North Butte Extension during the past week. A stringer which showed width of about one inch in the shaft at a depth of 527 feet has widened out at depth of 550 feet to nearly two feet between the walls. The entire width is almost solid ore showing well in chalcopyrite and a magnificent sprinkling of copper glance. The ore will give an average assay of better than 10 per cent. The stringer is along the whole length of the north side of the shaft and is dipping to the south, and the foot wall of granite is well mineralized. Supt. John A. Ryan expresses the opinion that it may be part of a big vein, but in any event it will undoubtedly open into a great vein at more depth. Indications are that the company will open up extensive ore deposit on the 700-foot level.

tion. It is the expectation that a good-sized product will go forward this season from the corporation's McKinley mine. This is a combined pit and underground property, and it has been operated with vigor throughout the winter. There is a stockpile of important dimensions.

Some ore has been moving to the docks from the Mesaba range for some days past, the first shipments being from the Midland Steel company's Laura mine near Hibbing; but while scattered cargoes will be forwarded prior to that time, it is still the expectation that June will have been well entered into before the lake movement will at all compare with that at the opening of navigation a year ago. None of the properties on the Marquette, Menominee or Gogebic ranges have started shipments. Allotments have not yet been made, in fact, and for the time being the mining managers hardly know what to expect. It is conceded that the aggregate movement for the year will scarcely run more than 60 per cent of that of last season, but how much ore is to come from individual properties is not even approximately known at present. Some mines will not produce at all. There were upwards of 180 shippers on the list in 1907, but this year it is figured the number will not exceed 150.

The Elk Rapids, Mich., Iron Works of the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical company is to shut down for several months, during which time extensive repairs will be made to both the furnace and chemical plants. At the same time the Boyne City stack of the company is being restored to the active list. Thus the output of the corporation will be maintained at the same reduced basis as in effect for a number of months past. The Ashland, Wis., Iron & Steel works, which also is a property of the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical company, will go out of blast within a fortnight, and its place will be taken by the Manistique, Mich., furnace and chemical plant. Both the Newberry and Chocolay stacks of the company continue in idleness.

Except for the blast furnaces, the work of the Superior corporation's Algoma Steel company at the Canadian Soo continue out of commission since the suspension a fortnight ago. While lack of pig iron was in part responsible for the shut down, it is understood that lack of orders also dictated the move.. However it is not expected that the suspension will be prolonged. In the meantime a good many men are out of employment.

fiscal year. Costs will be somewhat higher than the 7½ cents average for 1906-07, but Wolvertine's report will show that the company can still be classed as one of the low cost producers.

The Lake continues the center of attraction among Lake Superior properties. It is estimated, and by a man who is in a position to judge authoritatively, that the heavy copper which will be taken out while the shaft is being sunk to a depth of 500 feet and drifts extended in each direction 1,000 feet will more than pay the expense of the undertaking. Of course this estimate is based upon what has been accomplished durling the sinking of the shaft to a depth of 165 feet. If this proves true it will place Lake in first place among the amygdaloid mines of the district. Drifting, which was started last week at the 165 point, is being watched with a great deal of interest by people who are interested in this and adjoining properties.

The drilling explorations upon the Adventure preerty are being con- Adventure property are being conto tap the lake lode, but it is probable that the desired end was not attained, although the management has been silent in regard to what was found. Another hole is to be drilled from a different point of attack.

The explorations which are being carried on by the Mass for the Lake lode have not yet revealed anything of a very encouraging nature. Several lodes have been tapped with the drill and the cores taken from one of these lodes reveals some mineralization but it does not beging to compare with the showing which is being made at the Lake property. The test pit which had been put down is on this lode and a very healthy appearing lode has been uncovered, but the red metal is conspicuous by its absence. The position of this lode with the sandstone belt would indicate that it is the so-called Baltic, but as the direction of this formation is known to vary at different points, it is more than probable that it is some other lode. However, the management is sanguine that the coveted formation will yet be tapped and explorations are to be continued until a thorough test has been made of the southern belt.

A very promising lode has been tapped with a diamond drill upon the White Pine property, in the Porcupine mountain district. The explorations are being conducted by the Calumet & Hecla and it is said that the old shaft upon this property is to be unwatered.

Excavating has been started for the compressor and hoisting engine to be installed at Isle Royale shaft No. 4 during the approaching summer. The machinery was contracted for fully a year ago, and its prompt delivery may be expected, with the result that with mountain district. The explorations mountain district. Excavating has been started for the compressor and hoisting engine to be installed at Isle Royale shaft No. 4 during the approaching summer. The machinery was contracted for fully a year ago, and its prompt delivery may be expected, with the result that with the opening of the coming year this shaft should be a creditable producing factor. Hoisting has been resumed at No. 6 shaft. Interest in the affairs of the Isle Royale lode is centered in the new territory in course of development, rather than its old workings, which will do exceedingly well to earn expenses this year. But the history of the Isle Royale lode is one of blasted hopes, and a sigh of relief will go up from its most ardent friends when the developments at the new shaft prove a persistency of commercial values to such depths as will insure for the company a permanent place in the list of Michigan's producers. The new shafts of the Isle Royale are without exception disclosing a quality of rock which needs but continue to insure creditable returns. The territory is extensive and provides room for the sinking of two additional shafts from which it will be seen that the possibilities of the company are anything but within narrow limits. The Isle Royale lands are also traversed by the Baltic lode, but, despite the fact that this formation has been subject to some little investigation, it is still too early to discuss its prospects. Further than definitely locating the vein, the operations thus far have been lacking in any special feature.

THE REVIVAL AT TOMBSTONE

Old Arizona Camp Likely to Again See Palmy Days---Development Now Active---Calumet & Arizona Company Very Busy There.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 2.—That the big mining interests still look upon that portion of Cochise county where Leadville is located with favor is demonstrated by the work which the Calumet & Arizona company is doing on the claims owned by Martin Costello in the vicinity of the Leadville property which was recently rejected because of lack of time for development. Martin Costello, the well known capitalist, left for his home in the county seat yesterday morning, after spending a couple of days here looking after his extensive interests.

When the Calumet & Arizona option on the Leadville group ran out about six weeks ago, the showing was not such as the directors of the company thought would warrant them in paying the remaining installments, and the property was rejected. However, at the same time, work was commenced on the Leadville property, which are owned by Martin Costello, but which are now under bond to the Calumet & Arizona in the sum of $150,000. This bond runs until Oct. 1, 1908.

Martin Costello, who was in the city and left for his headquarters in Tombstone, was asked concerning that portion of the county and in reply said: "I have not visited the claims which I bonded to the Calumet & Arizona lately, and of course am not in any position to talk about them, although when I was there, the showing was very favorable. However, mining activity in our portion of the county has become much greater than any one realizes during the past few months, and I honestly believe that it will be but a comparatively short time before Tombstone is the center of a great mining district as it was years ago."

Costello has always been known as one of the most conservative men in the Southwest, and his opinion seems to indicate that the old camp will again see palmy days.

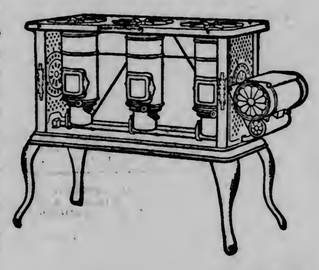
Put This Stove in Your Kitchen



It is wonderfully convenient to do kitchen work on a stove that's ready at the instant wanted, and out of the way the moment you're done. Such a stove is the New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove. By using it you avoid the continuous overpowering heat of a coal fire and cook with comfort, even in dog-days. The is so constructed that it cannot add perceptibly to the heat of a room; the flame being directed up a retaining chimney to the stove top where it is needed for cooking. You can see that a stove sending out heat in but one direction would be preferable on a hot day to a stove radiating heat in all directions. The "New Perfection" keeps a kitchen uniformly comfortable. Three sizes, fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

The Rayo Lamp is the ideal lamp for family use—safe, convenient, economical and a great light giver. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50-cent sizes. For sale by all druggists.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Spring weather and the fact that the end of school is but five weeks away has imbued the whole school with a very lively spirit. The seniors have selected the form for their class invitations and the sample is a very striking piece of art.

The sophomores are congratulating themselves on the financial and the social triumph they achieved a their hop last Friday night as it is seldom that a hop, especially a sophomore affair, has two such adjectives applied to it.

Prof. Custance will soon be obliged to hang out his "busy day" sign. Tuesday the Musical society held a short meeting and Mr. Regnar spoke to them in regard to the "cantata" and its music. After practicing a short time, the meeting adjourned. On Tuesdays and Wednesdays Mr. Custance tutors the seniors in the rudiment of voice culture in preparation for the class day exercises. He has composed several appropriate little parodies which '08 will warble to '09 on the final night.

The junior committee, which is endeavoring to find a suitable hall for the junior-senior dance, has not had very great success. The Armory was at one time thought of, but it was decided that it would not be practical to hold it there. The old Masonic temple is too small so that it will have to be passed up. The only other place would be Lester Park and the committee is undecided as to whether it would be desirable to hold it there or not.

The Zenith board is still holding its own among the organizations of the school. A short meeting was held on Tuesday afternoon, when the final touches were put on the "dummy" copy and corrections made on the manuscripts from the lower classes.

The freshmen are planning to hold forth in glory at their spread on Friday, April 15. Their plans have disturbed the seniors not a little for they had hoped to give their senior farewell on the same date.

A journalistic war is on between the "Howl" and the "Scream" and from the appearance of the two pamphlets their editors must be spending many of their wee hours on them in the effort to outdo one another. The "Howl," inasmuch as it was the first paper in the field, regards itself as the aristocratic, and conservative edition, looking at the "Scream" as a yellow journal. The 'Scream" claims to be the people's paper, while the "Howl" is said to be controlled by the "Board." The publications are very interesting and the day of their weekly appearance is looked forward to by their many friends.

The chemistry classes have been having a recess during the week as Prof. Ferguson has been called to his home. His geology classes have recited to Prof. Ulrick in his laboratory.

During the latter part of the week the track men have been tearing up the turf in great style. The interclass meet is planned for two weeks from today and after this contest the team for the Superior meet will be picked.

The "Boo Gang" held a convention the first part of the week and enjoyed the events immensely. Their rivals, the "P. D. Q." gang held forth yesterday with good will and happiness. A baseball game, that will be well worth seeing, is under consideration, for both clubs have three or four crack players.

Vice President John Quin officiated at the last meeting of the Public Speaking club as President Helam tendered his resignation in order to be free in his pursuit of the "sheepskin." The club banquet will be held in the near future, at which time next year's president will be elected.

SELLING YOUR LIFE ONE WEEK AT A TIME

New York Evening Journal: This is for every man and woman working for a weekly or monthly salary:

Do you know what it means when you get your money for a week or for a month?

It means that you have sold a piece of your life, and that you have in your pocket the price paid for it. Working for weekly or monthly wages, we deceive ourselves abou the present and the future. We look forward to that "some day" when we are going to do better, when we are going to work for ourselves, when this temporary salary business will be ended.

But that "some day" doesn't come for many of us. It comes for very few. And old age comes for all of us.

If you don't realize it now, men and women on salaries, you will realize with old age the fact that the man who is selling his life piece by piece ought to think pretty seriously about it.

What is your life but a few weeks and months and years? If you were selling your body one piece at a time—$10 a piece for your toes and fingers, $20 an inch for the foot, and so on—you would worry. You would say to yourself: "What! Four toes and two fingers gone already, and I've spent all the money that I got for them. They are gone forever and I've nothing to show for the sale. What shall I do when my legs and my arms are sold? I must see to it that I get the best possible price, at least that I get some kind of independence and safety in return for the body that I am selling."

This may seem a forced comparison. But you are selling your life piece by piece. You are selling your youth and vitality, which you cannot renew. An old man or woman with energy gone, vitality spent, living in a world that makes no provision for old men and women, is as sad and helpless as a man might be who had sold arms and legs, fingers and toes one at a time.

Don't deceive yourself about the reality of life. Don't forget that your existence, your future happiness, the possibility of manly or womanly independence, depend upon the earnestness with which you work now, on your realization of the truth that you are selling your life piece by piece.

Your employer gives you your week's salary, and his interest in the matter ends. After you have sold him ten weeks or twenty years, under our system, you have no right, and you have no reason, to go to him and say, "I am old, now take care of me."

In a world of competition he has a good reason and a perfect right to say to you, "Why didn't you take care of yourself? Why didn't you do some thinking when you were selling your life piece by piece? Why didn't you imitate me and develop yourself as well as you could and provide for the future by the practice of self-denial or otherwise?"

You see a young man who inherits a fortune. He begins squandering it. You pity him, or more likely laugh at him. You think him a fool because he doesn't realize that the money will go and leave him stranded.

Do you realize that the years of youth and vigor will go and leave you stranded

Do you realize that the fortune left you was your youth, your energy, your power of self-control, and that you have been spending this inheritance foolishly, throwing it away week by week, imagining that something would happen without your making it happen? For the average of us nothing happens accidentally. We get what we plan for and what we work for, and no more.

If you are shirking your work as the weeks and years go by, do not imagine that you are fooling any employer. You are fooling yourself. He gets his share out of your life. He sees that you earn the money that he gives you, and there his interest ceases. Do you get your own share out of your life?

When you stand behind a counter, dawdling, half-working, talking with other life-wasters, planning for a little foolish pleasure to follow on a lazy day's work, does it occur to you that you are selling your life cheaply?

The man who buys that life piece by piece gets what he pays for. He buys at the market rate pieces of the lives of human beings. He is buying living merchandise.

You don't get out of it what you ought to, but that is your fault, not the employer's.

But you ask, can salaried men and women help themselves? Of course they can, by working for themselves earnestly as well as for the man that hires them.

Every day has its possibilities of adding to your knowledge, efficiency and value as a human being.

You work this week and a man pays you $10. Work for yourself as well as for him. Work to make yourself more competent, more concentrated. Suppose that this week you can earn the $10 that your employer gives you, and that by working for yourself you can add $10 to your weekly value. When you begin getting $20 instead of $10 your life is worth twice what it was before. And if you save $10 out of the $20, then you are actually getting something for the life that you are selling piecemeal.

Of course it is hard to get more money than you earn when you earn it. But, as you will easily find out, it is a great deal harder to get it when you don't earn it. Earn it first, and then see that you get it. Be sure not to be cowed in about the wrong person. At least nine times out of ten the individual that complains about an employer ought to be complaining about himself. There are a good many men that get less than they earn. Many more get all they earn, and more.

Nothing is cheaper, commoner than the man who goes along half lazily, dawdling out his life, selling it a week at a time, without ambition or self-denial to better himself.

This sermon won't do the lazy man much good. He spends his leisure hours pitying himself and spending every dollar he makes.

But it may stir up some young men and women to realize that it actually is their lives that they are selling, and it may help them to gain independence before all the salable portion of their lives shall have disappeared.

Work for yourself. Save money. Concentrate your mind on your task. Sleep and rest regularly at night so that you can do energetic work while self-indulgent fools are dawdling. It isn't very hard to succeed, if you only know it. Ninety-nine out of a hundred successful men are successful simply because there's so little competition in the field of hard work. Enter that field.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Financial Conditions Improve, Little Change in Industrial.

New York, May 2.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade, says: Sentiment was greatly improved in financial circles by the successful issue of railway bonds, prices of securities attaining the highest position since last October, but mercantile and industrial conditions have not changed. The outlook for the steel business brightened when it was shown that the railroads could borrow money for needed work and the good progress of the crops promise well for the future in all branches of business. So far as current conditions are concerned, however, reports indicate a small volume of trade and only fair collections.

Nominally there is no change in quotations of iron and steel, but pressure to dispose of accumulated stocks in furnace yards has produced several sales of pig iron at substantial concessions. Prices of finished steel are usually maintained, although the opinion is expressed in many quarters that concessions would bring out much needed business. Thus far there is practically no increase in the active capacity of plants in this industry east of Chicago, but at the west conditions are better. Tin plate mills continue to lead in point of activity, the leading producer reporting a greater per cent of capacity in operation, but few other departments are turning out over 50 per cent of a normal production and coke ovens do much less.

Although the tone is improving in the primary textile markets thert is little increase in the actual volume of business. Increased curtailment at cotton mills is strengthening the statistical conditions and buyers begin to appreciate that deliveries may not be secured exactly as desired, but there is sufficient uncertainty regarding the percentage of idle machinery to encourage procrastination.

Men's wear woolens are in a better position, marked improvement, being noted in duplicate orders as clothiers begin to ascertain the trend of demand, but it is going to be difficult to get deliveries owing to the delay in placing contracts. Many mills have been closed and the season's output will be far below normal, which may produce scarcity if fall and winter trade is normal.

Conditions in the footwear industry are unchanged, wholesale houses ordering only for immediate needs and stipulating for quick deliveries, which are readily arranged. Jobbers at the West and South evidence no disposition to place fall contracts, which are usually closed before this date and the conservative policy pursued thus far suggests that manufacturers will be unable to make deliveries at the usual date, as stocks are not being accumulated.

AMONG THE PLANTS

"Some of you are feeling a little uneasy about the seeds you put in and the pansy plants you set out a week or so ago, but you need not fear, they are all right. Nearly every year, our pansy plants have been covered with snow, and have always come out all right, and the earliest planted were always the best. If your sweet peas are not planted, hurry them in as soon as the ground is dry enough to work well. There we plant both the light colored seeds and dark ones at the same time and they all come up all right, while south of us the light colored seeds decay if put in too early. You can plant all the hardy vegetable seeds now, peas, beets, carrots, parsnips, salsify, lettuce, and the like, but tender things, such as cucumbers and beans must not go until May 15.

This may be the last year that I shall be with you and I want you to have a good garden, for when I first came to Duluth we thought that nothing would grow, and how we struggled to get people to try, but now Duluth is getting to be the best and prettiest city for flowers in the Northwest, and let the good work go on until it is the city beautiful.

A dozen years ago I did all I could to get Duluth to grow the hardy Phlox, but very few would use them then, but the last three years we have sent out lots of them, and there is nothing better for a Duluth garden. They live through our hardest winters, covering or no covering, are beautiful in coloring and by a careful selection of kinds can be had in bloom from midsummer to early winter. Each year the clumps grow larger and every fourth year they can be divided and furnish new plants for a larger plantation. The first year you get only one of two good spikes of flowers, but even then they make a magnificent showing. The second year you get six or eight good spikes, and when you have that number it is a good plan to nip off the tips of half of them as soon as they are six inches high. This will delay them and make them bloom later. Only nip them back once, and remember this must only be done with the early varieties. The late ones don't need it and I have not much use for late ones anyway. We are late enough in Duluth. There are an endless variety of names in the catalogues to choose from, but where masses of color are wanted, it is better to choose a few of some bright shade, and after trying them all we have got down to seven or eight special favorities that grow about alike, for we have seen large plantations in the parks further south, and they were anything but pretty. Some grew two feet high, some four, and that way they have a ragged, uneven look which is anything but pleasing.

Some of the new varieties, such as Miss Lingard and Marger are large, beautiful things, for in these, as in other flowers, we are always improving.

For phloxes make the soil rich. They are to stay for years, remember. A Chicago florist was telling me that they did not push the sale of the hardy perennial plants, as it spoiled the business, but our experience is that, give a person a thing that lasts and is pleasing and it creates a taste for more beautiful things, so plant hardy things, all you can afford.

ALBERTA WOMAN KILLED BY MINER.

Lethbridge, Alberta, May 2.—Mella Zagaly, a Servian miner, yesterday shot Mrs. Mike Barcedi, an Italian woman, on the road between the town and the coal mine. He shot her three times and cut her throat, severing the jugular vein, then shot himself three times. The man formerly boarded with the woman and had given her money to keep for him. She refused to give it back when asked on the road. The woman's 9-year-old boy was with her and had the money.

The woman had eight children and her husband works in the mine. The murderer lived here a few months and was an engineer.

BUSINESS HEART OF CITY NOW SEEMS TO BE LOCATED

Real Estate Men Predict That District About Fifth Avenue West and First Street Will be Business Center of Duluth—Many New Improvements on West First Street Are Contemplated.

Events that bear out the predictions of some of the city's real estate experts, that First street between Third and Fifth avenues west was destined to be the business center of Duluth, are happening with a rapidity that is as yet hardly realized by the people of this city, unless they have been following closely the lines of development of the business improvements within the last year or two.

Since the determination of the county to establish its new courthouse at the intersection of Second street and Fifth avenue west, in line with a grouping plan for the public buildings which will eventually mean the erection of a federal building and a city hall on First street in proximity of the new courthouse, the possibilities in store for West First street have been emphasized. That the permanent establishment of the courthouse, federal building and city hall within practically the same block near First street and Fifth avenue west would form the nucleus around which the largest business interests of the city would center has been predicted time and again by careful and conservative real estate men. Outside investors in Duluth realty have, perhaps, realized that more than some of the local people and the interest they are showing in the way of making plans for new investments in the vicinity of the city's public buildings is indicative of their belief that the business center of the city is permanently established on West First street near Fifth avenue west.

As proof of the assertion that the prediction is being realized, the real estate men point out the fact that all the hotels, the union depot, the Omoha depot and the new Wisconsin Central terminals, when completed, will be near the courthouse and other public buildings. Within a radius of a few blocks are found the large wholesale houses and biggest retail establishments of the city.

West First street has been developing rapidly in the last two or three years in the way of building improvements, but this year will be marked with an even greater building activity.

D. R. Black & Co., the plumbers, have leased the 50-foot lot on the lower side of West First street, immediately adjoining the Chase building on the west. On the site in question will be erected a fine business block, four stories high, with two stories on the first floor. Bids for the construction work will be opened this afternoon.

It is reported on reliable authority that parties are now negotiating for a 99-year lease on the 50-foot property immediately west of the location of the new building for D. R. Black & Co.

Plans have been prepared for a fine store and office building of several stories, at the southwest corner of Fourth avenue west and First street, and local parties are said to be planning the erection of a fine five-story building on the fifty feet adjoining The Herald building on the east.

As The Herald announced a few days ago, the Christie Printing & Lithographing company is about to build a seven-story business block on Fourth avenue west, at the rear of the Winthrop block.

The Board of Trade building, which is well within the district mentioned, is now undergoing an important improvement in the way of additional stories.

It is claimed that other negotiations have been started looking forward to still further improvemetn of West First street property, but the people interested do not care for any publicity at this stage.

The real estate movement, generally, has not been quite so brisk this week as last, owing, so the agents say, to unfavorable weather conditions. All that is needed now, the brokers say, is settled weather, so that prospective buyers can be taken out to see properties when they will appear at an advantage. Inquiry has not been quite so good this week as last, but there has been a fair amount of it right along, and the transfer record shows that a number of deals for unimproved lots are being closed right along.

The Norton estate, which owns the old Parlor theater property, is said to be planning on raizing the building and constructing on the site three one-story store buildings. The same owners will, it is said, remodel the fronts of the store buildigns at the corner of Second avenue west and First street, the whole improvement to cost about $10,000. Hugh Fawcett has the contract.

"Rents in the downtown district have reached such an exorbitant figure that they are beyond the reach of a retail grocer or meat dealer," said Henry Folz, who is now erecting a handsome new building at the corner of Second avenue east and Superior street.

Mr. Folz is at present in his old stand at 114-116 West Superior street, but will move tomorrow to temporary quarters at 17 East Superior street, where he will remain until his new building is completed.

The following sales have been reported by C. L. Rakowsky & Co., during the last ten days: House and lot, Fifth avenue east and Seventh street, $2,100; house and lot Eleventh avenue east and Fourth street, $3,500; lot on London road and Fourteenth avenue east, $1,675; house and lot, West end, $1,500. Earnest money has also been paid on three properties to be closed within the next few days, and also on several lots on East Fifth street and Thirteenth avenue, and several on Sixth and Thirteenth avenues east. Owners will build at once.

Eby & Gridley, who are erecting several houses at Twelfth avenue east and Fifth street, are reported to have sold one of the new buildings this week to Frank Starkey. The consideration is said to have been $2,800.

J. B. Greenfield reports the sale of the residence property at 4901 London road, from Theodore Hollister to Mary E. Howard of this city, the consideration being $6,500.

Adolph Carlson has sold Albert Swanson a fifty-foot lot in block 83, Portland division, for $1,300.

S. S. Altschul has purchased from Carrie A. Hodges for $3,700 the residence property described as lot 320, block 54, Duluth proper, Second division. The property is located in the West end.

William Clifford of the Duluth Dredge & Dock company has purchased from Sarah J. McCloud, for $2,850, the west half of lot 13, and all of lot 14, block 66, Endion division.

Following are the transfers for the week:

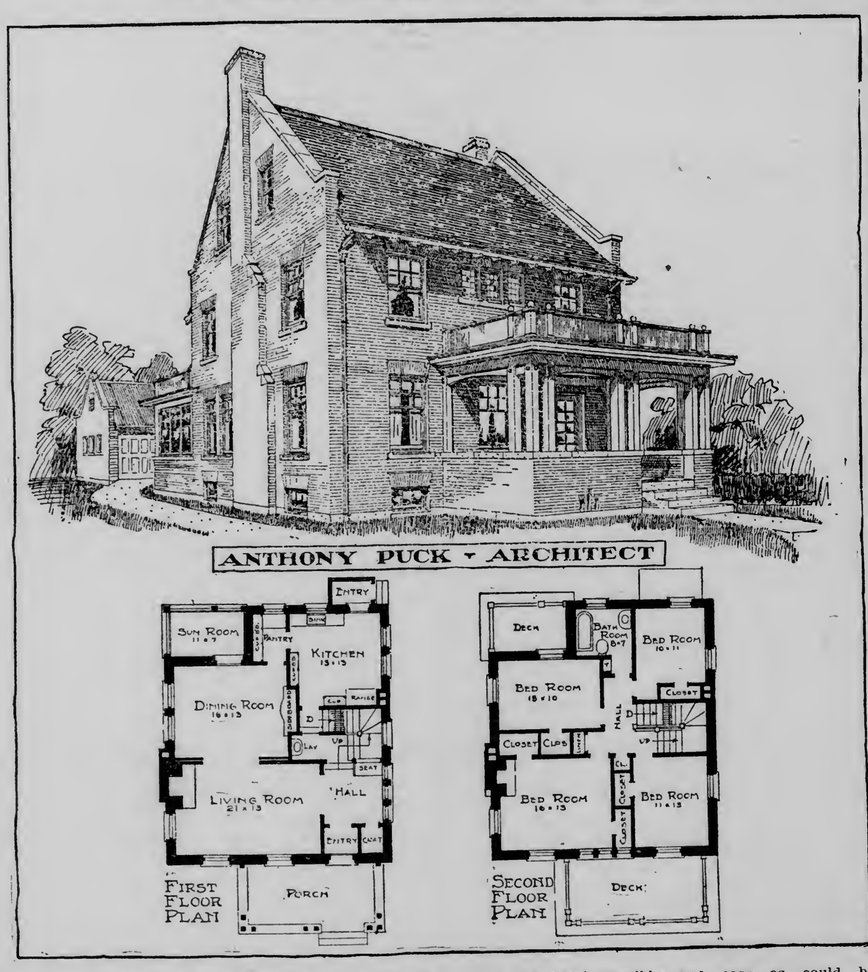
CITY HOME WHICH COULD BE BUILT IN DULUTH OR VICINITY FOR $6,800



The above design of a brick house is especially adaptable to a fifty-foot city lot. Each room has a front or rear exposure, besides having windows on the side. This insures good light and air though the adjoining property were built up to the lot line. The width of the building, 32 feet, allows ample space for a driveway and a grass plot on each side. Architecturally the design is well adapted to the limited width of a fifty-foot lot.

In planning the building all space has been well utilized, forming an exceedingly compact and convenient arrangement. The rooms are all of good relative size and proportions. The entrance is through a vestibule into a charming reception hall, arranged with a coat closet and hall seat. The stairway ascends from hall and also has convenient connections with the kitchen. An archway opens into the big living room, which is attractive with its windows and open fireplace opposite the entrance. Opening to the rear of the living room is the dining room, which has a built-in sideboard and French casement windows opening out to the sun room at the rear. The sun room, which is enclosed with glass, is an attractive and useful addition to the house. Note the generous size of the kitchen and convenient arrangement of its furnishings, its windows, entrance, door to basement and its direct communication to the front part of the house. The stairway arrangement calls for an outside entrance to the basement at grade level. No space is unduly sacrificed to the stairway, yet they are conveniently accessible and easy as could be desired.

Four good bedrooms, a bathroom and ample closet space are nicely arranged in the second story. A short corridor gives direct access to each room. The stairway extends with good width and easy rise up to the attic, which is large enough for two bedrooms or a billiard room, besides store rooms.

The building is 32 feet front by 36 feet depth, built of pressed brick with cut stone trimmings and slate or tile roof. The ceiling heights are 7 feet, 9 feet and 8½ feet. Basement has cement floor and upper floors maple. The finish is of oak in the first story and pine enameled or birch natural finish, second story and attic. Hot water heat and open plumbing. Such a home could be built in Duluth for $6,800, complete. Anthony Puck, Architect, Duluth, Minn.

IF YOU ARE THINKING

Of building a home, call and look over our large list of choice building sites, in all parts of the city.

We call attention particularly to the normal school district, from Twenty-first avenue east to Twenty-seventh avenue east, and from Second street to Fifth street. We are exclusive agents for a large amount of property in this district, which is sold with clause in the deeds, restricting the use of each tract to the building of one modern residence only, and prohibiting its use for mercantile buildings, flats or apartment houses. This protects purchasers of these lots and assures them of a desirable residence district for all time. Building is cheaper this year and now is the time to get your site. DO IT NOW.

On some of these sites we can arrange to build to suit you, and sell on favorable terms..

We are about to build three 7-room brick houses on attractive East end sites, and which we can sell on easy terms of payment. Will be pleased to show the preliminary plans which may be changed to suit purchasers before buildings are commenced.

THIRD MAN ARRESTED.

Charged With Complicity in Robbery of the Morgan House.

London, May 2.—A third man was arrested here today charged with complicity in the jewelry robbery from the residence of Mrs. David P. Morgan in New York last March. His name is William Wilson, and he was brought up in the Bow Street police court today and remanded. His two accomplices are Claude J. Heretier and William O'Connell. One was arrested in London and the other in Liverpool, and both of them have been previously remanded.

Heretier was a butler in the Morgan home. He and O'Connell had many loose diamonds in their possession when apprehended.

After his arrest Wilson confessed to participation in the robbery. Fourteen of the diamonds were found on him.

SEARCH FO ROLD MAN.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 2.—Searching parties headed by policemen are hunting for Edward Lunney, a well-known pioneer resident, who mysteriously disappeared from his home Tuesday night and has not since been heard from. It is believed he was temporarily mentally unbalanced, and may have wandered into the woods. He was 65 years old.

EXCAVATIONS MADE FOR SPLENDID NEW STRUCTURE ON SUPERIOR STREET

The excavation for the foundation of the Folz block, at the southeast corner of Superior street and Second avenue east, is well under way by J. D. Molitor & Bros., which firm has the contract for the construction of the building. The Folz block will be one of the important East Superior street improvements of recent years..

Although it will be only three stories high when completed, under the present contract, the foundations will be heavy enough to carry a five-story building, the plans being to have a five-story building some time in the future.

The improvement will cost about $50,000, and it is to be completed by Nov. 1 next.

The Folz block will have four stories on Michigan street, owing to the grade at Second avenue east.

The foundations will be of concrete to the basement floor and a portion of the basement walls will be of the same material.

The exterior walls will be faced with light-colored brick, similar to what used in the Wolvin building. The trimmings will be of red sandstone, from Portage Entry, smooth faced and with a neat design of mouldings to harmonize with the galvanized iron cornice design.

The walls of the second story will have broad pilasters, not so pretentious as to overburden the appearance of the building, but enough to give a pleasing effect.

The plans, which were prepared by A. Terryberry, the architect, show a wide double entrance from Superior street, one set of doors to the meat market and one to the grocery store. The front and a portion of the avenue will have full light glass windows and prismatic lights in the upper part.

The exterior walls will be brick and the interior of steel construction. Steel trusses will support the roof, so that the third floor may be designed for a hall, if desired.

The steam heating plant will be located in the sub-basement.

The interior will be finished in hardwood and yellow pine. The building will have the latest lighting and sanitary arrangements.

IOWA PASTOR DISMISSED.

Charges of Conduct Unbecoming Minister and of Immorality.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 2.—Iowa Congregational circles are all torn up over the dismissal from the church of Rev. J. H. Dimmitt, formerly pastor of the Congregational church at Valley Junction and a leading minister in the state. Charges of conduct unbecoming a minister and of immorality formed the foundation of the minister's dismissal. Rev. Mr. Dimmitt was formerly pastor of the Methodist church at Donnelson, Iowa. He was expelled from that church because of charges of immorality, and then he joined the Congregationalists, first preaching at Marshalltown. He was twice married, both wives dying shortly after the ceremony in each instance.

Rev Mr. Dimmitt was preaching at Valley Junction when a telegram was delivered to him telling him of the death of his second wife at Marshalltown. He read the message, then thrust it into his pocket and continued the sermon to the end, not stopping to explain to the hearers the import of the telegram.

RACING IN MEXICO CITY

Speeding of Bang-Tails to be Fostered in Republic.

Question of Eligibility for Derby Concerning Jockey Club.

It is only a matter of a short while before horse racing will be firmly established as one of the sports and pastimes of the Mexican republic. In Mexico City or adjacent to it an immense tract of land has been bought on which to hold race meetings. The Mexican Jockey club has been formed and a Derby announced for this season.

The matter now under consideration by the executive committee of the club concerns the horses that shall be eligible for the Derby. An investigation is on foot to determine the number of eligible colts in the country. There are enough for a Derby race this year, but as the promoters of the racing venture are desirous that candidates for the 1910 Derby shall be Mexican bred, the committee deems it advisable that at least 100 subscribers shall nominate foals in order to insure a good field of starters.

Should it be found by the committee that there are not enough eligibles now in Mexico, there will be some provisions made in the conditions of the race for the importation of horses. One suggestion made is that only bona fide Mexican breeders shall be allowed to import horses from the United States and elsewhere for the race, and that there shall be no restrictions on them when the horses shall be brought into Mexico Another proposition is that the importation of yearlings for the 1910 Derby be allowed. This plan would obviate the probability of the richest man taking the first big Mexican "classic." The best yearling does not always develop into the greatest race horse.

The new track will be located at Colonia Condesa, a few miles outside of the city. The plot of land contains 470,000 square metres. On it will be erected a fine clubhouse, an immense grandstand and second and third class inclosures. The main track will be an elliptical course of one mile and a half, with a straightaway of 900 metres.

The spring meeting this year will be held over the old Peralvillo track. The racing dates will include four Sundays. In Mexico, like in many European countries, the first day of the week is not observed as the Sabbath after the noon hour.

Under the new regime it is expected that the class of racing will show marked improvement over the kind which heretofore has prevailed. During the last three months many additions to the strings of race horses and the breeding farms have been made by importations of thoroughbreds from the United States by wealthy Mexicans.

The best jockey in Mexico is Willie Shea, an American. He followed Patsy McCue as the pilot of R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s horses on the Mexican tracks. Shea is considered as being pounds the best rider in the Mexican republic. The other notable rider and Shea's most formidable rival is J. Osmer, who has just returned from Europe, where he rode all last season against the best French and German jockeys and such American artists of the pigskin as W. Shaw, Fred Taral, "Winnie" O'Connor and T. Burns.

POTATO CROP IS BOUNTIFUL

New York is Getting a Large Supply of the Tubers.

New York, May 2.—New York city is to have more than an ample supply of the new crop of potatoes and the market will be stocked with the tubers in larger quantities than the normal for May. Crops are ripening rapidly and increasing supplies are coming in from fields at home and abroad. The total receipts now amount to about 11,000 barrels a day.

There has been a strong downward tendency in prices all this week and they will continue to go off until the height of the new season. This is particularly true of the old crop. The best new stock from Florida is remaining firmest, while the Bermuda supply is cheapening noticeably.

Most of the supply being consumed in the metropolis today is from the old Maine crop, and the dealers are paying $2.40 to $2.50 for them. Those from Long Island and other nearby points are selling in bulk at from $2.25 to $2.40 for 180 pounds, while those from the West are a trifle lower.

Many of the potatoes coming from Europe are of particularly fine quality and are being sought by the best trade. They are being sold to the dealers in 168-pound bags at from $2.20 to $2.30. The No. 1 Bermuda crop is going to the dealers at from $5.50 to $6.50 a barrel.

"The bigger advertising" precedes and prepares the way for the "bigger store."

RAILROADS

REBALLAST NEW ROAD

Work on Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg to Begin Soon.

Line East of Pelican Lake Will be Gone Over.

The work of ballasting and smoothing the road bed of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway will begin within a few days. The spring thaw, which works queer freaks of shifting roadbeds on every roads, has done its work on the level stretch of the D. R. L. & W. railway, and it will require some work before the roadbed is in the shape that the officials desire.

Most of the roadbed of the D. R. L. & W. railway is in very good condition. Most of it is very level and smooth. Some of the road that runs through the low ground has, however, become depressed, and the work of leveling and ballasting will engage the attention of the construction crews for the next two weeks.

A large crew is already at work on the road, but it is probable that additional men will be put on during the next two weeks, when the work of ballasting and relevelling is fully begun. From Pelican Lake west, a great amount of work will be done on the line, the roadbed east from that point being in very little need of extensive improvements.

Freight over the road is already beginning to show an increase, so that the officials of the road are anxious to complete the ballasting and relevelling as soon as possible.

FOR BENEFIT OF SPORTSMEN.

New Time Card of Iron Range Goes Into Effect.

The Duluth & Iron Range railroad has issued a new time table, effective Sunday, May 3, whereby the Sunday train is arranged to meet the requirements of the large and growing number of fishermen and people who wish to leave the city for the day during the summer months, to enjoy the freedom of an outing along the north shore streams for several miles, up to and above Two Harbors. It will be possible, under the new time table, to leave Duluth at 7:45 a. m., reaching any desired place at an early hour, giving a good long day there, and returning arrive at Duluth at 6:45 p. m.

This arrangements of the Sunday train will be greatly appreciated by fishermen and other sportsmen.

FORCE REDUCED.

Department Force of Great Northern Railway is Cut.

St. Paul, May 2.—There have been a number of changes made in the force at the general office of the Great Northern railway of late, chiefly in the way of a reduction in the number of employes.

Officials of the road, while admitting that there has been a gradual reduction in the force, declined to state how many employes have been dropped, but it is learned today from a reliable source that with the close of April, the following reductions were made: Car service department, 22; engineering department, 17; freight traffic department, 7; claim department, 2; advertising department, 5.

L. E. Clark, advertising manager of the road was among the number.

In the accounting department the force has been undergoing a steady reduction since last fall. Just what the total number of men dropped from that department was, could not be learned, but it is said to have been about forty.

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

May Closes a Point Up in the Duluth Market.

Flax is Little Easier at End of Quiet Session.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 2.—Wheat went higher during the short session in the American markets today. Manipulation in Chicago May continued and the rest of the markets bulged, too, although not altogether on the activity in Chicago, for the news favored higher prices and the situation seemed legitimately bullish.

The Armour crowd are supposed to have been behind the bull movement again today. All the active options on this side of the Atlantic banged, but they lost some of the advance before the close, which, however, was very strong as compared with yesterday. New York May showed the biggest gain, but that market closes an hour earlier than Duluth on Saturday. The session ended in Gotham when the market was at the top level.

While the other markets were following Chicago to some extent, there was an improvement in the domestic and foreign demand, prospects of small world's shipments and the cables had a distinctly bullish tone.

Foreigners are still buying American wheat. Sixteen loads of durum and one load of Manitoba wheat were worked for export during the session in Duluth.

Minneapolis stocks decreased 1,240,000 bus., for the week and Duluth stocks will show a decrease of 1,700,000 bus., as stated yesterday. The Minneapolis stocks now total at 4,960,645 bus., against 11,082,000 bus., a year ago.

Liverpool closed unchanged to ¼d higher, Berlin unchanged, Budapest 2½c higher and Paris unchanged to ¾c lower.

The May option closed ½c higher in Duluth, 1½c higher in Chicago, ¾c higher in Minneapolis, 3c higher in New York and ¾c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅜c higher in Duluth, ¾-⅞c higher in Chicago, ⅞c higher in Minneapolis, 1⅛c higher in New York, and ⅞c higher in Winnipeg.

May corn closed 1¾c higher in Chicago and ¼d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅜c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat was quiet at the opening and about ¼d higher. Offerings were light and support quiet. The weakness in America late yesterday was offset by the expectations of small world's shipments this week, and fears that Armens is manipulating. There were few sellers, and at the close prices showed an additional gain of ¼d, being at this time unchanged to ¼d up from Friday.

"Corn was quiet at the start and unchanged and followed by an advance of ¼d. The strength was attributed to nervousness among shorts and the forecast of very small shipments to Liverpool."

Car receipts at Duluth were 47 against 116 last year, and at Minneapolis 141 against 306 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 191 against 502 last year. Chicago received 19 against 25 last year, Winnipeg received 76 against 273 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 318,000 bus, last year 829,000 bus. Shipments 631,000 bus, last year 480,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 235,355 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 285,000 bus, last year 571,000 bus. Shipments 668,000 bus, last year 416,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 110,596 bus.

Wheat was dull in Duluth but the tone was very firm. May wheat opened ⅝c higher at $1.04⅛, advanced to $1.05¼, and declined by the close to $1.04⅞, a gain of 1c over yesterday. July wheat opened ¼c higher at $1.04⅝, advanced to $1.05, declined to $1.04⅞, rallied to $1.05⅛ and closed at $1.05⅛, a gain of ⅜c over yesterday. September wheat was inactive and closed ⅜c higher than yesterday at 91¼c.

Durum wheat closed 1c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 3c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was dull and displayed a weaker undertone. May flax opened ¼c lower at $1.19½ bid, advanced to $1.19¾ and closed at $1.19⅜, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. July flax opened ½c lower at $1.21, advanced to $1.21½ and closed at $1.21⅜, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. September flax was inactive and closed ¼c lower than yesterday at $1.22¼. October flax was inactive and closed ⅛c lower at $1.21⅜.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Cold Weather in Southwest and Good Demand Gives Wheat Strength.

Chicago, May 2.—Cold weather in the Southwest and a lively demand for cash wheat at Northwestern markets had a strengthening effect today on the local wheat market. The volume of trade, however, was small. Commission houses were the principal bidders. July opened ⅛@¼c to ⅛@⅝c higher at 88⅜@89¼c, and, for a time held within that range. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 210 cars against 121 cars last week and 525 cars a year ago.

The market held steady throughout the day. The close was firm with July ¾c higher at 89⅝c.

Corn was firm on a fair demand by cash houses. Firm cables and small local receipts were the chief bullish factors. July opened a shade to ⅛@⅜c higher at 64@64¼c and sold at 64⅜c. Local receipts were 113 cars with 20 of contract grade.

Prices ruled firm until the close, and held up despite considerable selling for profit. The close was strong with July ¾c higher at 64¼@64⅝c.

Oats were dull and firm. The market was influenced mainly by wheat and corn. July opened ⅛c higher at 46⅝c and sold at 46⅜c. Local receipts were 165 cars.

Provisions opened weak on selling based on liberal receipts of live hogs at all Western packing centers. Later prices rallied a little on covering by shorts. July pork opened 2½@5c lower at $13.30 @13.32½ and sold up to $13.42½. Lard was off 2½@5c at $8.40. Ribs were 2½@5c lower at $7.12½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.03½; July, 89⅜c; September, 87⅝@88c. Corn—May, 63c to 63⅝c; July, 64¼@64⅜c; September, 62½@62⅝c. Oats—May old, 53½c; May, 52c; July old, 46⅞@47c; July, 45⅞c. Pork—May, $13.10; July, $13.40; September, $13.72½. Lard—May, $8.30; July, $8.45; September, $8.60@8.62½. Ribs—May, $6.97½; July, $7.22½; September, $7.47½@7.50. Rye—Cash, 81c. Barley—Cash, 64@72c. Timothy—May, $4.25. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.02@1.02; No. 3 red, 97c@$1.04; No. 2 hard, $1.01½@1.09; No. 3 hard, 97c@$1.05; No. 3 spring, 99c@$1.11.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Opens Quiet, But Soon Shows Increased Strength.

Minneapolis, May 2.—Minneapolis elevator stocks decreased by 1,238,490 bushels for the week, leaving 4,999,646 bushels in store here. This is 6,082,339 bushels less than a year ago. The contract stocks at 2,584,391 bushels are 3,707,841 bushels below last year's. Receipts here today were 144 cars against 306 and in Duluth 47 against 196. The market opened quiet, but soon turned strong.

May opened at $1.06⅞; high, $1.07¼; low, $1.06⅜; close, $1.07. July closed at $1.06¾. September closed at 90⅝c.

The cash wheat market was partly on the May and partly on July basis, No. 1 being 1½@2c over May and 2c over July in different parts of the market. No. 2 was quoted at about ½c under May. Cash closed—No. 1 northern, spot, $1.08¾@$1.08¾. To arrive, $1.08¼; No. 2 northern, $1.06¼@6⅜; spot, $1.06¼. No. 3 wheat, 99c@$1.04. No. 3 yellow corn, 67¼@67¾c. No. 3 white oats, 49¾@7¾c; No. 2 rye, 74¾@75¾c.

The market was dull and easy in tone. Close, 55@56c.

Flax was quoted on basis of Duluth July at 1 cent under for No. 1 here. Close, $1.20⅛.

Bran in bulk quoted by millers at $21.00 @21.25 and in fair demand, but not so active as yesterday.

Flour demand was irregular and spotted. Some localities sent large orders and business from other localities was very light. Some of the millers found demand a little better, others could find no improvement and some said it was lower. Shipments, 56,333 barrels. First patents, $5.45@5.60; second patents, $5.35@5.50; first clears, $4.20@4.30; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The rally continued for the first hour, but profit-taking forced a recession toward the close. We understand that another important bond issue may come out next week and this will make more activity in the stock market. Good buying of the coppers still continues, and we have no hesitation in advising their purchase. Superior was manipulated up to 19½, but the market is poor in it and we think it should certainly be sold and the money put into Lake or Shannon or Butte Coalition.

SIMPLE.

Pittsburg Index: Wilson: Here's a problem for you, old man. A donkey was tied to a rope, six feet long; eighteen feet away there was a bundle of hay, and the donkey wanted to get at the hay. How did he manage it?

Sharp: Oh, I've heard that one before. You want me to say, "I give it up," and you'll say, "So did the donkey."

Wilson: Not at all.

Sharp: Then, how did he do it?

Wilson: Just walked up to the hay and ate it.

Sharp: But you said he was tied to a rope six feet long.

Wilson: So he was. But, you see, the rope wasn't tied to anything. Quite simple, isn't it?

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Close Was Unsettled and Weak at Near Lowest Point.

Number of Small Losses Established in Active Stocks.

New York, May 2.—Opening dealings in stocks today were active and prices advanced briskly all around. Stocks which have been conspicuous of late held their prominent position. Great Northern preferred advanced 1¼, Union Pacific, St. Paul, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Northern Pacific 1⅛, Southern Pacific and General Electric 1 and Missouri Pacific, Norfolk & Western and American Smelting large fractions.

Substantial buying orders were placed in many stocks which caused a general extension of the opening advances and brought prices in many cases a point or more above yesterday's closing. St. Paul, Union Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio were the most actively dealt in and made the best show of strength. Realizing took the edge off the advance at the close of the hour and the market became quiet on the reaction.

The market closed unsettled and weak. Trading was quiet at slight recessions during the second hour. Missouri Pacific made a gain of 2⅝ and K. & T. preferred, 1½; Central Leather preferred, 2¼. New York, Chicago & St. Louis first preferred sold at an advance of 15 and Twin City Rapid Transit preferred, 3. North American and Mackay companies preferred declined 1 and Lake Erie & Western preferred, 2. The downward tendency was emphasized toward the last and a number of small losses were established in active stocks.

PACKEY HAS NO MANAGER

McFarland and Gilmore Part on the Best of Terms.

Stockyards Youth Has No More Use for Financial Man.

Chicago, May 2.—Packey McFarland, Chicago's pugilist idol and probably the greatest fighter this city has turned out in years, and Harry Gilmore, his manager, perhaps the keenest, cleverest and most enterprising manager in pugilism today, have parted. There is no ill feeling between the two men, nor has there been any financial trouble or misunderstanding between them. McFarland has the highest regard for his former manager and lauds him for his good work, but the Chicago scrapper believes he has entered that stage in pugilism where he can handle his own affairs and have that share of the purses that goes to a manager.

The news of their parting came to young Gilmore like a streak of lightning out of the clear sky and he is still stunned by the blow.

Speaking of the change, McFarland says:

"I have the highest regard for Harry Gilmore that anyone can hold. He acted for me as a father, he fought for my interests as no other man could fight, he was out for McFarland first, last and all time and I never want to forget his kindness, but feel that I am able to do my own business now. We have always been thick friends and I want to continue as such.

"There are but two more fights that I care for and then my pugilistic career will be ended, and I feel that I can handle these two without the aid of a manager. I want to fight Nelson, for I know he is easy for me. Then I will take on Gans and my career will be at an end. It is the wish of my mother that I quit the fighting game and I want to grant her that request. It's up to me to get all the money I can out of the game now and the percentage that a manager would get will come in mighty handy. I have a few weeks theatrical engagements on and when these are ended Nelson will likely be ready for me. I might take on Gans in July.

"I hope I can impress upon the minds of the public the story that there is nothing between Harry and me that causes the parting. He is a clever manager, as honest as the day is long, as shrewd as they make them and as enterprising as ever a man dared to be. For gameness he has no equal and any man who is fortunate enough to secure Gilmore as a manager will not regret the move. It was with grief that I sent the word that we must part, but I did it in the interests of Packey McFarland."

Gilmore has worked hard and untiringly for McFarland and his work will likely not have been in vain. There are several good fighters in the world today who might do equally as well as McFarland has done, under Harry's management.

PROVISION IS CALLED GRAFT

But Tawney Declares That the Charges Are False.

Washington, May 2.—Representative Carey of Milwaukee has created a sensation by declaring that the biggest congressional joker of the season is contained in the sundry civil bill, whereby the government is authorized to contract for the electric lighting of its big buildings in Washington with a private corporation.

At present the government operates its own lighting plants. Mr. Carey says that the item as reported by the committee is a big scheme, and he will expose it on the floor of the house. Representative J. A. Tawney of Minnesota, chairman of the house appropriation committee, was interviewed, and did not mince his words in criticising the charges made by Representative Carey.

"The government will be able to purchase its electric light and power 30 per cent cheaper than it costs at present if the provision of the sundry civil bill authorizing a contract with the electric lighting company becomes a law. The charge that this provision will put the government at the mercy of the company is an absolute absurdity," said Mr. Tawney.

"I know that as soon as this provision was inserted in the bill there would be a howl of this kind. A measure which will reduce or change in any way the forces which are employed by the government is sure to cause criticism from the persons affected and their friends. This provision will do away with the plants operatated in the different government buildings, and the persons employed in these plants will not be required any longer.

"By this provision in the bill the Potomac Electrical Power company is to furnish every government building in the district with light and power, both those which now exist and those which are to be built. The contract is for ten years, but there is a provision that the government shall be empowered to break this contract after one year's notice.

A big fight is in prospect when the matter comes up in the house.

IOWAN FACES CHARGE OF $27,000 SHORTAGE.

Sac City, Iowa, May.—Following the accusation by the board of county commissioners that he is $27,000 short in his accounts, County Treasurer Will H. Pettis, has resigned his office. The county board, which has been making an examination of Pettis' accounts for several days, has engaged an expert accountant to go over their figures and verify them. In the meantime the office is closed, but it is expected the board soon will appoint his successor.

Pettis, who is an old settler and a widely respectd man denies the truth of the accusations of the county solons. He says he is satisfied his accounts will show no error, but declares that if they do, he is ready to turn in his valuable farm to make good any shortage.

The affair has created a sensation throughout Sac county.

FOOTBOARD WAS ROTTEN

Switchman Sues Northern Lumber Company for $50,500

Board Broke and He Was Dragged Under Engine.

Because, he claims, the footboard of an engine, which he attempted to board from the front, June 1, 1907, was unsafe and he was thrown beneath the engine and dragged about 100 feet, John Skender wants $50,500 damages from the Northern Lumber company, by which concern he was employed near Mountain Iron as a brakeman. Frank H. Gilmore, superintendent of the company's works at Mountain Iron, is cited as a codefendant.

Skender, who was 21 years old at the time, was frightfully mangled, according to the complaint filed this morning with the clerk of the district court, by J. De La Mott, his attorney. On account of the injuries received, his right leg was amputated six inches from the body and it was necessary to take ten strips of skin from other parts of his body to graft over a hole in his breast, twelve inches in diameter, caused by contact with the engine while he was being dragged along the track.

The complaint charges that the company was negligent in failing to provide a safe footboard on the front of the engine, and no side board at all. Skender charges that he had thrown a switch and then stepped on the footboard of the approaching engine, his right foot going through and he being dragged along the track. Negligence on the part of the engineer in failing to see that the man had boarded the engine properly and not stopping it immediately, is also charged. Actual damages of $50,000 are asked and $500 for loss of time and medical attendance.

SUPERIOR NEWS

MAY PROVE FATAL.

Drinking Bout Likely to Result in Death of Participant.

Because he tried to win a $1 wager by drinking a pint and a half of whisky and three quarts of beer, James McFarlane, a Superior hack driver, is lying at the point of death at the home of Henry C. Beck, proprietor of the livery stable where the man was employed. McFarlane won the wager, but collapsed immediately afterwards, and the attending physicians say he may die.

McFarlane was arrested at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. There was a call for the patrol at Winter street and Tower avenue. McFarlane was taken on there, helplessly intoxicated. He was carried into a cell, where he lay as an ordinary drunk. Shortly after this Mr. Beck learned of the wager, and, fearing his employe might feel some evil effects, hastened to the station house. McFarlane seemed to be in dying condition, and Dr. C. H. Mason was summoned.

The police say McFarlane had been drinking with a party of men in a saloon in the vicinity of Eighth street and Tower avenue. One of the men is said to have offered to bet McFarlane $1 that he could not drink three old-fasshioned cocktail glasses full of whisky and three quarts of beer for a "wash." McFarlane is said to have covered the bet and won the money. After he drank the last of the beer he walked to the street and fell in a heap. The man is 42 years of age. The police are making a further investigation of the matter.

IN NEW BUILDING.

Removal of Postoffice to Federal Building is Completed.

The Superior postoffice is now comfortably located in the new federal building, and customs officers will complete the removal of their office fixtures, etc., today.

Yesterday was the first day for the postoffice in its new location, but business ran along without interruption, and not a single delivery was missed. Nell Hughes was the first carrier to start out with a delivery of mail from the new structure.

Employes of the postoffice department formed in line and marched to music from the old building to the new. It is estimated that since the building was opened for inspection Tuesday night at least 20,000 people have visited and looked over the structure.

A BLIND PIG.

Man and Woman, Charged With Conducting One, Arrested.

Charged with conducting a blind pig at 1409 Third street, Charles Amery and Maude Brooks were arrested by the Superior police yesterday. They pleaded not guilty to the charge, when arraigned in municipal court. Amery furnished $100 bail, but the woman did not have the necessary cash, and she will be held until Monday afternoon, when her case will come up for trial.

Amery runs a confectionery store at the number indicated, and the Brooks woman is employed as a clerk there. William Armstrong, a marine fireman, reported to the police that he became intoxicated in the store on beer purchased there, that while in this condition he was robbed of $40. A stool pigeon sent to the place by the police succeeded in buying half a dozen bottles of beer. It is claimed this was brought from a nearby saloon, and that therefore the license laws were not broken.

McGinnis President.

Alderman Maurice McGinnis was elected president of the board of health at the first meeting of the new board last evening. The reorganization of the board, and the awarding of scavenger contracts for the ensuing year, made up the principal business to come before the meeting.

M. J. Clark Dies.

Michael J. Clark, a well known contractor and one of the pioneer residents of Superior, died at his home, 910 Sixteenth street, at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Clark had been sick for several months. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

MINOT PIONEER DIES.

Minot, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—John McJannett, a native of Clifford, Ont., aged 48, who came to North Dakota about thirty years ago, first locating in Grand Forks, and came here in 1886, when the then Manitoba railroad reached Minot, and has seen the city grow from a handful to one of the foremost cities in the state, is dead of tuberculosis. He has been engaged in the mercantile business and served as county and city treasurer and member of the school board. He was a prominent Mason, and the funeral will be held from the Masonic temple on Monday, at 10 o'clock, Rev. W. H. Hunter officiating. Mr. McJannett is survived by his wife, his parents living at Clifford, and several sisters and brothers.

ITALIAN FOUND WITH BULLET THROUGH HEART.

Seattle, Wash., May 2.—The body of Dominick Carlino, a young Italian, was found in the street, here, early this with a bullet hole through the heart, and the clothing, principally around the waist, badly torn. The police believe that he wore a money belt around his waist and that this was cut away from him by his assailants. A bloody knife and a old black slouch hat, found near the body, are the only clues the police have. Carlino was here on a visit to a cousin. His death occurred in the heart of the Italian colony.

GIVES PLACE TO RED HEAD.

Eighteen Titian-Haired Girls Compete for Position at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 2.—A remarkable contest, in which only red-headed girls were allowed to compete, has just been finished in a big department store, where the manager inserted an ad for a bookkeeper, and specified that she must be red-headed, Irish preferred. Eighteen red-headed girls answered the ad. Simmons selecting Beatrice Lewis of Colfax. The contest attracted unusual attention because of the assertion made by Simmons that red-headed girls, particularly the Irish, are more alert than any others.

England's Navy the Best.

England not only possesses the biggest and most powerful warships, but also has afloat the fastest fleet of destroyers in the world. They also make the claim that they are more nearly ready for war than any other nation. The claim that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a wonderful remedy for ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels is clearly proven by the record of cures made during the past fifty-four years, but it will be more clearly proven to you, individually, if you will only try one bottle as soon as you notice any symptoms of sick headache, loss of appetite, dyspepsia, indigestion, costiveness, biliousness, kidney troubles, sleeplessness, female ills, general weakness or malaria, fever and ague. Insist on having Hostetter's, and don't accept any substitute. All druggists.

BOY DIES AFTER BEING STRUCK BY POP BOTTLE.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 2.—A 13-year-old boy, William Haverkamp, died today as a result of being struck on the head during yesterday's local central league ball game, by a pop bottle thrown from above him in the bleachers. Edward Parke is under arrest, charged with having thrown the bottle, intending it for a crowd of boys, whose antics in front of the bleacher annoyed the spectators.

MURPHY CASE TRANSFERRED.

Fargo, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Maj. John S. Murphy of Minot, who was convicted of forgery, after two trials, will be tried next time in the district court of Nelson county, before Judge C. F. Templeton. Judge C. A. Pollock, before adjourning court here, having granted the change of venue because an affidavit of prejudice was filed against him. The trial of Murphy has been one of the rather noted actions tried in North Dakota of late, and the third trial will be watched with interest.

Judge Pollock has planned to leave for the East on an extended vacation.

PRINCE HELIE DE SAGAN TO TURN PROTESTANT.

Rome, May 2.—One of the greatest difficulties in the way of a marriage between Prince Helie de Sagan and Mme. Anna Gould is the fact that the Catholic church, not recognizing divorce, has refused to annul Mme. Gould's first marriage. The prince is determined to marry Mme. Gould, and to this end he has decided to turn Protestant. This will enable the couple to be united by both a civil and religious marriage ceremony. If the prince remained a Catholic there could be no religious marriage and consequently his wife would not be accepted by society.

GUIDE TO DISASTER

Is Bryan, and That is Why The World Boomed Johnson.

Governor Would Appeal to Masses as None Since Lincoln.

Washington, May 2.—The New York World, in an editorial leader, discusses Governor Johnson's candidacy and the charge so freely made in Minnesota and elsewhere by Bryanites, to the effect that Johnson is the candidate of "the interests." The editorial commences with referring to Johnson's statement denying that Wall street or James J. Hill have had anything to do with his candidacy.

"The denial is superfluous," says the World, and it adds that Bryan and his press agents are responsible for it, although not themselves believing what Bryan says.

From this beginning the World goes on to say that there is no more mystery about the Johnson candidacy than about that of Bryan. Casual references to the governor's availability were made as early as 1906, says the World, but his name was first prominently brought to the attention of the country by the Charleston News and Courier, after which, in the summer of 1907, Col. Watterson came to his support, although at first concealing his identity.

Why World Urged Johnson.

The World explains as follows how it came to take up Johnson:

"When the World early last winter began the serious presentation of Governor Johnson's qualifications, it did so only after careful investigation of the relative availability of a large number of eminent Democrats. Mr. Bryan, beginning with his return from Europe in 1906, had gone from blunder to blunder and from folly to folly, until it was apparent that his nomination would mean another overwhelming defeat. So far as it lay in his power, he had committed the Democratic party to government ownership of railroads and initiative and referendum. He had exonerated Mr. Roosevelt from all responsibility for the panic. He had indorsed the Roosevelt administration to such an extent that there was no organized opposition left to maintain that balance so essential to the welfare of Republican government.

Merely Sought a Winner.

"In the belief that Mr. Bryan should not be nominated, and that the Democratic party, if it had sense, could find a candidate who would hold out some prospect of victory, the World began its search. Our first intentions were not toward Governor Johnson, but thorough inquiry into his political status convinced us that he would undoubtedly be the strongest candidate Democrats could name.

"We found that his reputation was spotless; that there were no weak places in his record; that his intellectual development since his first election had been extraordinary; that his popularity was very great; that he was gifted with genius of common sense, and that he could appeal to the imagination of the masses, perhaps as no other candidate since Lincoln has been able to do. This investigation proved to the satisfaction of the World that Johnson could carry every state which Bryan could carry, that he could carry states which Bryan could not carry, and that he could give hope to the Democratic party in states in which Bryan's candidacy would mean a Republican walkover.

The Guide to Disaster.

"Accordingly, the World began to urge Governor Johnson's nomination both editorially and in its pamphlet, 'The Lay of Bryanism,' and it was done without advice from anybody and without regard to anybody's opinions but our own. Nobody connected with the editorial management of the World knows Governor Johnson or ever saw him. If Wall street and James J. Hill have anything to do with his candidacy, as Mr. Bryan is so fond of insinuating, the World has yet to find evidence of it, and so has Mr. Bryan. The World did not expect to convince Mr. Bryan that Governor Johnson should be nominated. All we have undertaken to do is to show Democrtas of the country that Bryan's nomination means certain defeat, while Johnson's nomination would give the Democratic party a fighting chance. If the Democrats do not want a fighting chance, if they prefer defeat, demoralization and a Republican administration, then William J. Bryan, as experience has proved, is an infallible guide to Democratic disaster."

HEARING FOR RELEASE OF HARRY THAW BEGINS IN POUGHKEEPSIE COURT

Patient is Brought to City by Superintendent of Asylum.

Will be Confined in Jail Until Case is Decided.

Wife Will Testify in His Hearing if Necessary.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 4.—As a result of today's proceedings to secure the release of Harry Thaw from the Matteawan insane asylum, it was decided that Thaw shall not be returned to the asylum while the hearing is in progress, but shall be confined in the Dutchess county jail. Thaw expressed peasure at this decision.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 4.—The court convened in the supervisor's room in the courthouse to hear arguments in Thaw's writ of habeas corpus. As the capacity of the room is not more than 200, cards of admission were issued by Sheriff Chanler, and only those holding tickets were admitted. A score of women were among the spectators.

Harry Thaw reached the court room at 10:45. He was in the custody of Dr. Amos T. Baker, acting superintendent of the Matteawan asylum and two attendants.

Thaw Looks Well.

Thaw looked rugged and well and his color indicated that he has had plenty of outdoor life at Matteawan. He took a seat at the counsel table with his lawyers and at once entered into earnest conversation with Mr. Graham, who is in charge of the habeas corpus proceedings. A private detective sat behind Thaw and was joined later by Roger O'Meara, the Pittsburg detective, who helped in the preparation of Thaw's defense. Thaw toyed nervously with his handkerchief while

PARENTS RELEASED

No Evidence Connecting Them With Death of Child.

Bachman, Who Killed the Girl, is Held for Trial.

Easton, Pa., May 4.—Henry Smith and his wife, parents of Irene Smith, the girl who was strangled to death by Robert Bachman while in a religious frenzy at Nazareth, last Monday night, were today released from the Northampton county prison on the order of Judge Scott, who held there was no evidence to connect them with the death of the child. Mrs. Bachman also was released on the same ground. The writs of habeas corpus granted on Saturday were returned in court today, and after brief statements by counsel for the prisoners, the judge made his ruling. The Smiths and Mrs. Bachman were held on $3,000 bail, however, to appear as witnesses against Bachman, when he is called for trial.

Bachman's brother, a wealthy and prominent cement manufacturer, is on his way east from California, and it is said he will put up a strong fight in defense of the prisoner. It is reported that the defense will ask for a change of venue, on the ground that public sentiment in Northampton county is so strong against Bachman that he might not receive a fair and impartial trail.

SWITCHMEN ARE INJURED

Engine Jumps Track and Tilts Over in St Paul Yards.

St. Paul, May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A locomotive, backing through the Minnesota transfer yards, last night without warning jumped the track and tilted to one side, injuring three switchmen, who were riding on the footboard. The victims are D. C. Bardwell, 689 Pelham street, St. Anthony Park; F. B. Carter, 155 Hawthorne avenue, and H. H. Blayburn, 692 Washington avenue south, Minneapolis. The men were hurled from the board. Bardwell struck on his head in the roadbed and was knocked unconscious, a sharp stone cutting a deep gash in his scalp. Blayburn fell upon Bardwell and was somewhat bruised. Carter's foot was caught between the rails and tender and injured and he received a number of bad bruises. Bardwell and Carter were taken to the Cobb hospital. Blayburn was taken to his home by the Prior avenue police.

CAUSED MUCH TROUBLE.

Man Who Confessed Many Things, Put in an Asylum.

Middletown, N. Y., May 4.—Stewart B. Mills of New Hampton, this county, who has caused much trouble to the postal authorities and local police by asserting he was a great criminal, has been committed to the Middletown State hospital for the insane. He is about 30 years old. He recently made voluntary confession that he had robbed the postoffice at Mountainville, Orange county, by blowing up the safe. He also confessed to the robbing of two stores at Cornwall, and said that his conscience bothered him.

The postal authorities were notified it was found that the burglaries had taken place as Mills stated, but there was no evidence to connect him with the crimes. He has continued to make confessions, and at last it was decided that he was insane.

LAUNDRYMEN ARE MADE WELCOME

Fargo's Mayor Gives Glad Hand to Big Meeting.

Fargo, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.) — The Northwestern Laundrymen's association, which embraces the state associations of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and the two Dakotas, is in session in Fargo. The meeting will continue till tomorrow evening. There are nearly 200 delegate to the association, and in addition the North Dakota association and that of Northern Minnesota are both holding meetings here. The latter was scheduled to meet at Crookston, but adjourned to this city.

Mayor Elliott made the welcoming speech this morning and H. H. Bell of Minneapolis responded. Following this the annual address and report of the president, W. B. Webster of St. Paul, was presented and it showed the growth of the organization in a most satisfactory manner.

This afternoon a feature event was an address by the president of the national organization, Mr. Cooper of Cleveland, Ohio. His effort was an instructive and entertaining one, and he reviewed the work of the different organizations over the country and what was being accomplished by his.

Following him there were addresses by H. O. Bernitrock, Waterloo, Iowa; C. A. Ransom, Albert Lea, Minn.; H. R. Fish, Redfield, S. D., and W. A. Webster, Minneapolis

There will be a banquet this evening at which Former Mayor Sweet of this city will act as toastmaster. This will be followed by a theatrical performance. Tomorrow morning will be devoted to an interesting program and in the afternoon the annual election of officers will occur.

FURNISH "BABY" BEEF.

Swift & Co. to Provide Prime Beef From Calves.

St. Paul, Minn., May 4.—In order to remove the prejudices of farmers that calves absorb all the nourishment they receive for growth without putting on fat, Swift & Co. have been carrying on an interesting series of experiments in the production of "baby beef" at their St. Paul plant.

The company's buyers selected fifty-one calves ranging in age from 6 to 8 months and averaging 625 pounds in weight. Their feed yard was inclosed on the north side by a shed, the entire south side of which was open. This shelter amply protected the calves from the snows and the cold north winds.

Feeding commenced on the 1st of last November, and by the time the calves were on full feed their ration consisted of corn meal and oil meal, with plenty of good prairie hay for roughage, 20 pounds per head per day.

A few days ago twenty of the calves of an average quality of the whole were taken out of the feeding pen and slaughtered. The carcasses were submitted to St. Paul meat experts and were pronounced of the best quality they had ever seen. Every one was prime.

MLE. STOLYPIN MARRIED.

St. Petersburg, May 4.—Mlle. Stolypin, daughter of the Russian premier, was married here this afternoon to Lieut. Bock, the Russian naval attache at Berlin. The wedding ceremony was attended by many members of the cabinet and the diplomatic corps and representatives of high society in St. Petersburg.

HIGH ONES IMPLICATED

Investigation of the Killing of King Carlos Concluded.

Owing to Exposure, Government Will Not Prosecute Any.

Lisbon, May 4.—The government has completed its investigation into the plot that led to the assassination, last February, of King Carlos and the crown prince of Portugal, but it would appear that the conspiracy had so many ramifications, and that so many persons of position are either suspected or implicated, that it has been decided not to bring any prosecutions. Nevertheless, in order to keep up appearances, King Manuel, when he takes his oath of office, will grant a general political amnesty. This, however, will only cover offenses up to Jan. 30; the assassinations occurred Feb. 1.

Although King Manuel has expressed his willingness to repay to the treasury the money advanced to the late King Carlos, the cabinet, on account of the present condition of the finances of the royal household, has decided to ask parliament to cancel these debts.

Dr. Jose de Alperm, chief of the Progressive Dissidents, who has been a thorn in the side of the monarchy, is believed to have made a deal with the government by which one of its followers will enter the cabinet at the earliest opportunity.

The civil governor of Lisbon has issued orders that all arms in the possession of private persons be surrendered immediately. After May 5, any person having arms in his possession without the proper permission, will be severely punished.

WANTED FOR MURDER.

Manitoba Police Issue Warrant for Henry Steinberg of Cincinnati.

Winnipeg, Man., May 4.—The mounted police have issued a warrant for the arrest of Henry Steinberg, now said to be living in Cincinnati, Ohio. The charge against Steinberg is wife murder by poisoning. The crime, it is alleged, was committed near Fielding, Saskatchewan province, 400 miles northwest of Winnipeg. Steinberg came to Western Canada from Boston, where he was a scenic artist and sculptor. After the death of his wife he fled and it is said he is married again and living in Cincinnati, Ohio.

NO PROOF OF DEATH.

Alberta Widow Has Trouble in Securing Husband's Estate.

Winnipeg, Man., May 4.—The widow of Joseph Kirk, a wealthy resident of Edmonton, Alberta, who disappeared eight years ago while on a visit to his old home in Spokane, has begun an action in the courts here to recover her husband's estate in this country. As there is no legal proof of Kirk's death she is meeting with considerable difficulty. Kirk had $1,500 in money in his possession when he disappeared.

THE PRINCE IS GUARDED

Berlin Police Fear That Zu Eulenburg May Escape.

Charged With Perjury in the Recent Harden Trial.

Berlin, May 4.—Members of the criminal police force, according to the Tageblatt, have been picketed around the castle at Liebenberg of Prince Philip Zu Eulenburg, as a precaution against the prince's leaving the country during the preliminary investigation by the crown prosecutor of the allegation that the prince gave false testimony during the recent Harden trial in Berlin, when charges of a serious nature were brought against several prominent German officials.

That the prosecutor took up the investigation at all is being referred to by the newspapers as a serious matter. Prince Zu Eulenburg, who lives in almost feudal style, is ill of neuritis. Physicians delegated to the government to examine him affirm that he is unable to travel, yet a dozen plain clothes officers watch the exits of the castle grounds day and night. Prince Zu Eulenburg received a judicial commission during its recent visit to his bedside, with the utmost courtesy. He offered the commission the fullest facilities for its investigation, and replied to its questions clearly and without hesitation.

PETITION IS DISMISSED

Court Refuses to Allow Jewish Trust to Restrict Operations.

Managers Would Like to Confine Operations to Palestine.

London, May 4.—A petition of the Jewish Colonial Trust asking power from the court to restrict its operations to Palestine, was dismissed this morning by the court of chancery. The trust has a capital of $2,000,000, which has been subscribed with the object of promoting the welfare of the Jewish race in all parts of the world. The managers of the trust, who were supported by a considerable section of the stockholders, contended that the colonization of Palestine and neighboring territory was the "great ideal of Zionism and the only object worth entertaining."

Israel Zangwill and other dissentents bitterly opposed the proposed scheme of limitation. "It would mean," Mr. Zangwill declared to the court, "sitting down idle before the closed gates of Zion" the promised land.

Money Scarce in New York.

New York, May 4.—Joseph Cowen of London was the principal speaker at a meeting of the Federation of Americanists at Clinton hall last night. He was cheered for fully five minutes when he was introduced and repeatedly applauded as he painted a glowing picture of a Jewish world power" in Palestine. When Mr. Cowen called upon his hearers for contributions in dollars and cents there was an ominous silence. Then he said:

"I notice that the cheering has ceased. I notice that your enthusiasm has died down; but I tell you we have got to have material aid. Our last congress voted unanimously for a Jewish national fund and called on every Zionist to contribute no less than five francs to it. Yet, up to the 6th of last month, only $1,000 has been contributed by the Zionists in the United States and $800 of that came from St. Louis. Now, you must do better than that. You must meet this demand. Let us show our enthusiasm by material deeds."

Mr. Cowen spoke against the marriage of Jews with persons of other religion. He said the Zionist movement was greater than a religious one, for it was a national movement. "Women suffrage will never divide us," he said, "for we will give them suffrage."

This was greeted with applause from the women.

The speaker was introduced as a second Moses.

SIX DEAD IN N. Y. FIRE

A Four Story Tenement House Burns Early in the Morning.

Many Saved Lives by Jumping Into the Firemen's Nets.

New York, May 4.—An early morning fire in a four-story brick tenement at No. 17 Humboldt street, a thickly populated district of Brooklyn, caused the death of six persons and the serious injury of four others.

Every member of one family, consisting of a mother and four children, are among the dead. There were many thrilling rescues by the police and the firemen. A half dozen or more persons, who were trapped in the upper stories were saved by jumping into life nets.

The dead are: Mrs. Dora Abrams, Sadie, Carrie, Anna and Charles Abrams and Mrs. Jennie Coren.

The fire started in the cellar of the building early yesterday morning, when the people comprising the eight families living in the house were asleep. It had gained much headway before it was discovered. When the firemen came the fire had spread through the entire rear of the house, where the fire escapes were, and the terror-stricken inmates of the upper floors had been driven to the front rooms, where they were hanging from windows shrieking for help. Ladders and life nets were quickly brought into use and most of the imperiled persons were thus rescued.

The Abrams family lived on the third floor. For some reason the flames swept through their apartments so that the only way of escape was by jumping from the windows. Charles Abrams and his sister, Anna, did this. Both struck an iron railing and were dead when picked up. Mrs. Abrams and her other children, Sadie and Carrie, were burned to death, clasped in each other's arms.

"Governor Johnson is in the race for the presidential nomination. If by any chance he fails to get the presidential nomination, he will not, under any circumstances accept the vice presidential nomination."

IN FAVOR OF THE RAILROAD

Cattle Companies Fail to Recover Losses for Alleged Neglect.

Washington, May 4.—The cases of the Empire State Cattle company and the Minnesota & Dakota Cattle company vs. the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway company, involving claims for losses on cattle during the floods in Kansas in 1903, were decided by the supreme court of the United States in favor of the railroad. The claim of the Empire company was based on loss of 775 cattle, shipped from Texas, and that of the Minnesota company on the loss of 1,635 head, shipped from New Mexico, both shipments being to South Dakota. The overflow of the railroad tracks along the Kaw river made a diversion of the cattle necessary, and it was claimed that their loss was due to neglect. Both cases originated in the United States district court for the state of Kansas, where the finding was favorable to the railroad company. The court of appeals for the Eighth circuit affirmed that verdict, and it was sustained by today's decision. The opinion was announced by Justice White.

BOTH FEET CUT OFF; ILL LUCK OF CHICAGOAN.

Fargo, N. D., May 4.—Both feet is the price Charles Hane of Chicago Heights, Illinois, will pay for an attempt to board the west bound freight No. 51 on the Northern Pacific railway at the Milwaukee crossing at the city limits west of Fargo, Saturday evening. Although it is not positively known, every indication points to the supposition that he was endeavoring to beat his way West. The train was going at twenty miles an hour and, missing his hold on the side of the car, he fell under the wheels.

POLES AND ITALIANS IN RIOT AT HUDSON, PA.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 4.—Poles and Italians engaged in a bloody riot at Hudson, ten miles from here, today, two Poles being fatally wounded, two others badly hurt, while many were injured and were carried away by their companions. The police are now searching for these men and expect to make arrests today. There has been bad blood between the Poles and Italians for some time, owing to the fact that a number of Poles took the places of striking Italians.

MOTION IS OVERRULED

Judge Refused to Transfer Thaw Hearing to New York.

He Will Sit There to Hear Testimony if So Desired.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 4.—The opening of the hearing on the writ of habeas corpus, asked by Harry K. Thaw, was delayed by a conference between District Attorney Mack of Dutchess county, and Assistant District Attorney Garvan of New York.

Dr. Baker, the acting superintendent of the Matteawan asylum, was called into the conference, at the conclusion of which Mr. Graham formally filed his writ and received from District Attorney Mack his return to it. District Attorney Mack then moved that the proceedings be sent to New York county.

Mr. Mack said he was informed that it would cost Dutchess county $20,000 to have the proceedings tried in Dutchess county. He thought it would be bad for the taxpayers of Dutchess county if the precedent were established that such cases must be tried here.

Mr. Garvan said that the trial would involve sending commissions to Paris, Monte Carlo and other places in Europe to obtain evidence as to Thaw's sanity. He argued that the case should be concluded under the jurisdiction where it originated.

Graham Opposes Motion.

Mr. Graham opposed the motion. He contended that the proceedings should be tried under the statute in the judicial district where the habeas corpus was made returnable. He said that the statement of cost of the proceedings had been exaggerated; that the function of the New York district attorney ended with the murder trial and that the New York district attorney could appear only by courtesy of the court and the Dutchess county district attorney. "To spend $20,000 would be a waste of the public money. It can be entirely regulated by the district attorney of Dutchess county as he must audit the bills. We strenuously object to having the case transferred to New York and our witnesses made subject to subpoena by the district attorney's office. There has been intimidation of witnesses before in that direction and we want none of it in these proceedings."

Justice Morschauser denied the motion to transfer the hearing but offered to sit in New York to hear the people's testimony if both sides were to consent.

Mr. Graham raised the question as to whether Thaw should be confined during the proceedings and the court ordered him committed to the Dutchess county jail.

Thaw smiled with pleasure at the announcement.

It was arranged to adjourn the proceedings to May 11, providing Mr. Jerome can be here on that day.

After the relators side had been heard Judge Morschauser will sit in New York to accommodate Mr. Jerome and his witnesses.

Adjournment was then announced and Thaw was conducted to the jail floor of the court house. He is in the custody of Sheriff Robert Chanler as the officer of the court. He will have a large room and his meals will be served from a restaurant. He can receive any visitors he wishes to see.

WHISKY THE CHIEF CAUSE

Crime Largely Due to Liquor, Says Judge Cant.

Delivers Interesting Paper on Subject to Local Ministers.

Judge W. A. Cant of the district court of St. Louis county told the members of the Duluth Ministerial association "Some Causes of the Increase in Crime in the United States," and the one which had most to do with it in his opinion was the excessive use of intoxicating liquors.

Judge Cant said in part: "At term after term of our district court in this and adjoining counties, practically all of what may be called the middle grade crimes, are attributable directly to the excessive use of intoxicating liquors, and often a strangely large proportion of them arise out of violations of the law by liquor dealers—such as sales to minors, or after hours, or on Sundays. At one term, fully two-thirds of all the criminal cases tried developed such features.

"This is beyond question the white man's plague, beside which tuberculosis, pneumonia, diphtheria and all fevers are mild disorders.

"In many ways the courts were fettered," said Judge Cant. "Altogether too much time is consumed in the average trial in the impanneling of a jury. Weeks are taken up, he said, in the securing of juries in trials which are not of enough importance to be such an expense to the community."

Judge Cant made a plea for a higher code of ethics among the members of the bar. He said that some of them were for sale, and others pitched too much into tasks of freeing really undeserving and guilty men, just for the sake of success and the fees which were to be won. He said that lawyers should defend their clients within all reasonable grounds, and to look after their interests at all times, but that they should not make such desperate attempts to secure the acquittal of men who should be properly dealt with by the law.

He said, too, that juries often brought in verdicts which were palpable miscarriages of justice. This fact and the knowledge that with a clever lawyer, a man could escape, had a tendency in his opinion to increase crime.

The ministers warmly commended the judge for his scholarly and interesting paper.

The association elected officers at the session, Rev. Baxter Waters being elected president. He succeeds Rev. Thomas Grice. Rev. J. L. McBride was elected secretary, succeeding Rev. A. R. Parker.

DEMOCRATS GATHERING

Warm Fight Expected in Ohio Over Candidate for Governor.

Columbus, Ohio, May 4.—Delegates to the Democratic state convention, which convenes here tomorrow night for a two days' session, are arriving. The most prominent men on the ground thus far are Charles P. Salen, Mayor Tom L. Johnson's lieutenant, and Al Atlee Pomerene of Canton, the Johnson candidate for governor. Mayor Johnson says all he wants is to be national committeeman. He says he is for Pomerene's nomination.

There is no doubt but that William J. Bryan will be indorsed and that the delegates-at-large will be instructed for him.

W. L. Finley, state oil inspector, who is fighting Mayor Johnson with bitterness, said today that the Cleveland mayor will be defeated at every point and that Judson Harmon of Cincinnati will be nominated for governor on the first ballot.

E. W. Hanley of Dayton and W. S. Thomas of Springfield are the only men who have made active campaigns to become members of the delegation-at-large to the national convention.

VREELAND BILL ON THE TABLE

Republican Leaders Trying to Agree on Some Currency Measure.

Washington, May 4.—The house committee on banking and currency today voted 13 to 3 to lay the new Vreeland financial bill on the table. Those voting in the negative were Messrs. Burton, Weeks and McKinney. It was decided to ask that the committee be given sufficient time, a week if possible, for the discussion of all pending currency measures, pursuant to and under the ordinary rules of the house. Chairman Fowler of the committee will today request Speaker Cannon for this permission.

The Republican leaders of the house were busy today trying to agree upon a currency measure which will be acceptable to the Republican caucus to be held tomorrow night, many of them favoring a bill prepared by Representative Payne which provides that national banks may procure additional circulation by the deposit of United States bonds or certificates of indebtedness such as were authorized by the act of June 13, 1898, the time of the extra circulation being limited by the secretary of the treasury. The purpose is to attach this measure as an amendment to the Fowler commission bill.

TO VISIT THE MILLS

Committee on Paper Will Conduct Hearings on Spot.

Mr. Norris Submits Telegrams From Many Publishers.

Washington, May 4.—Preceding the continuation of the examination of John Norris, representing the American Newspaper Publishers' association, the house select committee to investigate the question of wood pulp and print paper today was in executive session formulating a long list of questions regarding the wood pulp and news print paper industries upon which governmental statistical data is desired at once.

The committee also discussed the advisability of visiting several paper mills and conducting hearings on the spot. A tentative understanding was reached that the committee leave here Friday afternoon for an inspection of the Hudson river mill at Palmer's Falls, N. Y., and possibly one or two others.

Upon resuming his testimony Mr. Norris submitted 15 telegrams from publishers replying to a query by Mr. Ridder last Saturday giving information regarding their paper contracts. He also submitted a list of forty-one publishers who have signified their willingness to come to Washington and testify. Chairman Mann said that rather than set a particular day this week to hear them it would be better to hear them as they appeared. In all likelihood the committee will be absent on Saturday, and consequently there may be no hearing in this city on that day.

The recitation by Mr. Norris of increases in cost of paper by contract prices provoked Chairman Mann to ask Mr. Norris if he had any theory of what caused the wide range of prices paid by Illinois newspapers—from $4.40 to $10 increase per ton.

Norris Explains.

Mr. Norris replied that commissions, purchases at mills, quantity of paper, quantity contracts and place of delivery undoubtedly combined to make the explanation.

"Do you know," asked Mr. Bannon, referring to newspapers generally, "whether the prices at the mills on a given grade of paper are uniform?"

"We are here," answered Mr. Norris, "attempting to show that a combination has been entered into by the paper manufacturers to uniformly raise the price of paper two and one-half cents a pound and that this combination contemplates a further advance to three cents a pound."

It was pointed out by Mr. Mann that in an occasional instance it appeared that quotations were lower by some dollars per ton than the existing prices under contract. Mr. Norris replied that such quotations were from Canadian mills.

Mr. Mann asked if it was not apparent from the contract figures presented by Mr. Norris that last December the paper manufacturers themselves, alarmed at the outlook for black consumption, "went off into hysterics," and gave one year contracts right and left, and that these contracts were generally signed by newspapers at the top price then prevailing. Mr. Norris agreed that such was the case.

Mr. Norris said that the figures from the Philadelphia Inquirer—present prices $50, an increase of $12—meant an additional cost to that publication of $168,000 a year.

At 12 o'clock the committee took a recess until 2 p. m.

RAILROADS FINED

For Violation of the Law Regarding Transportation of Cattle.

Chicago, May 4.—In ninety-five cases brought by the government against six railroad companies, charging violation of the twenty-eight-hour law for the transportation of cattle, Judge Landis, in the United States district court, today imposed fines agregating $13,150. The railroads fined were the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, forty-five cases, fined $6,550; Chicago & Northwestern, twenty-six cases, $3,600; Illinois Central, nine cases, $1,100; Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, seven cases, $950; Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, six cases, $750; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, two cases, $200.

The majority of the fines were imposed on pleas of guilty, but in all cases the Chicago & Northwestern pleaded no guilty.

MAYOR WELCOMED HOME.

Hancock, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor A. J. Scott was given a warm reception upon his arrival home Saturday afternoon from Hot Springs, Ark., where he has been receiving treatment. A large number of friends, accompanied by the Quincy band, escorted him from the depot to the Scott hotel, the fire hall bell and the whistle joining in the greeting. The mayor made a brief speech upon his arrival at the hotel and shook hands with all.

FERRYBOAT CAPSIZES AND 120 ARE DROWNED.

St. Petersburg, May 4.—A ferryboat on the river Dnelper capsized yesterday near Bykhoff, in the government of Mohileff, and 120 persons were drowned as a result. The boat was filled with peasants and their wives and children returning from church. It was overcrowded and became unmanageable in midstream. The passengers got into a state of panic and overturned the boat by crowding to one side.

CONSOLS DECLINE.

London, May 4.—The serious news regarding the Indian frontier situation adversely affected consols as well as Indian stocks on the stock exchange this morning. The latter declined 1 to 1½ points under fair offerings, while consols which opened at 86, declined to 85¾, representing a loss of 9-16 since Saturday.

SOME PUZZLILNG QUESTIONS.

How the Unwary May be Caught by Problems Easily Solved.

Suppose that a horse and a cow are both reclining on the ground in different parts of a field twice as long as it is broad. What would be the difference in their manner of rising? Try this on some of your farmer friends, and observe whether the smartest among them—the man who, so to speak, could tell with his eyes shut how many beans make five—will reply without hesitation that even if the field be fifty times as long as it is broad, the horse will invariably use its front legs first and the cow its hind legs when they determine to get up. Neither the horse nor the cow cares a dump what the shape of the field is, says the Gateway Magazine.

There will be less excuse, however, for the farmer succumbing to the foregoing trick question than there will be if the village watchmaker falls into the following trap: Tell him that recently you ordered a watch chain, but that, owing to some misunderstanding, the jeweler furnished not a complete chain, but six short pieces containing four links in each. It is your deisre to have the pieces made into a complete chain, and if he will undertake to do this you are ready to pay him for his trouble at the rate of a dollar for each link he closes. If he agrees to these terms, ask him what his total charge will be.

The chances are that he will promptly reply, "$10," pointing out to you that to join the sections together he will have to open and close at least five links. "Not at all," you answer him. "If I pay you at the proposed rate I shall only have to give you $8." Should he dispute this, you may then proceed to show him that if he takes one of the sections and opens the four links of which it is formed these will suffice to join up the remaining five sections into one chain. He will, of course, have to admit that you are right, but may try to shuffle out of the situation by saying that he did not quite understand the question. Should he do so, offer to put his ability to the test in another way. Say that you were once acquainted with a tramp who had a brother, a member of the same honorable corporation. The latter died in a hospital, and on his deathbed stoutly maintained that he had never had a brother—an assertion which it was proved was quite true. How was the dying man's statement to be reconciled with the fact, for which you can yourself vouch, that the tramp you knew really had a brother? This is pretty certain to puzzle him, at any rate at first; but a little reflection would probably put him on the right track, so you had better, if you wish to deprive him of the satisfaction of answering correctly, not allow too long an interval to elapse without telling him that your tramp was a woman.

Many of such questions must similarly be promptly replied to, if they are to draw from your victim, as, of course, you hope, the wrong answer. Among such is the catch question: "Who killed Cain?" To which the unwary listener is very apt to reply, "Abel." Here is another of the same family: "Noah had three sons, Shem, Ham and Japhet. Who was their father?" It is astonishing how many clever people will fail to give an immediate answer to the last simple question, if it be enunciated quickly and seriously enough.

Almost equally well known is the doggerel supposed to be uttered by a man looking at a family portrait:

"Sisters and brothers have I none,
But that man's father was my father's son."

Though this catch, in one form or another, is probably almost coeval with the birth of language, every successive generation finds it a hard nut to crack. Hardly anybody to whom the question is addressed for the first time immediately perceives that the original of the portrait can be no other than the speaker's son.

Here is a question that will tax the arithmetical powers of a youth. Suppose that, for some reason or another, a shopkeeper, who sold goods by pounds and half pounds, but never in quantities exceeding twenty pounds at a time, was told that he must transact all this business with four weights only, what must these four weights be? The answer is half-pound, one-and-a-half-pound, four-and-a-half-pound and thirteen-and-a-half-pound. With these it will be readily seen that any weight form one half pound to twenty pounds may be determined in pounds and half pounds.

Tell the unfortunate boy that you will now ask him a very simple arithmetical question as a little relief. It concerns apples—at any rate, you may make it concern apples as most youngsters of predatory proclivities have a great affection for this particular fruit. Let him imagine that he and a friend have successfully raided an orchard and got away with a certain amount of spoil. He has secured four apples, his friend seven. A third boy now joins them and suggests that they then and there devour the apples, sharing them equally between the three, he agreeing to pay for his part. The bargain is soon struck, and the indigestible feast begun and ended within a few minutes. The stranger is as good as his word and hands over the sum of 11 cents as his contribution, leaving the purveyors of the apples to divide the money as they think best. How ought the division to be made, in justice? Your victim will be much astonished if you tell him that only 1 cent should go to him, while his friend pockets 10 cents. Yet this is the fair division, strange as it may seem at first sight. The explanation is simple: Each boy eats three and two-thirds apples. That is to say, the boy who has four apples eats them all himself, with the exception of one-third of an apple, which is whole contribution toward the stranger's share, the rest of which comes from the boy who had seven apples.

If you wish to discover how much the youth knows about natural science, as it is termed, you can hardly do better than put to him some such question as the following: The field soldiers have a heated argument a sto which had first intimation of the discharge of a cannon in one of the enemy's batteries. The first soldier bases his claim to priority on the fact that he actually saw the shell strike the ground a comparatively short distance from the spot on which he was standing; the second soldier admits that he did not see the shell, but says that he saw the flash when the gun was discharged, the third soldier saw neither the flash of the discharge nor the shell itself, but was almost deafened by the report. Which of the three men may be said to have first been aware of the occurrence? In this question there is no "catch" whatever in the ordinary sense of the word. The correct answer depends exclusively on a correct knowledge of the relative speed of light and sound, and, since light travels infinitely faster than sound, or than the rate at which the shell traverses the air, there can be no manner of doubt that the man who saw the flash had the first intimation of the discharge. A dispute might possibly still arise among the other two men for the honor of second place. This would have to be decided by their proximity to the gun. The report is described as having almost deafened one of them. The gun, therefore, must have been at no very great distance, and as the velocity of a shell in the first part of its flight is far in excess of the rate at which sound travels, the man who saw the projectile strike the ground may rightly claim to have known of the discharge before his comrade, who heard the loud report.

Here is a question to provoke a smile: If five greyhounds can run down and catch five hares in five minutes, how many greyhounds would be necessary to run down and catch twenty hares in twenty minutes? "Twenty greyhounds," you say. No! The same five greyhounds that ran down the first five hares!

Now to finish. Which would the reader prefer to have, or is it a matter of indifference to him? Six dozen dollars or half a dozen dozen? You don't care, you say. And yet, if you had not been so quick to answer you would have seen that in one case would get $864 and in the other $72 only.

THE AMERICAN PEER.

Pall Mall Gazette: Lord Fairfax, the holder of a Scots peerage created in 1627, whose family have for generations been citizens of the United States, thinks, apparently, that naturalization as a British subject entitles him to a seat in the House of Lords, whereas he will only be entitled to vote at the election of Scotch Representative Peers, or be eligible himself. There are several interesting instances of foreign domicile as a disability or otherwise. Lord Reay, the holder of a Scots pecrage almost as ancient as that of the Fairfaxes (its creation dates from 1628), comes of a family settled for generations in the Netherlands. On succeeding his father in 1876 he took steps to become a naturalized British subject by act of Parliament, which was passed the following year, and was in 1881 created a peer of the United Kingdom.

The naturalization of the holder of a peerage whose family have long been domiciled in a foreign country is quite distinct from the confirmation of his claim to the peerage, which is generally assigned to the Lords' Committee of Privileges. Thus, in 1800, Rev. Brian Fairfax, the eight holder of the title came to England and had his right to the title confirmed. So, too, in 1860, the tenth Viscount Taaffe, a Count of the Holy Roman Empire, Chamberlain to the Emperor of Austria and a General in the Austrian service, had his right to bear the honors of his Irish peerage recognized by the Committee of Privileges. In 1800 a Dutchman, bearing the title of Earl of Athlone in the peerage of Ireland, conferred on his ancester, De Ginkle, a General of William III., desired as an Irish peer to vote in the Irish House of Lords on the Union question, although his predecessors in the peerage had been for generations domiciled abroad. The Committee of Privileges voted against his admission, holding that he was not a British subject.

POOR GEORGE!

Miss Iva De Chipenham, a lecturer of New York, holds that beautiful thoughts make beautiful faces and figures, and that ugly thoughts deform, even as unwholesome work does.

"By taking thought," said Miss De Chipenham, in an interview in Chicago, "you cannot, perhaps, add a cubit to your stature; but you can eradicate round shoulders and sponge wrinkles away. Our thoughts mold our faces, form our expression. Thus they give us away. They give us away as much as the spoken thought of a Chicago girl once gave her away. This girl sat in a dim-lit parlor on a winter evening with a young man. A fire of oak logs blazed in the grate, and, looking into the pink and gold heart of the flame, the girl, who was very pretty, murmured:

"'How divine, my dearest Hilary—'

"But the young man frowned and started.

"'Hilary?' he said. 'You mean George, don't you, pet?'

"The girl flushed and bit her lip.

"'Oh, dear,' she said; 'how silly of me! I thought this was Saturday night.'"

PRESIDENT CONCERNED

Over Possible Defeat of Bryan at Denver Convention.

Johnson Boom Regarded as Peril to Republican Plans.

Washington, May 4.—President Roosevelt views with some concern the possibility of the defeat of William Jennings Bryan for the Democratic nomination for president, according to recent callers at the White House. The entire administration-Taft program for the Chicago convention and for election day admittedly has been premised upon the assumption that Mr. Bryan is to be the Democratic nominee.

The growth of the boom for Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota is disconcerting for the reason that Governor Johnson is believed by the Republican leaders not only to be a stronger candidate, but they believe his candidacy would compel the Republicans to ignore much of the campaign thunder they have learned since 1896.

Within the last week the possibility of the defeat of Mr. Bryan for the nomination, the effect of the financial depression, the attitude of labor and his own popularity have been impressed upon Mr. Roosevelt by close friends as contributory elements which make the present political policies of the administration dangerous to the Republican party in the face of a possible change in the Democratic political situation.

Fear Post-Panic Defeat.

The president has been told that no party in power ever survived an election following a financial depression; that the attitude of labor in certain Western states which have long been Republican is not favorable to Mr. Taft, but would be to Roosevelt, and that a large and crucial Western state is liable to go Democratic if Secretary Taft and another than Bryan are the opposing candidates. Under these circumstances it has been alleged to the president that his party is going into a doubtful election without its strongest candidate to the fore. This argument has been presented by both Taft and anti-Taft men.

It is not recorded that the president intimated any change in his position after listening to these arguments. Many of them he believes to be exaggerations of the true situation. He will continue to assist the nomination of Mr. Taft. It is also understood that, in addition to there being some doubt as to the national election if Mr. Bryan is not nominated by the Democrats, close friends of Mr. Roosevelt are worried over the next house of representatives That the house should be endangered more than any other elective branch of the government is ascribed largely to the obstinate policies pursued by the house leadership in ignoring the policies of President Roosevelt.

All Want to See Johnson.

The Governor Johnson press bureau in this city turned out its first newspaper item Saturday, in the following form, copies of it being handed to all correspondents: "That the national capital has come to realize the importance of Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota, in the race for the Democratic nomination, is shown by the fact that his Washington friends have been deluged with applications from prominent citizens here and members of congress for opportunity to the see the Minnesota man while he was in this city at the meeting of governors of the states as guests of the president. Governor Johnson is expected to arrive here about May 10.

"In response to these requests, his friends have been compelled to announce that the governor has refused to make political capital of his visit, as he will be a guest of Mr. Roosevelt. He has said he can see no propriety in such a course. There is, therefore, no chance that a reception for political purposes will be given to enable the anxious applicants to see the Minnesota man."

Reports Many Pledges.

Chicago, May 4.—Managers of Governor John A. Johnson's campaign on Saturday night issued a statement of his chances for nomination as the presidential candidate of the Democratic party. They declare the "solid South" is almost unanimous for Johnson in many important sections.

Col. F. B. Lynch returned from Washington in the afternoon with glowing accounts of pledges by Democratic congressmen for the support of the Minnesotan. Col. Lynch says he interviewed 100 congressmen in the capitol.

All but three of the Southern statesmen expressed themselves as dissatisfied with "Bryan's assumption of dictatorial powers," he says, and agreed to throw their support to Johnson.

The Johnson boomers expect uninstructed delegations from the South, anti-Bryan delegations from the East, lukewarm Bryan men from the Central states and only a few enthusiastic supporters of the three-times candidates from the Far West.

BLOEDEL ASKS FOR JUDGMENT

Effect Would be to Unseat Cromwell Pending Appeal.

At a hearing before Judge Cant, Saturday afternoon, George J. Bloedel, contestant in the Bloedel-Cromwell case, moved for a judgment in his favor. The hearing was not completed and will be continued this afternoon.

The motion is made on the ground that an appeal in the case should be taken from a judgment and not from an order on a motion for a new trial. It is claimed that if judgment is ordered by the court, James L. Cromwell will be unseated and Mr. Bloedel will take his place, pending the result of the appeal.

Judge Cant's findings and conclusions of law were in favor of Mr. Bloedel's side of the contest, but stay of judgment was given so that the losing side could take an appeal. Charles E. Adams, attorney for Mr. Cromwell, claims that judgment cannot be had because a supersedeas bond has been filed to carry the case to the supreme court.

NORSEMEN VICTORIOUS

Normanna Male Chorus Wins in Contest With Svea Club.

Retains Carlson Trophy by Taking Fifth Annual Tournament.

The Normanna Male chorus retains the Carlson trophy, as the singing contest in the Lyceum theater last evening between that organization and the Svea Glee club resulted in a victory for the Norweglan vocalists.

Last night's affair wa sthe fifth and last in a series of annual contests between the two clubs. The first two were won by the Svea club and the Normanna chorus has won the last three.

The theater was crowded with friends of both organizations and lovers of music in general. The judges, three in number, sat in different parts of the auditorium and with the exception of the first one appointed, were unknown to the contestants.

There was much speculation among the lay auditors as to which society was going to be awarded the prize at the conclusion of the exercises and the concensus of opinion was that the result would be very close indeed.

The result was close and the excitement over the announcement of the winner was intense. The decision was made on points, and gave the Normanna chorus an average of 88 1-3, and the Svea club an average of 79 2-3. Percentages for the entire five contests gives the Normanna society a lead of about nine points.

The judges were Mrs. H. S. Woodruff, director of the Apollo club, Minneapolis; Prof. Carlyle Scott, director of music at the University of Minnesota, and Mr. Murdock, a prominent St. Paul musical authority. Mrs. Woodruff was appointed by the executive committee, comprising members of both societies, and Mrs. Woodruff, in turn, named the other two judges.

Four contest numbers were sung, two by each society. The Svea club sang first, giving Belcher's "Slifvemeback utt i djupandal" and the Normanna chorus gave as its opening number. Reissiger's "Olaf Trygasson." Both these numbers were enthusiastically received from all sides. They were well chosen, bringing out the vocal strength and pretty choral, shading that marked a high degree of musical proficiency. Charles Helmer directed the Svea club and Olaf Halten directed the Norwegian singers. The victors of last evening attribute much of their success to the efforts of their director.

Paulson's "Naer Fjordene Blaaner," was the Normanna society's closing contest number and the Svea club concluded with Korling's "Kommer due ej snart." Again in these numbers the two clubs made marked impressions. They were typical songs of Norway and Sweden, and they were given with an enthusiasm and fullness which delighted the listeners.

Mrs. Leo Ball gave a soprano solo and was obliged to respond to en encore. Oliver Colbentson gave a violin solo, which was received with favor. Miss Elizabeth Morton was accompanist for both soloists. Flaaten's orchestra gave several numbers.

The two societies joined in singing of two numbers on the program. Under the direction of Charles Helmer of the Svea club, both organizations gave Wennerberg's "Hor ces Svea" and later in the evening sang Crieg's 'Landsjending," under the direction of Mr. Halten, director of the Normanna chorus. The number included a baritone solo by Carl Erickson. The double chorus sang "America" at the conclusion of the program.

Andrew Nelson presided as master of ceremonies during the evening and introduced Clarence B. Miller of Duluth and Irvin L. Lenroot of Superior. Mr. Miller spoke of the two societies which were competing last evening, how they had grown, the factors they were in the local musical world and the keen interest that had been manifested in the annual singing contests. Mr. Lenroot's talk was on the more general topic of "Scandinavian Music." Both speakers made a good impression.

The arrangements for last night's contest were made by a joint executive committee, comprising three members of each club, C. J. Halling of the Normanna chorus was chairman of the executive committee and the other members were Andrew Nelson, secretary; C. E. Johnson, treasurer; Ed. Peterson, B. Sande and K. L. Fenney.

The members of the Normanna male chorus are as follows: A. Meyers, H. Haugan, A. Ruski, K. Almos, Grondahl, A. M. Johnson, C. Erickson, G. Sodahl, K. L. Fenney, C. Olson, J. W. Johnson, R. Mork, L. Solem, T. Hoel, G. Eye, E. Johnson, C. Wahl, H. Kjellman, Beyer Olson, C. Larson, J. Solem, J. Rathe, P. Hammer, H. Norley, C. Solem, O. Aas, A. Gjerstad, G. Mobraaten, A. Mobraaten, C. J. Halling, Olaf Halten, B. Sande, A. Kristofferson, A. Larson, G. Watson.

In the Svea Glee club there are the following singers: C. Soderlund, Ed. Wibson, V. Bard, E. Ogren, J. Bergstrom, F. Hellerstendt, R. Wallin, F. Edlund, C. Bostrom, J. Essen, J. Wallin, E. Ogren, O. Skoglund, G. Westman, E. Linander, H. Enlund, G. Ejornson, A. Person, G. Nordin, J. Hedwall, O. Larson, F. Carlson, G. Bjorklund, I. Holmberg, B. Malmgren, R. Larson, C. Sundberg, G. Johnson, A. P. EUROPEAN PLAN.

St. Louis Hotel Closes American Dining Room for Good.

The St. Louis hotel no longer has an American dining room. Saturday night the hotel was placed on a strictly European basis, and ceremonies marked the closing of the American dining room, which had been in operation for the past sixteen years, probably feeding more people during that period than any dining room in Minnesota.

Kittie Livingstone, the head waitress, who has been with the hotel for fourteen years, was called upon for a speech. She told of her regret at having to sever her connections with the hotel. All the waitresses have to seek new positions, for only men waiters will be employed in the cafes.

Bertha Hanson, who has been with the hotel sixteen years, also made a few remarks, as did Tilton Lewis, Louis Bouchard, clerks; Ernest Butchart, steward, and William Vail. The waitresses filed out of the dining room singing, "How Can I Bear to Leave Thee."

WHY HE IS FOR JOHNSON

Local Democrat Submits Eighteen Pointed Reasons Why Minnesota's Governor Should Be President.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I respectfully submit some reasons why every Democrat should hope and work for the nomination of John A. Johnson, at Denver:

Because he is a man of rare natural ability and refinement, and free from all artificiality and pose; in short, a true American democrat, whose conversation shrinks from the use of the first personal pronoun.

Because he combines the moral purpose with the ability to think straight. He can advocate reforms without inflaming popular passions.

Because he has that homely but indispensable quality of statesmanship which can take up a question impartially and impersonally, and get the right answer.

Because he doesn't try to say too much in clarion tones.

Because there is in all he utters an irresistible accent of sincerity.

Because he is neither a "dreamer" nor a Jack Cade; he does not say that a three-hooped pot shall have seven hoops, or look forward to a time when his palfrey shall in the national cheapside go to grass. He is just a plain, honest democratic statesman who cherishes no illusions and has no ambition except to make good.

Because he is a Jeffersonian not only in name but in belief. He does not flout the living faith of the great founder of Democracy by accepting only his errors or the most distorted fragments of his philosophy.

Because he does not constantly make his appeal to that spirit of class envy and discontent which Jefferson thought he had eliminated from the republic by the diffusion of democratic equality and justice. He preaches the gospel of political hopefulness, fair play, and old-fashioned American individualism.

Because he does not make a specialty of talking about "predatory wealth" or proclaiming the merits of predatory socialism.

Because he is not always bursting with some new discovery, and does not advertise to furnish a brand new "paramount issue" while you wait.

Because he is not perpetually mistaking temporary isms for immutable democratic principles.

Because he is not an agitator, but a leader in the best sense of that term.

Because he is so different from some other conspicuous public characters. He is not only a great performer, but he is a great soul.

Because he is a man of uncommon good sense as well as uncommon personality.

Because he fulfills Burke's ideal of a statesman—one who shows a disposition to conserve, combined with the ability to improve. It is the steady man in politics, walking in the straight road who goes the farthest.

Because he doesn't seek to rise by assailing the motives of every other possible rival for the party leadership.

Because he stands for Democratic hope, not hopelessness. He has an unequaled record as a winner, not as a loser.

And, lastly, because the masses of the American people, quite irrespective of party, want to vote for him for president. They like him for his kindly Lincoln-like face, but most of all, for his honest Lincoln-like trust in them instead of in an "insufferable Ego."

HIS NECK BROKEN.

Had Been for Thirty-Five Years and Didn't Know It.

Washington, May 4.—The fact that Senator Money of Missouri passed through life for thirty-five years with a dislocated neck and did not know it became known to some of his associates yesterday. At the first battle of Franklin, in April, 1863, Mr. Mooney was a cavalryman in the Confederate service. He was struck by a bullet and fell from his horse.

Senator Mooney, some time ago, went to New York and visited a physician, to be treated for neuralgia. Almost the doctor's first remark was:

"Why, senator, you have had your neck broken."

The physician declared that one of the vertabrae had been pushed from the top of the column supporting the head and was in a wrong position. He put it into proper position.

PORTLAND WILL ENTERTAIN

"Rose City" Preparing for Annual Festival in June.

Partland, Or., is preparing for her Festival of Roses, which is fast becoming a fete of as much national prominence as the Marli Gras at New Orleans. Invitations and programs have been received here and they indicate that the "Rose City" is going to outdo itself.

The invitation is quite a flowery document, and runs somethign like this:

"The Portland Rose Festival association has the honor to invite you to visit the Rose City during the week of festivities concurrent with the celebration of the grand carnival of roses. June 1 to 6.

"This invitation is to you personally, and as the representative of your city or your community and of your state, to join with us in this poetic festival of peace; to throw to the winds dull care and renew the joy of life under the summer sun of Oregon; to come with us for a day or for a week, for it is to be our holiday and your holiday, golden days set aside in the names of tender sentiment and good fellowship.

"There will be novel entertainment for everyone, so again we invite you to join us in June when myriads of roses sprinkle our gardens, when vacation days have come and hordes of happy children have turned out of school rooms in flower-lined streets, when music bubbles up in cascades of melody, when the blue sky of Oregon arches over the fairest scenes the year can show, and all the world is full of sunshine and fragrance and happy promises of fruition. The queen of flowers will have a perfumed whisper of welcome for you and her sweet hospitalities humored for your tarrying."

Elaborate programs of parade, races, illuminations and other festivities are being arranged for every day and evening of the festival.

SAYS SYSTEM IS UNECONOMIC

Commissioner Smith Attacks New York Cotton Exchange System.

Washington, May 4.—Part 1 of the report of the commissioner of corporations on the operations of cotton exchanges has been made public. This part deals with cotton exchange method of determing differences in price between various grades of cotton in connection with future contracts. There are two ways of establishing these differences. For the last eleven years the New York cotton exchange has had a so-called "fixed difference" system. A committee of the exchange, commonly known as the revision committee, meets twice a year, in September and in November, and establishes the respective price differences on or off which shall apply to the grades other than middling. These differences, once established, can not be changed until the next regular meeting, and govern all contrasts in futures.

The New Orleans cotton exchange, on the other hand, has what is known as the "commercial difference" system. A committee of the exchange meets daily, and, upon information of actual "spot" transactions, quotes the prices of the various grades, which quotations virtually establish the differences which apply on future contracts. That is to say, the New York system arbitrarily fixes what the differences for all grades shall be for two months or for ten months, while New Orleans follows the actual market differences for these grades as established by daily spot transactions.

Commissioner Smith says: "There is at present a fundamental difference in conditions between the New York and the New Orleans market, which doubtless is one reason for the difference in system, though by no means an excuse therefor. Under modern conditions of transportation, with the through bill of lading available, New York is no longer a natural spot cotton market. Cotton usually takes the cheapest route to the mills, and this route does not include a stop-over at New York. As a result transactions in spot cotton in New York are quite small, and thus there is not in New York such a market in actual cotton as will furnish reliable quotations to be used in fixing contract differences.

"This, however, does not prevent the application of the commercial-difference principle in substance to future contracts in New York. The commercial differences existing in the leading southern spot markets can be used as a basis for contract differences. It would not be strictly necessary to revise the contract differences as often as changes in such commercial differences occur. If the contract differences were revised weekly, or even monthly, the substantial advantages of the commercial-difference system could be secured.

"It is contended by many that such a return to the commercial-difference system would, because of the disadvantages of New York's location, destroy the business of the New York cotton exchange. There is little reason to believe that any such result would occur. However this may be, the New York cotton exchange, if it can not exist under a just and equitable system, has no excuse for existence at all. The present New York system of fixed differences is uneconomic, in defiance of natural law, unfair, and, like all other attempts to defy natural law, results in such complex and devious effects that the benefit of its transactions accrues only to a skilled few."

TROUT RECORD AGAIN BROKEN

Fishing Contest Between Lakeside Boys is Becoming Strenuous.

The fishing contest between Orin Howell and James Wharton, two Lakeside boys, is becoming a strenuous affair.

Last week the Howell boy took the lead with an 8¼-pound trout, pulled from Lester river, but Saturday the Wharton lad came back with one that weighed 8½ pounds. He also made a catch of ten brook trout, the largest of which weighed 4¾ pounds.

Lakeside people are much interested in the catches made by the boys this spring. They have caught some of the largest trout ever pulled out of the north shore streams.

SAVE THE CHURCH.

Hunter's Park Business Men Make Good Amateur Firemen.

Hunter's Park business and professional men, acting in the capacity of amateur firemen, saved the Glen Avon church from destruction by fire yesterday morning. But for their prompt action the building would have been a heap of smouldering ruins.

Mrs. Matthews, janitress at the church, notified Dr. F. O. Sherwin, who lives near the building, that it was on fire. He communicated the alarm to T. W. Hoopes and then got busy. Soon D. W. Stocking, H. W. Nichols and George Tupper were on the job with the two first amateurs, and with the assistance of a fire extinguisher and garden hose, the flames were brought under control. The damage was not serious.

CLEVELAND RECOVERING.

Wife Says Former President is Better---Cancer Rumor Unfounded.

Lakewood, N. J., May 4.—The condition of Former President Grover Cleveland, who is said by his physicians to be suffering from acute indigestion, continues to show daily improvement, according to Mrs. Cleveland, who expresses the hope that the progress of her husband's recovery may permit an early return to Princeton. The patient spent a quiet Sunday at the Lakewood hotel, and Mrs. Cleveland expressed herself as pleased with the progress made.

She said yesterday: "I have given two or three statements about Mr. Cleveland's health to the Associated Press. What I have said each time still holds, and there continues to be a daily improvement in his condition. I am glad to repeat this tonight."

It was stated that reports that Mr. Cleveland is suffering from cancer are unfounded.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Addresses eulogistic of the life, character and public services of the late United States Senators Stephen R. Mallory and William J. Bryan of Florida were delivered Sunday in the house of representatives, Mr. Dalsell of Pennsylvania presiding.

Floyd Frazier, the boy who murdered Mrs. Polly Flanery at Whiteburg, Ky., by cutting her throat has been sentenced to hang, the date of execution being set for Friday, July 3. This will be the first legal execution in the history of that county.

The impending strike of the conductors and motor men on the Cleveland street railway lines was set back at least twenty-four hours as a result of Sunday's developments, which brought forth negotiations for arbitration. Until there is a break in this plan no strike order will be issued.

With impressive ceremonial, Monsignor Dennis John O'Connell, rector of the Catholic university at Washington, D. C., was Sunday consecrated titular bishop of Sabte. Although none were admitted to the cathedral except those holding cards, the historic old building was crowded with local and visiting rectors and laymen.

The torpedo flotilla, headed by the flagship Whipple, sailed out of the San Pedro harbor at 8 o'clock Sunday evening. The torpedo boats are to join the big ship fleet at Santa Cruz and will arrive there Tuesday.

After standing for a moment with a bared head and uplifted hands as though in prayer, an unidentified and well dressed young man committed suicide at St. Louis Sunday by jumping into the Mississippi river at the foot of Tyler street.

George Ehlt, fireman of the Burlington Overland Limited, the train which was dynamited by bandits Friday near Butte, died early Sunday morning. This makes the third fatality of the wreck.

BULLS BOOST CORN.

May Option Touches 70½ Cents for First Time Since 1902.

Chicago, May 4.—Corn today on the board of trade touched 70½ cents for the May option. This is the highest figure at which it has sold since 1902, when John W. Gates and others comprising what was known as the "tin plate crowd," attempted to corner the market.

It is said that James A. Patten and W. H. Bartlett are largely responsible for the bullish demonstration. They have taken in and paid for, it is claimed, almost 4,000,000 bushels since May 1, and many of the bears, who have sold for May delivery, are having much difficulty in selling their contracts. The fact that only a small amount of corn is being received from the country aids the bull movement.

Open Office in Torrey Building.

The Pacific Investment company, a stock subscription agency, has opened offices at 501 Torrey building in this city. The company is comprised of F. E. Potter, president, and Robert Firth, secretary and manager. Both Mr. Potter and Mr. Firth are well known in railroad circles throughout the Northwest, Mr. Potter having been a dispatcher for the Northern Pacific company for the past seventeen or eighteen years, while Mr. Firth has been with the same company nearly as long, the last five or six years in the capacity of dispatcher. Messrs. Potter and Firth are also well known in the city outside railroad circles, their long residence here and their business interests outside of railroading having brought them in contact with a great many people. The new concern will handle only the best stocks, and is making a leader of the "Dan Patch Air Line," an electric railway that is now building between Minneapolis and Dubuque, Iowa, and which will eventually link the Twin Cities with Chicago.

THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL.

Crowds Turn Out to Pay Last Respects to Lieut. Briggs.

The little Holy Apostle's Episcopal church could not begin to meet the demands of the great throngs of people who gathered yesterday at the funeral of Lieut. Arthur J. Briggs. The church was packed to the doors and on both sides of the street for a block hundreds of people who could not get into the church, stood in silent respect waiting for the services to be concluded. Seldom, if ever, in this city has such a tribute been paid to any man.

After the service had been read, for which Rev. Mooney had taken as his text, "Although he is dead, yet he speaketh," more than 2,000 friends filed past the casket to pay their final respects to the dead officer.

As the casket was borne from the residence at 5523 Grand avenue to the church prior to the service there, the Third regiment band played "Nearer My God to Thee." The procession was headed by a platoon of police, and following their lead, thousands of people came in carriages and on foot. It is estimated that at the church there were nearly 5,000 people, only a few hundred of whom could get room inside.

More than 3,000 people formed the procession which marched to the Oneota cemetery to see the body of the brave lieutenant laid at rest.

Among the city officials present were Mayor R. D. Haven and Chief of Police C. H. Troyer. The pallbearers were Sergeants Glilon, Weber, Kenna, Walsh, Wilcox and Toewe.

MAYOR ASKS FOR LIGHTS

Says First Alley Offers Refuge for Evil Doers.

Haven Has Three Communications for Council Meeting.

Mayor R. D. Haven will have three communications, all recommending improvements, read at the council meeting tonight. One relates to the lighting of the alley between Superior and First street, one to the theater ordinance, and the third to the matter of beautifying the approach to the Sixth avenue west viaduct by doing away with the employment office now located there, and providing against the erection of any more such shacks on that particular location.

Last year the need of lights along the alley in question, between Seventh avenue west and First avenue east, was brought up, but the city was not in a position to make provision for the desired improvement. The same question has been discussed off and on since then, without any definite results being attained. The mayor believes that now the city will be able in some manner to provide for the lighting of this district, and earnestly urges that action be taken along this line. He explains in the communication that the alley is very dark, and a refuge for evil doers of all description, offering a ready avenue of escape from policemen of any offender against the law, if an attempt is made to arrest them in the night time, either in or near the alley. He says the lights are an absolute necessity for the sake of proper protection.

In regard to the theater ordinance, he will offer three suggestions in the way of further amendments, which, if adopted by the council, will insure the proper provisions for the safety of the public in theaters with a seating capacity of 299 or less. The mayor is of the opinion that the amendments adopted at last week's meeting of the council did not sufficiently cover the ground.

Supt. Blanchard of the Northern Pacific railway brought to Mayor Haven's attention the matter of the employment office at the end of the Sixth avenue viaduct. The railroad intends clearing all unsightly shacks from its property in that vicinity and asks the co-operation of the city along this line. The application for renewal of the employment office license is one of the four that were held up for investigation, and the probabilities are that the renewal will not be granted. The office is situated directly on the avenue, anyway, which is strictly against the law. There are always crowds of men hanging around it and the end of the viaduct, making it unpleasant for people going to and from the passenger boats which land at the Sixth avenue docks, and all the big passenger boats land there.

IT FAILED TO WORK.

"Bob" Fitzsimmons, the famous pugilist, in the course of one of the lessons in physical culture that he has been giving to the police of Plainfield, N. J., paused and said:

"I don't take much stock in feints and tricks. I like best open, straightforward work, both in boxing and in wrestling. With tricks, as a rule, one only gives himself away. It is like the case of the beggar.

"A beggar, you must know, sat on a cold and windy corner with a sign on his breast: 'Deaf and Dumb.'

"Two men passed, and one, a kind-hearted chap, stopped, looked at the beggar, and said:

"'I'd like to give this man something, but how am I to know that he is deaf and dumb?'

"'Read the sign, sir,' the beggar whispered cautiously."

NEW IDEAS.

A reporter congratulated Mayor Douglass of Niagara on his recent superb illumination of the great falls.

"Yes," said Mayor Douglass, thoughtfully, "the idea was novel and striking. It made an excellent advertisement. New things are what is wanted nowadays. New ideas! new methods!" he exclaimed. "It is to them that young men owe their success. Thus, the other day, I sat in the private office of a certain firm and saw the triumph of the new idea over the old demonstrated. The senior partner, a white-haired conservative, was studying the letter of an applicant for a position.

"'No, no,' said the senior partner, shaking his head, 'this young man won't do at all. See how he put the stamp on this letter. It is not only crooked, but upside down as well. That indicates that he is lazy and careless.'

"But the junior partner said emphatically:

"'Nothing of the kind. It indicates that he is a hustler who doesn't waste his time on useless trifles. We'll try that young man.'"

THE POET'S MARRIAGE.

Boston Post: Former Chairman Shonts of the Isthmian canal commission was praising a foreign system of requisitions.

"The advantage of this system," he said, smiling, "is that it works both ways. It is like the marriage of the spendthrift poet.

"This poet made a good deal of money, but, being extravagant, he was always in debt. One August, at the seashore, he wooed, won and wedded a young woman of great wealth. Thereafter times were better with him.

"At breakfast, during the honeymoon, the bride said to the poet, tenderly:

"'Does the fact that I have money, dearest, make any difference to you?'

"'To be sure it does, my love,' the poet answered.

"She drooped a little, perplexed, alarmed.

"'What difference?'

"'Why,' said he, 'it is such a comfort to know that if I should die you'd be provided for.'

"'And if I should die?' said the bride.

"'Then,' he returned, 'I'd be provided for.'"

ON THE IRON RANGES

COLERAINE HAS BUILDING BOOM

This Year to See Erection of Several Fine Structures.

Coleraine, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—This promises to be a notable year in a building way in Coleraine. Several new business blocks are to be built, the company is letting a contract for about thirty-five new cottages, and over 100 lots were sold last season in the second and third additions, and at least 50 per cent of these will be built upon this summer, making a grand total of eighty-five new residences and possibly more.

Contractor H. J. Cooper has started a crew of men excavating for a concrete foundation for another brick block on Roosevelt avenue, between Leiberman's and Lauzon's, to be erected for Dankroger Bros. The structure will be 25x55 feet and two stories high. Emil Johnson has the contract for the brick work.

C. H. Pfenning has grubbed a number of stumps, and done some needed grading about his place, making good improvement.

Capt. Thomas McCabe has the best lawn on Corey avenue. He planted the first grass seed in Coleraine two years ago.

Henry Volke is now engaged in tree planting through the older settled sections of our city. The citizens are expected to meet this move by individual efforts on their premises.

The band boys have decided to put on a home talent minstrel show at the auditorium some time during this month; watch this paper for date and further announcement.

Mrs. Booth, county superintendent of schools of Itasca county, is visiting the schools of this district. She was at Taconite and Bovey Thursday and at Coleraine Friday. Mrs. Anderson visited the schools with her at Bovey and Taconite.

GAVE SUNDAY CONCERT.

Finnish Band of Eveleth Played Upon Streets of City.

Eveleth, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Finnish band furnished a welcome surprise to the public yesterday afternoon. The musicians gathered at one of the street corners and played popular music to a large crowd. The band intends to give these free concerts on many Sundays during the summer. This is much appreciated by the people, especially those who are not able to pay very much to hear music.

LOSERS WILL FIGHT.

Unsuccessful Bidders May Carry Matter Into Courts.

Eveleth, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—After the council awarded the cleaning up contract to Mrs. Maxwell at $1,200, the two lower bidders, Zaccheus Lapl and Andrew Saarl, consulted attorneys and as the law says contracts must be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, they say they will start a lawsuit against the city if the job is given to Mrs. Maxwell. The mayor has, as yet, not signed the resolution and as he seems to wish to follow the letter of the law, he probably will veto it before tomorrow night, when the matter will be brought to the attention of the council. The only thing necessary to find out is if the lower bidders can furnish the required bond. If this is done the contract will, in all probability, be given to Zaccheus Lapl, who has a bid in for $1,149.98.

WEDS AT BIG LAKE.

Big Lake, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Jennie M. Haven and Vernon W. Knapp were married here Wednesday evening the at home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Haven.

The bride wore a princess gown of white lace. Her flowers were white roses. A wedding supper followed immediately after the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Knapp left for their new home in Grand Rapids, Minn., where Mr. Knapp is with the First State bank. The bride wore a traveling suit of Copenhagen blue with hat to match.

SICK AND DESPONDENT, JADUS KILLS HIMSELF.

Ely, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Steve Jadus, a homesteader living at Crane Portage, shot and killed himself while despondent because of his illness, having consumption. Deputy Coroner Gleason, who investigated the case Saturday, reported that Jadus was heartbroken because his wife and children were in the old country and he would not be able to see them before he died. While temporarily insane, through brooding over his troubles, he fired a shot into his heart.

FRIENDS HELP.

St. Paul Park Incident.

"After drinking coffee for breakfast I always felt languid and dull, having no ambition to get to my morning duties. Then in about an hour or so a weak, nervous derangement of the heart and stomach would come over me with such force I would frequently have to lie down.

"At other times I had severe headaches; stomach finally became affected and digestion so impaired that I had serious chronic dyspepsia and constipation. A lady, for many years state president of the W. C. T. U., told me she had been greatly benefited by quitting coffee and using Postum Food Coffee; she was troubled for years with asthma. She said it was no cross to quit coffee when she found she could have as delicious an article as Postum.

"Another lady who had been troubled with chronic dyspepsia for years, found immediate relief on ceasing coffee and beginning Postum twice a day. She was wholly cured. Still another friend told me that Postum Food Coffee was a Godsend to her, her heart trouble having been relieved after leaving off coffee and taking on Postum.

"So may cases came to my notice that I concluded coffee was the cause of my trouble and I quit and took up Postum. I am more than pleased to say that my days of trouble have disappeared. I am well and happy." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pacakages.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, and full of human interest.

SAM BUSKI RUN OVER BY TRAIN

Man, Believed to Have Family Here, Killed at Nashwauk.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—As Sam Buski, while intoxicated, was crossing the tracks Friday night on his way to Stevenson, he was instantly killed by a train of cars running over his body severing his right leg and arms, crushing his skull and internally bruising him. Buski and a partner were living in a log shack north of town. He had been drinking freely previous to the accident. His partner insisted on his coming home but he said he would not be home that night.

Buski is supposed to have a wife and daughter residing in Duluth. He was a native of Finland.

NOT FINNISH SOCIALISTS.

Ely Residents of Finnish Nationality Object to Accusation.

Ely, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald)—Finnish Socialists came in for a scoring at a meeting held here yesterday afternoon in which a large number of Finlanders took occasion to go on record against being classed as Finnish Socialists. They also emphasized that they not only are not Finnish Socialists, but are opposed to the doctrines of Socialists in toto.

They loudly applauded the sentiment, "America and its laws are good enough for us, and any time that we do not like the country we will leave it."

The meeting was addressed by Rev. Isaac Katamajanaa, Rev. Alexander Sundstrom, Alderman John E. Porthan and Erick Antilla. All of the speakers denounced the Finnish Socialists in no uncertain terms and after the meeting all but thirteen of the audience signed resolutions which embraced all of the main parts of the various speeches.

The Finns have been accused of startling industrial troubles in various parts of the country and it was principally to show the American public that they were not in favor of disorder and that they revere the laws of America that the local Finns met yesterday.

TWO HARBORS EVENTS.

Large Force Working on Fifth Avenue Sewer---Other Notes.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pastoret & Lunz have put on a force of men to assist in digging the trenches for the sewer on Fifth avenue. Owing to the rock the ditch digging machine they recently purchased is not proving the success expected.

The Lake County Land company have opened up another 200 acres of farm land near the city, which will soon be placed on sale in small parcels.

The farm lands in this section are rapidly being taken up. Many are building houses and cleaning the land and the market for farm machinery and wagons in this section is rapidly expanding.

With the new time card which took effect on the Duluth & Iron road yesterday the train to Drummond will now run only Tuesdays and Saturdays, instead of three times per week as heretofore.

A large number of people came up from Duluth on the Booth steamer America, Sunday, returning on the Iron Range train, which now leaves here at 5:50 p. m.

Eveleth, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chief Kent has received word that W. W. French, who is said to have swindled local merchants out of about $100 early in 1906, is being held at Eau Claire. French was a bookkeeper at a logging camp and made out time checks in his own favor, written on J. S. Smith, the logger. French's parents live at Eau Claire, and it is very probable that the local men will receive their money through a settlement.

FIREMEN TO MEET.

The priest had the parties arrested early in April, claiming they held him in the church vestibule until he was faint from hunger. The case grew out of an attempt of the priest's to oust the trustees from control of the church affairs. At the first trial the jury disagreed.

W. A. PITCHER VICTIM OF FORT WAYNE HOTEL FIRE

rowing into the ruins in search for dead. There are a number of persons yet missing, though how many and the identity of some of them is altogether problematical owing to the burning of the regigster and other guest records of the hotel. The total number of deaths cannot be determined, until the debris has been completely searched.

Night Clerk Discovers Fire.

The fire was discovered at 3:50 yesterday morning in the elevator shaft by Night Clerk Ralph H. Hopkins. He rushed to the upper floors to give the alarm, but the flames which spread rapidly drove him back. His efforts however, saved many lives.

The hotel was erected fifty years ago and the woodwork was dry as tinder. It burned like matchwood and within a few minutes after the fire was discoverd the whole interior of the hotel was a mass of flames that filled the corridors and rooms with suffocating clouds of smoke and laid fiery barriers across all ways of escape except by the windows.

Firemen rescued many by means of ladders, but some frenzied by the rush of the flames, leaped from high windows to the street.

R. S. Johnson of Peoria, Ill., jumped from the fifth story. His body struck a balcony and bounded far into the street. He was a crushed and bleeding mass when picked up, and died a short time later in St. Joseph's hospital.

As the fury of the flames increased, men and women were seen in the windows of their rooms, where they wildly implored help. Some did not wait for the efforts of the firemen and leaped to the street. Several were seriously injured in this way.

Many Thrilling Escapes.

There were many thrilling escapes. Claude H. Varnell of the Fort Wayne baseball team, his sister, Mrs. John Hendricks, and John Hendricks of Chicago, manager of the Fort Wayne team, together with Master Hendricks, aged 5 years, barely escaped with their lives. Hendricks, his wife ahead of him and his boy in his arms, was descending the fire escape from the fifth floor. At the third floor the fire broke out below them. He swung Mrs. Hendricks over the railing and she dropped to the platform of the story below. He then dropped his son into the arms of his wife and all made their way to the ground.

The hotel was a six-story building of brick in the business center of the city. Its erection was begun in 1852, but it was not completer until several years later. In 1886 the building was extensively remodeled and two stories were added. The hotel and furnishings were valued at $60,000.

The destruction of the interior of the hotel makes the work of recovering bodies difficult. A confused heap of charred wood, brick and twisted girders is piled up between the bare walls to the second story. Piece by piece this must be removed before the roll of dead can be completed. Some of the bodies taken out are mangled and charred beyond recognition.

Infantry company O and battery B of the Indiana national guard are aiding the fire and police forces to clear away the debris.

Among the injured is F. C. Phillips, Calumet, Mich., face burned and head scorched.

W. A. Pitcher, referred to in the dispatch as being a resident of Duluth, was formerly employed as a traveling salesman by the Standard Oil company, making his headquarters in Duluth. He left the employ of the company about a year ago, however, and since that time has been employed as a traveling representative of a western railroad. He was married and, so far as is known, has no relatives in Duluth.

Mr. Pitcher leaves many friends in Duluth, who will learn with regret of his death. He was a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity, being connected with Ionic lodge No. 186, Keystone chapter No. 29 and Duluth commandery No. 18.

His friends in the order here are trying to locate his relatives, who are believed to live in Indiana. If they do not succeed in doing so a member of one of the local lodges will leave this evening to take charge of the body.

HEARING FOR RELEASE OF HARRY THAW BEGINS

waiting for the court to open. This was delayed until after 11 o'clock, owing to the late arrival of Assistant District Attorney Garvan of New York.

In court were Warden Flynn of the Tombs prison, New York, and nine or ten other attaches and three chaplains from the same prison, who had been summoned by Thaw to testify as to his behavior while in prison.

Matrimonial Affairs.

An interesting sidelight on Thaw's matrimonial affairs, which have attracted much attention since his removal to the asylum was contained in a statement given by A. Russell Peabody, one of Thaw's counsel, before the opening of court today. Young Mrs. Thaw, who had such a prominent place in the two trials of her husband for murder and who has begun suit for the annulment of her marriage to Thaw, has not seen her husband in more than two months. Mr. Peabody said, however, that Mrs. Thaw has offered herself as a witness in her husband's behalf should her testimony be necessary to obtain his freedom. He did not know whether it would be necessary to call her to Poughkeepsie, he said, but if he believed it necessary as the case develops she will be summoned.

Thaw himself will undoubtedly go on the stand in his own behalf, Mr. Peabody said. He declared that the prisoner is willing to submit to any examination the court or the district attorney may desire as proof of his sanity.

Will Oppose Garvan.

Mr. Peabody said he and Mr. Graham will oppose any attempt to have the case transferred to New York county, which it was reported Assistant District Attorney Garvan would make at the opening of the hearing.

"We want the case tried in Dutchess county," said Mr. Peabody. "Thaw's place of confinement is here; the writ was made returnable here, and we believe that the crowds of curiosity seekers which would be attracted in New York can be avoided in Poughkeepsie.

"We hold that the burden of proof rests upon Mr. Jerome to show that Thaw is insane. He has never been declared to be insane. Mr. Jerome's commission in the first trial adjudged him sane. The jury in the second trial deemed him insane at the time he killed Stanford White."

CELEBRATE DAY OF FREEDOM

Polish People Observe Anniversary of Adoption of Constitution.

Polish resident of Duluth appropriately celebrated the one hundred and seventeenth anniversary of the adoption of the Polish constitution, at an entertainment given in St. Clement's hall last evening.

The hall, which is located at Twenty-first avenue west and Third street, was filled to its capacity. Louis Zymalony acted as chairman of the meeting.

Clarence B. Miller spoke on patriotism, urging the Polish people to be loyal to the memory of their own country, and also to the flag of their adopted country, America.

"The Present Poland" was the subject of an address by Julius Tyl, and A. Kollanda spoke on "The Constitution." S. Kocinski chose for his subject "The Birth of the Constitution."

The closing address was made by Rev. Father Laskowski of St. Peter and Paul's Catholic church, who urged the people of his race to remember Poland and their religion, and to bring up their children to likewise revere the mother country and the church, and to be loyal to the country of their adoption, America.

Recitations were given by the following: Agnes Wolowicz, Frances Kujawa, L. Norvaczyk, John Kujawa and John Galeski. Musical numbers were rendered by three different choirs —St. Cecilia's of St. Peter and Paul's church, St. Agnes of St. Peter and Paul's school and the Patriotic choir, composed of men.

BEATING HIS WIFE.

Blake Thompson Arrested on a Drunk and Disorderly Charge.

Blake Thompson was arrested Saturday night at his home, 125 Fourth avenue east, for beating his wife. A drunk and disorderly charge was placed against him. Patrolman Barber was attracted to the house by the screams of Mrs. Thompson. Neighbors also had notified the police station.

When he entered the house, Barber found Thompson in bed and his wife in another part of the house. She was bleeding from the mouth and nose, and in addition to bruises about the face and head, had a black eye. The man claimed his wife had had a fit, and had fallen to the floor, hurting herself as she fell. Mrs. Thompson and the neighbors had a different story to tell, however. The former's cries for help had aroused the neighborhood.

Thompson forfeited his bail this morning.

M. & I. TRACKS GOOD.

General Manager Gemmell Pleased With Present Condition.

International Falls, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—General Manager Gemmell of the Minnesota & International road says that his company is pleased with the manner in which the new track has held up this spring, it being in such good shape that their passenger train schedule has not been interfered with. Instead of the road being inoperative for a month at this time, as some had predicted, service will be maintained and a reduction made in the time between here and the Twin Cities. The latter will take place as soon as the work trains do some ballasting between here and Big Falls, and it is expected that the greater part of the reduction will benefit people living on this end of the line, as instead of the passenger train departing from here at 3:45 a. m., as now, it will probably be changed to about 4:30.

GET HEAVY FINE.

John Esterlund and Wife Thought to Have Robbed Woodsman.

John Esterlund and his wife, Minnie Esterlund, were in court together this morning. The charge against them was just drunkenness, but behind it the police told a story of the robbery of a woodsman. There was no evidence to support the robbery charge, however, and they were sentenced to $25 and costs apiece, or thirty days, on the charge of drunkenness.

County Attorney Norton Finds Himself in Strange Predicament.

County Attorney J. H. Norton, who had been retained by W. Schriber, a homesteader, near Virginia, to prosecute for slander a woman named Guernia Cantrel, will be compelled, by reason of his official position, to prosecute Schriber on the charge of murdering Frank Masseport, a fellow homesteader. Schriber was arrested last week. In view of the developments it is probable that Mr. Norton will drop the slander case.

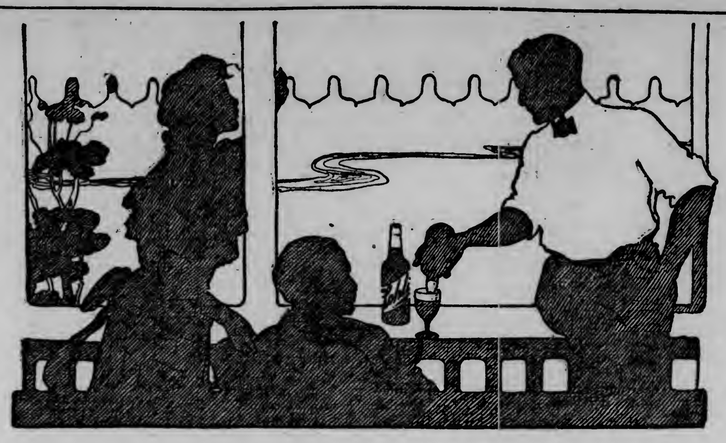
LOSES TWO FINGERS.

Brainerd, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Orvin Poler, an employe of Jones' sawmill on Gull lake, had the misfortune to lose two fingers on his right hand Friday forenoon. In some way he got them in contact with a circular saw, cutting the little finger off close to the hand and the next finger near the next joint. He was brought to this city and Dr. Nicholson amputated the fingers at the knuckle.



THE ALCOHOL in beer is a trifle—only 3½ per cent. The effective ingredients are barley and hops—a food and a tonic. Pure beer is both good and good for you.

In Germany, Holland, Sweden, Denmark and Austria beer is the national beverage. Nearly all people, of all ages, drink it.

And all the world envies their sturdy strength.

Every doctor knows how beer benefits. If you need more strength or vitality he will prescribe it.

But be careful to choose a pure beer, else you get harm with the good. And select a beer well aged to avoid biliousness.

The way to be sure is to order Schlitz. We go to extremes in cleanliness. We even filter the air that cools it. We age it for months. We sterilize every bottle.

Schlitz has no after effects.

Ask for the Brewery Bottling.
Common beer is sometimes substituted for Schlitz.
To avoid being imposed upon, see that the cork or crown is branded Schlitz.

Tree Grows Within a Tree.

The great firs and cedars in the forests of Washington and Oregon sometimes reach the thickness of twelve or fourteen feet. A large cedar was cut down near the town of Port Orford, and the lumbermen were astonished to find that inside of its trunk was a spruce tree, measuring nearly three feet in thickness. The great staple beverage of the Northwest is golden ness and quality. In purity, healthfulness and quality it has no equal. Order of Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

HITS A CHINAMAN.

Celestial Claims Driscoll Refused to Pay for Chop Suey.

Because William Driscoll refused to pay for the chop suey he had eaten in a Superior street Chinese restaurant, he was arrested and brought into court this morning, pleading not guilty.

Driscoll, it is claimed, refused to pay for his meal, and when the Celestial insisted, Driscoll is claimed to have attacked him and beaten him.

MAKE IT STRONG!

The Democratic primaries to be held Wednesday, when delegates to the county conventions will be elected, should not be the tame, dull, cut-and-dried affairs that pre-convention caucuses usually are.

This time it should be different, and unless The Herald misreads the sentiment of Minnesota voters, it will be different.

Usually these caucuses are attended only by a few, and interest in them is languid. This time, judging from public sentiment as it now appears, there will be so many in attendance that it will keep the clerks busy during the time the polls are open to receive the votes that will be cast.

Why?

Because at these primaries the voters will tell what they think of John A. Johnson—of "Johnson of Minnesota"—of the man whose rapid and irresistible rise from poverty and obscurity to the fairest and widest fame, whose unaided struggle upward by sheer force of aggressive, earnest and singleminded strength of character and devotion to the duty of the hour, and whose strong appeal to the love and confidence of the plain people have made his name a household word from one end of the land to the other.

There is opposition to this outburst of confidence and a proval, it is true. There are men whose personal ambitions, jealousies and hatred of success have led them to try to prevent the rank and file of the Democracy of Minnesota from voicing their pride in the achievements of a son of the North Star state. They would have you blast your state with the shameful sin of ingratitude; they would have you tell the outside world that petty jealousy and disappointed political ambitions count more in Minnesota than state pride.

They are few, however, and the voters who are proud of their state and proud of a native son who has brought it such fame are many. At the primaries Wednesday state pride, loyalty to and admiration of Minnesota's favorite son, and appreciation of the splendid fame that Governor Johnson has gained for himself and his state, will sweep petty jealousies, ignoble selfishness and the opposition of disappointed seekers of office and power into space.

The name of Governor Johnson is a talisman of success; an inspiration of hope and opportunity. He stands for the plain people, and the plain people, knowing this, stand with him. That is why Minnesota voters will take pleasure in pouring out next Wednesday to cast their votes for Johnson delegates to the county conventions, and thereby to show their confidence in his steadfastness and integrity, their pride in him as a native-born son of Minnesota soil who has won his way unaided, and their wish that he may have the opportunity to lead the banners of the national Democracy to a victory as glorious as those which he has won for the Democracy of his state.

Every voter who believes that Governor Johnson has earned a vote of confidence and a tribute of faith from his native state should attend the caucuses Wednesday and see that he gets it. The vote cast then should be the biggest ever polled at a party caucus in the history of this state.

CANNON FOR SPEAKER AGAIN?

It comes upon the authority of the Washington correspondence of Republican newspapers that Speaker Cannon has made a "deal" whereby he removes himself from the pathway of the capacious Taft, in consideration of Republican support for re-election as speaker.

"In return for the Cannon support for Taft," says the Washington correspondent of the Republican Duluth News Tribune, "the speaker is to be supported for re-election as speaker, and the dogs are to be called off."

The people, who have witnessed with scant patience the policy of Speaker Cannon, and who have seen him use his undemocratic power to throttle legislation demanded by the people and to affront and humiliate the president who has, in behalf of the people, called upon congress to enact that legislation, will hear this news with keen interest. A deal between Taft and Cannon might help the former to win his nomination, but it could scarcely improve his prospects before the people at election time.

"The dogs are to be called off" by the Taft supporters, and the way made clear for Cannon's re-election as speaker. The people may have something to say about that. Just now, it is quite clear that there is nothing the people need and desire quite so much as a new speaker of the house of representatives. If they can't get the change made by Republican congressmen, they will accomplish it by obliterating the Republican majority in the house. The friends and toadies of Cannon must be removed, and if the Republican party won't do it the people will. Taft will gain no glory for himself by an alliance with Cannon, the unspeakable.

THE BEST GOVERNMENT.

Somebody said once that the best government is that which governs least, and a lot of people have kept on believing it ever since. There are not so many now as there were—indeed the pendulum of public sentiment has swung far the other way, and the clamor today is for more government.

The man that said that he believed in it, too. It was natural that he should. This country had just cut the leading strings of a monarchy which had abused its power until it became unbearable, and was starting out for itself. Its people had just gone through an oppressive and disagreeable experience of too much government, and they wanted no more of it. So when this man said that the best government is that which governs least, he crystallized into a phrase the universal sentiment of the people.

The forming of the nation was a compromise between those who held that as little government as possible was desirable, and those who realized that too little government meant weakness and lack of stability. Thomas Jefferson represented the little-government party, and Alexander Hamilton stood for—and was, as a matter of fact—the much-government party. Like most compromises, this one was better than the proposals of either side. Hamilton's much-government would have involved the prospect of tyranny; Jefferson's little-government would have involved the certainty of weakness. Under the compromise, tested in the forge of battle, we have got along pretty well.

But the men of that day thought only of political freedom, and dreamed not of industrial freedom. We gained political freedom, therefore, and spent so much time fondling it and admiring it that we woke up not long ago and found that our industrial freedom was gone. We were political freemen, but economic serfs. Then came the cry for more government—for government to protect the weak industrial vassals against the oppression of the strong industrial overlords. That is what Roosevelt and Johnson and Bryan and La Follette and the people stand for—for an exertion of government that will restore industrial freedom.

Don't think for a moment that we have industrial freedom when 75 per cent of our people depend, absolutely without any outside help, for their jobs, for their incomes, for safety and comfort in employment, for the privileges of their childhood and the glory of their womanhood, upon the selfish interests of a few.

Our government has been adhering so closely to that ideal of the old time that it has permitted wealth and power to congest in the hands of the few at the expense of the many. It has permitted wage oppression, child labor, woman labor, noisome and dangerous working conditions, pauperism and crime. Permitted? Its negligence has fostered these evils.

Now, when it is proposed to exert government in behalf of the many—which is all that any existing plan for economic improvement means, from Socialism down to tariff revision—the beneficiaries of neglect are clamoring that that is the best government which governs least, and that government ought to keep its hand off business.

Do you believe it?

A VERY NATURAL INTEREST.

Like many other strongly partisan Republican newspapers in Minnesota, the Duluth News Tribune shows an itching desire to edge into the Democratic caucus contest and give a little aid and comfort to the cause of Bryan.

Is this because these partisan newspapers love Bryan? If they love him the affection is a very new and very sudden growth. Even though they endeavor, as the News Tribune endeavors, to show that Republicans prefer the nomination of Bryan, that does not prove anything except that they have reason to fear Governor Johnson, and that they would like to see him humiliated and his career blasted in order that it might be possible to elect some of the Republican candidates for governor that the manipulated state conventions of the Republican party produce. There can be nothing complimentary to Mr. Bryan in the fact that partisan Republican newspapers are working for his nomination and against Governor Johnson.

In order to remove this menacing figure from the path of Republican success in Minnesota, this challenging figure which is an assurance that unless the Republicans nominate governorship candidates suitable to the people instead of those picked and juggled into the nomination by the "interests" victory shall be denied that party, these Republican newspapers would be more than delighted if the Democratic party of Minnesota should reject Governor Johnson at the caucuses Wednesday evening.

To humiliate him at home and to shame him abroad would be a great stroke for Republican machine politics in Minnesota. No wonder the temptation to edge into the fight and help Bryan is proving irresistible to partisan Republican newspapers.

A REAL ARBOR DAY.

Arbor day came and went in Duluth, and nothing happened. It was not pleasant weather, for one thing, and then somehow people seem to have gotten out of the habit of giving this tree-planting day the attention it deserves.

May 1 was Arbor day in Michigan, and Detroit had an observance of the day that is in marked contrast to the neglect in which it usually passes.

On that day 10,000 American elms were planted in Detroit by the school children. The board of trade had charge of the affair, and the trees were delivered to the public schools by members. A charge of a penny for each tree was made, and each child buying one or more was given full instructions about how and where to plant them.

The board of trade also interested the children in a public cleaning day on May 1, with splendid results. In many cases the parents were awakened to their duty through the children, and it is said that Detroit had such a cleaning day as it has never had before.

The following suggestions were made to the children of Detroit: First, clean up the back alley, if you have one; second, rake up the yard, front and rear, every corner of it, right out to the street; third, prepare the flower beds and garden; fourth, be sure to have some grass seed and use it on the bare places; fifth, repair fences, walks and outbuildings; sixth, if there is a neglected vacant lot near you, let the children form a neighborhood club and clean it up. Burn the rubbish. Bury the tin cans.

This is a plan that might well be adopted in Duluth. Civic neglect is the worst evil in our cities; indeed, it is the parent of all municipal evils, from untidy alleys up to political corruption. If the children can be taught to take an interest in their city, they will be better citizens when they grow up, and in the meantime they will stimulate the citizenship of their elders by their example.

A local article in The Herald recently stated that the city is to do much tree-planting this spring, and that two or three thousand trees will be planted in Duluth by the city before June 1. It was also stated that aside from the city's work in this direction, there is a large demand for young trees from private citizens who wish to decorate their grounds.

Duluth is a young city, and it cannot expect its shade trees to compare with the shady growth that characterizes many other communities, and that forms their chief beauty. But all of the trees that make Eastern communities so delightful were young once, and had to be planted. If Duluth keeps at its work of tree-planting, in time it will have an array of shade trees that will make its hillsides glorious. Another year the children should be interested, as they were in Detroit this year.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Toronto, Can., has felt the effects of the development of the Canadian Northwest more than any other city, with the possible exception of Winnipeg," said D. S. McMullen of Chatham, Ont., who was registered at the Spalding Saturday.

"Toronto is the great jobbing and manufacturing center of Ontario, and is a very modern and Americanized city. The development of the Northwest opened up a new market for the products of the Toronto houses, and many of the large jobbing and manufacturing concerns opened up branch houses at Winnipeg.

"The growth of the city during the last few years has been very rapid. They now claim to have more than 300,000 people. They have the finest theater in Canada, and the new King Edward hotel is one of the finest on the continent. The city has, in fact, gone ahead wonderfully in every way, and has blossomed out from a big, overgrown village to a metropolitan city in a class with some of the largest in this country."

"Edmonton is going to be the big city of Northwestern Canada, outside of Winnipeg," said E. G. Holloway of Edmonton, who was registered at the St. Louis yesterday.

"Edmonton has already outstripped Calgary in many ways. We have about 13,000 people, while Calgary has about 12,000. The Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific will both pass through Edmonton, which is the entrance point to the great Peace River country, which is just opening up. Calgary has only the Canadian Pacific. The only possible advantage Calgary may have over us is in the climate. They are 200 miles south, and there may be a little advantage in the climate, but very little, and it is my belief that Edmonton will become the big city of the Canadian Northwest, surpassed only by Winnipeg."

E. W. Simmons, who was at the Lenox Saturday evening, is an enthusiast on the subject of abandoned New England farms.

"There are scores and hundreds of farms in New England," he said, which can be made profitable by the use of a little common sense and a little knowledge of farming. If they would farm there with the science that our Western farmers display they would make a big success of it. The land was rich at one time and could be made rich again. The markets are close at hand, and the farms can be picked up for a song. If I weren't so busy selling goods to the merchants of the Northwest, I might try it."

"They have short courses for farmers at the Wisconsin state agricultural school that are bringing excellent results," said C. S. Merton, a knight of the grip who makes Madison every trip, in talking of universities and university courses, at the McKay last evening.

"They have one course of six weeks there, for farmers' sons and farmers themselves. The farmers come from all over the state to take this course, and it certainly pays them, from all I hear. Then they have a still shorter course of ten days. A great many farmers take this short course, and they get full value for the time and money spent. The best feature of the short courses is that they open the eyes of the farmers to the value of scientific farming, and the men who take the short course generally come back for a longer one or send their sons back."

THE WEATHER.

Though a slight northeast wind blew this morning, the sky was brilliantly clear and the sun was genially warm. It was a charming spring day, and if it might have been a little warmer, the experience of the past week or so made it seem agreeably mild. Yesterday was delightfully clear and comfortably warm. The weather man's forecast looks a little northeastery. He says it will be partly cloudy tonight and cloudy tomorrow with possible showers, accompanied by brisk northeast winds. Last night's lowest temperature was 32 degs. and yesterday's highest was 49 degs.

A year ago today it was warmer after several weeks of cold weather.

The sun rose this morning at 4:47 and sets tonight at 7:22, making 14 hours and 35 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "A storm of considerable intensity is central over Kansas. During the past twenty-four hours it caused rain or snow in the Plateau region, Rocky Mountains, the Eastern slopes, the Southwest and Central valleys and severe local thunderstorms over Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri. Cool weather continues in Saskatchewan, Manitoba, the Upper lake region, Dakotas and throughout the Rocky mountains southward to including New Mexico due to the high barometer in Western Ontario and rising pressures throughout the West. Indications favor increasing cloudiness in this locality tonight probably followed by showers during Tuesday."

St. Louis Republic: "I love all humanity—north, south, east and west—it makes no difference," says John D. Rockefeller. "I am glad to be able to say that I love each and every one of my fellow men. "Him? Stole a base."

Baltimore American: Doctor—Those remittances from your popular songs ought to be very soothing to your nerves.

Musician—They are, doctor; regular composing drafts.

Washington Star: "Have you ever been spoken of as a possible presidential candidate?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "My boom is not as conspicuous as it might be, but it is entitled to as much consideration as a lot of them. When I was a small boy my uncle placed his hand upon my head and remarked, 'My boy, you may be president some day!'"

Indianapolis News: "James," said Mr. Rakeley, "I believe you saw me—er—saluting the nurse maid."

"Yes, sir," replied James, with upturned palm, "silence is golden, sir."

Philadelphia Press: "The last time I saw Miss Kutely she had a job as collector running down old accounts for a wealthy manufacturer."

Philadelphia Ledger: Senator Crane came smiling from the White House.

"You must have hit it off pretty well with the president," remarked a friend.

"Hit it off! I should say so," answered the senator. "Why, he was so good-natured that he unconsciously called me Mr. Stork."

Philadelphia Press: "Some people say," remarked the talkative man, "that the making of good whisky is a fine art."

"MINNESOTA LUCK."

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Governor Johnson is to be commended for the good nature of his reply to the assertion of one of his opponents that his successes in Minnesota have been merely the result of good fortune. "Perhaps," he said, "it would be good policy for the Democratic party to try a little Minnesota luck for once."

In almost every line of human endeavor there is a willingness to experiment. There are some exact sciences, but politics is not one of them. There are businesses in which income and outgo can be figured with reasonable precision, but running for office is not one of them. There are enterprises in which one personality often counts for more than anything else, and politics is one of them.

Some of the greatest and best of Americans could not be elected to high office. Since Jackson's day few of our presidents have been the great political chieftains of their time. Since the Civil war nearly all of them have been chosen for availability rather than real leadership. Two conflicting forces are always at work upon a conspicuous politician and in his case there is generally the paradox that as his strength increases so does his weakness also. Laudation brings detraction and prominence is ever attended by jealousy and animosity.

For these reasons a candidate worthy in all respects but unidentified with faction, satisfactory as to character and ability, but free from entanglements, magnifies his party and so reaches the polls in many cases with more votes than a leader of the other type. As ours is and must be a government by party rather than by one man or a few men, it is easily to be seen that true political sagacity has been behind the dark-horse theory.

If it pleases anybody to refer to recent political events in Minnesota as "luck," let the characterization be accepted with all graciousness and let all who may be interested go to the roots of things and see if perchance there may not be something in them besides luck. Men often attribute to luck successes for which a better reason might be found. If there be such a thing as luck in politics the Democratic party stands in as much need of it as any political organization of which there is any record.

Quite as important as receptiveness in matters of this kind so far as Democrats are concerned is the spirit of toleration and good humor agreeably manifested in all of Governor Johnson's utterances on the subject of the nomination. He is not making any claims for himself. He is not reading any Democrats out of the party. He is not accusing anybody of spending money to defeat him.

On the contrary, he is singularly free from antagonism. When he speaks he expounds Democratic doctrine. There is no aggrandizement of himself, but there is aggrandizement of his party. He looks upon no Democrat as his enemy. He will lead the Democratic posts to the best of his ability, if called upon, and, if another shall be chosen, he shall do his full duty in the ranks, content in any capacity to advance the principles which he cherishes.

Is there not revealed in all this a substantial reason for the belief that Governor Johnson is something more than a creature of luck?

Johnson a Menace.

Springfield Union (Rep.): Any Republican candidate can defeat Bryan, and if Bryan is to be the choice of the Democrats, it makes little difference who is nominated by the Republicans. The only question will be the selection of the man best qualified to be president, and it is generally believed that Secretary Taft is that man. But with Governor Johnson as the Democratic candidate, very many Republicans will feel that the question of availability is of the utmost importance. We believe even the interests that are so bitter against Roosevelt would be pleased with Taft as president, and that the people would find in him as good a friend as they have found in Roosevelt. With Bryan as the candidate Taft can win easily. What will be the outcome if Johnson is the nominee?

New York has refused to indorse Bryan, and Massachusetts will follow suit. The South is not in love with the Nebraskan. There is a movement of mighty power in the Democratic party to prevent the nomination of Bryan and to bring about the nomination of Johnson, who stands for the same ideas that have made Governor Hughes popular. He can appeal to the people, and the conservatives are also with him. His record is clean, and the fact that he is little known is rather to his advantage. He is the most formidable man the Democrats could nominate.

We believe the vast majority of new voters are Republicans and will be for Taft. But it is well to look the facts in the face and to realize that the movement for Johnson has great strength behind it, and that Johnson will be a hard man to defeat.

Useful Yet.

My little boy has learned a lot since first he started off to school;
Much that I long ago forgot he has but lately learned by rule;
I once knew how to parse, but now the knack somehow is gone from me;
He fairly chews the grammar up; he knows the whole thing to a T;
Sometimes he is inclined, I fear, to look upon me with disdain,
But I still come in handy here—I earn the pleasures that we gain.

I cannot name the boundaries of Burma or Beloochistan;
He does it with the greatest ease, and proudly shows me that he can;
He works out problems that I shun, although I could have solved them
once;
Sometimes I more than half suspect that he regards me as a dunce;
Perhaps I might go back and learn if
I had fewer daily cares,
But, after all, 'tis I that earn the food
he eats, the clothes he wears.

My little boy is learning fast, while I forget, year after year;
The records of the misty past, to me
so vague, to him are clear;
He writes a better hand than I, his letters are more plainly made;
He spells words that I cannot spell without the dictionary's aid;
He is inclined sometimes, I fear, to think my boyhood was misspent,
But I still come in handy here; foot the bills and pay the rent.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Mankato Free Press: Ripley E. Brower of St. Cloud is said to be feelin' 'round before making any statement as to his attitude toward the governorship.

St. Hilaire Spectator: The all-absorbing political question at present is: "Has Jacobson changed his friends?"

Cass Lake Times: Milton D. Purdy, a Minnesotan, has been appointed to the district bench of the federal court of Minnesota by the president, against the wishes and protests of Senators Nelson and Clapp. Judge Hale of Minneapolis was recommended by our senators, but the president turned him down because he was too old. Old age seems to be a disqualification, if not a crime, in these strenuous times.

Long Prairie Leader: And it must be said that to date the only candidate for the Republican nomination for governor who is willing to run on his record is J. F. Jacobson.

Grand Rapids Independent: By the way, did you notice that the Democratic newspapers are perniciously active in knocking the gubernatorial candidacy of Joel P. Heatwole and making it appear as though it were a joke? They are evidently afraid of him and want to see him lose the nomination.

Madison Independent Press: Minnesota politics seem to be approaching the boiling point.

Bemidji Sentinel: It is estimated that Speaker Cannon is making one thousand Democratic votes a day by his method of preventing any legislation for the relief of the country.

Fairmont Sentinel: What a howl would go up from the interests if Young should win out and get the nomination. But he can't. The interests that he so courageously defied will see that he has not a ghost of a show for the nomination.

Long Prairie Leader: Congressman Bede is trying to get congress to pass the Rainy river dam bill over the president's veto. President Roosevelt says this country should stop giving away such valuable concessions. Too much public land and valuable privileges have been given away and it is time the people's rights were protected and some limit fixed.

Appleton Press: The standpatters promise tariff revision after election. There are so many elections in the future that a little more definiteness as to what election ought to be demanded.

Breckenridge Gazette: The independent voter is abroad in the land this year and the "falls" he will take out of some of the old-timers will be nothing small.

Golf and Good Nature.

Boston Globe: Though many men see nothing in the ancient and honorable game of golf, and affect to laugh to scorn the man who spends his time chasing with active club the white pill over the vernal sward, many more there be who find in the game a source of great benefit to the body, and also, more particularly to the mind.

Golfers, especially those of mature years, given to reflection and the weighing of cause and effect, find in the game an influence uplifting to the lagging spirit, and productive of philosophy and good nature.

Every golfer must get close to the bosom of mother earth as every other golfer. Some get closer than others, by the mischance of a poor iron shot, whereby they neatly carve a junk from the green turf. Expletives may follow, but on the whole the golfer, once the game has shown its full meaning to his soul, bears his lot with equanimity.

Patience, keenness of observation, regard for the rights of others playing on the same course, and a paramount respect of simple walking over grass-carpeted soil hour after hour, in pursuit of something not aimless, but systematic enough to keep the mind occupied, in a study of the sward under foot, the contour and character of the country round about, the conditions of wind and weather—in short, a serious observation of nature and her ways of doing things, are attributes of golf.

Hence golf must make men better, by bringing them away from the complexities of modern life; more good natured through its little trials of patience, and kindlier through the serenity of mind that nature always bestows on those who approach her with a clear conscience.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Traverse City, Mich., May 4.—"Uncle Dan" Whipple, aged 109 years, died last night from a hemorrhage of the brain. Yesterday he seemed as well as usual and took a long walk in the fields. Mr. Whipple was born in Cattaraugus county, New York, March 1, 1799.

He was a member of Gen. Fremont's exploring party in his trip across the Rockies. He was long a companion of "Kit" Carson and later served through the Civil war in an Iowa regiment. He never married, being true to the memory of a sweetheart who was tortured to death by Indians and before his eyes when he was a young man in the West.

Washington, May 4.—Thomas J. Sullivan, director of the bureau of engraving and printing, died in this city today.

Philadelphia, May 4.—Rev. N. J. Watson, pastor of the Holsey African Methodist Episcopal church in Germantown, a suburb, dropped dead in the pulpit yesterday, when about to deliver a sermon. Rev. Watson was a graduate of Berlin college.

Budapest, May 4.—The famous revolutionary general, Stephen Turr, died here on Saturday. He was a Garibaldian veteran and one time a confidential advisor of Louis Kossuth. He was born in Baja, in Hungary, in 1825. The brilliant part he played in the war of liberation was acknowledged by the government of Victor Emmanuel, who promoted him to the rank of general of division in the army of Italy in 1861.

Donahue, involving a conflict over the possession of land in the Cass Lake land district of Minnesota, in favor of Donahue. The land was settled by a homesteader through whom Donahue made a claim in 1893, before it had been surveyed, but no effort was made to enter it hntil 1896, after the survey had been made. In the meantime the tract had been included in the list of land grants to the railroad The Minnesota supreme court decided in favor of the homesteader and the federal court affirmed the decision today.

JOHNSON CANDIDATES UP IN EVERY PRECINCT

Politicians Can Not Manufacture Credentials This Year.

Governor's Friends Confident of Controlling County Convention.

There will be a Johnson ticket in the field in every precinct in the county at the Democratic caucuses on Wednesday.

This will allow no opportunity for the methods employed two years ago to be adopted, when it is claimed that the Bryan faction manufactured credentials in Duluth for delegates to the county convention and attempted to seat delegates who had no residence in the precincts they were supposed to represent.

The friends of Governor Johnson have not been idle during the last week or two, and it was stated this afternoon that in every voting precinct in St. Louis county, including the city of Duluth, all the smaller towns, and the country, there will be a full Johnson ticket.

There will be 225 delegates in the convention. This is on a basis of one delegate from each voting precinct, and one delegate for every sixty votes cast for Governor Johnson.

The caucuses will be held in Duluth tomorrow evening from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., and in the outside precincts from 2 to 4 p. m.

In St. Paul and Minneapolis it is claimed that the Bryan workers are having the picture of Governor Johnson printed on the Bryan tickets, with the view of deceiving the voters. The Bryan voters spread the tip that the picture means nothing, and in this way it is hoped to pull the wool over the eyes of the Johnson supporters. Whether any such trick will be attempted here, remains to be seen, but to be on the safe side the Johnson supporters need only enter the polling places with their eyes and ears open and inquire of some of the workers at the polls, as to which ticket is pledged for Johnson and which for Bryan.

There will be Johnson supporters at every polling place in Duluth Wednesday evening.

The voting places Wednesday evening are the same as those used at the recent municipal election. A complete list of the polling places will be published in The Herald tomorrow evening, so that every voter will be able to learn where he can cast his ballot.

The Bryan clique is making a desperate fight. The politicians who have hitched their political wagon to the Bryan comet, realize that their political life or death depends largely on the outcome of the present fight, and they are working by every means in their power to stem the tide of Johnson sentiment, which seems to be sweeping the city and the county.

The Johnson "booster buttons," distributed by The Herald, are very much in evidence in Duluth today, and indicate the widespread interest that has been aroused in Governor Johnson's cause. Duluth people are awakening to the fact that Governor Johnson's boom, is no longer a "favorite son" affair, and if expressions heard on every side are significant of anything, he will be given a most enthusiastic indorsement from his home state, Duluth doing its share Wednesday evening.

ADJOURNMENT DATE IN DOUBT

Congress May Not be Ready to Quit on May 14.

Washington, May 4.—Representatives Watson and Alexander of New York had a long conference today with the president, concerning the legislative program for the remainder of the session of congress. The president is heartily in favor of the enactment of an anti-injunction law, and the amendment of the Sherman anti-trust law. Mr. Alexader's presence at the conference was due to the fact that he has prepared a bill making the government liable for inuries to its employes while in the service, and he wanted to confer with the president about this before pressing it in the house judiciary committee, of which he is a member.

Mr. Watson, who was some time ago sanguine of an adjournment by May 16 says he is now doubtful as to the date. He told the president that the house judiciary committee gave him signs of agreement on anti-injunction but as to amending the Sherman anti-trust law he could give the president no assurance. Mr. Watson was confident that some of the other measures favored by the president, including a child labor law for the District of Columbia would become laws.

WAS EVIDENTLY CASE OF SUICIDE

Body of Henry Brenneman Found in Amnicon River.

The body of Henry M. Brenneman, the proprietor of a candy store in Superior, was this afternoon found by the sheriff about one and a half miles below the Northern Pacific railroad bridge over the Amnicon river. The body when found by the sheriff and search party had been washed up on the bank by the current and lay half out of water on the shore.

It is thought to have been a case of suicide, as the old man, who is quite a character in Superior, where he went by the name of "Blind Henry," having lost the use of one eye, had left his coat and overcoat on the bridge. The garments of the drowned man were found by the section foreman and his gang Saturday night, and since then a searching party has been trying to find the body. It is thought that Brenneman removed his hat and coat and threw himself into the river from the bridge, where he was either drowned or killed by coming in contact with the river bottom.

HEADQUARTERS

Washington, May 4.—Chairman New of the Republican national committee took up today with Secretary Elmer Dover of the committee the details of removing the headquarters of the committee from Washington to Chicago. The Chicago headquarters will be opened next Monday. Chairman New himself will be in charge, and expects to remain in charge until after the national convention shall have concluded its labors.

NO MORE BODIES

Have as Yet Been Rescued From the Fort Wayne Fire.

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 4.—At 11 o'clock today no other bodies had been found in the hotel ruin, but much debris remained to be cleared away. Coroner A. J. Kesler began an investigation of the fire today. All persons connected with the hotel and all guests remaining in the city or confined by their illness to hospitals were summoned to appear at the inquest. Coroner Kesler says he will make a most searching inquiry.

Charles Burke, porter of the New Aveline hotel, missing since yesterday morning and thought to have been among the dead, reappeared today. Burke's story of the fire tends to disprove the theory that the flames started from an overheated furnace in the basement. He says he saw flames in the elevator shaft on the third floor before he knew the fire had been discovered from the office and this was while he was answering a call for ice water.

COPPER STOCKS CLOSE WEAKER

Market Has a Depressed Tone at End of Session.

The copper stocks were generally weaker during the session today. There was a pressure to sell at the opening and although some of the leaders advanced more than a point over the opening, they sagged at the close, which was weak.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial said:

"Copper continues dull at about the same prices that ruled a week ago. Lake is 12¾c to 13c and electrolytic 12⅝c to 12¾c per pound. Domestic consumers are buying only in very small lots, and there is little or no demand just now from abroad. Sales of small lots of Lake at 12¾c and electrolytic at 12⅜c are reported. The improvement in financial sentiment appears not to have reached to copper consumers, and hesitancy and general lack of courage characterizes the trade.

"There are many excellent reasons for believing that the business situation has turned definitely for the better. The iron and steel trade is reflecting the improvement already. Railroad construction is about to be resumed. Some electric railroads will be built this season, and others will be extended.

"In Europe there promises to be extensive electrical development. It is not improbable that money will be available for such purposes in foreign countries before it is here. I believe the copper shipped abroad during the past six or seven months will go into consumption very rapidly, and that there will be a renewal of the foreign buying demand before the end of the present month."

"MUCH OBLIGED."

So Blunt Says on Being Sentenced to Life Imprisonment.

Battle Creek, Mich., May 4.—Joseph B. Blunt, a liquor salesman of this city, who last Saturday morning shot and killed Mr. and Mrs. Homer Jones, his wife's parents, in their home here, was today sentenced to life imprisonment in the state penitentiary at Jackson. Blunt said:

"Much obliged," when the judge passed sentence upon him. Before going to the court he declared he never felt better in his life, that he was now contented and that if any attempt was made to show that he was insane when he shot his father-in-law and mother-in-law he would secure an attorney and fight it. "The old folks always made trouble for us," he said, "and I'm glad I did it. If I had it to do over again I would get the whole bunch."

Blunt says he never intended killing his wife.

COURT ASKED TO ADVANCE HARRIMAN-KAHN CASES.

Washington, May 4.—In the supreme court of the United States a motion was made today in behalf of the interstate commerce commission to advance in docket the cross appeal of the commission and Edward H. Harriman and Otto H. Kahn, the latter of the New York banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in the cases in which Harriman and Kahn refused to answer certain questions propounded by the commission in 1906 in connection with its inquiry in connection with the alleged consolidation and combination of railroads subject to the interstate commerce law.

The motion to advance was made by Frank B. Kellogg, C. A. Severance and John H. Marble as counsel for the commission.

A VACATION.

Harper's Weekly: A certain scientist in the service of Uncle Sam at Washington, is said to be a hard taskmaster to both his official and his domestic servants.

Being detailed once to accompany a scientific expedition on an extended cruise, the scientist is said to have unbent a trifle in communicating the news to his personal attendant.

"Henry," he said, "how would you like to go with me around the world?"

"Do we go from east to west, sir?" asked the man.

"Yes."

"And we lose a day going that way, do we not, sir?"

"We do."

"Then, sir, I should like very much to go. It would give me a day off."

TRIFLES BETRAY CRIMINALS.

Scent on a Handkerchief Gave Clew That Led to Murderer's Arrest.

The eye of the law is remarkably keen nowadays. A few weeks ago a man found himself in the dock mainly through a cobweb. A detective had been attracted to pay him peculiar attention by the fact that, fashionably attired, he was walking down the street with a mass of cobwebs on the elbow of his frock coat, says Stray Stories.

The news received later that a robbery had been effected at a wine merchant's office in the neighborhood suggested the question whether there were in the cellars, where the thief might have concealed himself, cobwebs of the same description.

There were, and the immaculately dressed man will in future probably take a clothes brush with him when engaged in like pursuits. He will not need one, however, for over two years.

"It is the little thing that catches the criminal," declared M. Mace, the great head of the Paris police. He caught a criminal named Avenet by a scent the offender used.

The crime was a terrible one—the murder of a lady for her jewels and certain bonds in her possession. The lady was discovered lying upon the floor of her room dead. She had been strangled. No one had been seen going in or departing from her rooms. There appeared no clew.

A handkerchief—a lady's—was on the floor beside her. It was at once assumed that the handkerchief was madame's, and that it had fallen from her hand. But it was scented, and no one had ever known madame to use that peculiar scent.

Mace came to the conclusion that it belonged to the murderer, and that the assassin was a man of effeminate and dandyish habits. Within four days Mace had found his man. It was the scent that led to his head falling into M. Deibler's basket.

In the black museum at Scotland Yard is the plaster cast of a bitten apple, which was the only clew the police had to the identity of the perpetrator of a most sensational crime.

The murderer's victim was a woman who was found dead in a room in a house in London. The assassin had eaten part of the apple, and a very fair impression of his teeth remained in the fruit. Unfortunately the clew was not sufficient, and the guilty man was never discovered.

In a case tried some years since, a man suspected of murder was discovered to have on two fingers of his right hand marks which had clearly been made by peculiarly shaped human teeth. The teeth of the dead man were shown to exactly fit into the marks, and the prisoner was convicted.

The mystery surrounding the death of a great continental banker was cleared by means of a cigar-holder found in the room with the body. No one could identify the holder. No one had ever seen the banker using it. But in the holder was a small piece of unconsumed cigar-end.

Experts pronounced it a cigar of the finest quality—one which only a person of wealth could afford to purchase. This evidence appeared to confirm the notion that the cigar-holder had belonged to the dead plutocrat. He had cigars in the house, too, of the same brand.

One of the detectives, however, engaged in the case was not satisfied. The cigar-holder was peculiarly worn in two places. Its owner had evidently been accustomed to bite it hard. Two teeth had almost bitten it through. The detective inserted the holder in the mouth of the dead man, but his teeth would not fit these hollows.

The holder had evidently belonged to the murderer. He was discovered at last in the person of the banker's cook, whose teeth corresponded to the worn places. He had been accustomed to help himself to his master's choice cigars.

ARLIE LATHAM'S CRACK.

Indianapolis Star: When Chris von der Ahe was running the St. Louis club he had his work cut out for him and no mistake, for, with the bunch of Indians who were working for his eccentric though good-natured German, Chris' time was always occupied in trying to keep the lot straight.

One day, when Cliff Carroll had failed to show up and Fogarty had one of his grouchy spells, Chris, with his face flushed with anger and shouting out a dialect that would have convulsed a vaudeville audience with laughter, happened to run against the clever Arlie Latham as he came into the baseball yard.

Now Arlie was the bane of Chris' life, although it is doubtful if there ever was another ball player who worked for Chris who stood as high in the German manager's esteem as did Arlie Latham. But on this particular day he grabbed hold of Latham and exclaimed:

"Mein Gott, Arlie Laddam, you pall blayers will give me brain fever if you keeps on!"

"You'll never have that," cried Arlie, because you wouldn't have any place to put it, Chris," he added, as he swiftly ducked a short right-arm jolt that Von der Ahe swung in his direction.

ALL THE REQUIREMENTS.

Judge's Library: The following ad was said to have appeared in a London daily:

"A lady in delicate health wishes to meet with a useful companion. She must be domestic, musical, an early riser, amiable, of good appearance, and have some experience in nursing. A total abstainer preferred."

A few days later the woman received a basket by express labeled:

"This side up—with care—perishable."

On opening it she found a tabby cat, with a letter tied to its tail. It ran thus:

"Dear Madam—In response to your advertisement I am happy to furnish you with a very useful companion, whom you will find exactly suited to your requirements. She is domestic, a good vocalist, an early riser, possesses an amiable disposition, and is considered handsome. She has great experience as a nurse, having brought up large families. I need hardly add she is a total abstainer. As salary is no object to her, she will serve you faithfully in return for a comfortable home."

WINDOW-CLEANING EXTRAORDINARY.

Judge's Library: John S. Cox, speaker of the Tennessee senate, had an old negro servant who liked his drink just as well as the best Kentucky colonel in the Blue-grass state. One morning, just after the cold spell broke, the darky came to Senator Cox.

"Marse John," said he, "I'll jes' up an' clean dese winders dis mornin'."

"All right, Caesar," replied the senator.

"Use got ter hab a half a tumbler of whisky, Marse John. D're ain't nuffin like whisky for cleanin' winders."

The half tumbler was promptly given Caesar, who armed himself with some rags and carried the whisky to another room to begin work. A few minutes afterward Senator Cox had occasion to enter his room. Caesar was busy polishing the windows. The tumbler was on the table, but no whisky in it.

"Why, Caesar, what's become of the whisky?" asked the senator. "I thought you used it in this work."

"So I does, Marse John; so I does," was the answer. "Ye see, sah, I drinks de whisky an' blows my bref agin de winders!"

"SPOTTER" LAW UPHELD.

Provision for Paying Rewards for Evidence Stands.

Grand Forks, May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge C. F. Templeton of the district court has declared the law giving a reward of $50 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of violators of the prohibition law to be in effect and constitutional, and issued a peremptory writ of mandamus against Auditor Holmes to honor two warrants in the amount of $100 drawn by Don McDonald, treasurer of Grand Forks county. The state auditor had declined to pay the warrants on the ground that when the temperance commissioner law was passed it repealed the "spotter" reward law and that when the temperance commissioner law was declared unconstitutional the "spotter" law did not again go into effect. State's Attorney J. B. Wineman of Grand Forks county insisted that the "spotter" reward law was again in effect. Attorney General McCue appeared in behalf of the state auditor and the state of North Dakota and insisted there was no provision for the payment of "spotter" rewards.

TRAIN KILLS DEER.

Calumet, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large deer was discovered lying dead beside the Mineral Range railroad track in Allouez township, with both hind legs cut off Saturday. There were no bullet wounds on the animal, and the supposition is that it was struck by a passing train.

NEW ST. IGNACE INDUSTRY.

Marquette, Mich. May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new industry at St. Ignace is the woodworking and lumber plant of Richard Jones the erection and equipment of which is now practically completed and which will go into commission May 11. The mill has a big stock of logs cut during the winter and will operate continuously throughout the season giving employment to a considerable force of men. It will be the largest manufacturing establishment in the city.

AGED WOMAN BURNED.

Red Wing, Minn. May 4.—Mrs. Ward 88, years old, was burned to death at her home at Central Point, near Lake City. Mrs. Ward has been living for some years with her daughter, Mrs. John Foley. Their home is at Central Point in Goodhue county. At about 11 o'clock yesterday morning Mrs. Ward, who had been left alone in the house, was seen by the neighbors coming out of the house calling for help. Before anyone could get to her she was enveloped in flames and death speedily resulted.

LAMP EXPLODED.

Frederica Raymond, Opera Singer, Burned by Alcohol.

The explosion of an alcohol lamp came nearly resulting disastrously to Frederica Raymond, the Bijou grand opera singer, at her apartments in the Metropole hotel Saturday night. She was using the lap in heating a curling iron, when it exploded and saturated her clothing with alcohol, which caught fire.

A member of the company, who was in the room at the time, threw her on the bed and quickly rolled a blanket around her, extinguishing the flames. Probably her life was saved by this prompt action. As it was, her breast was quite badly burned, and a physician had to be summoned. After the burns were dressed she was able to go to the theater and go on with her part.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

MADE GOOD GET AWAY

Chances Are Growing Slim of Capturing Stephen Bank Robbers.

Suspects Released and Many Fake Rumors Are Punctured.

Crookston, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—O'Brien and Moh, who were arrested here on suspicion of being accomplices in the Stephen bank robbery, were given their liberty yesterday, as no evidence could be secured against them. They both had money, but could not be connected with the crime in any way. There was absolutely no truth in the report sent out that the mail carrier on the rural route east of Stephen had found a bag containing nearly $1,000 in gold and a plant of nitro-glycerine in a patch of woods on a section corner. The story of the finding of a dead body is also absolutely false. A farmer out of Greenbush was found dead the day following the robbery, and this story was garbled into connection with the bank robbery.

It can be stated with authority that up to the present time there has not been a single arrest in which there is anything but slim circumstantial evidence.

LAMBRECHT IS FIGHTING HARD

Accused Promoter Putting Up Stiff Battle in Courts.

Fargo, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court of North Dakota has been resorted to by James Lambrecht, ex-president of the Northwestern Interurban railway, in an endeavor to evade a warrant for his arrest in Moorhead, Minn., just across the Red river from Fargo, which charges him with obtaining money under false pretenses in securing funds for a financial project. A writ of habeas corpus has been granted by the highest tribunal in the state made returnable before Judge Templeton of Grand Forks today, when it will be decided whether proceedings against the financier will go further. The story of Lambrecht's attempt to build an electric line with $100 and a charter from New Jersey, attempting to interest Crookston, Grand Forks, Jamestown and finally Fargo people in the project will be told then.

TO SEEK AFTER BURIED WEALTH

Mystery About Long Lost Coin That Was Stolen Here.

Washburn, Wis., May 4—Since the recent suicide of Andrew Smith, a Finlander, a story has been going the rounds concerning him and his partner, named Andrew Erickson.

It is said that some years ago Smith and Erickson came into possession of large sums of money, which they buried near Siskiwit lake. It is said that the money was taken away from persons who had stolen it from an express company at Duluth or Superior. The knowledge of this hidden wealth, it is said, had so preyed upon the minds of the two that both had lost their reason. Erickson was adjudged insane, and at the present time he is in the chronic insane asylum at Eau Claire.

On the morning that Smith committed suicide he and a man named Borgan, from this city, had gone out to Siskiwit lake to look over some mineral land. It is thought Smith and the man were near the spot where the wealth was hidden and Smith, fearing the money might be discovered before he could appropriate it, became insane and took his life.

The actions of Smith and Erickson were always mysterious in the extreme. A number of persons here are so sure that the treasure is buried somewhere in the vicinity of the lake that a search will be made for it.

OLD PHYSICIAN DEAD.

Fertile, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The death of Dr. A. Nelson of Fertile occurred at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, following a brief illness of acute appendicitis. Dr. Nelson was the oldest practicing physician in Polk county, having located here nearly a third of a century ago. He was a cousin of Senator Knute Nelson and stood very high in the ranks of the medical profession. He was a man of deep research and was known as an author as well as a physician.

POLK COUNTY POLITICS.

Several Moves Are Being Made on Political Checker Board.

Crookston, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.—Mayor J. D. McPhee turned a clever political trick in his appointment of Charles Duval, ex-captain of police of Crookston as secret commissioner, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Frank Jerome. McPhee is a candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Polk county, and N. A. Bray, a well-known and popular Frenchman, is also a candidate, having been one of the first to file. Bray had been conceded practically the solid French vote of the city and county, but Duval is also a well-known Frenchman, and his appointment means that Mayor McPhee is going after the French vote on his own account. County Commissioner Rindahl has the Scandinavian vote in the east end of the county lined up for himself for sheriff, and Deputy Sheriff Orin Daniels also has a strong following, and the fight will be warm. Another warm fight will be put up for county attorney, with E. O. Hagen of this city and G. E. A. Finlayson of East Grand Forks, the former University of Minnesota football star already in the race, and more to follow. County Attorney Maybury of this city is also expected to file again, but has not definitely announced his candidacy as yet.

BRADLEY ALSO SCOUTING.

Michigan Attorney General to Visit Copper Country for Votes.

Calumet, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Auditor General Bradley, who will be the governor's leading opponent for the nomination in the fall primaries, is expected to visit the upper peninsula, including the Copper country, this summer. He plans an active canvass and has announced that he will visit every county in the state. He has many friends in the upper peninsula, and as it is popularly supposed in lower Michigan that there is much anti-Warner sentiment in this region he will hardly overlook the upper peninsula.

DUTIES OF ASSESSORS.

Men Who Value Property Are Given Pointers.

Bemidji, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—There were more than forty of the county assessors present Saturday afternoon when County Auditor Wilmann called the meeting of the assessors to order, and after thanking them for being present, introduced Prof. McVey to address them on the subject of assessments.

Prof. McVey stated that his desire was to speak to the assessors on the matter of making an equal and fair assessment for the year 1908; he was not here for the purpose of lecturing or preaching, but rather that this was a conference of officers engaged in the same kind of work.

The speaker called attention to several provisions of the law contained in the printed pamphlets relating to the positive duties of the assessor and impressed on their minds that they should not be unjust or should show favor.

CANADIAN FURNACES QUIT BECAUSE OF DEPRESSION.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 4.—The Algoma Steel company, one of the chief branches of the Lake Superior corporation, and operating a steel mill on the Canadian side of the line, Saturday blew out blast furnace No. 1. Furnace No. 2 will be blown out this week. This action follows the closing of the rail mill.

By the end of the week every branch of the mill will be closed and 1,500 men will be idle.

The company in a statement says that because of the financial troubles the Canadian railroads refuse to place orders for rails.

BISMARCK PIONEER DEAD.

George W. Chadwick Was Resident of Dakota Twenty-Four Years.

Bismarck, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the past few days this city has been mourning the loss of one of its pioneer and estimable citizens in George W. Chadwick, Sr., who died the middle of last week and was given a memorable funeral.

Mr. Chadwick leaves, besides his wife, four children, Fred H., of Lynn, Mass.; Mrs. M. J. Lamb of Minneapolis, Mrs. Nellie Everts of this city and G. W., Jr., of Washburn. Mrs. Lamb and George W. Chadwick, all of whom attended the funeral Friday afternoon at 3 o'cock from the Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. Louis Magin officiating. The Knights of Pythias, of which lodge the deceased was a member, attended in a body.

George W. Chadwick was born in Lowell, Mass., in 1833, and therefore at the time of his death was 75 years of age. He soon moved to Bideford, Me., where he was employed by one firm as bookkeeper for a period of twenty years. While in that city he married Miss Luck Clark in 1854.

He took up a claim near what is now Cromwell in April, 1884, and moved to this city in 1890, where he resided until the time of his death.

He has four sisters and two brothers, all living in the East.

CALUMET POLES CELEBRATE.

Calumet, Mich., May 4.—The Polish residents of Calumet to the number of 100 strong, went to Painesdale Saturday to celebrate. Calumet has entertained the Poles of Houghton county for the past several years on May 2, this being the Polish day, and Saturday Painesdale for the first time in its history had the honor.

VERY COIN HE MARKED.

Traveling Man Receives It in St. Cloud After Ten Years.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. C. Montgomery, a traveling man, whose home is in Maryland, had a strange experience here a few days ago when he located a half dollar coin which was marked by him over ten years ago. On the coin were inscribed the initials "J. C. M." and the drummer positively identified the work as done by him. It appears that 'way back in the fall of 1897 Montgomery and a few friends were eating a lunch in a restaurant in Baltimore. They were fooling with coins and some one suggested that each one mark every coin in his pocket with his own initials. Montgomery had $4 or $5 in his pocket, besides some half dollars and quarters. All were marked.

The drummer has been traveling over the country since that time and for the first time Saturday received one of the coins.

The initials, of course, are worn down but upon close examination can be easily detected.

IS FINE STRUCTURE.

Engineering Building at North Dakota Agricultural College.

Fargo, N. D., May 4.—The new mechanical engineering building at the agricultural college, which was opened during the winter when the doors of the institution were opened to civil, mechanical and steam engineering students, is one of the most notable of its kind west of Chicago and east of the Pacific slope. It was planned to cost $45,000, but after various changes it was erected at a total cost of $65,000. It is a beautiful three-story structure of pressed brick and red sandstone and adjoins the old and outgrown mechanical arts building with which it is connected by a corridor. The old building is now used for laboratory and shop purposes. The lower floors of the new building are terrazza, the woodwork of the halls being finished in oak and that of the rooms in birch. The ceilings are of metal and unique chandeliers with which it is equipped give a very pleasing effect.

WEEPS AS SENTENCED.

Weeks Breaks Down as He Admits His Crime.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 4.—Unmanned for the moment by the seriousness of his crime and the prospect of a prison life, Alfred J. Weeks, trusted clerk of the Pennsylvania Coal & Supply company, charged with forgery, wept tears of repentance when called into municipal court to plead. After the defedant had made a short statement, the court imposed a sentence of one year in the Wisconsin state reformatory at Green Bay.

"I have been hounded in this city until I did not know where to turn. Temptation came and I took it," almost sobbed the handsome young man when he stood up to receive his punishment.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT SICK.

Head of Beloit Quarantined Owing to Smallpox.

Beloit, Wis., May 4.—President Edward D. Eaton of Beloit college has the smallpox. This fact leaked out here when it was learned that Stowell cottage, where he and Mrs. Eaton have been living, had been quarantined.

Thirteen freshman girls also use Stowell cottage as a dormitory, and all are confined to the house by the health department.

BITTEN BY HORSE.

Wisconsin Horseman May Lose Arm as Result of Injury.

Oshkosh, Wis., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hiram J. Glass, a horseman well known throughout the state, was severely bitten on the left hand by a horse and is at St. Mary's hospital in danger of losing the use of that member. The horse belongs to W. J. Dane and W. F. Dane, meat dealers, and is a trotting stallion, known as Montrose.

The accident took place as Mr. Glass was preparing to curry the animal. Mr. Glass had brought the horse from its stall and was trying the animal preparatory to cleaning it. As he started to snap one of the side reins in the horse's bit, the animal snapped at Mr. Glass. The teeth caught his left hand on the back and badly lacerated it, severing three tendons and breaking one of the bones of the hand.

The injured man was taken to the hospital and Dr. Burton Clark was called to attend him. Dr. Clark states that the seriousness of the injuries will depend upon the extent of infection, the bite being poisonous in its nature. He says if the tendons do not unite it may cause the loss of one or more fingers, but he does not anticipate that amputation will be necessary.

MEMORIAL FOR H. P. HALL.

Minnesota Editors to Pay Tribute to His Memory in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Memorial exercises in honor of H. P. Hall, the veteran St. Paul newspaper man who died early last year will be held in the old capitol building in September under the auspices of the Minnesota Editorial association, of which Mr. Hall was one of the most prominent members for many years. Governor John A. Johnson probably will deliver the opening address and it is expected that Archbishop John Ireland will be one of the speakers.

Arrangements for the event are being made by a committee from the editorial association consisting of Governor Johnson, E. A. Paradis, C. C. Whitney, C. F. Macdonald and Frank J. Meyst, and the date which the committee now has in mind is September 14.

The program has not been completed but it will include addresses by C. F. Macdonald, on "H. P. Hall and His Relations With the Country Editor;" J. S. McLain on "H. P. Hall, and His Relations With the City Press;" and David Ramaley on "The Business Life of H. P. Hall."

LIBRARY FOR AITKIN.

Carnegie Will Give Building Under Certain Conditions.

Aitkin, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Providing this city furnishes a site and agrees by resolution to provide $500 for its maintenance Aitkin will receive $5,000 from Andrew Carnegie for a free public library.

President F. O. King of the library board has received the following letter from James Bertram, the ironmaster's private secretary:

Dear Sir: Responding to your communication on behalf of Aitkin.

"If the city agrees, by resolution of the council, to maintain a free public library at a cost of not less than $500 a year, and provide a suitable site for the building. Mr. Carnegie will give $5,000 to erect a free public library building for Aitkin."

There can be no doubt that the village council will pass the resolution asked for, because the annual appropriation already meets that condition. And the only thing that now remains for the people of Aitkin to do in order to secure the building is to provide a suitable site.

Northern Pacific Alleged to Have Violated Stock Shipping Law.

St. Paul, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—United States District Attorney Charles C. Houpt has filed an action against the Northern Pacific Railroad company, charging them with twelve violations of the feral law relating to the transportation of live-stock, which prohibits the retention of stock aboard cars for a longer period than twenty-eight hours, without stopping for feed and water. Each penalty carries with it a fine of $500, so that the road is liable to a fine of $6,000.

It is charged that the violations took place between November of last year and the present time, on cattle shipped from various points in Montana to this state.

CHILDREN'S HOME SOCIETY IS UPHELD BY THE COURT.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 4.—Judge L. K. Hassell, of the probate court, has decided the famous case of Mrs. Eliza Carlson against the North Dakota possession of her children, who were taken from her several years ago, and adopted by North Dakota residents, in favor of the home society. He denied the petition of the plaintiff that her children be returned to her. The court finds that it is not for the best interests or for the welfare of the children that they be returned to their mother, who is a resident of Lakota, Nelson county. The court's decision is most important as it means that the rights of the home society are to be upheld in the state.

Treasures Found in Our American Forests.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers of this and other countries. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., believes that our American forests abound in medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them, and, in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the most marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action.

The reason why "Golden Medical Discovery" cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

To aid in healing old sores, or ulcers, apply Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve to them while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" to purify and enrich the blood.

Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve is cleansing and pain relieving. It destroys the bad odors arising from suppurating, or running, sores and puts them in the best possible condition for healing.

The "All-Healing Salve" is a superior dressing for all open, running, or suppurating, Sores or Ulcers. For healing open wounds, cuts and scratches it is unsurpassed.

If your medicine dealer does not have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock mail 50 cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive it by return post.

In treating all open sores, or ulcers, boils, carbuncles and other swellings, it is important that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery be taken persistently to purify the blood and thereby remove the cause of the trouble. It is in the blood that the great battle of health has to be fought. The ulcer and the sore are simply the scarlet flowers of disease, with roots running down into the blood. These roots must be eradicated or the disease will break out afresh. "Golden Medical Discovery" cleanses the blood of all foul and poisonous accumulations, pushes out the dead and waste matter, and thus purifies the entire life current. Disease in the flesh must die out when it is no longer fed by foul blood. "Golden Medical Discovery" effectively cures disease in the flesh by curing its cause in the blood.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic drains, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements caused by weakness, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines and physicians had failed.

Nursing mothers and over-burdened women in all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by overwork, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating, restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable pelvic catarrhal drain, prolapsus, anteversion or retroversion or other displacements of womanly organs, from weakness of parts, will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully, and fairly persistently, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take as candy.

SOLE HEIR MISSING.

Attorneys Looking for Man to Whom is Due $200,000.

Seattle, Wash., May 4.—If attorneys can succeed in locating Alva Vosburg, who until a short time ago was a resident of Marshall, Mich., he will be a very rich man. This week an aged man who has accumulated property to the value of between $200,000 and $300,000 in and around Seattle, and who lived under the name of Moses Kendall, but which was not his name by birth, died at a local hospital. In a will he drew up several weeks before his last illness he made the only beneficiary, the above named Alva Vosburg. He mentioned at the time to the attorneys that the man was his favorite nephew and at the time of his last communication with him he lived at Marshall, Mich. Attorneys are now looking for Vosburg with a view of turning over to him his right.

Kendall was a well known character here in the old settlers' days and always lived the life of a recluse, being a very eccentric fellow. He loved children and often would gather a bunch of them together and buy them candy by the pound. No one ever heard him mention any relative and no one ever inquired into the past life of the old man.

If Vosburg can be located he will come into possession of property that will soon be in the business district of the city and worth thousands where it is now worth hundreds.

Miss Craig made a mistake several months ago at a dance and thought Ramsay was Crosier, and after that Ramsay entered the lists for her hand. Neighbors and friends did not know it was not Crosier who was showing her attentions.

CROWNING FEATURE

Of 225th Anniversary of the Founding of Philadelphia.

First Historical Pageant Ever Presented in the United States.

Philadelphia, May 4.—Philadelphia will present on Friday, Oct. 9 next, the first historical pageant ever witnessed in the United States, and it will, undoubtedly, be the crowning feature of a week of parades—military, municipal, industrial and naval—which will commemorate the 225th anniversary of the founding by William Penn of the government of the city.

The first American pageant will be on a scale of magnificence which will challenge not only the admiration of the United States, but will make the historical pageants of England and continental Europe small in comparison. Given under the direct control of the city authorities acting in conjunction with a large and representative committee of leading citizens every effort is being made to perform this unique task upon a plane that will reflect credit upon the city and arouse the pride of the nation as a whole. In a great measure, the forthcoming historical pageant will be replete with features of national interest, long antedating the revolution.

No less than forty large floats will form the pageant, and with these there will be at least 5,000 different characters all faithfully costumed to fit the various epochs that are to be reproduced.

Three full centuries are to be depicted, beginning with the beginning of the seventeenth century with the Indians, the Swedes and the Dutch, who occupied the present site of Philadelphia prior to the arrival of Penn in 1682. The various historians, artists and men of affairs who have this feature in charge, intend to make these reproductions historically accurate. Then following in regular sequence will be the floats representative of the landing of Penn, his famous treaty with the Indians, the early life, customs and manners of the colonists, the beginning of the revolutionary period, the city during the revolutionary times, together with floats depicting Thomas Jefferson writing the Declaration of Independence and the "Proclaiming of liberty throughout the land and the inhabitants thereof," by the Liberty bell at the state house in 1776.

In connection with this period will be shown details of continental troops, Philadelphia's famous First City Troop in the original uniforms escorting Gen. Washington; Robert Morris, the great financier of that time, who raised the necessary funds for the country to defeat the British, the battle of Germantown, the anniversary of which falls this year on Oct. 6, and other important features of that part of the city's and country's history.

Philadelphia and the nation in the War of 1812 will be similarly treated, and again it will be shown that it was a Philadelphian—Stephen Girard—who financed the government. Considerable attention is also being devoted to the Mexican war and the Rebellion, and in connection with the latter display it will also be shown that another Philadelphian—Ike Morris and Girard—performed the herculean task of procuring from Lincoln what the funds for saving the Union. That was Jay Cooke, the great financier. Another feature of the Civil War period will be the reproduction of details of men of about twenty each correctly uniformed representing every one of the Philadelphia regiments which enlisted for the war.

This historical pageant, so it is estimated, will cost not less than $50,000 to produce. It will be witnessed by no fewer than a million people and among those who will be the official guests of the city on that day will be representatives of the national government, the governors of all the states and the mayors of the leading American cities.

The committee which is arranging for this pageant numbers about 200 and includes such authorities on historical and art subjects as A. G. Hetherington, one of the founders of the Fairmount Park Art association; John Bach McMaster, the eminent historian; Morris Jastrow, Jr., who has made a study of the European pageants and will this summer see the proposed fete at Oxford, England, and the pageant to be held in June at Vienna; John F. Lewis, president of the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts; John W. Jordan, secretary of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania; Thomas L. Montgomery, state librarian; Harrison Morris, Charles Heber Clark (Max Adler), Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh, the widely known educator and author; Horace Trumbauer, Col. Robert B. Beath and Peter Boyd.

JUDGE GRAY WILL NOT REFUSE A NOMINATION.

Washington, May 4.—Richard J. Beamish, who is in charge of the George Gray bureau in this city, was asked if the Pittsburg interview credited to Judge Gray would have any effect upon the presidential movement in the Delawarean's behalf.

"The statement attributed to Judge Gray in Pittsburg," said Mr. Beamish, "has been made by him several times, and is to be taken literally. He is not seeking the nomination, and has neither aided or encouraged the activities of his friends.

"Some time ago it became known that Judge Gray would not be a candidate, but that, if nominated, he would not refuse the call of his party. The Pittsburg declaration in no way conflicts with his past attitude."

ROYALTY WEDDED

Prince Wilhelm and Grand Duchess Marie Are Married.

Russia and Sweden Are Brought Closer by Wedding Ties.

St. Petersburg, May 4.—Prince Wilhelm of Sweden, second son of King Gustav, the popular sailor prince, who visited America in 1907, was married yesterday afternoon to Grand Duchess Marie Pavlona, cousin of the emperor of Russia and daughter of Grand Duke Paul Alexanderovitch. The ceremony took place at Tsarskoe Selo, and was accompanied by all the pomp and brilliant display of color characteristic of the most stately pomp court in Europe.

The day was marred by frequent heavy falls of snow, which, however, failed to chill the enthusiasm of the great crowds that gathered around the palace to catch a glimpse of the emperor and other royal personages and the arriving guests. The crowd stood for hours in the bleak and muddy palace square, until the conclusion of the ceremony.

In the evening a great state banquet was served, at which toasts were drunk to the good understanding between Sweden and Russia, recently reached in the Baltic agreement, to which yesterday's wedding—the first in modern times between the ruling houses of two countries—puts the seal.

The beginning of the nuptial ceremonies was announced by the firing of five guns simultaneously, at 9 o'clock, by the battery at Tsarskoe-Selo and by the fortress at St. Peter and St. Paul, in St. Petersburg. This was the beginning of a noisy demonstration, and hundreds of salutes were heard almost uninterruptedly throughout the afternoon and the evening.

Guests Assemble.

The wedding guests who took part in the ceremony assembled at 2:30 p. m., at the great palace at Tsarskoe-Selo. Only Premier Stolypin, the members of the cabinet, the president of the duma and the president of the council of state, the principal ambassadors of Russia and their wives, and a few of the highest dignitaries of the empire, found place in the small blue and gold chapel of the palace, where the orthodox ceremony was performed. The other guests were stationed according to their rank in the various salons through which the bridal procession passed.

The robing of the bride was performed in accordance with the court custom in the private apartments of the empress. She was dressed by the empress and the dowager empress, assisted by their maids of honor and their ladies in waiting.

The bride wore on her head a jeweled diadem, and from her shoulders hung a long trained mantle of strawberry velvet, lined with ermine.

In the procession the train of this garment was borne by five court chamberlains. As soon as the bride had been completely arrayed, Prince Wilhelm was notified by the master of ceremonies and conducted to the inner apartment, where the Grand Duchess Marie was awaiting.

A salute of twenty-one guns and a blare of trumpets announced the start of the procession. At its head came the dowager empress on the arm of King Gustave; the emperor of Russia, escorting Queen Olga of Greece, the empress escorted by the grand duke of Hesse, Crown Prince Ferdinand and Crown Princess Marie of Roumania, attended by the court ushers and marshals and other functionaries.

Bridal Pair Arm in Arm.

Then arm in arm came the bridal pair. Behind the young couple marched Prince Nicholas and Prince Andrew of Greece and their wives, Prince Christopher of Greece, and Prince Carl of Sweden and his wife. The guests from foreign courts were folowed by more than a score of Russian grand dukes and grand duchesses, including the three oldest daughters of Emperor Nicholas, Grand Duchess Olga, Grand Duchess Tatiana and Grand Duchess Marie, the eldest being 13 years old.

This was the first time the emperor's daughters have appeared in state. The little crown prince, who is too young to be present, and the Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaivitch, president of the commission of national defense, who has been summoned to the Caucasus because of the war cloud on the Turkish frontier, were the only members of the imperial family conspicuous by their absence.

The grand duchesses, like all the invited ladies, wore the picturesque Russian court costume.

The imperial guests were received at the chapel doors by the metropolitan of the court and a number of priests. After the emperor had been blessed and sprinkled with holy water he conducted the bridal pair to the dais before the great golden gates of the high altar. The wedding rings were brought from the altar on golden salvers and placed upon the fingers of the bride and bridegroom by the emperor's confessor.

The metropolitan then completed the rites of the Russian marriage service, two of the brides nearest relatives holding crowns over the heads of the bridal pair during the ceremony. While the "te deum" was being chanted, an imperial salute of 101 guns was fired.

Lutheran Ceremony Performed.

The procession then returned to one of the ante-salons, where the Lutheran marriage ceremony was performed by the Swedish bishop of Lund. This brought the afternoon program to a close.

Dinner was then served at 7:30 p. m. Chamberlains and gentlemen of the court stood behind the chairs of the imperial and royal guests and presented the various dishes and wine to them. Toasts were drunk to the emperor and empress of Russia, to the bridal pair, to their parents, to the imperial family and to their loyal Russian subjects.

After the dinner the members of the imperial family and their royal guests participated in a polonaise. This stately progress around the great reception hall had something in the nature of the "Hohenzollern Torch Dance."

After this function the guests were driven in state to the Alexander palace, the private residence of the emperor, the bridal pair riding with their sponsors in a gala equipage.

The emperor, the empress, and the dowager empress were surrounded by torch bearers, and escorted by a company of the emperor's Cossack guard, in brilliant blue and scarlet uniforms.

At a late hour in the evening the bridal pair took a special train for St. Petersburg, where the honeymoon will be passed at the palace of the late archduke Serge.

During the day there were services in all the churches of the empire, and in St. Petersburg church bells pealed throughout the entire afternoon.

GRAFT IN CHURCHES.

Secretary Allen Denies Statements That Were Credited to Him.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Upon returning to New York after conferences on municipal research in Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Chicago and Buffalo, I find that telegraph despatches to newspapers gave the impression that I had attacked private charities, settlements, churches, hospitals, etc. In justice to the bureau of municipal Research, whose work I was explaining, will you grant me space to make clear what was actualy said and what may be truly said regarding misdirected energy among charitable and religious bodies?

No one who accepts the principles of the bureau of municipal research could possibly say that corruption and malfeasance are universal in churches, in hospitals, in missionary and charitable societies; nor could anyone connected with this bureau say that graft and malfeasance are universal in municipal government. What I did say was that the great problem of administration, whether by private and religious bodies or by political bodies, is not the prevention of graft, but the guarantee of efficiency; that graft is no more respectable when found among church and charitable workers than when found among party politicians; that misdirected energy is no worse when due to neglect by city officials than when due to neglect by charitable and religious societies; that trustees and contributors to hospitals, churches and charities, like taxpayers, are putting a premium on inefficiency and dishonesty when they permit officials and employes to work without currently measuring work done by work that might reasonable have been done with the same expenditure of energy and means; finally, that if the percentage of misdirected energy among religious and charitable agencies could be compared with the percentage of misdirected energy in the city government of Chicago, it would be a venturesome man indeed who would say that Chicago's government needs attention more than private agencies.

WILLIAM H. ALLEN,
Sec'y of Bureau of Municipal Research.

It Reached the Spot.

Mr. E. Humphrey, who owns a large general store at Omega, Ohio, and is president of the Adams County Telephone company, as well as of the Home Telephone company of Pike county, Ohio, says of Dr. King's New Discovery: "It saved my life once. At least I think it did. It seemed to reach the spot—the very seat of my cough,—when everything else failed." Dr. King's New Discovery not only reaches the cough spot; it heals the sore spots and the weak spots in throat, lungs and chest. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c and $1.00. ROBBERS CONFESS.

Laredo, Tex., May 4.—It was learned here, yesterday, that through the activity of the police of Mexico City, the robbers of the $63,000 from the Wells-Fargo Express company are in jail and both men have confessed. They are Louis Cutting, chief clerk in the general offices of the express company, and Rodolofo Alvarez, alias Rodriguez, the express messenger, who disappeared in Aguas Calientas.

FRISCO IS IN GALA ATTIRE

Everything in Readiness for Arrival of the Battleship Fleet.

Rear Admiral Evans Will Reassume Command Tuesday.

San Francisco, May 4.—In eager expectancy and with everything in readiness, San Francisco is awaiting the arrival of the Atlantic battleship fleet.

Fluttering flags, naval pennants and streamers and Rear Admiral Evans' pictures are everywhere. Market street is a long vista of bunting and flags. On each side of the tall ferry tower, stretched on long wire cables, are the words "Welcome to the Atlantic Fleet," in the kaialdescopic colors of the international navy signal code flags and pennants. On Telegraph Hill the word "Welcome" stands in letters fifty feet high and can be read for many miles, and which at night will be illuminated by 2,500 electric lights. Festoons of incandescent lights run on both sides of the principal streets and prominent buildings are outlined in electric bulbs, furnishing at night a magnificent illumination.

800,000 Persons Will See Fleet.

It is estimated that there will be between 700,000 and 800,000 persons in San Francisco on the day the fleet arrives.

Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, who for the last month has been under treatment at Paso Robles' hot springs, has so for recovered that he will resume command of the fleet at Santa Cruz Tuesday afternoon, just before sailing for this city. The fleet will arrive off the Golden Gate Tuesday evening, where on Wednesday morning it will be joined by the Pacific squadron of armored cruisers of the West Virginia type, under Rear Admiral Dayton. At noon the flagship Connecticut, flying the flag of Rear Admiral Evans, will lead the procession past the lighthouse into the portal where bay and ocean meet.

Big Guns Will Salute.

The big twelve-inch guns at Fort Baker, on the heights of the Rocky Marine county shore, and the big disappearing guns in the batteries crowning the Presidio hills, will bay deep mouthed welcome contrary to all army precedent against saluting home vessels. That there may be as much noise and smoke from the guns as possible, black powder will be used instead of smokeless.

The fleet will anchor in four columns, commencing off Potter's Point, the Connecticut, Minnesota, West Virginia and the torpedo boat destroyer Whipple, each at the head of a column.

The first fleet will be between two and three hours entering the harbor and anchoring. Beginning with a breakfast to Secretary Metcalf, who will represent the president on the morning of the day that the fleet enters the bay, there will be ten days of festivities and a long list of dinners, balls, banquets and receptions.

The Illinois Goes Adrift.

Monterey, Cal., May 4.—A northwest gale sweeping into the harbor gave the eight ships of the second division of the Atlantic fleet several hours of watchfulness Saturday night and cut off all communication with the shore. A serious accident was narrowly avoided when the battleship Illinois, second in line from the Alabama and it looked for a time as though a collision was imminent. But heroic work by the helmsmen managed to steer the drifting ship away and the only damage done was the tearing away of the port gangway of the Alabama.

The wind subsided Sunday and the Illinois, which had drifted 800 yards, made no attempt to regain her position in the fourth division column. It was said that if the blow continued, it might delay the departure of the second squadron ships for Santa Cruz.

CUMMINS MEN CHEERED.

Shown to be Leading in Iowa Even by Stalwart Poll.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 4.—Des Moines Cummins men assert that the governor will have 27,000 over Allison at the June primaries. These figures are said to be based upon township and precinct polls made by standpatters themselves.

The progressives are refuting the statement of Dolliver that Iowans never urged the amendments to the interstate commerce act permitting the regulation of rates until 1906. They show from the record of the Iowa legislature that Senator Trewin had a bill passed demanding some such action in 1902.

Bernard Murphy, standpat candidate for lieutenant governor, is meeting with opposition from the unions, who say he employed non-union printers while state printer.

GATTI-CASAZZA IS HERE.

Tschaikowski Opera May be Put on the Stage.

New York, May 4.—The new director of the Metropolitan opera house, Giulio Gatti-Casazza, arrived on the steamship Lusitania. Andrew Dippel, a fellow director, met him at the pier.

"I shall remain in New York during the month of May to confer with Mr. Dippel," said Gatti-Casazza, through an interpreter. "I have five new operas under consideration for the Metropolitan. I shall submit them to Mr. Dippel and consult with him as to the advisability of producing them in New York. The one that pleases me best is called 'The Queen of Spades.' It is written by the Russian composer, Tschaikowski. I think it will appeal to the New York public."

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

KELLEYS WIN AND LOSE

Hibbing Drops Saturday's Game to the Home Players.

Sunday, Gilligan is Strong and Visitors Win Easily.

The Kelley hardware baseball team opened the season Saturday by trimming Judge Brady's Colts by a score of 5 to 3. Yesterday—whisper it softly—the same Colts developed into full fledged seeds and left the Kelleys at the post, panting for breath, with a 13 to 5 score chalked up against them.

The Kelleys never had a chance yesterday. Big Gilligan, who might be in the American association if he didn't have such a deep love for Brady and Hibbing, was on the hill for the visitors and he didn't have to let himself out. With straight fast ones, high and low, in and out, he had the Kelleys hooked and with men on bases, the home boys swinging like strikers in the wind.

The work behind Gilligan was great. There was all kinds of ginger despite the chill in the wind and everything was grabbed. Jimmy Fagin drew a demerit mark for trying to make an almost impossible catch of Olson's fly in the fourth, and in the ninth Booth received a ball out into the field and gave the Kelleys some advantage, but there was never any danger of Gilligan losing the game on account of the work behind him.

Elmo Larson was pretty shaky in the box. He couldn't locate the paths for seven of the Hibbing batters and the visitors had an unhappy facility of connecting with his first ones with force on the stroke. The work in the field was weird at times and the Hibbingites didn't have any trouble rolling up the score with everything working in their favor.

Booth and Carroll were the chief swatters. The catcher poked out five hits out of six times up and Booth tore up the grass in the outfield three times for two sacks each. Monahan had two safeties and scored three of the Hibbing runs.

The score follows:

Attendance—350.

Except for one bad inning on each side, Saturday's game was a much better exhibition. Young Cook's pitching was the principal factor in the victory of the Kelleys. The Hibbing batters touched him for only four hits and he was steady all the way. In the first inning, his support went wrong and a couple of opportune clouts scored two Hibbing men. The visitors didn't get a look at the plate again until the eighth, when a couple of errors handed them another score.

Hibbing used two pitchers, who might have gotten away with it, but for bobbles in the field. In the fourth inning, the whole team started running loose. The Kelleys formed connections with Vogts' product and were materially aided by erring fielders. Four runs were scored for a winning margin and, to make it good, another was added in the sixth. Lyman, the second pitcher, had a lot of good stuff and looks like a winner.

The games were the first of the season for both teams and to the supporters of each, the showing was wholly satisfactory. Ziegler needs about two changes in his lineup. He's strong in the hitting department and though the base running was pretty wierd at times, the boys will get down to that. Young Cook is a pretty neat pitcher and, when Larson gets into shape, the pair will take care of nearly all the semi-pro teams in this district.

Brady's team is about the same old thing. He has a lot of old heads at the game, men who haven't worn out their usefulness on the ball field by any means. He is long on pitchers and his lineup is well balanced. When he gets the new men fitted into their places and the team plugging along smoothly, it will be just as dangerous as it ever was and will make a great fight for the championship of Northern Minnesota in its class.

Following is the score of the Saturday game:

COLLEGIANS IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Forecast of Week's Events in Amateur Athletic Fields.

New York, May 4.—With contests in nearly every branch of amateur athletics arranged for the week, it promises to be a lively one.

The oarsmen are looking forward to the races on the Severn between Annapolis and Columbia next Saturday, when both 'varsity and second crews will compete.

On Saturday at Yale field Yale and Princeton will meet in their annual dual track and field games.

At Cambridge, Mass., on Saturday, the intercollegiate trap shooting championship will be held.

The golf features of the week will be the tournament of the Garden City club, to begin Thursday and run through the week. Jerome D. Travers, the national champion, will compete.

The announcement that Elwood Park, Long Branch, N. J., had been added to the Grand Circuit and will hold a trotting and pacing meet Aug. 31 to Sept. 5, has been well received by the light harness enthusiasts. Purses and stakes in the aggregate of $25,000 will be offered for the week's contests.

COMMERCIAL LEAGUE PLANS

All Interested Urged to Attend Meeting and Enter Teams.

A preliminary meeting was held Saturday evening in the First National bank and several of those interested in the organization of a Commercial league in Duluth talked over the prospects. No definite action was taken, but it was decided to call another meeting of those interested, to be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, in the First National bank, when it is hoped that an organization may be effected.

Baseball enthusiasm is running high in a number of the wholesale houses and other business institutions of the city and it is believed that a six-team league can be formed composed of bona fide employes of the different companies, to play Saturday ball.

The Commercial league was started last year, but it failed to go through the season on account of some of the teams dropping out. The idea this year is to get it more firmly organized, put the executive powers in the hands of competent officers and cement the bonds between the teams firmly, so that there may be no slip in the proceedings. The promoters of the league, in their announcement of the meeting tomorrow evening, are careful to dispel any impression that may be abroad that the Commercial league is planned as a closed organization. It is open to anybody interested and all are urged to attend the meeting tomorrow evening and enter their teams.

MAY ARREST BETTORS.

Jockey Club Claims to Have Exemption by Law.

Louisville, Ky., May 4.—The spring meeting of the new Louisville Jockey club will open Tuesday, May 5, with the historic Kentucky derby as the opening day attraction. There will be a large detail of police on hand to arrest any person who attempts to make a bet on the races, either in pools or through the Pari-Mutuel machines, which have been installed for the coming meeting.

The charter granted the Jockey club by the legislature legalized Pari-Mutuels and auction pool.

What action the Jockey club will take to prevent interference on Derby day is not known, but as its officers claim it has the legal right to ask for an injunction, it is probable such action will be taken. On June 12, the anti-pool room law passed by the last session of the legislature becomes operative. This measure specifically exempts betting at race tracks from the operation of the statutes.

THIEF RIVER FALLS HIGH SCHOOL TEAM WINNERS.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A hotly contested game of baseball was played here Saturday between teams representing the high schools of Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls, the latter winning by a score of 4 to 3. The battery for the winning team was Leslie Brady and Frank Kratka. A series of games have been scheduled for the towns comprising the upper part of the Red River bailey that support high school teams. Thief River Falls will play Warren next Saturday at that town.

Death Comes Suddenly.

Death came suddenly Saturday afternoon to Joseph Tonga, a laborer, in a lodging house at 2 East Superior street. The man was discovered by other lodgers lying unconscious on the floor at the rear of the building. He was carried to a bed, where he expired shortly afterwards. Coroner McCuen was summoned and the body was ordered taken to Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms, pending an inquiry. Nothing is known about the man, who was about 50 years old, further than that he was formerly an employe of the Zenith blast furnace.

FREEPORT WINS BOTH

Wisconsin-Illinois Leaguers Find Sox Worthy Opponents.

Saturday Game Goes Eleven Innings to Small Score.

Freeport, Ill., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Freeport team, champions of the Wisconsin-Illinois league, won both games of the local series from the Duluth White Six Saturday and Sunday. Saturday's game was a fine contest, going eleven innings to a 3 to 2 score. Brandt went the entire route for the travelers and, though he was touched up freely, Freeport couldn't find him with men on bases. His support was perfect in tight places.

The Sox found Gifen for hits to score one run in the sixth and in the ninth evened things up with Freeport by hitting Darrah. Freeport managed to get one across the plate in the eleventh and ended the game. Baker, Rorabaugh and Ness hit safely and Koepping scored two. Honey's one hit was a long two sacker. The weather was extremely cold and the crowd small. Score: R. H. E.

Batteries—Gifen, Darrah and Star'; Brandt and Voss.

Freeport tied onto Murray in the fifth inning yesterday and Clercen in the seventh, gathering enough runs to win and then some. They didn't get very many hits, but worked in nicely with Duluth errors and passes, they scored eight runs, while Duluth was gathering only three. Both Rouse and Scott were almost unhittable by the visitors.

Warm weather brought out a better crowd and put more life in the players, resulting in a good exhibition. Freeport had the advantage in only two innings and in the other sessions, the teams about broke even. Manager Morrow is well pleased with the showing of his team, though some of the pitchers will be turned out before he gets to Duluth. The Sox left last night for Madison, where they play three games before going north. Score: R. H. E.

JUMPING STUMPS ON THE CORNER LOTS

Cloquet, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The game between the Cloquet high school and the Nelson Dewey high of Superior was won by the latter by a score of 10 to 3. Up to the third inning it looked like Cloquet's game; the score stood 3 to 0 in Cloquet's favor at the close of the first half of the third, and the locals clearly outplayed their opponents on the field at that stage of the game.

The balloon went up in the last half of the third when the Deweys crossed the plate for six scores, the majority of which were made on errors. Cloquet lost hope and played slow ball the remainder of the game. Cloquet's battery, Rogentine and Campbell, was very effective, as was also that of Superior, Conley and Sparby. At critical points in the game Rogentine received poor support, while Conley was well supported throughout the game. Rogentine secured six strikeouts to Conley's nine.

The line up and score by innings was as follows:

Cloquet.	Nelson Dewey.
Campbell c	Sparby
Rogentine ..... p	Conley
Swenson 1b	J. Gordon

GOVERNMENT BY MACHINE

John A. Keyes Says People Do Not Govern Themselves.

At the meeting of the Question club yesterday afternoon John A. Keyes gave a history of the initiative and referendum movement, and made a forceful appeal for its support by the members of the club. Several Socialists took exception to the statement that the movement was of vital importance, but most of those present seemed to receive the remarks with approval.

"The share of the voter in the government today is merely to ratify what the great political machines have proposed," said Mr. Keyes. "Not until the initiative and referendum is established will the people be able to exercise their real political franchise.

"All the part we take today in governing ourselves is to read the newspapers and a few books, go to some saloon, wagon shed or other abandoned refuge, vote for candidates already determined for us, if we are allowed, and then watch the newspapers some more for legislative results that never come. This system segregates government from the masses.

"The initiative and referendum system has been in use in Switzerland for the past fifty years, and had its origin in the German forest districts in the sixteenth century. In Oregon the best example of the system is found, so far as the United States is concerned. A dozen or more vital issues are up before the people for settlement this fall, part of which are constitutional amendments."

At the next meeting of the Question club, next Sunday afternoon, Representative Clarence B. Miller will outline the principles and platform of the Republican party.

S.S.S. CURES CATARRH

Catarrh is not merely a disease of the mucous membranes and inner linings of the body as some of the symptoms would seem to indicate; it is a deep-seated blood disease, in which the entire circulation and the greater part of the system are involved. Like all other blood diseases, Catarrh comes from poisons and impurities accumulating in the circulation which irritate and inflame the tissues and mucous surfaces, and then the unpleasant symptoms of the disease are manifested. There is a ringing noise in the ears, a thin, watery discharge from the nostrils, filthy matter drops back into the throat, the breath has an offensive odor, and many other annoying and unpleasant symptoms are characteristic of the trouble. Sprays, washes, inhalations, etc., cannot reach the blood, and are therefore valuable only for the temporary relief they afford. To cure Catarrh the blood must be purified. Nothing equals S. S. S. for this purpose; it goes down into the circulation, removes the catarrhal matter, purifies the blood and makes a lasting cure. When S. S. S. has removed the cause, the blood being pure and healthy nourishes the membranes and tissues instead of irritating them with noxious matter, and the symptoms all pass away. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free.

EXCHANGE IS NOT KICKING

Members Have No Fault to Find With Courthouse Commission.

"We are not able to understand the article in yesterday's News Tribune, criticising the architects and courthouse commission for the manner in which the plans have been handled, and wish to correct at least one misstatement," said E. R. Cobb, secretary of the Builders' exchange, today.

"A complete set of plans and specifications has been continuously displayed at the Duluth Builders' exchange since the morning of April 14. We are informed that eleven sets of general plans were sent to the commission for distribution here, and consider that a fairly liberal allowance. Besides, the job is sub-divided into thirty-one distinct propositions, which gives more people a chance to bid than if there were only from three to five propositions, as is customary. Hence we do not see how the commission could have done better for the people of Duluth than has been done, and are surprised that any one is dissatisfied."

QUIET IN GUATEEMALA.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

So successful has the Saturday sewing school, which has been held for a few weeks at the guild rooms of St. Luke's church become, that it is necessary to have two sessions during the day. Classes are now held in the morning and in the afternoon, and at both times a large number of children have been in attendance. The morning class is in charge of Miss Alice Scott, assisted by Miss Katherine Burris and Miss Ethel McLeon. The children in attendance at the morning classes are of the primary department. At the afternoon classes on Saturday there were more than 100 children present.

The classes are conducted under the auspices of the philanthropic department of the Twentieth Century club. There has been much interested support given the school by many people of the city. The committee members are especially anxious to secure a bureau or chest of drawers or wardrobe to store the materials in during the week. It is hoped that after the spring housecleaning there will be in some home in the city a bureau or wardrobe which may be spared for this purpose. The sewing school has met with great success and will be continued during the summer months.

The play will be given at the Metropolitan theater at Minneapolis the afternoon and evening of June 5. The number of contestants for places in the cast of characters was large and there was much interest among the fourth-year students of the university in the final decision of the committee.

GREAT INTEREST

More than 300 people called Saturday afternoon at the rooms of the Duluth Art school during the receiving hours to greet the director, C. C. Rosenkranz and the members of the board of managers, who have worked so faithfully to establish the school on a permanent working basis. The board of managers were delighted at the widespread interest which was shown and the outlook for the school is even more promising than was hoped.

The classes in copper work and the life classes are already organized as well as children's classes and those for teachers. As soon as a demand is expressed other classes will be formed. Mr. Rosenkranz is much interested in classes for young artisans and evening classes for engravers and architects and others may become one of the most valuable features of the work.

An invitation is extended any one interested to visit any of the classes during the sessions.

STAND UP!

No Excuse For Stooping and An Ungraceful Figure.

There is one beauty ill which is utterly unnecessary, and that is stooped shoulders. Any girl or woman, if she has a little energy, a few real brains, and an ounce or so of will power, can easily make her shoulders straight and cultivate for herself a good carriage.

It is true that many women know the remedy for their various ills, defects and complaints, but how many of them persistently and painstakingly apply them until a cure has been effected? To cure round and stooped shoulders remember that the chest must be held upward. The benefits from holding the chest up are straight shoulders, strengthened lungs, and a developed bust and neck.

Breathing exercises are excellent for holding the chest up and the shoulders flat and straight. Have your gowns loose enough to be able to expand the lungs. Walk briskly and hold the head up and out. To observe all these and live up to them will do much toward straightening and flattening stooped and round shoulders.

In addition remember that you must not incline your head forward or sleep on a pillow a few feet thick. Don't wear heels so high that your body tips forward at an angle of 45 degrees, and, above all things, don't pin your garters to the bottom of your corsets so tight that your back is pulled and twisted into a perfect semi-circle.

Stooped shoulders are easy to remedy, for all you have to do is to constantly remember your position and stand up straight.

Fashion's Fads.

Many have been wondering how the Paris fashion makers expect to force our tailor-made girls to swallow, figuratively, the Green peplum and the Henry II style of hat, which they are determined to revive this summer. Let those doubters now grasp the truth that the "fichu frock," fashioned in Hogarth, Romney and Gainsborough styles, will be in vogue and that our girls won't have to array themselves like Greek statues for Broadway observation. "The corset of the fichu gown," says a dressmaker, "is enhanced by the cameo brooch, fixed to a band of velvet and worn round the throat, and also by the little black velvet wristlet."

Those poor, poor women who are so dreadfully poor that they cannot go to Europe this season and must stay at home and get along with such plebeian pleasures as automobiling, may at least get their summer auto costumes from abroad though more fortunate friends. Brunettes are rejoicing in the fact that they can send over orders for coral-colored costumes. That tone has returned to favor and is often supplemented with coral and pearl embroideries, and softly tinted sea-green and blue floss silk. To a dark woman such a gown usually is highly becoming, and few fair women fail to look well in the popular pale shade of nattier blue, which is worn so frequently with oyster pink.

Just what jewels, if any, may be considered fit for mourning is a puzzle to women of society. An Englishwoman will appear draped in doleful black, yet displaying blinding jewels. A widow highly placed in Vanity Fair recently attended a wedding. She wore a long black veil. But when she threw it back a beautiful diamond necklace was seen to be encircling her throat, and she wore large pearl ear drops. Queen Alexandra of England has asserted that pearls and diamonds may be considered "mourning gems," and jet ornaments are abominations. Philadelphia and other cities where the fashionable throngs have ideas of their own do not accept the queen's verdict. Wearing of gems has always been thought bad taste for those in mourning, and probably American women will continue to think so and to keep their jewels under cover in the first two years after a family bereavement. To deck oneself in ornaments is not the general conception of an expression of grief.

APPOINTMENTS

In Linen and Decorations For the Dining Table.

Fine damask, elaborately inset with Irish and Cluny lace, is now very smart for the luncheon and dinner table. Embroidered dinner cloths have been attempted from time to time, but have never found much favor, but a luncheon cloth or large centerpiece, stretching just to the border of the table, and heavily embroidered in all white, with a deep border of Irish lace all round, is most effective. By some, however, the very finest of linen, quite plain, is preferred to the more effective, but scarcely more costly, cloths heavily unprovidered and trimmed with bands of lace.

The so-called bare luncheon tables are still more fashionable than those covered with a long cloth, no matter how costly the linen may be. The centerpiece may be sufficiently large to stretch almost to the edge of the round table, but it is laid directly over the mahogany or oak, so as to show to best advantage the beauties of the lace and embroidery. Colored satin and silk foundations are frequently seen, but just as often the centerpiece is placed directly upon the wood.

Ribbon is used but seldom nowadays for table decoration and, in fact, the desire seems to be to get away from any crowded appearance. Even on a fairly large dinner table the only flowers will be in the huge silver or gold basket in the center of the table, while the shades on the candlesticks and candelabra may bear out the color of the flowers, although plain silver and gold shades are also frequently used.

The large silver flower baskets are comparatively new, being shaped like the regular flat wicker basket with the rack inside, through which each flower is inserted separately and kept in place. For an unusually large table a high, slender basket, with long handles, makes a charming flower vase, a grating or rack being, of course, necessary to keep the flowers in position.

METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

Grace Cameron.

Grace Cameron in "Little Dolly Dimples" will be the attraction at the Lyceum Wednesday and Thursday nights, with a Wednesday matinee.

The Burlesquers.

Joe Oppenheimer's jolly aggregation of burlesquers, the Fay Foster company, has opened a week's engagement at the Metropolitan, offering, in addition to the regular performance, the original moving pictures of the Gotch-Hackenschmidt wrestling match. This is an expensive offering, as the royalty on the pictures, so soon after the big match, is no small item. Harry Cooper, Mlle. Eller and a host of others are included in the personnel of the Foster company. Tomorrow they will give a bargain matinee. Thursday will be chorus girls' night, and Friday amateurs' night.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Summer squash, 15 cents each.
Spinach, 40 cents a peck.
Strawberries, 20 cents a box.
Chives, 10 cents a bunch.
Cottage cheese, 12½ cents a lb.
Frogs' legs, 20 cents a dozen.
Pickled pigs' feet, 10 cents a lb.
Trout bait.

Trout bait is not advertised in all the markets, but the market which is making a feature of it has a sign, clear and unmistakable and one that can be read clear across the street. Can it be that the good old fashion of picking fat, wiggling trout bait, directly from the soil, is being done away with and that a new method has come into use? Time was when the man who was going fishing was very popular in the neighborhood, and as he went forth a carrying a spade, he was followed by half the children of the neighborhood, who wanted to pick up the "wums." If this system is passing away, what is there that remains to which one may devote the homage due tradition? The trout bait sign cannot but disconcert the many who remember the former method of collecting the wherewithal to lure the fish.

MILK INSPECTION.

Health Commissioner Patton Will Make Recommendations to Council.

In response to a request made at the last meeing of the council, Health Commissioner Patton will appear before the aldermen this evening and present facts and recommendations in regard to the city milk inspection. He will suggest amendments to the ordinance which will make milk inspection much more rigid than at present.

One of the amendments will relate to the temperature at which dairymen will be forced to keep the milk. It is claimed the temperature should not be less than 50 degs. at any time. Changes will aso be recommended in the shipping regulations, whereby cans of milk will not be allowed to stand on station platforms in the sun, until nearly spoiled.

There is no state law governing the inspection of cattle for tuberculosis though Duluth is guarded by a city ordinance to this effect. The santitary side will be made a feature of Dr. Patton's administration.

KITZ WANTS NEW TRIAL

Hibbing Merchant Dissatisfied With Verdict in Bergman Trial.

Claims He Has Some Newly Discovered Material Evidence.

Another round in the Bergman-Kitz legal contest will be fought out before Judge Cant this afternoon. The matter comes up on an order by the court to Mrs. Olga Bergman to show cause why the court should not hear Jacob Kitz 'motion for a judgment notwithstanding the verdict, or for a new trial.

The defendant's alternative motion is based on the claim of misconduct by the plaintiff, passion and prejudice on the part of the jury, excessive damages, newly discovered material evidence and errors at law in the trial.

Mrs. Bergman is represented by Victor L. Power of Hibbing, and Mr. Kitz by C. O. Baldwin of this city and Martin Hughes of Hibbing.

The case is one in which Mrs. Bergman claimed damages for an alleged assault on her by Kitz, her landlord, who was accused of attempting to be too familiar with the paintiff. It has been twice tried, Mrs. Bergman being awarded large damages in both instances.

SAYS HUSBAND ABUSED HER

Mary Conklin Asks the Court for a Divorce.

Because Timothy Conklin, her husband, had a violent temper, abused her and finally deserted her, Mary Conklin has petitioned the district court for a legal separation.

In her complaint, which was filed by A. R. Folsom this morning, Mrs Conklin states that she is 40 years old and that her husband is three years her senior. She claims that they were married in Superior, in September, 1902, and have one child. The desertion is alleged to have taken place in October, 1906.

Prior to the alleged desertion Conklin is said to have threatened to kill his wife. For this and for his alleged abusive treatment he is said to have been fined $100 in the municipal court, on one occasion.

LIFE THE BEST UNIVERSITY

Pastor Says Knowledge is Best Gained by Meeting Men.

"The notion that life flows to us only through certain channels is essentially untrue," said Rev. George R. Gebauer at the Unitarian church yesterday. "The opportunities of life and truth can not be channeled. They are wherever life is, and out of the rock in the desert we may call forth the wellspring of life. Life is throbbing with living truth everywhere. Just trust that it is interesting, that it has a message to give, and wherever you take hold of it, it will be interesting, it will have a message. Each life we meet has its own peculiar gift for us. The philosopher has one gift; the simple minded another; the saint has a blessing, but so has the sinner, the friend has an offering, but the enemy does not come empty handed; the grown man may serve us, but the child in its very helplessness is our helper. The glorious career of genius offers us a gift, but the failure by the wayside is also there to bless us.

"Men have often sought for broad culture where it cannot be found; they have confounded learning with wisdom and the knowledge of the school, of the university with living truth. But good and necessary as such education is, it is in itself incomplete. The school is only the vestibule in the great university of Life. The real teachers of mankind have been those whose study windows looked out upon the market place. Socrates got his philsophy not from books, but from the life of shop and stall and street. Siddartha had to go out into the highways and alleys of the city, and only then came to him enlightenment. Jesus the greatest of all the sons of men, grew in mind and soul as he travelled from hamlet to hamlet, as he crossed the swords with pharisee, as he sat down with publican and sinner, as he talked with common fishermen by the lakeside.

"The study has its place, but give me the broad field of the world in which to exercise and develop soul and mind and heart. It is an ignorant culture which looks down upon the wisdom of the common world, and distains to touch elbows with the common herd. We need true democratic broadness to solve many of our present day problems. Many of the labor troubles of our day are due to the fact that employer and employed do not understand each other, that the only point of connection between mistress and maid is the point of wages. There is not enough heartblood passing between them. Let but true mutual fellowship and cooperation exist and there will be no ground for the agitations of socialism and the denunciations of anarchism.

"Why are women so often censured for their lack of justice and broadness? They certainly average as well if not better, than men, in the schooling. Are they naturally narrow and unjust? No, we all know better. If they are behind man in these ethical uailtis, it is because they have not graduated in the high can never take the place of moral experience. The grocery clerk who only got through grammar school by a most strenous effort, who may be innocent of all the "sophies" and "logies" of book lore, may yet develop a philsophy of life that can not be despised. Without knowing Jevon's Logic, he learned to think correctly by weighing out New Orleans molasses. Without knowing James' phychology, he can tell an honest man from a cheat and may know the mind of his fair and learned customer better than herself in spite of a college degree. Giving right measure has made him just in his moral estimates and jumping up and down from his wagon every day has taught him the simple ethics of work. Meeting Greek and barbarian, Jew and gentile in his store, he has learned to estimate life correctly. For him exist only honest and dishonest people, good and bad customers and he cares little for the wrappings of his fellowmen. All his experience gives him a grip upon life, about which his learned sister may know nothing. Yes, in the highways and lanes of life there are opportunities of wisdom, which no nuiversity can give.

CURE FOR "STAGE STRUCK."

The Educational Theater in New York is Doing Good Work.

New York, May 4.—The "Educational theater," or the Children's theater, as it is popularly known, in which Mark Twain has taken so much interest, is the best cure for the "stage struck," according to Miss A. Minnie Hertz, its director and originator.

"Many have come to us 'stage struck,' you might call it," she said, "only following out a God-given impulse within them which could be splendidly used for education and character development, if properly directed. We have tried to train them aright, and have satisfied their longings for the enactment of characters outside of themselves, and not one of the 530 who have taken part in our plans has gone to the professional stage.

"The Educational theater is soon to become a separate organization from the educational alliance, with a new board of directors, and we are to have teachers to aid the youthful actors in their work."

DIES ON HIS WAY HOME

Giles Gilbert Suddenly Stricken on Train Near Miles City.

Was Returning With His Daughter From Trip to Portland.

Giles Gilbert, one of Duluth's oldest and best known citizens, died very suddenly early this morning on a Northern Pacific train just west of Miles City, Mont.

Mr. Gilbert had been in Portland, with his daughter, Mrs. Carroll Graff of this city, visiting his son, Wells Gilbert, who lives in Portland. He was returning to Duluth with his daughter, when he was suddenly stricken.

No details of his death have been received. He died in his berth during the night.

Mr. Gilbert was 67 years of age. He had retired from active business, but still had extensive timber holdings, which he kept under his supervision. He leaves three children. His two sons live in the West, Wells Gilbert residing in Portland, and Frank Gilbert in Goldendale, Wash. He had also one daughter, Mrs. Carroll Graff. His wife died in Duluth two years ago.

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

Big Decrease in Visible Supply Causes an Advance.

Foreign Demand Continues Strong—Flax is Quiet Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 4.—A decrease of more than five and one-half million bushels in the visible supply somewhat startled the American wheat markets today and contributed toward a strength which was most reflected in the July option, which is now the most active. In every American market except Winnipeg, July wheat closed more than a point higher than Saturday.

Such a big increase, said to be the largest ever recorded in a single week, caused wheat to take a good spurt. There was nothing of a bearish nature to offset this piece of news. In fact, the rest of the news favored the bulls also.

Cables were higher, the world's shipments smaller than last week or a year ago, and in Duluth the foreign demand kept up well. Seventeen loads were worked for export during the session here.

Liverpool closed 1½d to 1⅝d higher, Paris ⅛c higher to ¼c lower, Berlin ⅝c higher and Budapest ⅝c higher for October wheat.

The May option closed 1⅛c higher in Duluth and Winnipeg, ⅛c higher in Chicago, 1c higher in Minneapolis and ¼c lower in New York. The July option closed 1⅛c higher in Duluth and New York, 1⅜c higher in Chicago, 1⅛-¼c up in Minneapolis, and ⅞c higher in Winnipeg.

Charles H. Thornton will say in the Commercial Record tonight:

"During the month of April, country elevators received from farmers 2 per cent of what had been delivered to them during the preceding eight months of the crop year, and shipped to terminals or interior mills three times that much. At the present the country elevator stocks of spring wheat are in the condition generally reached on Aug. 1 and farm reserves are not much better.

"During May, June and July of last year, farmers and country elevators contributed 38,000,000 bushels of spring wheat to terminals and country mills. During the same time this year the maximum possibilities are not more than one-third of that.

"Practically speaking, all the spring wheat in the Northwest is in the show windows as country mill requirements alone for the three months, are 15,000,000 bushels. Every bushel of spring wheat that appears at terminals between now and August 1, will be at the expense of country mill output."

May corn closed 1⅛-1¼c higher in Chicago and ½d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ¾c higher in Chicago.

"Wheat—As a result of the late firmness in the American market Saturday and the sharp falling off in the shipments from Russia, the market was firm and ¾@⅞d higher at the opening and further advanced ½d during the morning. Shorts were nervous and covered freely on further proof that the May option in Chicago had been cornered. At midday, the market was firm and 1d higher than Saturday.

"Corn was firm and unchanged at the start, followed by a sharp advance of ½d. The strength in America on Saturday and the decrease in the local stocks here stimulated good buying."

World's shipments of wheat and corn last week, the week previous and the corresponding week a year ago are shown as follows:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Strong on Liverpool Advance With Active Trading.

Chicago, May 4.—The local wheat market opened strong today and trading was active. An advance of 1d at Liverpool brought out liberal buying orders from commission houses. The May delivery was erratic, the price ranging between $1.04½, the opening price, and $1.01¼. July opened ⅜@⅞c higher at 89¼@90¼c, and sold at 90⅜c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 228 cars, against 224 cars last week and 690 cars a year ago.

Reports of heavy rains in Kansas and Nebraska forced the price of July wheat down to 89⅝c. Later the market rallied because of a heavy decrease in the visible supply and the close was strong with July 1⅜c higher at 90¾c.

The corn market was strong on active demand for the July delivery by shorts. Firm cables and wet weather in the corn belt were the chief bullish influences. July opened ¼@¾ to ⅜@½c higher at 64½@64¾c and for a time held within that range. Local receipts were 88 cars with 3 of contract grade.

The market was strong all day. Prices reacted slightly with wheat, but the close was strong with July ⅝c higher at 64⅞@66c.

Commission houses were active bidders for oats but offerings were light. Wet weather and the strength of wheat and corn were the chief reasons for the urgent demand. July opened ⅜@½c to ½@⅝c higher at 47⅜@47½ and sold at 47⅝c. Local receipts were 146 cars.

Provisions were weak because of a 10@15c decline in live hogs. July pork was off 50@10c at $13.30@13.35. Lard was down 2½c at $8.42½. Ribs were 5c lower at $7.17½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.03⅝; July, 90¾c; September, 86c. Corn—May, 70½c to 70¾c; July, 64⅝@65c; September, 63c. Oats—May old, 53⅝c; May, 53c; July old, 47½c; July, 46½c; September, 37⅝@37¾c. Pork—May, $13.37½; July, $13.55; September, $13.82½. Lard—May, $8.45; July, $8.52½; September, $8.70. Ribs—May, $7.07½; July, $7.20; September, $7.55. Rye—Cash, 80½@81c. Barley—Cash, 60@75c. Timothy—May, $4.25. Clover—Cash, $13.50. Wheat—No. 2 red, $1.02½@1.04½; No. 3 red, 96c@$1.02¾; No. 2 hard, $1@1.01½. No. 3 hard, 96c@$1.01; No. 3 spring, 97c@$1.11. Corn—No. 3, 68¾c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Opens Higher, But Sells Off in Short Time.

Minneapolis, May 4.—Minneapolis elevator stocks gained 75,000 bushels for two days and the supply situation here did not look so bullish as at the close of last week. This offset an advance of a penny in Liverpool and, although the market opened higher, it sold off again. Minneapolis received 211 cars, against 498 a year ago, and Duluth only 10, against 159. Good crop news came in and prompted heavy selling. When this was over the market went up again, but it was narrow at best and the trade was light. The close was higher and near the top for the day. May opened $1.07½; high, $1.08⅛; low, $1.07; close, $1.08; July closed $1.07½@⅝; September, 91¾c.

Cash market activity was limited and the tone dull. No. 1 northern on the July basis was 2c over and No. 2 northern about July price. Cash close: No. 1 northern, $1.08⅜@1.09⅝ spot; $1.06⅝ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.07⅜@1.07⅞ spot; $1.07⅜ to arrive; No. 3 wheat, 99⅜c @$1.04⅝; No. 3 yellow corn, 67¼@67¾c.

No. 3 white oats, 48⅜@49⅜c.

No. 2 rye, 74¾@75¾c.

The barley market was weak. Good malting barley sold at 65c and low grade feed stuff as low as 55c. Close, 55c to 66c.

Flax was steady and in satisfactory demand at 1c over. Duluth May close: $1.20¼.

Bran was advanced 50c per ton and millers are quoting it in bulk at $21.75 @22.

Flour was very strong, but millers had not advanced prices at the close. They put up all by-products, however, 50c per ton. Shipments, 48,219 barrels; first patents, $5.40@5.60; second patents, $5.35@5.50; first clears, $4.20@4.30; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

SUICIDE TO AVOID DROWNING.

San Francisco Call: The officers of the liner Alameda, which arrived yesterday from Honolulu, brought word of a tragic incident in the fearful voyage of the German steamer Tolosan, bound from Puget Sound for Vladivistok, which put into Honolulu, Jan. 7, in sore distress.

Great seas swept the decks and wrought fearful damage; the ship became disabled during the hurricane and was thrown on its beam ends. The cargo shifted. One man was killed and others were injured, and when the Tolosan was sighted from Diamond Head the big freighter looked like a mass of battered junk.

The Tolosan carried one passenger, a Greek merchant who owned a large shipment of fruit that formed part of the Tolosan's cargo. When the storm was at its height the Greek, with a razor gleaming in his hand, fought his way against the gale to the bridge and signalled to the captain that he wished to speak with him.

"Will the ship sink?" demanded the passenger.

"Perhaps," replied the skipper.

"Are we going down now?"

"No. We still have a chance."

"Will you send word to me when there is no longer hope?"

"Get off the bridge!" screamed the skipper. "Why do you trouble me at a time like this? Go to your room!"

"But will you let me know?" persisted the Greek.

"Why?" yelled the captain.

"I'm afraid of drowning and before the ship sinks I want to cut my throat."

The gentleman from Greece arrived at Honolulu with his throat intact, but would travel no more on the Tolosan and took passage for the Orient on the liner China.

THE ATHLETE WHO STUDIED.

Apropos of Swarthmore college and the abolition of athletics, Reginald Vanderbilt said at a recent dinner in Newport:

"We all know that college athletics can be carried too far. I remember an incident that befell an athletic friend of mine—a Princeton or Yale man, I forget which—back in '99.

"This chap, training for the hockey team, went stale. The coach sent for him and said indignantly:

"'You're in a pretty state. Why, man, you are as pale and soft as putty. Been drinking?'

"'Not a drop,' said my friend.

"'Then you are smoking too much.'

"'No, sir; I haven't touched tobacco since I went into training.'

"'Studying?' the coach asked.

"'Er—yes, a little,' my friend admitted.

"'Good gracious! man,' exclaimed the coach, 'stop it at once. Have you no regard whatever for your 'varsity?'"

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Weakened After Advancing to Above Saturday's Figures.

Closed Dull and Irregular and Near Lowest Point.

New York, May 4.—Prices of stocks showed uniform small declines at the opening today and the volume of business was moderate. Canadian Pacific fell ¾ and Louisville & Nashville and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred advanced 1.

The market reversed its course temporarily and advanced a fraction above Saturday's closing. The whole list weakened again sharply. The principal western stocks were the leaders in the decline, but there were large sales elsewhere. Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, B. & O., Third Avenue and Pressed Steel Car receded 1, Canadian Pacific 1¼, St. Paul and Manhattan, 1⅜ and New York Central and Westinghouse Electric, 1½. Colorado Fuel preferred sold at 35 compared with 49¼ in April.

The rise of 1⅝ in Missouri Pacific caused the general list to harden only moderately and prices receded again later. Chicago, Great Western debentures rose 4 and American Locomotive and American Ive 1. Atchison and Pacific Mail declined 1 and Atlantic Coast Line 1¼. Bonds were irregular.

The market grew gradually firmer in tone in sympathy with the increasing demand for Southern Pacific, which was bid up to 82¾. Reading and St. Paul also sold to near the high prices of the morning and there was a large demand for the copper stocks. Bethlehem Steel preferred gained 4 points and National Lead and Central Leather 1.

Trading became quite dull in the afternoon, but the tone continued firm with prices ruling generally at about Saturday's level.

HUMAN BLOODHOUNDS.

Impossible for Criminals to Escape the "Trackers" of Australia.

A criminal in Australia shows that his chances for escape are nearly hopeless if a "tracker" is put upon his trail within a day after the crime is discovered. A "tracker" is a native black man having a natural instinct for running down criminals fleeing from justice. These men are veritable bloodhounds, and their strange power is possessed by no other race in the world, says Pearson's Weekly.

So implicit is the confidence felt in them by the police that when a black starts out upon a man hunt the officer who goes with him merely follows in his wake. He does not question him, but, leading his own horse, allows the guide to go in whatever direction he pleases, no matter how apparently reasonless his course may seem.

The most successful trackers are in Queensland, near the edge of New South Wales. They will track any distance, animated by no feeling of hatred for their quarry, but only desirous of proving their expertness. The reward they ask is absurdly small for the long and difficult trails. A few shillings or some cheap bracelets, rings and so on, quite satisfies them. They have no idea of the value of money. Rum is their great weakness.

Once a tracker was employed to locate some valuable trees for a timber man. He had to travel some forty miles through a forest so dense that it was necessary to cut his way through with his tomahawk. All he asked for was a bottle of rum, while the timber merchant derived over £2,000 from the sale of the trees.

The following description of a man hunt will convey a clear idea of the dangers and hardships to be endured.

In this particular case the tracker was a splendid specimen of manhood. The usual loin garment of kangaroo skin he had exchanged for a light covering of cotton cloth provided by the police. He led a horse, so as to make time in the open country districts where the runaway's footsteps could be seen from a horse. The hunt was very earnest, because the fugitive had stolen some cattle. In Australia the crime of cattle stealing is most severely dealt with, and considered a serious offense.

The offender was a well-seasoned bushman, cunning, and acquainted with the tactics of the "trackers;" furthermore, he had two days' start of his pursuers.

To accompany a chase like this is awesome; the utter silence and desolation of that great bush is depressing. Then, too, the trails are deceptive, often leading to a deserted wood camp beneath a foliage so dense that it is impossible even to catch a glimpse of the sky. Darkness closes in very quickly in the mountain regions, and by nightfall the "tracker" and his employer were glad to reach an "accommodation house" (or rancher's home), where such as these were usually welcomed and allowed to put up for the night. At this house the officer tried to hear tidings of his man, but no one had seen him.

All the next day the black fellow led along as swiftly as possible. The way was extremely rough, and mile after mile was covered through wild silences, until a stranger would surely think the guide was playing a losing game. At no time could they ride, and it was with great difficulty that they reached a sort of clearing, where the horses were tied and camp struck for the night. Tearing huge strips of bark from the trees and wrapping blankets around them, each lay on the conclave surface of one for a bed and rested.

At noon the next day a bushman's cabin was reached and there the tired horses were tithered. The hunters then proceeded on foot. Another night in the forest, and the fourth day found these intrepid hunters making their way through underbrush peculiar to Australia, called "lawyers and barristers," because its thorns and brambles catch one at every turn. Once the guide hesitated, turned back and struck off in another

HAS FIRST COAL CARGO

Steamer John Sharpless Brings Authracite From Lake Erie.

New Steamer John McGean Comes for First Ore Cargo.

The Sullivan steamer John Sharpless, with 2,100 tons of hard coal for the Northwestern Fuel company, brought the first cargo of coal to the Head of the Lakes, arriving here this morning at 10:15. She will unload immediately and take a cargo of grain down the lakes.

The first cargo of ore will go out this week, the new steel steamer John A. McGean arriving through the Superior entry yesterday morning and going to the Great Northern dock at Allouez. She will load immediately.

In all, probably 50,000 or 60,000 tons of ore will be shipped from the Duluth and Superior docks during the month of May, unless the meeting of the Lake Carriers at Cleveland May 12 takes some unforeseen action. June 1 is the date set upon by most vesselmen for the general opening of navigation, and it is not believed a start will be made in the general ore trade before that time. There has been very little ore shipped from the mines to the docks thus far this season, and the shipment on the McGean this week is much later than the first shipment of any recent year.

The entire lake trade is now held up in waiting for the action of the Lake Carriers next week. But few cargoes of grain will be shipped out of the harbor this week. The steamer E. N. Ohl will probably sail tomorrow and the P. P. Miller and George Stone, which arrived yesterday, are loading. The steamer John Crerar arrived this morning with a cargo of railroad iron, and will probably take grain on the return trip.

The lumber trade is also very dull, and some of the big shippers have not started their boats. The outlook for the lake trade is no brighter all around than it was a month ago.

DATES ARE CHANGED.

First Anchor Line Passenger Boat to Arrive June 21.

Excepting the Booth line, which has already inaugurated its service on the north shore as far as Port Arthur and on the south shore to Houghton, the Northern Navigation company, a Canadian line, will be the first passenger line to have a steamer in port this season. The Huronic is expected to arrive from Sarnia Friday with package freight and passengers.

A change has been made in the schedule of the Anchor line, by which the first four trips of the steamer Japan, which was expected to go into service May 14, have been cut out. Instead of the Japan being the first passenger boat of the line to arrive from Buffalo, the Tionesta will be the first. The Tionesta will leave Buffalo June 16, arriving in Duluth, Sunday, June 21. The Juniata will follow, arriving here June 25 and the Japan will be the last to sail, arriving here Wednesday, July 1. After that, the regular schedule will be maintained.

PACKAGE FREIGHTERS MOVE.

Big Lines Have All of Their Boats in Commission.

The package freighters are showing unchecked early season activity and nearly all of the big lines now have their entire fleets in commission. Business at both ends of the route is brisk and, in the face of the inactivity in other lines of the lake trade, the line companies are happy in prosperity.

The steamer Duluth of the Mutual Transit company left last night with a cargo of grain in the hold, package freight between decks and a deck load of shingles. The Superior of the same line arrived yesterday and will load for the east bound trip immediately.

The Laskawanna is the next Anchor line boat due. She is now bound up the lakes and should arrive in Duluth tomorrow evening or Wednesday morning. The Russia of the Port Huron & Duluth Transportation company should arrive tomorrow and the Alva of the Chicago & Duluth Transportation company is due about Wednesday. The Mutual liner Northern King arrived yesterday and the entire fleet of that line is now in commission on the lakes, making regular trips.

WORK IS RESUMED.

Duluth-Superior Dredging Company Engaged on Government Contract.

The Duluth-Superior Dredging company today begins government work, in completion of the contract on which it worked last year. The contract will probably occupy the company until the latter part of July or early in August of this season.

The work begun today is on the widening of the Wisconsin channel at the Northern Pacific bridge, on which some work was done last year. The channel is being widened to approach the position of the new draw. The bridge is being altered, so that the position of the draw on that side will be changed.

LEVEL OF WATER.

Conditions on Lake Superior Are Not Exceptional This Year.

It has been remarked by a number of persons that the lake is lower this spring than usual, and inquiries have been made of the engineers' office concerning it. A few facts in regard to the water level ar given by J. H. Darling, assistant engineer.

The lake always is lowest for the year in the months of March and April. This year it touched the lowest point in April. The average height for the month of April, according to the government gauge in this harbor, was about one-half inch above low water datum. This is four inches lower than for April last year, and the change is undoubtedly owing to the deficiency in rainfall in 1907, which was nearly seven inches less than a long period average, according to the records of the United States weather office. The present stage of the lake is not, however, excessively low by any means, as it is about the average April stage for the long period of thirty-four years from 1872 to 1905.

It has so happened that the lake has been usually high during the last fourteen years (with the exception of one year, 1895), and during this period the lake has but twice dropped as low as datum until this spring, and people have become so accustomed to the higher stage that the present change was something of a surprise. There is, however, no reason to suppose that the high stage of the lake in recent years is of a permanent nature.

The mean lowest stage of the lake for the thirty-four years mentioned, by the Marquette gauge was just at low water datum, and occurred in March and April. The mean highest stage was in September, and was ninety-eight hundredths, or about one foot, above datum.

What the stage will be this season cannot be predicted, as it will depend upon the rainfall, but the probability is that it will not vary greatly from the average. The channels in Duluth-Superior harbor are so well dredged that vessels can safely load as deep in any event as the available depths in the St. Mary and Detroit rivers.

RELIEF FOR LIFE SAVERS.

Sick and Disabled Men of the Service Organize.

Sick and disabled men who were formerly in the life saving service have organized the Life Savers' Benefit association. Charles A. Meyland of Milwaukee has been elected secretary. Only men who were honorably discharged from the service because of disability arising from exposure or accident received in the service are entitled to membership.

Disabled members receive no pension or any other remuneration from the government. After devoting their entire life to the service many of them are forced to make a living as best they can, although unable to do hard work because of advanced age or infirmity.

The association has for its object the welfare of the men after they leave the service. The members propose to collect funds in some way by which its members can be given financial aid. It is believed that the boat owners will contribute. Collection boxes may be placed in public places, where those who are interested in their cause may contribute.

Mr. Meyland was in the service for fourteen years, when he was incapacitated from further work by rheumatism. He was dropped from the government pay roll, he says, without means of support.

Light Discontinued.

The Canadian Hydrographic survey has issued notice of the issuance of colored maps entitled "Head of Thunder Bay to Pigeon River" and "Lamb Island to Thunder Cape." It is also announced that the fixed red light maintained on Foote's dock, River St. Mary, has been permanently discontinued and will not be shown this season.

Tug is Damaged.

The steamer Hutchinson late Saturday night collided with the tug J. L. Williams, which was lying at the Northwestern dock. The tug was considerably damaged, but was able to proceed yesterday on her way to the north shore for a cargo of cedar.

Pulpwood Adrift.

The steamer America, which arrived yesterday from Port Arthur, passed through a large quantity of floating pulpwood in Thundrer Bay. A boom broke in the Kaministiqua river and the wood was carried out into Thunder bay. The wind would tend to drive it toward Isle Royale and the owners will probably lose the greater part of it, as it is difficult to adjust the salvage of pulpwood, which bears no distinguishing mark of the different owners.

PLOT REVEALED.

Attempt Was to be Made to Kill Lord Kitchener and Others.

Calcutta, May 4.—The police are investigating the native plot revealed here yesterday to murder Europeans by means of bombs, an dthe more they go into the matter the more serious and widespread does the conspiracy appear. Documents seized at the house where bombs and explosives were being manufactured reveal that it was part of the plot to kill Lord Kitchener, commander-in-chief of the British force in India, and other high officials.

The authorities believe they are facing an attempt at revolution. A number of prominent Bengalese are implicated and sensational arrests are expected to follow.

RADICALS THE GAINERS.

Paris, May 4.—The Radical and the Radical Socialist parties were heavy gainers throughout France in the municipal elections yesterday. They made their advances at the expense of the extreme Socialists and the Reactionary Nationalists. The latter, in Paris alone, lost 45,000 votes.

SAFE INVESTMENT
Good Position
Some days ago, under the head of "A Great Opportunity," I made the announcement that a young man who wanted to start in business in Duluth, "the Pittsburg of the West," would find an interest for sale and a position offered in a growing concern. Numerous answers were received, and as I was called away about the time of inserting the ad, there were a number that were not replied to. Money is not so much wanted as the right man. The money would be used to develop the business, but is useless without the right man with it. No better opportunity offers for a young man than this. Can soon show you. Address as before. O. L. E., care of Herald.

FINNS PLAN BIG EVENT

"Johannes Day" Will be Celebrated in Duluth June 24.

Thousands of Visitors Will Come Here From Northwestern Points.

"Johannes Day," the national holiday of the Finns, will be observed in Duluth June 24, next, with a grand celebration, which will be participated in by thousands of visitors from the ranges, Northern Michigan and Northern Wisconsin.

The holiday, commonly termed the "midsummer celebration" of the Finns, has been observed annually for the last four years on the ranges, where John Saari of Sparta, one of the county's representatives in the legislature, was mainly instrumental in starting the observance of the day.

The Finnish residents of Duluth have taken the matter up and are planning on one of the biggest celebrations of the kind that has ever taken piace in this country.

The local committee in charge, of which County Commissioner Charles Kauppi is chairman, held a meeting Saturday evening and discussed the plans that are being worked out for the affair.

"Johannes Day" dates back to the Reformation. The midsummer day is typical of the time of year when all nature in the Northern country is in its glory. The day, therefore, has been celebrated by the Finns and the Scandinavians for more than a century.

The Finns of St. Louis county, interested in the purely nationalistic welfare of the race, recollect midsummer day as the day to gather and revive the memories and inspirations of old, and to foster the elevation of the highest ideals of the Finns of this country.

In the previous celebrations on the ranges prominent men in the county's affairs have participated in the program for midsummer day celebration. In the event which will occur next month in this city, an especially fine program will be prepared. The speeches will be both in Finnish and in English. Invitations are being extended to a number of the prominent men of the Northwest to take part in the speaking, and it is anticipated that there will be no declinations unless important business arrangements interfere with that date.

SUPERIOR NEWS

IT "WASN'T LOADED."

Superior Boy Shoots Companion With an Old Revolver.

While playing "train-robber" with some companions, Saturday evening, Guy Lindberg, aged 15 years, was shot in the throat with a 32-calibre bullet, fired from a revolver in the hands of Henry Schommer, aged 17 years. Little hope is held out for recovery. It is claimed that the Schommer boy did not know that the rovelver was loaded. Henry Schommer, father of the boy who did the shooting, claims that the revolver was not loaded when the boys began their play, but that Lindberg slipped in cartridges without saying anything about it to his companions. The injured boy resides at 1818 Ohio avenue.

CHARGE OF MURDER.

Brule Farmer Must Face Trial for Killing His Neighbor.

John Govin, a farmer residing near Brule, was arrested yesterday on the charge of murdering his neighbor, Alex Sevalia, Jan. 6 last. On that date Sevalia was found in the rear of Govin's home with his skull crushed.

The state claims that Sevalia came to his death in a drunken brawl. He and Govin had been cutting ice, and after being paid off, they went to a saloon and spent the day drinking and scuffling.

The warrant for Govin's arrest was sworn out by Mrs. Sevalia.

Govin is about 44 years old and has a wife and one child. He was a much larger and stronger man than Sevalia. Govin claims that he does not know how the fatality came about. He thinks Sevalia came to his death accidentally.

May Have Been a Tragedy.

The finding of a hat and coat on the bridge over the Amnicon river, about twelve miles out of Superior, has given rise to the theory that some person has either been murdered or has committed suicide by jumping into the river. A strange man was seen in the vicinity of the bridge about noon Saturday.

Seeks Oratorical Honors.

Miss Jennie Hogan of the Superior normal school will go to McComb, Ill., May 7 to participate in the interstate normal school contest for oratorical honors. The states which will be represented are Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin. Miss Hogan recently won first honors in the Wisconsin internormal contest.

Charged With Boat Stealing.

Leo Bourdon, aged 19 years, has been arrested on the charge of breaking into the boathouse belonging to Judge Vinje of the circuit court. It is claimed that a boat belonging to G. R. Smith was stolen from the boathouse recently. Bourdon is claimed to have been connected with the robbery.

TERRIFIC WIND AND RAIN STORM AROUND ST. LOUIS CAUSES DEATH OF THREE

Train Goes Through a Bridge Washed Out by High Water.

Great Damage Done to Property in Vicinity of City.

In Some Places Wind Attained Velocity of a Tornado.

St. Louis, May 5.—A thunderstorm of unusual severity, accompanied by a high wind of almost tornado velocity, swept over this vicinity early today, doing much damage to property and indirectly causing a loss of life.

A bridge on the Louisville & Nashville road, near Belleville, Ill., was washed out and wrecked a freight train. Engineer Ward, Conductor Smith and a trainman, whose name has not been learned, were caught under the engine and drowned. The train was piled up in a mass in Schoenlaub creek, which was swollen into a torrent.

The village of Edgemont, Ill., was flooded and many persons were forced to take refuge on improvised rafts. The whole area of lowlands, known as the American bottoms, east of East St. Louis, Ill., and comprising thirty-

SHE ASKS $5,000 FOR EACH LETTER

Minneapolis Woman Sues Spokane Mining Man for Slander.

Spokane, Wash., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Five thousand dollars each is the price which Mrs. F. M. Parsons of Minneapolis asks the Spokane county superior court to require Harry H. Shallenberger, a mining man of 1851 College avenue, Spokane, to pay her for letters, he is alleged to have written to other parties. She declares he has written at least ten of such missives to different persons, and she now brings suit claiming $5,000 damages.

Mr. Shallenberger and Mrs. Parsons are stockholders in the Alliance Gold & Copper Mining company, which owns the Moreen property at Greenwood, B. C. Mrs. Parsons is secretary and treasurer of the company and has been looking after its interests at Minneapolis. The letters were written, the plaintiff alleges, for the purpose of securing the assistance of others in ousting her from her position as an officer of the company.

In proof of her assertion that the letters did not say nice things about her, Mrs. Parsons injects some of the choicer quotations in her complaint. A letter to S. Potts of Minneapolis runs

"Mother Parsons was out here a short time ago, and I got nothing but abuse from her. She acted like a crazy woman, and it would not take much to convince me that she is."

By this statement, the plaintiff infers, the defendant intended to represent that she is dishonest, disreputable and unfit to represent the company. In another letter the defendant wrote:

"This bunco game of Mrs. Parsons' has got to come an end d——quick. She has concocted a dirty scheme to beat me."

In another letter was the following: "I have worked hard to make Moreen what it is, and now to be treated like a dog by a dirty bunch is a little too much."

Again he wrote: "She certainly has the nerve of the devil. I used to think she was a lady, but now I am satisfied she is a crook of the first water and there is nothing she would not do to gain her end."

EX-MANAGER THROWN OUT

Aged Residents of Chicago Home Attack Frank Henning.

Chicago, May 5.—Eighteen decrepit residents of Bethesda Home for the Aged, their aggregate age 1,340 years, and average age 71, driven by fear that they would be forced from their home, attacked Frank F. Henning, former manager of the bankrupt institution, and, after beating him, threw him bodily from the building, last evening, threatening vengeance if he ever returned. The eighteen residents, the majority of whom are women, said Henning agreed to furnish them a home for life for a consideration of $550. In many cases this $550 represented the entire savings of the man or woman who was admitted.

The home was forced into bankruptcy several months ago, and since that time has been supported entirely by public subscription.

FAILED TO STOP SKIP

Car Comes to Top of Tamarack Mine With Terrific Force.

Four Men Are Injured—One Man May Have Fallen.

Calumet, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rumors that twelve men had been killed in a mine accident this morning startled the people of this city and sent a crowd to the Tamarack mine. Fortunately the accident was not as bad as reported, no one being killed, as far as known, although four men were badly bruised.

In hoisting the skip in No. 5 shaft, at 6 o'clock this morning, the engineer lost control of the hoisting apparatus and the skip, which contained nine men, came to the top of the shaft with terrific force, hurling the men down and injuring four, but not fatally.

It is rumored that one man fell to the bottom of the shaft and parties are searching for him. This shaft is over 5,000 feet deep.

CHILDHOOD'S PLAYMATES

To Be Married After Long Years of Separation.

New York, May 5.—A marriage which will unite two childhood playmates swept far apart by the years and fate, only to return at last to the old trust and faith, will be shortly solemnized in this city in the presence of the children and a few near friends of the bride, Mrs. Margaret Leah Mitchell. Years ago, when Mrs. Mitchell, then Margaret Brecken, was a school girl in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Sidney David Fitzgerald, a boy, somewhat her senior, was her companion. But the boy grew up to leave his birthplace and the girl attained womanhood to marry.

Four children were born to Mrs. Mitchell before twenty years ago she was widowed. Sidney Fitzgerald had also married but he had settled in the West.

Gradually Mrs. Mitchell's children drifted away from home. Miss Laura Mitchell became a painter of miniatures and came to New York.

It was to be with Laura that Mrs. Mitchell a year ago came to New York to make her home. Here Sidney Fitzgerald, now seven years a widower, found her again. His home is in La Crosse, Kan.

JEROME SAYS HE WILL GO TO JAIL RATHER THAN FILE MINUTES OF GRAND JURY

DISTRICT ATTORNEY JEROME,
Who Refuses to Produce Grand Jury Records on Order of Court.

Refuses to Obey the Order Issued by Judge Rosalsky.

Matter Brought Up at Hearing of Charges Against Attorney.

Records Are Those Concerning Metropolitan Railway Case.

New York, May 5.—District Attorney Jerome said today that he would go to jail rather than comply with an order received from Judge Rosalsky that certain grand jury minutes be filed with the clerk of the court of general sessions.

Mr. Jerome made this statement at the hearing of charges against him, before Commissioner Hand, who was appointed by Governor Hughes to take evidence in the matter of the King committee's charges that the district attorney had failed to fulfill the duties of his office.

The records which Judge Rosalsky ordered filed with the court of general sessions were those of the grand jury, which investigated the affairs of the Metropolitan street railway system, last November. The effect of filing these minutes with the clerk would have been to make them public.

Washington, May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is said here today that it has been decided that Winfield S. Hammond of the Second Minnesota congressional district will make the speech at the Denver convention, placing Governor John A. Johnson in nomination for president of the United States. Mr. Hammond is Governor Johnson's "mascot." Hammond nominated Johnson for both his terms as governor of Minnesota, and both times Johnson swept a normally Republican state into the Democratic column.

Representative Hammond is one of the closest friends Mr. Johnson has, and he has always been one of the wheelhorses in his political advancement. "Unquestionably," he said yesterday, "Johnson will carry a large portion of the Southern states. Even in Alabama, whose convention will be May 14, and among whose people friends of Johnson have done little or Philadelphia, May 5.—While suffering from temporary insanity, Mrs. Elizabeth McPhilomy of Wayne, Pa., committed suicide on an open lot near the home of her sister, in the northeastern section of this city today, by cutting her throat with a butcher knife, under tragic circumstances. She was visiting her sister and while scantily clad left the house and was followed by her brother-in-law, who heard her get out of bed. As he approached her on the lot, the woman drew the knife across her throat. Then she ran on again, followed by the brother-in-law. After going about 100 yards Mrs. McPhilomy dropped dead. Mrs. McPhilomy, on Sunday, made a will, giving her sister all of her property. She then gave jewelry to her nieces. These acts caused a watch to be kept over her, but the family did not believe she would commit suicide.

MANY SALARIES ARE REDUCED

Practically Every Official in Manila Gets a Cut.

Manila, May 5.—The assembly has begun the consideration of the appropriation committee's financial measures. The salary reductions are more sweeping than anticipated. The salary of the governor general is reduced 10,000 pesos and practically every official is reduced in sums varying from 20 to 45 per cent.

The forestry bureau is merged with the lands department and the civil service has been merged with the auditing bureau. The American officials are most seriously affected, and it is believed the commission will reject the majority of the proposals. The American officials and merchants are disturbed over the proposals, which many assert are clearly racial and designed to make it impossible for Americans to fill positions in the civil service. They pronounce the movement a political play on the prejudices of the Filipinos and fear is expressed that, whatever the outcome may be, it will prove difficult in the future to secure recruits in America for this branch of the civil service.

FIGHT FIRE FOR HOURS

Stubborn Blaze in Slab Fill Under Northern Pacific Spur.

Firemen Had Great Difficulty Getting Engine to Blaze.

West Duluth firemen fought for several hours this morning a stubborn blaze which started in a slab fill under a branch of the Northern Pacific track leading to the Virginia & Rainy Lake mill on Grassy Point.

The fire, which broke out a little after 8 o'clock, probabaly started from a spark from a locomotive. It spread rapidly to an old wooden bridge, and about 150 feet of the structure was ablaze, when the department arrived. The spur of the Northern Pacific, which runs into West Duluth saw mills, has many slab fills and several old wooden trestles. The spark caught in one of these fills, about half way between the Alger-Smith and the Virginia & Rainy Lake lumber mills, on the bay side towards the Zenith Furnace company.

It proved a very stubborn fire. In the first place the firemen had difficulty in getting the engine to it and had to get their water from the Alger-Smith mill, about 2,00 feet away. When the water had traveled that distance it had lost a great deal of its pressure and could not be used with any great effectiveness.

There was at no time any danger of the fire spreading, unless the wind, which was blowing away from the mills out across the water, should change. After the engine reached the water and began work and more hose brought from the station the firemen had little difficulty in getting the fire under control.

JOHNSON SENTIMENT.

West Duluth Loyal to the Cause of Minnesota's Governor.

West Duluth is the center of a strong Johnson sentiment, and there is little question but that the delegates from the West Duluth precincts to the county convention will be Johnson supporters.

The caucuses will be held at the regular voting places, between 7:30 and 8:30 tomorrow evening. A complete list of the polling places is published in another column of The Herald this evening, and West Duluth people can tell by glancing at it where they may vote. There will be Johnson workers at the polls to tell what candidates are pledged to Johnson. It is only a question of getting out and voting. If the governor's friends in West Duluth do not consider that he has a certainty and neglect to go to the polls, the Johnson tickets will be elected tomorrow night. It is therefore up to every friend of Minnesota's favorite son to register his choice tomorrw night.

Longfellow Banquet.

The annual banquet of the Longfellow school alumni will be held at the school Friday evening, May 22, at 7:30 o'clock. President Randall appointed six committees to arrange for the dinner. A revised constitution was accepted and a number of new members were voted in.

POLITICAL CLIQUE IS SHOWN IN ITS TRUE LIGHT

"Bryan Faction" Simply Seeking Scalp of the Governor.

Johnson Will Throw Support to Bryan If Defeated.

"Neither Governor Johnson nor his friends will be parties to any scheme which will divert the Democratic party from the progressive course taken in 1896 and 1900. If Governor Johnson cannot be nominated at Denver, he will throw his entire strength to Mr. Bryan and to no other candidate. If Mr. Bryan is nominated he will give him his most loyal support and no Democrat in the country is capable of rendering so much as will be Governor Johnson."

The foregoing statement, made to a Herald reporter today by W. E. McEwen, as coming from one who speaks with authority, shows up in their true light the clique of politicians who are fightin gtooth and nail to have Governor Johnson turned down in his own state. It is not a matter of principle, but of pique with them. They are not only anxious to have Bryan indorsed by the Minnesota Democrats, but they are seeking to administer a slap in the face to Minnesota's candidate for the Democratic nomination for the presidency because of their failure to dictate to him his policies and appointments in St. Louis county. It's a case of 'beat Johnson to show his friends here that we are the political kings of the county."

"I have talked with a number of Democrats who deplore the present scrap in the party," said Mr. McEwen, "and regret that the lines have been drawn between the friends of Governor Johnson and those of Mr. Bryan. Many of them asserted that they liked both men so well that it was hard to choose between them. A few of them intimated that they would like to see things shape themselves so that a delegation could go to Denver composed of true Democrats, who were friends of Johnson and of Bryan. They hold that the best interests of the party in this state demand a program of this character. A delegation of Johnson's friends, who are enemies of Bryan, is no more desirable than a delegation of Bryan's friends who are enemies of Johnson.

"I have all along believed that the governor is not in the proper light before most Democrats. Recently it has been made to appear that he has permitted himself to be clothed with the livery of the very interests against which he has been waging war since occupying the office of governor of the great state of Minnesota. Those of us who are close to him know something of his honest desire to serve the true interests of the people. It rather grinds us to hear him classed as a 'tool of the interests' by men who ought to weigh their words better."

The outcome of the caucuses tomorrow evening is not much in doubt. There seems to be little question but that Governor Johnson will be given the indorsement of his onw state, and that the various county conventions will be composed of men favorable to his cause. There are hundreds of good, staunch Bryan supporters in this county who will be found voting for Johnson delegates, because they believe that the governor is in sympathy with the progressive principles of the party, and that he is also entitled to the support of the party in the state of Minnesota. The center of the opposition to him is found in a coterie of politicians who have been sharpening their knives for him since the campaign of two years ago.

In an interview published in the Columbus Sun, Al G. Field selects Governor Johnson as the Moses to lead the Democratic party to the promised land of victory.

Mr. Field bases his choice of Governor Johnson on observations made in all parts of the country during his theatrical tours.

Following is the manner in which he sums up the situation:

"I am not a political prophet, but if Democrats are looking for a Moses they should turn their faces toward the Northwest and turn Mr. Johnson loose. The way I size up the situation is this: The party still loves Mr. Bryan, but would be more enthusiastic for a man who has not gone down in defeat and dragged his party with him.

"Johnson would get all of the Democratic states. Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, with their large Norwegian and Swedish population, would probably fall into the Democratic line, and let me tell you that old Republican stronghold, Iowa, would be a doubtful proposition with Johnson at the head of the Democratic ticket."

NO CHANGE IS LIKELY

Courthouse Commission Will Open Bids on the Date Set.

One Contractor Said to be Kicking About Time Limit.

The courthouse commission will hold a meeting tomorrow but it is not expected that the commissioners will take any action toward extending the time limit on the bids for the new courthouse, which expires May 12.

The commissioners claim that so far as they have been able to learn, there has been just one contractor who has been complaining about the shortness of the time for figuring on the plans and specifications. The commissioners do not believe that the complaint is general, and that anyway, experience has demonstrated in the past there are some contractors who would kick on the time limit were they given sixty days or six months to get in their figures.

That the architects are not to blame, if the time limit were set too close to the call for bids, is generally known, as the courthouse commission, not the architects, fixed the time for the opening of the bids.

There has been so much delay in the starting of the work on the new courthouse that the public, generally, wants to see things rushed along a little. The courthouse commission is composed of men who have had more or less experience in construction work, and the public seems satisfied to leave it to their judgment as to the proper time to open bids. There are plenty of contractors, it is said, who consider the time for figuring on the work ample, and who will have their bids here on time.

The county board will meet Wednesday, but it is hardly likely any action will be taken with reference to the new courthouse. There may be some discussion relative to the proposed issue of the certificates of indebtedness and the board will probably adjourn until May 11, when the bids will be opened for the wrecking of the buildings on the courthouse site.

The board, at its last meeting, authorized the calls for sealed proposals for $500,000 worth of certificates of indebtedness. The demand for the certificates was disappointingly small, and neither of the two bids submitted have been accepted.

The finance committee of the board will meet tomorrow to go over the grist of claims and accounts.

The Most Common Cause of Suffering

Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50-cent sizes. For sale by all druggists.

WOMAN STRUCK BY A BASEBALL

Mayor Issues Positive Orders Against Playing on Streets.

Mayor R. D. Haven has issued positive orders to the police that ball playing on the streets must be stopped. A woman was knocked down by a baseball on First street last evening, and a complaint was made to the city authorities. Her name was not secured. She was walking along the sidewalk when the ball, thrown wide of the man it was intended for, struck her behind the car, knocking her to the ground. She was not seriously injured.

"It is not our wish to impose any unnecessary hardship on the boys and young men of the city," said Mayor Haven this morning, "but if they are allowed to play at all they are very apt to become careless. Not only does this endanger pedestrians, but it makes it very easy to break windows along the streets, and causes much annoyance to drivers of rigs. If the youth of the city would only have been more careful in the past, it would not have been necessary to issue such strict orders."

DECISION IS RECEIVED

Text of Verdict in Famous Northern Pacific Land Case.

Many Settlers Affected by Outcome of Test Case.

A copy of the decision of the United States circuit court of appeals in the case of H. H. Hoyt against Frederick Werehaeuser and John A. Humbird, has been received in Duluth.

The substance of the decision was published in The Herald last week, but owing to the fact that probably hundreds of other cases depend upon this decision, a more complete synopsis will be of interest.

The court in its syllabus says:

"The rights to particular tracts of land within the place limits of a railroad grant like that to the Northern Pacific Railroad company, vests in the grantee upon the filing of the map of definite location of the railroad approved by the proper officer of the government.

"The right to particular tracts of indemnity land under such a grant vests in the company upon the approval by the secretary of the interior of the company's selection of them and neither this right nor the title thereunder relates back so as to divest the rights of prior entrymen or purchasers of the land under the general laws of the United States.

"Under the grants to the Northern Pacific Railroad company the secretary of the interior had no authority to withdraw or suspend from sale or entry, lands within the indemnity limits of the grants which had not been previously selected with his approval, to supply deficiencies within the place limits of the grant and such withdrawals and suspensions were ineffectual.

"Lands within the indemnity limits of these tracts were open to entry and sale under the general land laws of the United States until the secretary approved their selection by the grantee, although the lists of their selection had been duly filed with the land department.

"The jurisdiction and power of disposition of the public lands by the land department of the United States is not arbitrary, unlimited or discretionary, but it is subject to and must be exercised in accordance with the laws of the land, and any violation or disregard of them by the land department is remediable in the courts.

"Whenever the officers of the land department have been induced by erroneous views of the law, by fraud or by clear mistake of fact, to issue a patent to a wrong party, a court of equity, at the suit of the rightful claimant, may avoid the decision, charge the legal title under the patent with a trust in his favor and execute the trust.

"The land in question was within the indemnity limits under the grants to the Northern Pacific Railroad company and the secretary had withdrawn an suspended it from entry and sale. The company had filed its selection of this land but the secretary had not approved it. Thereupon Jones entered and paid for it under the timber and stone acts. Thereafter the secretary approved the railroad company's selection and issued a patent for the land to that company.

"It is held that the entire beneficial interest and the equitable right to the land vested in Jones upon his completion of his purchase, and railroad company and its successors in the interest held the title under the patent in trust for him and his grantees."

The articles filed in Madison provided for the capital stock of $100,000 and the building of a line from Sunrise Peet and from Foxboro to Superior. The line in length will be 129 miles, fifty of which will be in the state of Wisconsin. The incorporators are E. L. Peet, Grantsburg, Wis.; G. B. Haugan, Duluth; F. R. Duxbury, St. Paul; E. Lewis, Storm Lake, Minn.; and Edward Henry of Minneapolis.

SWEEPING CHANGES.

Advances in Many Classes of Freight Outlined by Railroads.

Milwaukee, May 5.—Awaiting only the final agreement and signatures of the higher executive officials of all the lines in the western trunk line association of eastern and western lines of railways, one of the most complete and sweeping advances in all classes of freight in twenty years has been prepared and carefully outlined by the traffic officials of these roads.

Under the recommendations that have been made by the latter officials, an advance of practically 10 per cent in every class of freight, from class No. 1 to class No. 6, inclusive, will be put into effect July 1 from all western points. The same advance will be made from eastern points to the West.

Members of the scale committee desire authority to make concessions or to declare a strike. The operators say the question is up to the miners.

BECK SAYS DISPATCH WAS VERY MISLEADING.

New York, May 5.—James M. Beck, who as counsel for H. H. Rogers and James Stillman filed their answer at Salt Lake yesterday in the Union Pacific merger suit, said today.

"The Associated Press dispatch from Salt Lake was distinctly misleading and at some points apparently malicious. The statement that either of my clients claimed damages by reason of the government's allegations in the merger suit is utterly ridiculous. Some stupid reporter must have mistaken the prayer for dismissal with costs, with which every lawyer in the country is familiar, as a claim for damages. The statements with reference to the purchase of Santa Fe stock which seemed to imply that either of my clients had purchased a majority of the Atchinson stock seems too absurd to warrant even a denial."

DAVIDSON WING SCORES OVER THE TAFT FACTION.

Montgomery, Ala., May 5.—By filing papers with Secretary of State Frank N. Julian yesterday, certifying the names of the nominees for state offices to be filled at the next general election in November, the Davidson wing of the Republican party scored over the Taft faction.

Under the state primary law its nominees will be the only ones on the state ticket, since the other faction failed to file its party emblem within the time required. The Davidson wing is opposed to the Roosevelt administration.

Miss Tracy came here two years ago from Minnesota Junction, Wis., where her mother and sister now live. She was 27 years of age. Her remains will be taken to her former home for burial.

Maidenly Musings.

(By Helen Rowland.)

A love affair is like a well, so easy to fall into, so difficult to crawl out of.

A man often thinks he will marry a girl, until he discovers that she thinks so, too.

Platonic friendship is like perpetual motion; a beautiful theory that nobody has ever been able to make work.

A husband's idea of taking things philosophically is going out to get a drink, while his wife explains to the landlord why the rent can't be paid.

When you stop to watch the spring dude, studying his new straw hat in a shop window, you cease to wonder why Narcissus fell into the pool while admiring his own beauty.

Before a woman marries a man, she thinks there is nobody on earth like him; afterward she hopes so.

Of course, a girl should not marry a man with vices; but then, are all of us to be old maids?

CHILDREN'S HATS.

Season Offers Great Variety For Little Ones.

Just as mamma says—simple or elaborate or no hat at all. Nine out of ten children go without hats during the summer, and they are the happiest. Sailor hats will strike the simple note. Vogue, reviewing the matter, says:

"Rough straw models in rolling brim sailor shapes are ideal for school wear; these require no other trimming than a scarf of plain or Roman striped silk, knotted at the side or in back, or simply a crown band of ribbon in staple colors.

"Sombreros of Mexican braid are equally serviceable, owing to their great durability, and at the same time they are an excellent profection from the rays of the sun. For the small lassie there are quaint little caps made of Tuscan, Milan and fine chip straw, with ribbon rosettes in any desired shade; these form a charming frame for a well-rounded face.

"The stiff hats with round crowns and wide brim area lso very attractive as well as serviceable. They are seen in blue, red, tan, brown, etc., and generally made of finely ribbed Milan, and trimmed in sailor style with silk cord, to which sometimes silk tassels or pompons, with quills, are added. The trimming of wide ribbon of supple texture is also greatly in favor.

"There is much that could be said about hats for dressier occasions. The shapes are unusually effective and of a singularly becoming type. The material employed is frequently Tuscan straw in the shape of flats (the regulation shape with medium-sized straight crown, and wide, floppy brim), fine novelties in lace straw, fine leghorn and Milan, in natural tones, cream or white, hemp and yedda, dyed in pretty shades.

"Linen braid is also a strong feature in the manufacture of hats. The trimming of these hats may be as simple or ornate as one desires, including the use of flowers, ribbons, lace and various net weaves, used separately, or some or all may be employed for the making of one model.

"Flowers—one of the main resources of children's millinery—are very profusely employed for the trimming, wreaths and garlands, or festoons of forget-me-nots, lilies of the valley and bluebells are in high favor, as are bunches and sprays of buttercups and daisies in natural colors, cowslips in the shape of wreaths and clusters, roses in sprays and garlands, poppies in several tones of scarlet, and cherries, ripe, black, yellow and green. Grasses in long, feathery strands are lovely in connection with dainty flowers and add a charming finishing touch to the complete hat.

"Some dress models are completely made of net—Brussels or filet—daintily shirred or tucked, and in most cases trimmed with rosettes and twists of ribbon, of which there is a great variety used."

Her Graduation Gown.

Is your daughter fair, slender and fluffy-haired? Then let her gown be white, if you like. Is she swarthy, short, and still in that stocky, unformed period through which many girls pass on their way to a superb figure in later womanhood? Then do not put her into white, which may make her appear unnecessarily thick-skinned, or sallow, mottled (if a crop of freckles be her portion), or unduly thick-chested, advises Harper's Bazar.

This year there are numbers of new-old materials—that is, revivals of weaves which were popular years ago—so that even the little hamlet shop is likely to have on its shelves something out of which is smart little graduation frock may be made. Cashmere, veiling, albatross cloth for the cooler climates; thin lawns, batistes, satin-corded dimities, China silks, thin and medium-weight linens, organdies, plain and sprigged—are among the up-to-date and easily obtainable weaves which are also inexpensive.

If your daughter be a healthy, muscular, athletic girl, with well-filled-out figure, she especially requires nothing fluffy or ruffled. These would broaden her figure and accentuate the rough traces of the wind in her cheeks. Select for her a linen, or veiling, or cashmere. They may be as fine as you can afford, but they will tone her down just a wee bit by the quiet folds or band trimming that such fabrics call for. Or cotton braid trimmings or hand embroidery, in the making of which she perhaps is capable of sharing will harmonize with such fabrics and dress.

Household Helps.

The keys of a piano may be cleaned by the use of a soft cloth dipped in alcohol and gently rubbed on the keys. A piano should also be left open occasionally to prevent the keys from turning yellow.

If baking soda is shaken thickly over a burn as soon as possible it will ease pain and prevent blistering. The burns should first be immersed in water, in which a little of the soda is dissolved, the water being as hot as can be borne.

Barley, if boiled in water until the consistency of cream, and used on the face, will remove sunburn and leave the skin soft and white.

An earthen cooking kettle is very useful during the warm weather season, when one wishes to do cooking or preserving on a gas or oil stove. A very little blaze on the bottom, and the draft of air keeping the side of the kettle cool, allows one to sit by and watch the jam without the necessity of constant stirring and standing over a hot range. For any stewed fruit one of these earthen vessels will be found very good, really preferable to those of thin agate and enamel, so generally used.

For egg sauce and custards, a double boiler, where the inner vessel is of white pottery, is much better than the thinner ones, as in those of enamel, as soon as the water comes to a boil, the egg substances thicken too rapidly.

NOT RIGHT BRAND.

Calumet Boy's Effort Ruled Against by Declamatory Board.

Calumet, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Principal Hall of the Calumet high school is advised that the state declamatory board has decided against Raymond Burt of this city and in favor of Miss Dorothy Kane of Menominee. Both recently participated in the upper peninsula declamatory contest at Houghton, when the judges decided in favor of the young man. Upon protest by Menominee the board declared his declamation, "The Deathbed of Benedict Arnold," was descriptive rather than oratorical in character.

Calumet will still represent the upper peninsula in the state oratorical contest by Mr. Bruns.

MAY NOT INSTRUCT.

But Connecticut Republicans Likely to Express Preference for Taft.

Hartford, Conn., May 5.—Michael Kenealy, chairman of the Republican state central committee, stated today that he believed the state convention which meets here this evening should express its preference for Secretary Taft without positive instructions and then direct its delegates to vote as a unit. He says he will support such a resolution in committee and in the convention. While Senators Bulkeley and Brandegee are believed to desire to go as delegates to the national convention, it is doubtful if either will be chosen. The probability is that National Committeeman Charles F. Brooker will be selected as one of the delegates-at-large.

DOG IS BUSINESS PARTNER.

Fox Terrier and Master Form Real Estate Company.

New York, May 5.—Partnership papers were recently issued to Frank Michel Weiler of Newark, N. J., by which he is declared an equal proprietor with his fox terrier. Tassels, in the real estate and incorporating business conducted under his name. Tassels is represented on the letterheads by the word "company." Weiler says he knows of no law that prevents a man from admitting a dog to partnership, and declares he is satisfied the way his associate conducts his end of the undertaking.

CLEVER VIOLINIST.

Oscar Loraine Has Entertaining Imitations of Famous Performers.

Ze grand Loraine, Oscar Loraine, ze great violinist, is at the Bijou this week with his "Strad," his hands and his imitations of some of the world's famous violinists. Loraine is a clever performer and deserving of a place on any bill. He is a headliner this week and the rest of the attractions are fully up to the standard.

Loraine gives imitations of Kubelik, Ole Bull and a number of other violinists of the present day, and some who are now dead. His playing is excellent.

Lillian Hale and company have a comedy sketch—with plenty of comedy—called "The Phantom Rival." Harry Pilcer, whom Hurtig & Seamon once starred, is on the job with a very eccentric dancing act.

The Delaceys, character singers; the Ehrendall brothers, acrobats; Isadore Silver and the moving pictures make up the rest of a very good bill.

THE BURLESQUERS.

Fay Foster Company Has Good Chorus and Wrestling Pictures.

The Fay Foster company in "Dress Parade" and "The Yankee Admiral," vaudeville and the original moving pictures of the Gotch-Hackenschmidt wrestling match combine to make a very pleasing entertainment at the Metropolitan this week.

Fay Foster's chorus is large, good looking and is given plenty of opportunities to display its talents. The comedians are not allowed to be on the stage most of the time. Musical numbers are given at every opportunity and the audiences are not slow to show their appreciation of them.

Harry L. Cooper, a German dialect comedian, who seems to be a combination of Max Rogers and Dave Lewis, is the leading comedian and he is assisted by Jack Trainor, a Yiddish funmaker with some parodies, which he sings during the action of "The Yankee admiral." This is a very good skit. "The Bogie Man" and "Senora" make big hits. Lena Lacouvier, who sings the last mentioned number, has a very good voice. Others in the burlesque are Will Cunningham, the Burtons and "The Great Carroll," a female impersonator.

Cunningham and Fowley open the olio with a lively talking act and the Burtons have one of the best musical acts of the season. They have worked up the "business" well and they tear off some good harmony. Carroll, Gloie Eller and Harry Cooper appear in a sketch.

Grace Cameron.

The Casino favorite, Grace Cameron, and a large company in C. Herbert Kerr's latest, biggest and best success, "Little Dollie Dimples," will be the attraction at the Lyceum tomorrow.

This dainty little star and her organization come with the stamp of approval of the larger cities.

UNCLE SAM MUST PAY INTEREST

Former Owners of Post-office Site Win Their Case.

St. Paul, May 5.—The United States must pay interest on the $17,500 awarded in condemnation proceedings of land in Duluth for the erection of a new postoffice, the United States circuit court of appeals says, in a decision handed down yesterday, holding that interest runs from the date of the award, June 12, 1907, until the amount of the appraisement is paid.

It was urged on behalf of the government that in the absence of a stipulation to pay interest, or a statute allowing interest, none could be recovered from the government upon unpaid claims. The court says, however, that landowners in condemnation proceedings are in a different position from parties prosecuting claims against the government. The judgment of the circuit court allowing interest at 6 per cent per annum is affirmed.

DEATH ENDS SUFFERING

Thomas W. Hyde of "Section Thirty" Fame Dies a Pauper.

Had Been Offered $80,000 for Share of Claim.

Thomas W. Hyde, one of the participants in the famous Section 30 lawsuit, died this morning at the St. Luke's hospital after a lingering illness of cancer of the face and mouth. Although it is said that he at one time was offered $80,000 for his share of the Section 30 claim, he filed a charge of the county.

He was a strange, silent man, seldom speaking of his affairs, or his past. By some it is believed that he had money, though he accepted the free care afforded him at the hospital by the county. When first afflicted by the disease, he went to a room at Mrs. MacCrae's, 2205 West Michigan street. His condition became so bad that at last she was obliged, after caring for him for several months, to turn him over to the county. He was known by a few friends in the city who had been acquainted with his people in the East before he came West. They wrote to them and received a letter in reply from his oldest son, who is now living in Winnipeg. In the letter the son wrote that his father, Thomas Hyde, had deserted his family of four little motherless children thirty-two years ago in New Hampshire, shortly after the death of his mother, who died at the birth of the fourth child. For thirty-two years they had received no word from him except through newspaper reports of the lawsuit in which he was connected.

MUST PAY ALIMONY.

Marriage of Divorcee in Less Than Year Not Good in Illinois.

Chicago, May 5.—Judge Ball of the superior court today decided that marriages made in Indiana within one year after a divorce in Illinois cannot be recognized by the laws of Illinois. The opinion was given on a petition filed by Richard Krueger. Krueger held that he was not obligated to pay alimony to his former wife because she had married another man within a year after being divorced in this state. The court held that he must continue to pay the alimony.

Washington, May 5.—Clark Griffith introduced the New York league baseball team to President Roosevelt today. The president told his visitors that Quentin kept the averages of all the leading ball players.

Good Position

Some days ago, under the head of "A Great Opportunity," I made the announcement that a young man who wanted to start in business in Duluth, "the Pittsburg of the West," would find an interest for sale and a position offered in a growing concern. Numerous answers were received, and as I was called away about the time of inserting the ad, there were a number that were not replied to. Money is not so much wanted as the right man. The money would be used to develop the business, but is useless without the right man with it. No better opportunity offers for a young man than this. Can soon show you. Address as before. O. L. AGITATION FOR A ROAD

Proposed Route to Hermantown Coming in for Attention.

Would Offer Chance for Street Car Line Over Hill.

The agitation for a new road from Duluth to Hermantown is now well under way. A petition for the improvement, to be presented to the council, is now being circulated, and already over 100 signatures have been secured. The matter will be brought to the attention of the city fathers within the next two or three weeks, and strong arguments will be put forward to bring about the construction of the thoroughfare.

It is planned to have the road start above Sixth street on Brewery creek, and follow the streets and avenues to the boulevard. At the point where the road strikes the boulevard the latter is high above the creek bed, and it will be necessary to dig a tunnel underneath. The city engineer's estimate of the cost of the improvement is $42,000.

The farmers north of town are particularly anxious that the road shall be constructed, for it would allow them an easy grade over the hill, and give them an opportunity to haul bigger loads out of the city. The city engineer has figured that the maximum grade for the entire distance will not be more than 7½ per cent.

This grade is low enough for the operation of a street car line along the route in question, and thus the street car people would be offered a suitable route to get a car line over the hill, when the proper time arrives. This will be one of the arguments advanced by backers of the petition.

It is claimed that if the road is built there is an excellent chance of getting the car line over the hill within the next year or two, for with the rapid settlement and development of the region north of Duluth, it is believed there would be sufficient business to warrant the construction of a car line. It would offer the many farmers over the hill a new method of reaching the city with their produce, for probably a freight car, or trailer to the regular passenger car would be provided for the purpose of transporting vegetables, milk, etc., where desired.

You'll admit its wonderful merits, else it couldn't keep the reputation for thirty years of America's most reliable and surest tonic and blood remedy—Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Ask your druggist.

No Injunction For Meagher.
Judge Cant has refused the petition of A. J. Meagher of Floodwood for a temporary injunction, restraining the trustees of School District No. 19 from issuing $15,000 bonds to build a new schoolhouse. Mr. Meagher alleged that the election held to vote on the bond question was conducted illegally.

Complaints are still coming into the health department regarding the smoke nuisance, and Health Commissioner Patton is working on a new smoke ordinance, which he hopes the council will see fit to adopt. The latest complaint is from the West end, and relates to a laundry in that part of the city. It is claimed the smoke from this building is very much of a nuisance.

It is claimed that a shooting affray occurred recently in Palm's house.

Land Company Alleges Trespass.
The Niles Land company has sued the Eastern Railway company of Minnesota for $1,300 damages for alleged trespass on the plaintiff's land in section 24, 58-20. MARINE NEWS

FIRST ORE CARGO GOES

Steamer John A. McGean Sails for Indiana Harbor.

Little Activity in the Harbor Until Ore Trade Opens.

The new steamer John A. McGean passed out through the Superior entry at 11:30 this morning with the first cargo of ore from the Head of the Lakes for the season of 1908. The McGean arrived in port Sunday and took on 7,200 tons of ore for Indiana Harbor yesterday.

Ore traffic will be very light this month. Probably 50,000 tons will be shipped, and the general trade will not open until well after June 1. The date rests with the meeting of the Lake Carriers' association next Tuesday at Cleveland.

Several cargoes of grain will be shipped this week, but after that, there will be very little trade for about two weeks. About 6,000,000 bushels were destined for early shipment from this port and that amount will be all taken out within a week or so. After that, until the ore trade, which is the backbone of the lake marine industry, starts up, there will be little activity in this port, except such as may be supplied by the package freighters and a few boats in the coal and lumber trade. There will be very few coal shipments, as with little prospect for return cargoes, the vessel owners are holding their boats in port.

The Grammer and the Edward N. Ohl, which have been loaded for about a week, waiting for sailing orders, are expected to clear this afternoon with grain. The steamer Brazil arrived early this morning light for grain and she will clear just as soon as loaded. The steamer Adelia will sail for Buffalo tonight or tomorrow, taking the first cargo of lumber down the lakes.

The steamer W. B. Kerr, which left Saturday with grain, is credited with taking the largest cargo ever shipped down the lakes. The Kerr, which is a vessel of 12,000 gross tons, took 233,000 bushels of wheat and 155,000 bushels of flax, being 6,000 bushels more than the cargo taken by the De Graff last season.

NOTICES TO MARINERS.

Hydrographic Office Reports Lights Changed and Fog Bell Established.

Lake Michigan—Referring to Notice to Marines No. 13 of 1908, further notice is given that on April 10 the lights formerly exhibited on the east pier at Cedar river, western side of Green bay, Lake Michigan, were changed in position, as follows:

Cedar river light—This fourth order fixed white light and the structure from which it is shown was moved to and established on the shore on the western side of the entrance, about 1,840 feet N. 31 degs. W. true (nnw. ⅝ W. westerly mag.) from its present site, without change in characteristic. Approximate position: Latitude, 45 degs. 24 min. 37 sec. N.; longitude, 87 degs. 21 min. 11 sec. W.

Cedar river range lights—These fixed red lights were moved to and established on the west pier near its outer end, without change in the height or characteristics of either light. The lights are now shown from two white posts, 150 feet apart, and the bearing of the range line is N. 19 degs. 30 min. W., true (N. by W. ⅝ W. mag.).

About April 25 a fog bell, to be struck by machinery during thick or foggy weather a single blow every fifteen seconds, was established at Two Rivers light station, located on the outer end of the northern pier at the entrance to East Twin river and the harbor of Two Rivers, western side of Lake Michigan. Approximate position: Latitude, 44 degs. .68 min. 40 sec. N.; longitude .87 degs. 33 min. 37 sec. W.

Capt. Paul Gutch of the steamer City of Rome reports through the branch hydrographic office at Chicago that his vessel struck on a sand bar with about nineteen feet of water over it, located four and one-half miles N. 47 deg. E. true (ne. mag.) from the stacks of the Inland Steel company at Indiana harbor. Approximate position: Latitude, 41 degs. 42 min. 10 sec. N., longitude, 87 degs. 23 min. .08 sec. W.

LIVINGSTONE SAYS JUNE 1.

Presiddent of Lake Carriers Says Earlier Date Not to be Considered.

Detroit, May 5.—There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the Lake Carriers in Cleveland Wednesday for the consideration of "any matters that may come up." The date for the general start of the lake fleet will probably be fixed at the meeting of the vessel owners in Cleveland, May 12. Regarding the start President Livingstone says:

"The earliest date that should be considered at all is June 1."

It will not be surprising if fitting out begins at that time, and the start will be pushed farther along.

TWO-YEAR CONTRACTS.

Ore Handlers Sign With Dock Managers Under "Open Shop" Plan.

Cleveland, May 5.—Some of the ore handlers at the Lake Erie ports have made contracts with the dock managers for the next two years, under the open shop plan. Their wages will be the same as last year with no important changes in conditions. Others among the men have refused to sign individual contracts.

RETURNS TO LAKES.

Steamer Georgetown in Pulpwood and Coal Trade This Year.

Buffalo, May 5.—Dullness characterized the lake carrying yesterday, only a few charters being made. Loading is less active than usual. Yesterday's contracts were: W. D. Morley, Superior, 30; Georgetown, American Soo; Frank L. Vance, Lewiston, Chicago, 40. No charters have yet been made by the Erie.

The steamer Georgetown, chartered for lake cargo, was built in Buffalo eight years ago, going immediately to the coast, where she was in service until last fall; when she was brought here to winter. She will be put in the pulpwood and coal trade.

Brazil Grounds in Harbor.

The steamer Brazil, which arrived light for grain shortly after midnight this morning, ran out of the channel near the Peavey elevator and grounded heavily. She was unable to free herself and the tugs Record and Inman were set at work, floating her after six hours' work. The Brazil was not damaged and is loading grain at the Peavey elevator.

REPAIRS TO AMERICA.

Booth Line Steamer is Laid Up for One Trip.

The Booth line steamer C. W. Moore returned yesterday afternoon from Houghton, Hancock and other south shore points, after her first trip on that route. The America returned early this morning from Port Arthur and was laid up for one trip, the Moore leaving this morning on the north shore run.

Repairs will be made on the hull of the America, the necessity for them being discovered after she had gone into commission. She will probably return to her run Sunday, making a regular trip to Port Arthur. Monday the Moore will make her second trop to south shore points. The Easton is being fitted out and will go into commission the latter part of the month. Until all three boats are running, no attempt will be made to follow a regular schedule closely.

Gopher Fitting Out.

Work on the fitting out of the Gopher, the training ship of the Minnesota Naval Reserves, began yesterday. The stack was painted and today the spars were taken down and given a coat of paint. Spick and span, in bright new dress, the Gopher will be ready for a cruise in about two weeks. She is lying at the Second avenue west slip.

Ontonagon Harbor Channel.

Maj. Graham D. Fitch, United States engineer for this district, announces that the new hydrographic survey of Ontonagon harbor shows that the entrance is perfectly safe for vessels drawing not over thirteen feet of water, from the bar at the mouth of the river, on the east side, but is not safe at the lumber dock across the river, for vessels drawing more than nine feet. Vessels entering Ontonagon harbor should keep a course about fifty feet west of the east government pier for a distance of about 500 feet inwards, when they can turn and go to the merchandise dock with safety.

Few Charters Made.

Cleveland, May 5.—The freight market is as dull as ever and there is no improvement in sight. Only the boats that have to go out are starting.

SAW THE SAILORS.

Duluth Man Writes of Reception Given Sailors at Los Angeles.

Douglas Wilson, formerly in charge of a department in the Blake & Waite company of Duluth, and his mother, Mrs. E. L. Wilson, who left here recently for Southern California in the hope the change of climate would benefit Mrs. Wilson, have reached their destination and are pleasantly located on Orange avenue, Pasadena, a suburb of Los Angeles. They reached Los Angeles just in time to witness the celebration in honor of the fleet, and greatly enjoyed the spectacle.

Writing to a friend in Duluth, telling of the magnificent decorations in honor of the sea dogs, and the enthusiasm the event inspired, Mr. Wilson says: "The people here certainly went crazy over the sailors and outdid themselves to show them a good time. I did my level best to get aboard and lok over one of the ships, but was sadly disappointed. Mr. Baird, late of Duluth, and I got to Redonda beach at 9 a. m. Friday, and at that time I believe, without exaggeration, there were 3,000 people lined up for tickets to the boat. Some did not get in line there, but took a car and went down to Venice, and there was a repetition of former experiences, so we did not make any further efforts, as it would have been useless. We are now settled in a nice little cottage here in Pasadena and enjoying the beautiful flowers and nature in all its glory. The weather is beautiful, quite warm during the day, but not uncomfortably so."

HEIR TO MILLIONS FOUND.

Kept for Years on Sea and Unconscious From Drink.

Los Angles, Cal., May 5.—Stranger than any page in fiction is the story of Joel Kinney, one of four heirs to an estate valued at $12,000,000 which was left by his father, Francis Sherwood Kinney, who recently died in New York.

For fifteen years young Kinney had been missing. Since the death of his father he turned up in Los Angeles. He is a nephew of Abbot Kinney, the millionaire, of this city.

Lawyers from New York have been in Los Angeles looking for the young man, but for reasons that involve several prominent men of Los Angeles the missing heir is still in this city in company with E. R. Mills, a local detective.

E. C. M. Rand of the district attorney's office in New York, who was here for ten days, declares he was swindled out of $500 by two prominent Los Angeles men during his search for Kinney.

Fifteen years ago the father and son disagreed and the son was sent on a journey around the world on a specially chartered sailing vessel. On that cruise, it is said, young Kinney was a prisoner and for years was kept in a semi-conscious condition by the use of alcoholic stimulants until he nearly lost his reason.

When Francis Sherwood Kinney died the other heirs began a search and Rand arrived in this city April 19 last.

"I was approched by two well-known men in Los Angles shortly after my arrival here," said Mr. Rand, "and they agreed to deliver Mr. Kinney to me for $500. I paid. After assuring myself that I had at last found the right man the two Los Angeles men said they were taking Mr. Kinney around to the bank on some important business and that all three would return in a few minutes and lunch with me. That was the last I saw of the missing heir."

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

FARGO WILL OFFER SITE

North Dakota City is Going After That Wergland Monument.

Claim Abercrombie is Too Small Place for Famed Statue.

Fargo, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo may secure the Wergland monument as a result of the new phase of the donation of the statute to the Norsemen of this country by the people of Norway. The idea to secure the monument for this country was conceived by Dr. H. O. Fjelde of Abercrombie, who organized an association to raise funds for it. Everything was in readiness and the monument shipped for presentation to the people in this country at Minneapolis May 17 by Bishop Bang, primate of the Norwegian church and its erection later at Abercrombie, N. D. The donors, however, imposed a condition that the monument be erected in some place where it could be seen by as many Norsemen as possible. Abercrombie is a small place and a movement has been started to have the monument erected here. The city council will offer a site in the park and the North Dakota Agricultural college will donate one in the campus.

If this plan goes through the Norwegian organizations of Fargo will unite with the people of Abercrombie to secure another monument of some nature for the park at Abercrombie.

Dr. H. O. Feldje, the originator of the monument plan, has not been heard from on the proposition. His indorsement of the plan to transfer the monument here would insure its success. After his efforts, however, he may feel that he wants it retained at Abercrombie, even if the town is a small one.

GREAT NORTHERN WILL TEST LAW

Constitutionality of Reciprocal Demurrage Issue in Grant County.

Herman, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a case pending in the district court of this (Grant) county involving the constitutionality of the reciprocal demurrage law passed by the last legislature.

Not long ago B. E. Corey & Co. of Herman commenced an action against the Great Northern Railway company to recover $131, as demurrage charges, for failure to supply and furnish cars, as provided by chapter 23 of the general laws. The railroad company refused to pay.

The plaintiff is engaged in buying and shipping hay, and last October had large quantities of hay ready to be shipped to the Twin Cities. He made several applications for cars, but the defendant company failed to provide them within the time allowed by the demurrage law. The plaintiff, therefore, started an action to recover the penalty, which is $1 a day for each car failed to be furnished. There is little or no dispute about the facts, and the case will be fought upon questions of law.

The railroad company says, in its answer, that it is engaged in interstate transportation, and operates its entire system as a whole; that it cannot make any fixed or arbitrary division and apportionment of its cars between the several parts or points of its system, but must distribute them fairly and discriminatingly and according to the demands of traffic in each state.

It also says that to comply with the demurrage law as to interstate business would operate as a discrimination against persons desiring cars for the shipment of commodities and property in interstate commerce.

DISCUSS TOURNAMENT PLANS.

Gathering in Marquette in August Promises to be Big Affair.

Marquette, Mich, May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The executive committee of the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association, including President Mason of L'Anse, First Vice President McDonald of Lake Linden, Second Vice President Mitchell of Hubbell, Treasurer Murray of Michigamme and Secretary Flynn of Negaunee, have met in Marquette and disposed of various matters connected with the annual tournament, which is to be held in Marquette this year.

Mayor John Robertson met with the firemen's committee and assured its members that the association would be warmly welcomed here and that everything would be done to make its meeting enjoyable. Tournament matters were also discussed with T. J. Maney, chief of the Marquette department, and other Marquette firemen.

The dates decided on for the tournament are August 5, 6 and 7. These dates are about two weeks earlier than it has been customary to hold the event. Bad weather has been encountered later in August by the association and it is judged advisable to make the dates for 1908 a little earlier than usual.

Very Effective For Kidneys and Bladder

The function of the kidneys is to filter and strain the impurities from the blood, and these pass from the system in the form of urine. Pains in the urinary region and the small of the back indicate that the kidneys are sick and need treatment. Neglecting such symptoms, brings rheumatism, diabetes, dropsy and heart trouble while a simple home treatment will restore and keep the kidneys in line working order. Being a mild, balmy healing tonic, old and young can use with perfect safety. One-half ounce fluid ext. Buchu; compound fluid Balmwort, one ounce; compound syrup Sarsaparilla, two ounces, mix in a bottle. Take a teaspoonful before each meal. At night take another dose, drinking plenty of water. A treatment that mothers can give to children for the cure of bed-wetting and acid urine. The dose for children is one-fourth to one teaspoonful three times daily.

RAGTIME TO DOXOLOGY.

Odd Change in Ownership and Use of a Pipe Organ.

Houghton, Mich., May 5.—Once with ragtime melody regaling the habitues of a barroom, sacred music in a house of worship is hereafter to be the mission of a big and costly pipe organ which has passed into new hands in the Copper country. Bought four years ago from the manufacturers, until last year the instrument was an especial attraction at the Board of Trade saloon and palm garden here, then the finest and most elaborate resort of its kind north of Milwaukee. Out of commission since then, following a transfer of control, the organ has now been sold to the Grace M. E. church, and its new environment hymns will henceforth peal forth from its pipes in place of the popular selections which long made up its repertoire.

SKATER SOON STARTS.

Stanach Steamer About Ready for Ashland-Bayfield Run.

Ashland, Wis., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Skater is practically fitted out now for the season's run, and is in better shape than ever. Manager Tarbox has his crew together and everything almost in readiness, and it is thought that it will start on its regular runs to Madeline and Bayfield about May 24. The Skater is a staunch little craft and Ashland people realize the fact that they have a jewel in this ferry business to the island and Bayfield, consequently the patronage this year is expected to be as large or even larger this year than it ever was before.

TAX SALE IS OFF.

Keweenaw Delinquent Property Was Not Properly Advertised.

Eagle River, Mich., May 5.—The annual tax sale of lands was not held here today as expected. No decree for this sale was rendered at the January term of court. It is said that the sale had not been properly advertised, as called for by the statutes. Notices announcing the sale were posted, but this is not considered sufficient. The law states that if a paper is published in the county these sales must be advertised in that paper. This law was not followed this year in Keweenaw county, so no decree was rendered authorizing the sale. The decision of the judge of the circuit court is now up before the supreme court of the state and the officers of Keweenaw county are awaiting a decision from that tribunal.

ELECTION TO BE HELD.

Dunn County Must Let People Vote on Removal Question.

Bismarck, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Winchester has issued a writ of mandamus compelling the commissioners of Dunn county to call a special election for the purpose of voting on whether or not the courthouse of Dunn county, now located at Manning, shall be removed to Connolly.

On the organization of the county a short time ago, Governor Burke selected Manning as the temporary location for the county seat. Manning is in the extreme western part of the county, and the approaches to the town are very broken and ruged. It was the wish of many of the people of the county, it seems, to have the courthouse removed to Connolly, which is much more centrally located. This move, however, was frowned upon by quite a few. The people who wished the change of location circulated a petition, which was addressed to the commissioners, and secured over 300 signatures. The commissioners, however, refused to pay any attention to the petition, which asked that they call an election to leave the question to a vote of the people. They claimed that the law providing for such an election was unconstitutional.

Judge Winchester held that the law was constitutional and that the petition was signed by one-third of the voters of Dunn county, and therefore issued the writ. So the election will be held within sixty days, and probably the county seat of justice will be moved.

DISGRACE KILLS HIM.

Father of Boy, Sent to Reformatory, Takes His Life at Ashland.

Ashland, Wis., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Despondent because of the disgrace brought upon him by the actions of his son, a 22-year-old, who was sentenced to the Green Bay reformatory a few days ago for stealing brass, is believed to have prompted Charley Jones, a colored bootblack, aged 4- who had lived here twenty years : nd was widely known, to jump off the ore dock, over a hundred feet high, here, yesterday, receiving injuries which proved fatal last evening. Jones struck a timber as he fell and bounced off into the water, but was unconscious as he was picked up and taken to the hospital.

His back was broken and there was no hope for him.

Goodale of the Twelfth judicial district died here yesterday after a lingering illness, death being indirectly due to injuries received during the Civil war. The deceased resided at Detroit for many years, coming to Houghton at each term of court. Five years ago he moved here. He was 64 years of age and is survived by his wife, a son and a daughter.

Robert Forbes, Minneapolis; Rev. J. D. Hingely, Minneapolis; Dr. Clemans of Duluth, J. F. Ulland of Fergus Falls, Minn.; W. J. Dean of Minneapolis and P. H. SCORES SCHOOL DANCES.

Eau Claire Minister Raps Them as Well as Parents of Attendants.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 5.—The Rev. Edward Babcock, pastor of the First Baptist church, in a prelude to his sermon Sunday, protested against dances conducted in the name of the high school, protesting on behalf of the pupils whose time and energies were taken up; on behalf of the churches; on behalf of parents, who were aggrieved thereby, and from the standpoint of morality, declaring the public dance as a general rule was immoral. He criticised the parents who encouraged or permitted public dances.

SUICIDE PACT FRUSTRATED.

Arrival of Neighbor Prevents Man Killing His Wife First.

Cooperstown, N. D., May 5.—Lewis Brekke, a farmer living near Walum, shot himself in the forehead and will die. His wife says that she and her husband entered into a compact to kill their two children and themselves.

They were prepared to carry out the deed, but their plans were frustrated by a neighbor who happened to call, and Brekke only shot himself. No cause is known for the compact.

OFFERS UNMATED GLOVES.

This Discrepency Proves Undoing of John McGregor.

Warren, Minn., May 5.—John McGregor of Montreal has been bound over to the grand jury charged with burglarizing the Sands mercantile store at Alvarado, Minn. McGregor stole a quantity of gloves and was selling them to citizens around Alvarado. They did not seem to be mates and it gave rise to suspicion. Upon investigation the mates were found in the store.

MISSING PEDDLER'S BODY IS FOUND IN RIVER.

Cooperstown, N. D., May 5.—The body of a peddler was found in the Sheyenne river about fifteen miles north of Cooperstown. The peddler passed a near-by farm about a month ago on his way, as he said to Sharon, to get a consignment of goods. No name was found by which to identify the man. He appeared to be only 18 or 20 years of age and had about $50 on his person. It is supposed that he tried to cross the river and broke through the ice.

SCHOOLMARM IS SUED FOR WHIPPING PUPIL.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 5.—Miss Nellie Bates, teacher at Fern, is being sued by John Moore for whipping his son. The case will be tried before Justice Thompson at Fern.

Moore claims that the teacher whipped his son too severely, while Miss Bates says that she had to whip him in self-defense.

The boy had been in trouble with the teacher before and had been readmitted on the promise of good behavior, but obliged to whip the pupil severely, and Moore thereupon began action against her.

DEER RIVER DANCE.

Deer River, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tonight the baseball boys will give a dance to raise funds for the improvement of their new ball grounds. Work has been progressing all week on the ground, and if enough help can be realized from the dance the ground will be put in excellent shape next week.

POOR MAIL SERVICE.

Onamia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is much complaint over the wretched mail service in the lake country at present. It takes a letter three days to go from Onamia to Milaca, a distance of twenty-five miles. To get a letter from Onamia to Vineland it takes nearly a week to go about eleven miles. Mail routes were maintained between these points for years, when the roads were much worse than now and there was not nearly so much mail to carry, but they are both discontinued at present.

Here's a Duluth case:

Mrs. C. M. Bradley, dressmaker, of 109 First street, Duluth, Minn., says: "Since giving a testimonial for publication some six years ago, which has appeared at intervals in our Duluta papers, and in which I told of the gratifying benefit I obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, my faith in this remedy has only increased. We Spent $32,400

To Give You Each a Can of Van Camp's

Three weeks ago—in this paper and others—we offered to buy you each a can of Van Camp's. That offer, in one day, cost $32,400. Do you know any other beans good enough to stand a test like that?

Again and again we told you that Van Camp's beans are best. And we told you why.

But the beans themselves, when we gave you a can, surprised you—did they not?

Aren't these beans delicious?

Do you wonder we took so much space in this paper, in an effort to get you to try them?

Perhaps the first thing you said was, "These are not like our home-baked beans."

It is true; they are not.

But it isn't your fault. It's your lack of facilities.

We bake in live steam, while you must use dry heat.

We can bake our beans until they are mealy, yet they are nutty because they are whole.

That can't be done in a home oven.

Your top beans are crisped; the balance are only half-baked. They are mushy because they are broken.

You have learned now how much better beans are when they are nutty, mealy and whole.

Then you noted, perhaps, our delicious blend.

That comes from baking the beans, the tomato sauce and the pork all together.

You noted, too, that our beans are not heavy. They don't ferment and form gas.

That's because we have made them digestible.

We bake them in ovens heated to 245 degrees. That's more than twice the heat that gets to the center of your baking dish.

That heat is essential. It separates the particles so the digestive juices can get to them.

Beans, to be digestible, must be factory cooked.

Please remember these differences.

Don't go back to home baking. Think of the fuel it takes, the time and the bother.

We have shown you how we bake beans, after 47 years of experience.

We have brought them to you, fresh and savory, just as they came from our ovens.

Each can in your pantry, when heated, means a delicious meal, ready cooked.

For all of the future, let us cook for you.

Van Camp's PORK AND BEANS

BAKED WITH TOMATO SAUCE

If you think that other beans are as good as Van Camp's, please serve them with ours and see. Let your people decide. Then get the brand which they like best. We are willing to leave it to them.

There's a very wide difference between other brands and Van Camp's. And it isn't due alone to our process.

We pay $2.10 per bushel to get the right beans, though beans are sold as low as 30 cents.

But ours are Michigan beans—from a soil rich in nitrogen.

Ours are picked out by hand from the choicest part of the crop. We get only the whitest, the plumpest, the fullest-grown.

All beans of one size—you saw that.

We spend five times as much to make our tomato sauce as other sauce costs ready-made.

But much sauce is made from tomatoes picked green and ripened in shipment. Much is made of scraps from a canning factory.

Such sauce is not rich, not savory.

Ours is made from whole, ripe tomatoes, ripened on the vines. They are picked when the juice fairly sparkles.

That superlative zest which you found in Van Camp's is Nature's own flavor.

Beans are Nature's choicest food, when they are rightly baked. They are 23% nitrogenous—84% nutriment.

At a fraction of the cost, you get in good beans all the nutrition of meat.

They should be a daily dish, not an occasional.

They are delicious for breakfast, served in the form of croquettes with ham.

An ideal luncheon—a fine salad for dinner.

It pays to serve the best beans, for the best are cheap enough.

Your people will eat more of them, and the saving will show in your meat bills.

Beans are appetizing and hearty; all people like them. And they are easy to serve. These meals are always ready.

Those are some of the reasons why—for your own good—you should always insist on Van Camp's.

MAKE IN STRONG.

There is not the slightest doubt that Governor Johnson is going to have the support of the Democratic party of his home state in his candidacy for the nomination for president.

That much is assured. The only question is whether that indorsement is to be one worth having, one that fits the great service he has performed for his party and his state and the splendid fame he has won for himself and his commonwealth, or whether it is to be marred and qualified by the combined efforts of disgruntled and disappointed seekers for power and place in the Democratic ranks, and balked and defeated machine politicians and machine newspapers in the Republican party.

As The Herald has repeatedly stated, there should not have been a single voice raised in opposition to Governor Johnson's indorsement within the ranks of the Democratic party. It was to be expected that partisan Republican newspapers, which have undergone the humiliation of defeat at his hands, would take advantage of the opportunity to stab him in the back in the hope that they could bring about his defeat. They knew that if they could do this, they would have ample revenge for his victories over their candidates for governor, and they hoped that they might even remove him from the pathway of Republican success, thus enabling them to win with almost any kind of candidate the "interests" saw fit to put up. But it was not to be expected that they should have, in this bitterly partisan bushwhacking warfare, the aid of members of the Democratic party.

The indorsement given to Governor Johnson by the voters at the caucuses tomorrow night should be great enough and unanimous enough and emphatic enough to accord with his services to his party and his state.

There shouldn't be any half-way business about it. The Herald is sure that every Minnesotan who appreciates what Governor Johnson has done for his state and his party will take positive and enthusiastic pleasure in getting out to the caucuses tomorrow night and voting for Johnson delegates to the county conventions. The opposition to this indorsement is unworthy and selfish; the proper thing to do is to bury that opposition by an avalanche of affirmative votes, covering it up in the insignificance to which its envy and bitterness condemns it.

The polls are open in the country from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. and in the cities and villages from 7:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. During those hours every Democrat should attend the caucus in his precinct, and see that he casts a vote for the Johnson delegates. Minnesota should not be contented with a bare victory over the opponents of Governor Johnson; it should MAKE IT STRONG in every precinct, in every county convention, and in the coming state convention.

Go to the caucus in your precinct tomorrow night. See that your friends and neighbors go, too. See that they vote for Johnson delegates.

MAKE IT STRONG, that this tribute from the people may accord with the honor that Governor Johnson has brought to his native state by his untainted Democracy, his loyal devotion to the cause of the plain people, and his steadfast and courageous service to his state and his country.

REASONS FOR REPUBLICAN INTEREST.

A Washington dispatch to The Herald last night said that President Roosevelt, in his capacity of Republican partisan leader, views with much apprehension the spread of Johnson sentiment in Democratic ranks. Similar apprehension is shown by the action of partisan Republican newspapers in trying to influence local primaries in favor of Mr. Bryan.

There are reasons for this feeling of alarm. Republican victory this year cannot be taken for granted. While probably the renomination of Roosevelt by the Republicans would spell certain Republican victory, there is little enthusiasm for Roosevet's chosen heir-apparent. Taft's "boom" has been fostered largely by federal officeholders, and a very alarming apathy regarding him is evident in Republican ranks.

While Taft's nomination now seems to be assured, his victory at the polls is another matter. The depression folowing last fall's panic is still evident, though in a lesser degree, and business depression is always bad for the party in power. Taft will have certain trouble with the labor vote during the campaign, for his decisions as a judge in labor injunction cases will rise to plague him. The attitude of the administration toward the colored troops of Brownsville is another fertile source of trouble, and the negro vote, in many doubtful states like Ohio and Indiana, is much to be reckoned with. Last but not least the reactionary attitude of the Republican congress will dangerously hamper the party cause.

It is easy to see why partisan Repubicans should have a deep interest in the choice of the Democratic party.

THE SUN IS RIGHT.

It is a very unusual pleasure, and therefore a peculiarly attractive one, for The Herald to find itself in agreement with the New York Sun.

Though it hates President Roosevelt, and opposes him for the very reasons for which The Herald has always praised him, the Sun says that congress did grievous wrong when it received his last message with contempt and sought to humiliate him by the manner of its reception.

Says the Sun: "In speaking of this unparalleled treatment of a presidential message as scandalous, the Sun means all that the word scandalous implies. There is no excuse for the unpleasant incident. Mr. Roosevelt's teachings may have become a bore to both senators and representatives, but he is president, and he is doing his constitutional duty as he understands it. Fidelity to his oath requires him to submit to the congress information 'from time to time,' and his own judgment must determine the frequency of the intervals. His oath requires that the information shall be 'of the state of the Union,' but if Mr. Roosevelt interprets this to mean information of the state of his own mind there is no constitutional remedy. Congress, too, must do its duty and listen patiently and respectfully, with whatever fatigue. That senators and representatives are aweary of Mr. Roosevelt's exhortations is no reason why they should combine to boycott him. Any such manifestation of impatience and displeasure goes beyond Mr. Roosevelt the individual and injuries the dignity and prestige of the great office he holds."

Congress, in all its arrogant defiance of the people, in all its petty and unworthy hatred of the president because of his presumption in informing it of its duty, has done nothing more mischievous than this. When the message reached the senate it was received with as little ceremony as a petition from the people might have had. In the house the messenger was kept waiting four hours, and when the message finally came Speaker Cannon referred it to the judiciary committee, which is a legislative morgue. When Representative John Sharp Williams, the minority leader, protested and pointed out that it ought to be referred to the committee of the whole and there distributed to the several committees upon matters dealt with by the message, the speaker refused to alter his order, and added, contemptuously, "We get a message from the president on some subject or other nearly every day."

These embittered and jealous statesmen may think that in venting their spite upon President Roosevelt they are affronting and injuring only Roosevelt the individual. They are not; they are insulting the presidency itself, and therefore they are insulting the nation and the people.

The reason for this bitterness is that the Republican majority in congress has made up its mind not to do certain things that the people want, and the president, designing quite as much to awaken the people to what is going on in congress as to remind congress of its duty, has reiterated his demands until the refusal to act, though still adhered to, has become vexatious and embarrassing.

THE CITY'S MILK SUPPLY.

Health Commissioner Patton and the city council are putting their heads together to think out a p'an to improve the system of regulating Duluth's milk supply, and they could not be engaged in better or more important work.

Milk is a peculiar commodity. When clean, fresh and wholesome, it is excellent food, in whatever form it may be purveyed.

But it has a most unhappy faculty of attracting dirt and disease germs if it is given the chance, and when it is infected with uncleanness and bacteria it becomes a very dangerous substance.

Safety lies only in the most thorough regulations, rigidly enforced. The city ordinances governing this subject cannot be too strong, nor can they be too vigilantly enforced. The temptation to carelessness and adulteration is so strong that nothing but the most consant vigilance will protect the milk consumers of a city.

While clean, fresh and wholesome milk breeds strength and health, unclean and infected milk breeds disease and death. Milk, unless all of the processes of its production are carefully guarded, spreads typhoid fever, tuberculosis and other dangerous ills. There is peril in every step of the process unless the utmost care is taken, and this can only be brought about by regulation of the most exacting type.

THE SINGLE TAX IN OREGON.

Quietly, here and there, we are doing a good deal of very valuable experimentation in this country. Oregon has adopted the initiative and referendum; Oklahoma has it in her constitution; Michigan, in its recent constitutional revision, adopted an abridged form of it.

Oregon, too, as a result of its adoption of the initiative and referendum—it would not have been considered for many years otherwise—is likely to make an experiment with the single tax idea, to which Henry George devoted the most useful years of his life, and which has thousands of adherents all over the country. June 1 the people of Oregon will vote on a number of laws and constitutional amendments, and among the latter is one to this effect:

> That all dwelling houses, barns, sheds, outhouses and all other appurtenances thereof; all machinery and buildings used exclusively for manufacturing purposes, and the appurtenances thereof; all fences, farm machinery and appliances used as such; all fruit trees, vines, shrubs and all other improvements on farms; all livestock; all household furniture in use, and all tools owned by workmen and in use, shall be exempt from taxation.

The single tax theory is that the land should bear all taxes; that to tax the fruits of industry or the tools of industry is to penalize progress and to put a premium upon sloth. The single taxer points out that where two men own adjoining vacant lots, of similar value, they pay the same taxes; but when one of them improves his lot by putting up a residence or a store, while the other leaves his lot idle, the only one who has added wealth to his community and has made his neighbor's lot more valuable thereby pays more taxes, while the man who holds on to his lot and lets the industry of others increase its value pays very little if any more taxes. The single taxer believes that industry in all its forms makes the value of land, and that the land should be taxed and not the wealth it produces, when joined with industry. Unproductive lands, under the present system of taxation, are taxed very lightly; under the single tax system they would be made to bear a larger share of the burden of public expense, and would thereby, it is believed, be driven into use.

It is an interesting theory, at any rate, and there have thus far been very few convincing attacks upon it.

If the people of Oregon adopt the proposed change in their system of taxation, the United States will have a chance to see how the single tax theory works, because the proposed amendment is practically the single tax idea. Under it all farm improvements, all factory buildings and machinery, all household goods and workmen's tools, will be absolutely exempt from taxation. The land on which these improvements stand, and the land that has not yet been improved, will stand most of the burden of taxation. Practically the only taxes except upon lands will be those upon railroads and mercantile establishments.

Thus far, the single tax theory is but a theory; the only way to prove it is to try it. If the people of Oregon adopt the proposed amendment, the country will be able to look on at a demonstration that should either prove its worth or expose its fallacy.

Atlas had to carry the earth, but he was in luck at that. He did not have to wear a merry widow hat.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"There is nothing in the line of weather that quite compare with spring in the South," said Charles W. Edwards of Washington, D. C., who is at the Spalding.

"When I left Washington everything was in full bloom. I think Washington has the most delightful spring climate that can be found in the world. The warm, balmy air comes up from the South, and to spend a week in Washington in April or May would make a poet out of the worst cloth that ever lived.

"I am not much of a booster on Washington's summer climate. It gets hot enough to bake potatoes on the pavements there in July, but Washington in April or May is something to rave about."

"The little towns along the northern shore of Lake Ontario are becoming the fashionable summer resorts of the people of Northern New York and Pennsylvania," said H. W. McMillan of Rochester, N. Y., who is at the St. Louis last evening.

"There are some delightfully, quaint old towns along the north shore of Lake Ontario. That is one of the richest agricultural districts of Canada, and is settled with wealthy farmers, who have lived there for years. The towns are peopled with retired farmers, and are quaint, old fashioned little communities, where the citizens take life easy and enjoy themselves.

"The American visitors were not slow to recognize the charm of the little towns and all along the north shore of the lake, from Toronto eastward, you will find little settlements of wealthy Americans, who have gone over there and built magnificent summer homes. There is a colony of Pittsburg people near the town of Coburg. Some of them have built palatial summer residences costing from $500,000 to $1,000,000 or more. You can imagine the effect of such a display of vulgar wealth on the little towns of this type. It has destroyed their charm to a great extent."

"And while you are talking of summer resorts, I don't believe you Duluth people appreciate the full beauties of your location here. I have made Duluth in the summer on several occasions, and I know the Northern Minnesota climate. I think you have the greatest natural playgrounds up in the northern part of the state, of any section of this country. Those little lakes scattered all through these northern counties would make ideal summer resorts, and if the beauties of this country were properly exploited there is no reason why it should not become as great a summer resort as Muskoka for instance. The Grand Trunk railway of Canada has built up the Muskoka district to this Northern Minnesota region. In fact the country is very much similar to Northern Minnesota, and thousands of American tourists go there every summer."

A Puzzled Party.

Indianapolis News: The party governing for twelve years now has seen its high-built and gilded prosperity come down with a crash on the eve of a presidential election; has seen the sacred tariff that it has worshiped coming it its own in such inequalities and injustices as to make dissatisfaction loud and deep. The people have been suffering from high meat prices, high lumber prices, high paper prices; but who shall dare put anything on the free list? Who shall dare reform the steel schedule to stop the plundering of home buyers compared with favored foreigners? Who shall make an end of the preposterous treatment for years of the Philippines for the benefit of the sugar and tobacco monopolies? That also involves the tariff. And a thing that has been the unquenchable light on the altar since the party's birth is not to be touched with hasty or unholy hands. Men must have time to think. Especially so when all this synchronizes with audacious legislation against old and tried supporters—the corporations—and with the time when a new man is to be found for president and—hardest of all—party leader. There is the additional burden. New policies impend. High tariff and corporationism will not longer do. What shall take their place as to what degree and in what shape?

It is indeed a most interesting political development that we are witnessing. It is a great party in the air to a certain extent, not knowing just what step to take next. So this unwillingness to act is no mere naughtiness. It is a sign of hesitancy; the halting of a great host that heretofore and thus far has marched without faltering, now surrounded by so many new conditions as to be doubtful of just who are its friends and to be uncertain as to the landscape, not recognizing instinctively what to do at the parting of ways.

A Menace to Society.

Law Notes: As was to be expected, the insidious game of bridge has begun to get in its deadly work on that well-known unit of society, the family. A divorce suit between an American couple which was recently before one of the Paris courts had its origin in a "sporty no-trumper" declared by the wife at a time when her husband chanced to be playing as her partner. When, after the make had been doubled, the lady laid down two queens and a guarded jack, the language which emanated from her infuriated spouse completely quenched the fires of love for him, and diplomatic relations were promptly broken off. Our industrious legislatures should give immediate attention to this infant evil, and should prohibit married women from playing the game at all or else forbid their playing with their own husbands. The union must be preserved.

Finally Explained.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: That statement in the Atlanta Georgian that "housework gives a woman a beautiful figure," may be meant to convey the impression that the Venus of Milo worked her arms off washing dishes.

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer did not get down to the freezing point last night, and while the northeast wind kept it cool, conditions were generally pleasant. This morning the northeast breeze still persisted, and the haze that covered the sky and dimmed the brilliancy of the sun bore out the weather man's prediction that it will be cloudy tonight and tomorrow, with probably showers. The northeast wind will continue. Last night's lowest temperature was 36 degs and yesterday's highest was 45 degs.

A year ago today it was partly cloudy and cool.

The sun rose this morning at 4:45 and sets tonight at 7:23, making 14 hours and 38 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The Kansas storm has diminished somewhat in intensity, but its center remained about stationary. During the past twenty-four hours this disturbance caused light to heavy rains over Central and Southeastern states and rather severe local thunder storms over Eastern Missouri, Western Tennessee and Ohio Valley states. The barometer is rising over the Rocky mountains, eastern slopes and lake region with high pressures centers over Ontario and California. Temperatures are somewhat cooler over Kansas, Eastern Texas, Oklahoma and Northern Louisiana. Pressures continue low over Northern Alberta. Freezing temperatures prevail in Rocky Mountain states. Indications favor cloudy and cool weather in this locality tonight and Wednesday with possible showers."

LINES TO A SMILE.

Baltimore American: "Sir," said the imperial ruler of all the Russias, "do you realize what a gulf of inequality yawns between ordinary humanity and an autocrat?"

"Dear me," answered the Doumaite in mild surprise. "Is this gulf proposition a czar-chasm?"

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "I guess them Denver fellers are almin' to put things in poorty fine shape fer th' big convention."

"Yep. Jim Bangs told me that even th' air is goin' to be rarified."

Philadelphia Press: "Ain't yer vaccination healed up yet?" asked Jimmy.

"Naw," replied Tommy.

"Gee! don't it make yer feel bad?"

"Naw; the doctor told mom I mustn't take a bath till it's all healed up."

Chicago Tribune: "Uncle Henry, don't you find it hard work being a vegetarian?"

"Not at all, my boy. It's only necessary to be conservative about it. When I feel an insatiable craving for a big plate of bacon and eggs I always yield to it."

Philadelphia Ledger: "Your husband says he works like a dog," said one woman.

"Yes, it's very similar," answered the other. "He comes in with muddy feet, makes himself comfortable by the fire and waits to be fed."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "I'm getting careless."

"What's the trouble?"

"Billinger came into the office today to borrow an umbrella and I was idiot enough to let him take that fine umbrella I borrowed from him six months ago."

Philadelphia Press: "Hamm has developed into a real actor; it's wonderful how he sinks his own individuality."

"You surprise me. I never thought he had it in him."

"It all came about through his having to play 'Monte Cristo' at a salary of $10 per week."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

America, My Home Land.

Land of the mighty plains,
Land of sunshine, sorrow and rains,
Land of noblest mountain range
Of roaring torrents and babbling rills,
Land of lakes without a peer,
Largest rivers of the sphere;
Oh, my own land! dear home land!
For thee my bosom thrills.

Land of the fairest flowers,
Land of cities and stately towers,
Land of trees whose tapering tops
O'erreach St. Peter's dome;
Land most hospitable on earth,
Strangers welcome thy hearth.
Oh, my own land! dear home land!
All races, home, sweet home.

Land with health and wealth for all,
Land that holds great minds in thrall,
Land that bless the poor with loam,
The richest e're seen yet,
Other lands may beauteous be,
But none so generous, rich and free
As my own land, dear home land!
The greatest land on earth!

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

David Buchanan has secured $639 from the city as a result of the flooding of the cellar of his grocery store at the corner of Superior street and Second avenue west last May.

Ely will vote on village incorporation on May 21.

The Duluth Natural Gas company, under its new management, expects to let a contract soon for the further sinking of the present well near Fond du Lac.

W. E. Perry yesterday received official notification of his appointment as sergeant-major of the Second regiment, Minnesota National Guards. The Duluth company is now well favored in staff appointments, having regimental surgeon, hospital steward and sergeant-major.

Newcomers should not jump at the conclusion that the present weather is a regular thing with Duluth in early spring. May is usually a very pleasant winter month. We don't have snowstorms before July 1 as a general thing. Ask any old settler about it and get a description of the days of '49, '52 and along there.

George Green of Chicago, at one time a leading lumberman of Duluth and manager of the Duluth Lumber company, is in the city on business for a few days.

The steamer Dove, once a great favorite on the Duluth and Two Harbors route, will be a member of the Manistique-Mackinac fleet this season.

The familiar lines of the steamer R. G. Stewart will not be seen again in Duluth soon. She has taken a run on what is known as the "Gardner route," from Buffalo to the Gardner island near Sandusky.

The contract was let yesterday to McLean & Crawford of Duluth for the iron castings required for the first furnace of the Duluth Iron & Steel company. These castings consist of eight heavy columns eighteen inches in diameter and, with their capitals, twenty-two feet long, and of the ring base, which rests in the foundation masonry and on which all columns are set, the entire castings weighing about 110,000 pounds. This is the largest piece of work ever undertaken by any foundry in this part of the country. John Birkinbine, engineer of the works, left yesterday for the East to make contracts for the machinery that cannot be procured in Duluth.

Stewart & Butts have decided to apply for an injunction against the city on account of the sewerage of Twentieth avenue running into the basement of their building on West Superior street. The foundation is being slowly washed away. A damage suit will probably follow.

There is some talk of organizing at West Duluth a boat club, with a boathouse on St. Louis bay.

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

Virginia Enterprise: John D. Brady, a prominent Duluth Democrat, avers that Johnson's candidacy for president is without foundation. If John A. does not land the presidential nomination Jakey, Young and the rest of the bunch might as well quit haggling over who's going to be who in the Republican state convention—for Johnson will doubtless again be forced into the race as the Democratic leader; and there's no need telling the rest of the story.

Breckenridge Gazette: Governor Johnson looms larger on the political horizon with each passing day and his nomination for the presidency on the Democratic ticket is no longer considered an impossibility. Under the rule requiring a two-thirds majority of the votes in the convention Johnson is believed to have a chance to tie up the convention until such time as the Bryan cohorts are willing to consent to the nomination of some one other than the Peerless One.

Lincoln, Neb., State Journal: The Minneapolis Journal has been taken severely to task for booming the candidacy of John A. Johnson. Why shouldn't it boom Johnson? He is a Minnesota product and has made good. In running for office he has battled against heavy odds and won out gloriously both times. It is genuine fun to boost for such a man. And Johnson deserves all the good things that have been said of him.

Detroit Free Press: When it comes to making a favorable impression, Governor Johnson seems to out-Bryan Bryan.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Says the Athens, Ga., Banner:

"Henry Watterson is largely responsible for the plight in which Governor Johnson now finds himself. The Kentucky editor groomed him as a dark horse, and now leaves him to get there the best he can against the sentiment in favor of Bryan."

"Plight?" What in the world can our friend and brother of Athens be thinking of? Is it a "plight to be the Democratic governor of Minnesota? Is it a "plight" to be a young man, full of ability and charm, with a great and glorious future before him? Is it a "plight" to be the first choice of many good people for president of the United States and the second choice of myriads? Get another word, friend and fellow student, to describe the captivating and distinguished governor of Minnesota.

Albert Lea Standard: Did Bryan call Governor Johnson's candidacy an "impertinence?" Did Governor Johnson style Bryan a "has-been?" Are they both silly? Are they indiscreet and in need of guardians? All know better, and such reports are nonsense. The two have the highest esteem for each other and are and will continue to be devoted personal friends.

Cambridge Independent-Press: Isanti county can be relied upon to send a Democratic state convention favorable to John A. Johnson for president. And why should it not? There is no reason for Minnesota casting its vote for Bryan. The claim is strongly urged throughout the United States that Bryan cannot be elected if nominated and who can blame the Democrats for desiring the nomination of a man who has at least a possibility of election?

Detroit Free Press: In this city Governor Johnson showed himself a high-class, all-around general utility man. He took a turn at religion, business, politics and sociability, starring in all of them.

Anoka Free Press: In view of the hired emissaries of Bryan having put in a great deal of secret work throughout the state to prevent Governor Johnson from securing the Minnesota delegation, it is urgent that Johnson's friends make it a point to attend primaries and county conventions without fail. A county may be ever so strong for Johnson, but if only Bryan men appear at the primaries or convention, the county will be lost to him just the same.

Independent Journalism.

From a Recent Address by Senator Knox: The journalist has one chief client, one patient, one flock—that is to say, the whole community; and nothing should stand in the way of his single-minded and devoted service to that one common interest. He should beware of all entangling alliances—political, social, commercial—which may limit or embarass such service. He should let the honors and emoluments of public office go to other people. His own office, if properly administered, is more important and powerful than any that his fellow citizens are likely to confer upon him. The independent newspaper may be, and should be, the most vital and effective instrument that Democratic society can produce for its own advancement and protection; and its true business welfare, in the long view, lies in a complete, intelligent, sympathetic devotion to public interests.

Exaggerated Evils of Insomnia.

Schofield's "Functional Nerve Diseases:" Of the five minor exciting causes of functional nerve disease insomnia is the chief, and its intrinsic evil effect is invariably exaggerated by the importance attached to it by the sufferer himself. If a man does not mind lying awake, quite half the mischief is obviated, but in nervous people the idea of fatigue doubles the actual exhaustion.

Well Blanketed.

Everybody's Magazine: One day, in the spring of '74, Cap Smith's freight outfit pulled into Helena, Mont. After unloading the freight, the "mule-skinners," to a man, repaired to the Combination Gambling house and proceeded to load themselves. Late in the afternoon Zeb White, Smith's oldest skinner, having exchanged all of his hard coin for liquid refreshment, zigzagged into the corral, crawled under a wagon and went to sleep. After supper, Smith, making his nightly rounds, happened on the sleeping Zeb.

"Kinder chilly, ain't it?" he asked, after earnestly prodding Zeb with a convenient stick.

"I reckon 'tis," Zeb drowsily mumbled. "Ain't yer 'fraid yer'll freeze?"

"'Tis cold, ain't it? Say, Cap, jes' throw on another wagon, will yer?"

1904--ECHOES OF HARMONY--1908

St. Hilaire Spectator: The Republican state convention at Minneapolis last week probably did more to convince a lot of Republican voters that the extension of the primary election is a necessity more than anything that has happened in a long time. Over 1,000 men went to Minneapolis to attend a convention only to find that the cities had combined and caucused the night before and taken about everything in sight. In the interest of harmony. How sweet that word "harmony" does sound when the others quit and you can hog it all.

Princeton Union: You gentlemen who are opposed to the candidacy of J. F. Jacobson for governor cannot defeat him by the tactics employed at Duluth two years ago. You cannot fool the people twice in succession.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The concensus of political opinion is that Ed Young is far too noisy for gubernatorial honors. It would profit him to write his newspaper communications with a gum-shoe in the future.

Hibbing Tribune: In these days of independent voting it behooves a candidate for office to pay some attention to the desires of the people. The rights of several hundred thousand voters weigh more than the aspirations or the personal differences of Bob Dunn and Ed Young and Jake Jacobson. Better stop your squabbling, gentlemen, and give the people a chance. If you keep up this foolishness much longer you'll be laid away in nice little political graves and there'll be few to shed a tear.

Appleton Press: No man no matter how good can ally himself politically with such a man as Bob Dunn, without being politically defiled.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Harmony was about all the country delegates got at the recent state convention.

Appleton Press: The Bob Dunn-Reese-Shevlin crowd are squirming like a bunch of snakes because their program was interferred with. Of course Young should have remained silent and allowed himself to be gently pushed out of the fight.

Anoka Union.: Why are the Republicans of Minnesota so dissatisfied? Surely there are enough candidates for governor already in the field, without endeavoring to bring out others.

Albert Lea Times-Enterprise: When a man is put forward for governor who refuses to make known his views on matters of public concern and leaves the people in ignorance thereof, there is no room for discussion or other method in arriving at a "concord or agreement in views," and when the backers of such a man demand harmony we can only hear the crack of the whip wielded by the political boss above the heads of slaves and by all the little gods of Hindoostan, we don't stand for it, for such a plan of political action spells not harmony but discord.

ELEVEN OF THE CREW DROWNED

Steamer Minnie Kellon Disabled Off the Oregon Coast.

Newport, Or., May 5.—During a storm Friday night on the coast the steamer Minnie E. Kellon shifted and sprung a bad leak. Saturday noon a huge wave struck the vessel and washed her deck and cabin, leaving the vessel waterlogged and unmanageable. Eleven of the crew were drowned, some while trying to launch a boat.

Four on a raft tried to get ashore, but only one succeeded and he sustained a broken leg. The life-saving crew of this place took nine men off the vessel and landed them on the shore, about twenty miles north of here.

As soon as the news of the wreck reached here the life-saving crew at Yakima Bay station left for the scene. After a trip fraught with danger, the crew reached the vessel and succeeded in rescuing the nine men who were still on the boat. The lifeboats put ashore twenty miles north of Newport.

The Minnie E. Kellon was bound from Aberdeen to San Francisco, loaded with lumber, in command of Capt. James McKenna.

Disturbed the Congregation.

The person who disturbed the congregation last Sunday by continually coughing is requested to buy a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar. At all druggists.

JOHNSON DRAMATIZED.

Governor Figures in a Play Now on the Stage.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 5.—Governor John A. Johnson has been dramatized.

"The Timber Thief," a play by George W. Ward of Alexandria, Minn., which is based on the 1904 campaign in Minnesota and the election of Governor Johnson, is meeting with success in the East. Mr. Ward, who was formerly a student at the University of Minnesota, and is a capable actor, takes a prominent part in the play, but the leading role is assumed by William Owen, the well-known actor. The Daily Register of Sandusky, Ohio, says the play is in a class with "The Lion and the Mouse," and observes:

"That Mr. Owen can play other than Shakespeare parts was clearly demonstrated by his portrayal of Abel Minton, the grafting politician who runs for governor of the state of Minnesota, but is defeated by Johnson through the manipulations of a clever young newspaper freelance editor."

The play drew its inspiration from the Minnesota campaign, but Mr. Ward declares that no real characters are given. Abel Minton, he says, is a pure fiction. As for Governor Johnson, he does not appear as a character in the play. He is only talked about.

To Purify The Blood

The liver and kidneys must be enlivened by Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills.

The blood not only carries nourishment to the cells and tissues of the body, but also takes up the poisonous waste material or ashes which remains from the fire of life.

These poisonous substances can only be removed from the blood by the liver and kidneys and this accounts for the extraordinary success of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills as a means of purifying the blood.

By acting directly and specifically on these organs this medicine insures regular and healthful action of the bowels and a thorough cleansing and invigorating of the whole digestive and excretory systems.

The blood is purified, digestion improves, the vital organs resume their various functions, biliousness, constipation, liver complaint and kidney trouble are overcome and rheumatism, backaches and all pains and aches disappear.

There is no treatment so prompt and certain and none so reasonable in price. One dose, 25 cents a box. All dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., the famous Receipt Book author, on every box.

HOPKINS' AFFINITY

Trying to Untangle the Affairs of the Chicago Broker.

If Successful in Her Efforts, Hopkins Will Also Return.

Chicago, May 5.—Florence Brooks, the beautiful girl who came between Wallace H. Hopkins, head of the brokerage firm of Wallace H. Hopkins & Co., and his wife, and devotion to whom is said to have lured the La Salle street broker to ruin, is in Chicago, striving to effect a settlement of the claims against the bankrupt concern.

With her maid she is occupying apartment "L" at the Berkeley. She arrived there a week ago Saturday, after parting with Hopkins at some point east of Chicago, where she met him when he fled from the city.

Since her return Miss Brooks has been in conference with half a dozen of the big creditors of the bankrupt Hopkins company.

Hopkins May Come Back.

Miss Brooks has denied herself to interviewers and refused to talk with police officials or federal secret service men. Last night, when she was seen at her apartments, she admitted Hopkins had sent her back to seek an adjustment of his affairs, and that he contemplated returning to Chicago himself, provided she accomplished the task laid out for her.

The luxurious quarters occupied by Miss Brooks are said to have been provided for her by Hopkins. The appointments of the place are of the costliest nature. Two beautiful oak frames, hanging over the fireplace, contain portraits of Miss Brooks and Mr. Hopkins.

"I am trying to do what I can to adjust Hopkins' affairs," said Miss Brooks. "I am not attempting the task entirely alone. I know little about legal matters, and so I must have the assistance of lawyers, but I know what Mr. Hopkins wants accomplished and am trying to secure that."

"Will Mr. Hopkins come back if you get things fixed up as he wants them?"

May Not Be Prosecuted.

"Yes, probably. We are trying to see whether things are as bad as the newspapers made out at the start. Lots of people think the state has no case against Mr. Hopkins, and I don't believe it has."

"Where is Mr. Hopkins?"

Miss Brooks refused to answer.

Miss Brooks refused to say what creditors she had visited since returning to Chicago, or with whom she had been in correspondence, but displayed letters received during the day asking for settlements of claims.

Though dodging every question that might have a possible bearing on the whereabouts of Hopkins, Miss Brooks admitted she did not leave the city with him, as was generally supposed. Four or five days before the crash of the La Salle street concern she went East to a prearranged point of meeting.

"It shows how much these detectives know about things. They said Mr. Hopkins left the city with a woman and then they described me. We didn't go together. We weren't seen at Pittsburg either."

"Do you know the postal authorities have followed Hopkins all the time, and know exactly where he is at this minute?"

Will Make No Comments.

The young woman refused to be led into any comment on the action of the federal secret service agents. The statement that Hopkins was now in the clutches of the United States government was met by a shrug of her shoulders and a smile of disbelief.

The young woman is devoting all the time and strength to the herculean task of untangling Hopkins' troubles. She leaves her apartments early in the morning and is at work all day.

COMPELLED TO GIVE UP WORK

Western Commander of Salvation Army Asks to be Relieved.

Chicago, May 5.—To avoid a physical breakdown, Commissioner George A. Kilbey, Western commander of the salvation Army, has requested General Booth to relieve him of his command. The commissioner, with his wife, will be given a public farewell in the Salvation Army citadel on Wednesday evening, May 6.

In December, 1904, Commissioner Kilbey was appointed to the command of all Salvations Army operations from Lake Michigan and the Mississippi river to the Pacific coast. In his capacity as Western commander the commissioner has been responsible for 418 corps and outposts, six slum posts, ten rescue homes for unfortunate women, two children's homes, two training colleges, and thirty-five social institutions, including cheap hotels, industrial homes, and second-hand stores.

Previous to his coming to Chicago, Commissioner Kilbey had charge of the Salvation Army operations in South Africa, providing for the sustenance of the many non-combatants.

During the last winter when the pinch of poverty was so keenly felt and the army of Chicago's dependents swelled to such abnormal proportions, Commissioner Kilbey employed every agency at his command for their relief. His slum officers personally visited and administered to the needs of 1,241 needy Chicago families.

The plight of Chicago's workless and homeless men and caused the commission to open up the old Gault house, through the kindness of the North-Western railway, a temporary commodious, clean, 5-cent hotel, with 1-cent meals, and during the ten weeks this place was in operation 28,593 beds were supplied and 108,569 meals supplied. This proved a great boon without pauperizing those assisted.

STARTLING EXPOSURES IN KITZ KISSING CASE

Private Detectives Listened Over Transoms in St. Louis Hotel.

Grand Jury May Probe Charges of Subornation of Perjury.

If the statements contained in affidavits and counter-affidavits, filed in the district court, in the Bergman-Kitz damage case, are to be believed, there have been some queer transactions attempted by parties connected with the case since the jury awarded Mrs. Bergman $4,750 damages against Kitz, for his alleged assault.

The case came up before Judge Cant late yesterday afternoon, on an order for Mrs. Bergman to show cause why Kitz should not be given a hearing on an alternative motion for judgment, or a new trial. The motion has subsequently been withdrawn by Martin Hughes, representing Kitz, because it was not made within the time limit. The court granted a stay of judgment until June 1.

Kitz based his motion on the affidavits of George Altman, who is engaged to marry the defendant's niece, Miss Abram; B. F. Anderson and H. A. Courtney, two local sleuths, who are alleged to have hidden in a room in a Duluth hotel to listen to a conversation said to have taken place between Mrs. Lillian Capp and Ferdinand Goette, and an affidavit by Goette relative to a certain statement purported to have been signed by Mrs. Capp.

On the strength of these affidavits, Kitz claims that the case against him was framed up by Victor L. Power, Mrs. Bergman's attorney; Mrs. Bergman and Mrs. Capp.

Mrs. Capp's Statement.

Attached to the affidavits is the following statement, purported to be signed by Mrs. Capp, who was one of the principal witnesses for Mrs. Bergman:

"Duluth, Minn., April 20, 1908.

"Mr. Jacob Kitz for the consideration of $1,000, I will give a true testemone or ufedavit that your are not guilty of the assault on Mrs. Bergman and will show that the testemone given by Mrs. Berman is fals and that the case was Framed up by Mr. Wishter L. Bowers, atorney at law and that this case is not true in any way. Sined and seal this by

"LILLIAN CAPP."

This statement is claimed to have been secured by Goette, a resident of Hibbing, who was a witness for Kitz at the last trial.

Altman claims that he heard Mrs. Kitz, in the presence of B. F. Anderson, John Linklader and Jacob Kitz, declare that the story she told on the witness stand had been framed up, that all the witnesses for Mrs. Bergman had been instructed what to swear to. Anderson and Courtney claim that they were in an adjoining room the evening previous to the Altman incident, and heard a conversation between three persons, in which Mrs. Capp stated she could tell who was at the bottom of the case, but that Kitz was innocent.

One of the most interesting counter affidavits is that of Mrs. Lillian Capp, who says under oath that Goette came to the Capp home some time ago and spent about a week with them attempting every day to get her to sign a statement to the effect that her testimony at the two trials was false. She says she was promised $1,000 to sign the statement and that she was to stay out of the state for five years, as Kitz did not care to have her appear as a witness again in case a new trial was ordered. Mrs. Capp claims that Goette kept her husband half drunk for several days and influenced him to attempt to get her signature. She alleges that she refused to sign and that her husband kicked her in the face, blackening both her eyes, that he kicked her in the neck and the jaw, bruising her to a considerable extent. She is said to show the marks of the affray at the present time.

Mrs. Kitz claims that she never made the statements accredited to her in the affidavits of Anderson, Altman and the others, but maintained always that she had told the truth on the witness stand and stood ready to tell the same story again.

Capp's Statement.

Carl Capp, husband of the witness above mentioned, also made an affidavit in which he admits practically all the things asserted by his wife as to the efforts of Goette to get the sworn statement and the compensation promised. Capp says Goette gave him $35 during the time he was after the statement. Capp further alleged that Goette finally forced him to get the signature of his wife, so he, Capp, went out of the room and signed his wife's name to the statement, returning it to Goette. Capp says his wife did not sign it nor did she know her name was attached to the statement. Capp admits that he quarreled with his wife because she would not sign the statement.

Mr. Power outlines in his affidavit the transactions that took place between himself and Mrs. Bergman when she retained his services as attorney to prosecute the suit. He states that nothing was framed up, that the stories Mrs. Bergman and Mrs. Capp told him in his office were the same as their testimony during the two trials. The affiant also shows the interest in the case of Altman, who at the last trial is said to have represented himself as a disinterested witness for Kitz.

There is said to be a possibility that some of the affidavits may open the way to a grand jury investigation for subornation of perjury, which is a serious offense under the Minnesota law and punishable by a heavy penalty.

DEPICT HIM AS MARTYR

J. A. Jones, Socialist Organizer, Held Up as Victim of Conspiracy.

New York Paper Publishes Diatribe Against St. Louis County Court.

Because J. A. Jones, an organizer for the Western Federation of Miners, failed to collect any damages from the village of Aurora and its marshal, August Knuti, for alleged false arrest, imprisonment and indignities to which Jones claimed to have been subjected, the Weekly People, a New York publication, devoted to the interests of the Socialist Labor party, publishes, over the signature of one "T. Flynn," a terrific howl about the administration of justice in the courts of Northern Minnesota. The correspondent undertakes to say that Jones was a great martyr; that the twelve men who decided that Jones was not entitled to any damages were wooden-heads, who cringed before the scathing oratory of the attorney for the defendant; that the court "knew his business," and gave every decision against Jones, etc.

In the light of the evidence as it was brought out before the jury and the standing of the district court of this county, not only in this community, but the state, the diatribe of "T. Flynn" will be read with amusement, especially by those well known citizens who sat on the jury.

Under the caption of "The Law a Farce. Grossly Stupid Town Marshal and Cringing Jury Deny a Citizen His Rights," appears the following article:

"Duluth, Minn., April 13.—When I was a small boy I heard my father use the expression, 'Go to law with the Devil and hold the court in Hell,' the idea implied being that the person who found himself in this position would better move for a change of venue, otherwise his chances of gaining a verdict were, to say the least, problematical. I saw this exemplified last week.

"A dynamite outrage occurred in Aurora, this state, last fall. The home of a mine captain, Mr. Nichols, was blown up. The intelligent city marshal discovered that there was a socialist in town. So being a man of great penetration, and being able to reason deductively, he was not required to hunt any further—he arrested the socialist. However, before making the arrest, he ordered said socialist to leave town. Strange to say, he did not go; so the arrest followed.

"After a few days, not being able to make good the charge, the marshal was obliged to let his man go.

"The young man who was arrested then had the temerity to bring suit against the marshal and town of Aurora for damages. The trial came off last week. The evidence showed that the marshal ordered Jones, the socialist who was arrested, to leave town; that Jones had the impudence to imagine that he had some constitutional rights, and that he refused to emigrate; that the marshal found Jones the next day engaged in the nefarious, treasonable and seditious occupation of painting a sign, and that the sign was being painted for a woman, and worst of all for an elderly woman and a widow!

"The marshal, so the evidence showed, in righteous wrath at the blow aimed at society, grabbed the sign away from Jones; threw it in the street; called him vile names and locked him up.

"Can any one imagine a more just and reasonable procedure? Yet Jones was not content to merely get away. He had the audacity to ask for damages. Mr. Keyes, who appeared for Jones, pleaded for 'constitutional rights,' etc., and made an eloquent speech. The idea! The judge knew his business and gave every decision against Jones. Two lawyers appeared on the opposite side. One of them, who is said to be in the employ of the steel trust, made the speech for the defendant. He said 'Anarchy!' 'Anarchy!' and yet again 'Anarchy!' Then he harrowed the jury by telling them that their property was in danger if they did not give a verdict for the defendant.

"The jury, composed of small tradesmen, could be seen to wilt and cringe as the lawyer drove the 'danger of their property' into their little bourgeois souls. One could imagine, as he harped on this string, that he was playing the tune which Tennyson ascribes to the heels of the English farmer's mare:

"'Prupperty, prupperty, prupperty,
That's what I hears an' say;
Prupperty, prupperty, prupperty,
Canter and canter away.'

"The jury found for the defendant. Jones appeals.

Jones is an optimist,
I am a pessimist.

FOUND CUTICURA INDISPENSABLE

For Her Children—Little Girls Suffered with Itching Eczema Which Simply Covered Back of Heads—Baby Had a Tender Skin, Too.

ALL PROMPTLY CURED BY "WONDERFUL OINTMENT"

"Some years ago my three little girls had a very bad form of eczema. Itching eruptions formed on the backs of their heads which were simply covered. Before I heard of Cuticura, I used to try almost everything, but they failed. Then my mother recommended the Cuticura Remedies. I washed my children's heads with Cuticura Soap and then applied the wonderful ointment Cuticura. I did this four or five times and I can say that they have been entirely cured. I have another baby who is so plump that the folds of skin on his neck were broken and even bled. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and the next morning the trouble had disappeared. I am using the Cuticura Remedies yet whenever any of my family have any sores. I can never recommend Cuticura sufficiently; it is indispensable in every home. I cannot find its equal. Mme. Napoleon Duceppe, 41 Duluth St., Montreal, Que., May 21, 1907."

WILL KEEP HIS LICENSE

Aldermen Listen to Statement of Convicted Saloonkeeper.

The Theater Ordinance Amended; Plans for Better Milk Inspecti[on].

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Refused, by a vote of 8 to 7, to revoke the saloon license of Fred A. Merritt, for selling liquor on Sunday.

Adopted new amendments to theater ordinance suggested by the mayor.

Passed ordinance regulating speed of automobiles on London road.

Listened to report of Health Commissioner Patton regarding milk inspection, telling of plans for making inspection more rigid.

Held up renewal of Peter E. Meagher's employment office license.

Referred to proper committees communications of mayor in regard to removing unsightly buildings from approach to Sixth avenue viaduct, and lighting First alley.

Fred A. Merritt, proprietor of the Manhattan building saloon, appeared in person before the council last night and was cross-questioned as to his reason for keeping open on Sunday. When the matter of revoking his license came to vote, the motion was lost, eight aldermen voting against the motion, and seven for it.

Mr. Merritt had already pleaded guilty in municipal court to the charge of selling liquor on Sunday in violation of law, and had paid a fine of $75 and costs. A week ago the council voted against the revocation, but Alderman Moore insisted that the matter be brought up again at the next meeting with Mr. Merritt there to explain in person his attitude. The latter said he was cleaning out his place of business the Sunday in question, and that while the back door was open a few friends went in. He said he did not know who served them with drinks, as he was outside at the time. He thought it might have been one of the porters. Chief of Police Troyer testified that Mr. Merritt was not in the saloon at the time the police secured evidence against the place.

Alderman Tessman said he did not think it would be fair to revoke the license, in view of the fact that Mr. Merritt already had paid a heavy fine. He believed the council did not want to confiscate any man's business. Alderman Foubister, who voted against revocation, switched his vote to the other side. Alderman Moe, a lid man, was not present, but his vote would not have changed the result. The vote stood as follows:

For revocation—Moore, Cromwell, McKnight, Kennedy, Foubister, Olson, Getchell.

Against revocation—Tessman, Shartell, Hogan, Filiatrault, Jordan, Mueller, Ribenack, Trevillion.

The mayor's suggestions for changes in the theater ordinance were put in the form of amendments and passed without discussion. They provided for more exits, better water protection, and a wider asbestos curtain in theaters with a seating capacity of less than 200.

City Engineer McGilvray submitted his estimate of the cost of putting Piedmont avenue to the proper grade for a street car extension. His figures for the work were $5,982.

Health Commissioner Patton, in compliance with the request of the council, submitted facts and figures in regard to the present milk and dairy inspection, suggesting certain improvements, and telling of changes now being made. He said records in this regard are now rather meager, and that the inspection provided for was a passive one. He declared that the average dairyman does not understand how to take proper precautions to keep his milk pure. He proposes to send out a set of rules to them which they will be forced to live up to, insuring a cleaner product for market. The inspection will include stores where milk is sold.

Dr. Patton stated that he was at present working on a card index system which will show all details of inspection, covering animals, dairies, milk, milk stores and all dealers. He will start a score card of milk produced, showing from whose dairy it came, on what date, who sold to, the amount of butter fat contained in samples tested, as well as a report of all infected animals. The card system will show the individual condition of each dairy. These cards will always be open to inspection by the public, so any one will be able to learn everything necessary about any dairy doing business with Duluthians.

Mayor Haven's appointments of the following poundmasters were confirmed: Frank Ellis, Woodland district; B. W. Harwood, Duluth Heights; J. N. Richey, Third district; Thomas Gordon, Fifth district.

The application for a saloon license made by T. Nusbaum was rejected. He wanted permission to conduct a saloon in connection with a hotel at 704 West First street.

The contract for paving Twelfth avenue east from Superior to Fourth street, which was awarded by the public works to P. McDonnell was held up for a week because of an error. When the bids were read before the council it was discovered that J. A. Johnson, one of the bidders, was lower than McDonnell. Mr. Cromwell asked the why and wherefore of this, and President Olson of the board said it must have been a clerical error, for in the original bids Johnson was higher than McDonnell. The confirmation of the contract went over for one week so that the mistake could be rectified.

A resolution was adopted calling a mass meeting of property owners along Garfield avenue relative to the proposed sewer in that district to be held Thursday evening at 8 o'clock before the members of the council committee on streets, sewers and sanitation. There have been petitions both for and against the sewer.

The McKnight ordinance regulating the speed of automobiles on London road between Twenty-sixth and Fourteenth avenues east was passed.

In communications to the council, Mayor Haven asked that provision be made for lighting the alley between Superior and First streets, from Seventh avenue west to Second avenue east, and that the employment office at the approach to the Sixth avenue viaduct be done away with. He said lights were necessary for protection along First alley, and that under present conditions the dark alley offered a place of refuge for evil-doers, making their arrest practically impossible in that vicinity. The lighting matter was referred to the water and light department, and the other to the committee on police and license. The communication in regard to the employment office was prompted by a communication from Supt. Blanchard of the Northern Pacific, to the effect that the railroad intends tearing down the unsightly shacks on its property near the viaduct, and asking the co-operation of the city.

THREE WOMEN FIGHT FOR A DEAD MAN'S ESTATE.

Boston, May 5.—The litigation over the million-dollar estate of Joseph F. Greenough of this city, in which three women, claiming to be the rightful widows of Greenough, demanded a share of the property, was reopened, yesterday, by the filing of two suits for $700,000, in the Superior court by Mrs. Emma H. Eaton Greenhough against Martha D. Greenough of London and Archibald M. Howe of Cambridge. The suit is for damages. Martha Greenough was declared to be the lawful widow at a recent trial, owing to a divorce granted to her in Colorado being invalid, and Howe is trustee of the estate. Mrs. Emma Greenough alleges that Martha and Mr. Greenough conspired together and induced her to marry Greenough, when the latter was already the legal husband of Martha Mary M. Kerekes, a Hungarian artist of Philadelphia, was the other woman who figured in the previous litigation over the millionaire's estate.

ROGERS AND STILLMAN ANSWER MERGER SUIT.

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 5.—H. H. Rogers and James H. Stillman, named as defendants with the Harriman and other railroads in the so-called merger suit of the government, filed answers in the federal court here yesterday. They with E. H. Harriman, Jacob Schiff and others and the Union Pacific, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and other railroads, are charged with unlawful conspiracy in attempting to gain control of other railroads and restrain and control commerce between the states. Mr. Rogers makes a sweeping denial of every allegation and demands that the case against them be dismissed, because he is not a resident of Utah district and therefore not within the jurisdiction of the court. He also asks that he be granted costs and damages for injury to his character by reason of the allegations made against him.

James Stillman follows the list laid down by Mr. Rogers, admitting investments of money, but denying a monopolistic or other unlawful purpose.

Mr. Stillman became a director of the Union Pacific December 6, 1907.

FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER.

Norwich, N. Y., May 5.—William Schott, who has been on trial here for a week, charged with killing his stepmother, Mrs. James Schott, was last night found guilty of murder in the first degree. The murder occurred last October. The testimony showed that Schott took his stepmother out driving, shot her and hid her body in the bushes, where it was found two days later.

The Lesson of the Eagle and the Weasel

The familiar story goes that once, when an eagle pounced upon a weasel and soared with it high into the air, the weasel fastened its fangs deep into the eagle's breast and commenced to draw its life-blood. The eagle tried to shake the weasel off, but the weasel hung on until the eagle fell lifeless to the ground.

There is a moral in this for every sufferer from coughs or colds. Don't let your cough hang on — for every day it weakens your lungs and gradually wears down your system until serious lung troubles develop.

DR. D. JAYNE'S EXPECTORANT

MORE AUTOS EVERY DAY

There Are 178 Cars in Duluth and More Coming.

Roads Fine to White Face River But Poor Beyond.

Duluth is growing every day more metropolitan in respect to automobiles. According to the number of licenses taken out, 178 machines are now owned in the city, and local agents say that the number is growing every day. Up to this date all records for sales made in previous years have been broken. The financial stringency seems to have touched in no way the automobile trade in the city.

Larger and higher power cars are in demand this season here, due to the experience Duluth automobilists have gained in climbing the hills that surround the Head of the Lakes. It takes a high powered car to climb some of the grades in this locality.

Among those who are possessors of new cars this season are Mrs. A. D. Davidson, A. M. Miller, Jr., P. McDonnell, P. F. Nester, William White and William Patterson, all of whom have sixty-horse power Thomas Flyers. Schultz Brothers company have bought a new Reo roadster for their salesman. Frank Nixon of Paine & Nixon company, has a new car for his personal use. Ruben M. Scott has a 1908 model of the Rambler. James T. Hale has a Stanley touring car, and W. H. Cole has ordered a new high power roadster, which he expects to use between his Pike Lake summer home and Duluth.

In many cases the automobile is taking the place of the doctor's faithful old horse here. Dr. Robert Graham, Dr. W. H. Magie, Dr. E. B. Daugherty and Dr. J. J. Eklund, all make their calls now in autos. Dr. C. A. Stewart is going his rounds in a new Waverly Electric victoria.

Automobile agents say that the 3 and 5-ton trucks for heavy delivery work have come to Duluth to stay. Several wolesale firms used them last year, and many orders for new ones are being filled this season.

The Electric brougham is becoming more popular than ever. Several more will be added to the good number that are already in use in the city.

Edward J. Filiatrault of the Mutual Elecetric company, says that the Hoisman high-wheeled buggy is also coming into prominence. He has had ordered, through his company, six such machines already this season.

Mr. Filiatrault is a very ardent worker for good country roads for St. Louis, Cook and Itasca counties, through his efforts the county commissioners have promised to improve the St. Louis county part of the road along the lake to Two Harbors, and he has written several letters to people of prominence in Two Harbors trying to get them to fix up the mile or so at their end of the road.

He drove out to the White Face river forty-two miles and return, the other afternoon between 1 and 6 o'clock, and says that the roads are in splendid shape to within a mile and a half of the river.

"If the roads beyond the White Face river were in as good shape as the Miller Trunk road, it would be no trick at all to run the twenty remaining miles to Eveleth," said Mr. Filiatrault. "If that piece of the road were fixed up in good shape the automobilists from the range, and there are a good many up there, and the Duluth enthusiasts could tour back and forth as they wished. And besides if we could once get Eveleth and Duluth connected by good roads, the whole range, with a very little improvement in the highways, would be open to auto tourists from Eveleth to Grand Rapids and from there on west. The iron ore covered roads on the range make great auto roads."

Several Duluth people are touring in the East in their cars. J. F. Killorin is now touring through New York and Pennsylvania in his Packard. He expects to return to Duluth by June 1. George C. Stone has just returned from an extended tour of the East in his Peerless machine.

The roads between Duluth and Minneapolis are in no shape to run a machine over, so Duluth, in a way, is cut off from the rest of the country, so far as touring is concerned until the roads between here and Minneapolis are put into better condition. When they are Duluth enthusiasts will not have to ship their cars when they wish to go South for a tour. The roads will be in much better shape as the summer advances.

When the Duluth Auto club gets fully aroused to the summer's sport there will probably be some lively speed contests. C. W. Fitzgerald, with his high powered Pope Toledo roadster, is sailing about town with a chip on his shoulder, waiting for somebody to challenge him, and McDonnell is also out for blood. There ought to be no difficulty in getting up races this summer, if a suitable place to hold them can be found.

SIGNS NO CHECKS,

But John D. Frequently Affixes His "O. K." to Bills.

New York, May 5.—"I don't believe it is generally known," remarked J. G. W. Cowles, agent for John D. Rockefeller, "that Mr. Rockefeller never signs any personal checks. He frequently puts his 'O. K.' on bills, but he has signed no checks for several years. Even a check for groceries used at Forest Hill during his summer stay, or for some small local philanthropy, is not signed by Mr. Rockefeller. Everything goes through the regular channel, and is made out by some of the Standard Oil people at 26 Broadway."

PLEA FOR INDIANS

Congressman, Part Indian, Favors Giving of Wider Opportunities.

Washington Annoyed by Millions of Little Winged Insects.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The present session of congress has been particularly noted for the number of maiden speeches made by the so-called new members, but it is safe to say that none attracted more attention and made a deeper impression upon the house of representatives than the maiden effort of Charles D. Carter, a Democrat of Oklahoma, his nationality being seven-sixteenths Chickasaw and Cherokee Indian and nine-sixteenths Scotch-Irish. He is a descendant of that Nathan Carter, Sr., who was captured when a small boy by Shawnee Indians at the Wyoming valley massacre, when all the other members of the family except a sister, were killed; afterwards traded to the Cherokees and married a full blood Cherokee woman.

Mr. Carter's speech was a speech in favor of wider opportunities for the Indian and it was listened to most intently by both sides of the chamber. It was an earnest plea for the Indians of Oklahoma particularly, the bill which called forth this maiden effort of a seven-sixteenths Indian being a measure providing for the straightening out of land conditions in the state of Oklahoma that will be equitable to all classes concerned.

It was Mr. Carter's contention that a very large proportion of the Indians in the new state are fully competent to take care of themselves and that they are able to stand up and hold their own without the strong arm of the federal government to protect them. He said that in round numbers there were 20,000,000 acres of land in Oklahoma that is owned by the Indians and those related to them. This land is non-taxable and inalienable, the bill which prompted the very able effort of Mr. Carter providing for the removal of restrictions on the surplus allotment of the mixed blood Indian of half or more than half Indian blood, but there the bill stopped, leaving the entire allotment of the full blood Indian and the homestead of the mixed blood Indian of half or more than half Indian blood in statu quo—that is to say these lands are inalienable and non-taxable with the exception that the secretary of the interior may remove such restrictions upon a showing of competency by the Indian, or whenever in his opinion it will conserve the Indian's best interest to have a part of such lands sold.

Mr. Carter made the statement that the Indian whose restrictions are removed by the bill, which was under discussion, are as a rule just such men as he is. He said that if one will go out to Oklahoma "you will find that a great many of these Indians are worth ten times as much of this world's goods as I, and if you will attempt to make a few deals with them you will find when you are through that you are not worth as much as you were before," a statement which caused loud laughter through the chamber. In closing his address upon the bill, and which passed the house by a vote of 250 yeas and no nays, Mr. Carter said:

"The removal of restrictions embraced in this bill will not prove a detriment but an advantage to all the Indians whom it affects. They are thoroughly competent, and it will place them on their own responsibility. It will give them an opportunity to handle their property to the best advantage, without any interference from the federal government or anyone else, which is always resented by an intelligent person. It will place all the burdens of American citizenship upon them, and why not, since they receive all the benefits? Why place these limitations upon competent citizens of the United States? Listen to me. You place these Indians on their feet, place them on their own responsibility, give them an equal show with their white brother, grant them full-fledged American citizenship in all that the term implies, and mark my words, they will measure up to the full standard of your American citizenship."

Washington residents and visitors have been annoyed beyond expression by a swarm of millions of little winged insects "horrid gnats," as the womenfolk express it. Although without the sting of the mosquito or the biting powers of the flea, they are, nevertheless qualified to cause an itchy feeling, and when one lodges in the eye they cause much pain.

The learned entomologists of the department of agriculture say that the little black winged insect is a "lachmus" and that it is of the "genus aphidae." These little insects are not uncommon visitors to these parts, but they have not been so numerous for a number of years. The sudden advent of the warm days has brought them out, and the department officials say it is probable that tthey will abide with us for several days.

The insects are wingless at first, but afterward develop minute transparent wings that make them as agile as a fly or a mosquito. These wings afterward disappear and the troublesome little things give up flying and roam about on the trees like their more strenuous cousins, the ant. Hundreds of the beautiful shade trees which abound in the city are alive with them and but little comfort can be found sitting in a shady nook in any one of numerous parks.

Among the popular books a few years ago was one entitled "The Garden of Elizabeth." But while Elizabeth's garden had great attractions for the readers of popular works, it had no such attraction as that of Edith (if one may be forgiven for using the Christian name of the first lady in a newspaper story). Mrs. Roosevelt's garden, or rather gardens, for there are two of them, is of the old-fashioned variety. The one which the general public sees every day is a narrow bed in the lawn in front of the White House, within a few feet of the Pennsylvania avenue fence. In this narrow patch of earth there were planted several years ago at the suggestion of Mrs. Roosevelt, samples of about all of the varieties of the old-fashioned flowers, so dear to our grandmothers. Bleeding Hearts have been in blossom for the past three weeks; poenies are in full bud at the present moment, and within ten days ago, or two weeks from now, there will be a riot of color when the brilliant reds, pinks and whites of these gorgeous flowers will be in the full bloom of their attractiveness. Gilliflowers, buttonweed, often designated as "Old Man," are to be seen side by sidt with Phloxes, Marigolds and Sweet William, while a border of Sweet Alysium and English Daisies will come along later. There are Clove Pinks and Stocks, Heartease, Wall Flowers and Bachelor Buttons, Ragged Robins and Mignonette and a score of other varities. Later these, as they die off, will be replaced with Geraniums, Verbenias, Zenias, Petunias, while the season will close in this particular garden with the blossoms of the Chrysanthemums and Cosmas.

Mrs. Roosevelt's old-fashioned garden has been the feature of the White House grounds for several years. No occupant of the White House before her time ever seemed to realize how much satisfaction this official display of the favorite of her girlhood days gives to the visitor who remembers something besides American Beauties and Orchids, and it is safe to say that no garden in Washington ever attracted half of the encomiums, especially from the older visitors to Washington, as have been heaped upon the garden in front of the White House.

EATS CRACKERS IN BED.

Why Nina Farrington Has Left Her English Husband.

Paris, May 5.—Nina Farrington, who formerly provided a weekly sensation for New York, has not been heard of often since she married Lesmoir Gordon, an English gentleman of fortune with a love for the simple life. A few days ago, however, she remembered that she was Nina Farrington after all, so she told her husband she wanted a separation, packed her trunks and came across to Paris. She announces that the separation is permanent, and says: "It is all over. I have nothing to say against Lesmoir Gordon, but no woman can live with a man who eats crackers in bed."

COMMANDRY AT BEMIDJI.

Dispensation Granted for Institution of Organization Soon.

Bemidji, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bemidji will have a commandery of the Knights Templar, the grand commandery of the state having granted a dispensation to the Knights Templar of Bemidji and vicinity to organize a commandery.

The new commandery will be known as Elkanah commandery and will probably be instituted early in June.

It is expected that W. E. Overshire, eminent grand commander of the state, will be present and officiate at the institution of the lodge, and also that Knights Templar will be present from Duluth, Crookston, Brainerd and Wadena, as well as from the Twin Cities.

For some time past the Masons of Bemidji, and those living in this vicinity, have been agitating the proposition of securing a commandery for this city. The matter took tangible form in the shape of a formal application for a commandery with the result that, through the labors of the Masons in this vicinity this city has been designated as the proper place for a commandery.

SABLOTSKY DROPS DEAD

Heart Failure Causes the Death of Well-Known Merchant.

Business Worries Are Said to Have Hastened the End.

"Business worries are killing me," said Jacob Sablotsky, proprietor of the New York store, last Saturday, in speaking to a friend.

This morning he dropped dead in his room at the Astoria hotel. Heart failure was given as the cause. Shortly before his death came, an employe visited him in his room, and Mr. Sablotsky complained of feeling ill. A little while after this the clerk of the hotel found the man lying dead in bed. He is survived by a wife, living in Chicago, three grown daughters and a son, who is a commercial traveler.

The merchant has been very much worried lately over litigation regarding business matters. Harry Leury brought suit against him in district court, claiming to be a partner in the New York store, and asking for an accounting. Sablotsky contended that Leury was not a partner, but was only an employe. He lost out, however, and the business was ordered into the hands of a receiver, pending the accounting demanded by Leury. The merchant was much worried over the whole affair, and has been complaining of a weakness of the heart ever since the litigation began.

He was planning on a new business, to be called the Reliable Cloak & Suit company, and to be located at 107 East Superior street. Improvements have been going on in the building, and it is now almost ready for occupancy. The concern was to be a stock company, with Sablotsky at the head. A part of the stock is already in the city, and the store would have been open for business with a week or two.

The merchant was at one time quite wealthy. His children were all given a liberal education, and the son is a graduate of Harvard college. Two daughters are married, and the other is a school teacher in New York city. It is said she has made quite a record in that position. Some of the family will undoubtedly arrive in the city to take charge of the remains.

Sablotsky was a Russian Jew, with a reputation for business integrity with all with whom he had business dealings. His word was absolutely to be depended upon in a business deal, resulting in an enviable reputation for honest dealing in a business way.

DULUTH BOY WITH MINSTRELS

Harry Woods of the Musical Marines, is a Duluth boy, born and reared in this city. His father, Edward Woods, was for years yardmaster of the various railroads at the union depot. The son, Harry, has been in the theatrical business many years. Beginning as a musician he has gradually advanced until today the specialty he originated and produced is the head-line act on every bill where it has been performed.

The act is one of very great merit and commands a big salary. Five people perform the act. Many of the instruments have never been heard before. They are of recent origin, built after specifications furnished by Mr. Woods. The most pronounced novelty in the act are the musical anchors, a large instrument, or rather a combination of instruments, that produces a volume of sound, harmonious and pleasing. Many such novelties are interspersed throughout the production.

The "Musical Marines," the title by which the act is known, is one of the big features with the Al G. Field Greater Minstrels. It was arranged and produced by Mr. Woods. In the act with him is his old partner, Bert Ralton, Ed Brill, Billy Walters and Doc Quigley.

The act is surrounded by very elaborate and artistic scenic embellishments, representing a man-of-war at dark.

The many friends and neighbors of Harry Woods in Duluth are preparing to give him a rousing welcome when he appears in this city with the Field Minstrels May 8 and 9. Several theater parties are being arranged in his honor.

FREE SHAVES WILL BE GIVEN

The state examining board of barbers, consisting of Walter H. Dunlop, president, Duluth; Gustav H. Becker, secretary, St. Paul, and William Hamblin, treasurer, Minneapolis, will meet in Duluth next Tuesday to look into the qualifications of sixty candidates for the tonsorial artist's degree.

The board will meet at the Gibson Barber Supply company's store, 212 West First street, and each candidate will wield a razor, shears and clippers, while the members of the board look on that they may pass judgment. Questions as to sanitary precautions and the treatment of skin diseases will be asked and, if the questions are answered satisfactorily and the free shaves properly bestowed, certificates will be handed out. About 200 subjects will be needed for the free shaves.

HEAVY SAFE FELL FIFTEEN FEET

While a heavy office safe was being lowered from Henry Turrish's office, 201 Exchange Building, late yesterday afternoon, the ropes of the block and tackle parted, when the safe was about fifteen feet from the ground, allowing it to fall to the cement sidewalk below.

The safe was let down from the third floor of the building on the Michigan street side. All the way down it struck against the wall in places making gashes in the brick work and sandstone window sills. On the second floor the ungainly object crashed through an office window. Fortunately none of the workmen were beneath it when it fell.

MAY BET ON THE DERBY

Louisville Jockey Club Secures Injunction Against City Officials.

Sir Clegeis and Milford Are Favorites for Big Event.

Louisville, Ky., May 5.—All doubt that the bettors will be permitted to back their judgment when the thirty-fourth renewal of the Kentucky derby is run, this afternoon, was apparently removed last night by an injunction issued by Judge Samuel B. Kirby, in chancery court, restraining the mayor, the board of public safety and the police officials of Louisville from interfering with the operation of Pari-Mutuel machines and auction pools at Churchill Downs.

The injunction, which was issued on the application of the officers of the new Louisville Jockey club, was made returnable Monday, May 11, when the city officials will be required to show why it should not be made permanent. Mayor James F. Grinstead and Marshall W. Bullett, when asked as to their probable course after the injunction had been issued, contented themselves with a statement that the law would be allowed to take its course. Police will be at the track today, but will be used only to keep the crowds in order.

The derby will be run over a muddy track and the field will certainly consist of not less than six starters, while in all probability seven horses, which have shown themselves adapted to heavy going, will essay the journey of a mile and a quarter. Sir Clegeis and Milford are equal favorites, at 5 to 5, with Bandige second choice. The remaining four, which are reduced as certain starters, are Dunvegan, Stonestreet, Bill Herron and Gilvedear. Dunvegan is the only one of the four regarded as likely to cut a figure, although all will have more or less support owing to the heavy going.

The prospects are for showers and cool weather and the course is already soft from recent rains. The derby this year has a total value of $6,000.

Smith Hit Hard.

Washington, May 5.—Smith was hit hard and timely today by New York, and Washington lost, 11 to 5. Doyle lasted only two innings, but Mannings, who relieved him, was almost a complete puzzle, his work being the feature of the game. Manager Griffith and Moriarity were ordered off the field for disputing Umpire Connolly's decision. Score:

Browns Shut Out.

St. Louis, May 5.—In a shortened game, Detroit beat the St. Louis Americans here yesterday, 1 to 0. The game was called in the sixth inning on account of rain. By bunching hits in the first inning after two were out, Detroit scored the only run of the game. The score:

In six consecutive innings the home team went out in order not a man getting to first base, but in each of the first and eighth they tied up Young's curves for four hits and scored enough runs to win. DEMAREST AND REROLLE.

Conklin Drops Out of Running in New York Tournament.

New York, May 5.—Edward Gardner of Passaic, N. J., defeated Charles F. Conklin of Chicago in last night's match in the tournament series of the international amateur championship at 18.2 balk line billiards at the Liederkranz club, by a score of 400 to 348.

The game places Conklin in third position and the issue for international honors lies between the American champion, Calvin Demarest of Chicago, and Lucien Reroille of France.

By losing to Gardner last night, Conklin lost a chance to tie his clubmate, Demarest, who will meet Rerolle in the final game for premier honors tonight. Last night's score:

Gardner, 400; high run, 62; average, 10 20-38.

Conklin, 348; high run, 56; average, 9 15-37.

STEVENS IS INJURED.

Star Yale Sprinter Suffers Broken Tendon and Cannot Run.

New Haven, Conn., May 5.—The Yale track team has just sustained a loss which it is feared may cost the college the dual games with Princeton this Saturday and the games with Harvard at Cambridge a week later. Lester Barber Stevens of Milwaukee, the best sprinter at Yale for years, has injured his knee and will be unable to compete in the sprints. He has been running the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat and was counted on to win the sprints in both sets of games. Stevens was stepping on a car when he felt a tendon snap. Stevens is a law school senior and came here from the University of Minnesota.

O'DEA'S BRANDON TEAM NOW IN DULUTH

Six members of the Brandon team of the Northern league arrived in Duluth yesterday afternoon and O'Dea, with the remaining members in tow, is expected to arrive some time today. Those here already are Mills, Thompson, Custer, Nelson, Meneice and Summers. McGraw, who suffered an injury to his hand while training at Burlington, came home last week and is under the care of a physician. He has been advised not to play ball this season, but it is believed that his hand will be in shape for play by the time the season opens and he will go to Brandon with the squad.

The Brandon squad will go to Hibbing tomorrow morning and tomorrow afternoon will open a series of five games with Judge Brady's colts. The games will be about as good for training purposes as any on the entire trip. Brady has a fine aggregaton of baseball stars, worthy opponents for any team in the Northern league, and they will give O'Dea's men a good workout.

O'Dea will probably lose Toot Thompson, who has been playing short, and Frank Summers, the Duluth boy, who had a place in the outfield cinched. O'Dea and Kuehnow both put out their lines for Thompson with Manager Grant of the South Bend team of the Central league at about the same time and Kuehnow was successful. While he was in Burlington, Thompson was ordered to report to Duluth, but he continued with the Brandon team and will join the Duluth squad when they arrive Thursday. Thompson has been playing ball all spring and is in good condition. Summers goes to Fargo, where he will probably be worked out in an outfield position.

O'Dea has only three pitchers at present, but two others are on the way, including a southpaw from Milwaukee, who is highly touted. Smith, Dalgren and Nelson have all been pitching good ball on the training trip, and O'Dea is well satisfied with them. Nelson, especially, is expected to burn things up on the Northern league diamonds.

"Big Sam" Meneice has come back into his own, according to the Brandon men. He has had the natives down in Iowa sitting up in wonderment as he tore splinters out of the fence with his mighty swats and Wagner, the big St. Paul boy, who is stationed on third, is also showing himself to be a hitter. Louie Livingston is playing good ball at second and hitting pretty well and, only for the loss of the two men, O'Dea would have a well-balanced team ready to start the season.

Artie, himself, has been laid up in a hospital at Burlington with tonsilitis, but he was released Sunday and will be here today. He is not in the best of condition and will probably not get into the game until the opening of the season.

TWILIGHT BASEBALL

Y. M. C. A. Will Have League of Six Teams in Field.

Three Games a Week to be Played During Summer Evenings.

A Y. M. C. A. Twilight Baseball league is planned in connection with the athletic department of the Y. M. C. A., and the plans are forming so that the season will probably be launched June 1, to continue during the months of June, July, August and September.

A six-team league is contemplated, and already about 100 baseball players have enrolled their names as candidates for places. The work of organization now is confined to securing the positions of the men enrolled and looking up their records on the ball field. Captains will be selected soon and and then the men will be apportioned.

Every effort will be made to secure well-balanced nines. It is not likely that all of the teams will be strong in every department, so that equalization will be necessary, and during the month of May, the men will be worked out regularly and an effort made to place them in the different teams, so that all will be as nearly equal as possible.

It is planned to play the games in the evening, three each week, each team to play fifteen games during the season, or three games with each of the other members of the league. Interest among the members of the association is keen, and the league promises to go through the season nicely and furnish good sport for the boys.

The gold medals to be awarded to George Pyfer and Edward Mapp, winners in the athletic contests held during the winter, at the association, have been received, and will be presented soon by President Miller of the association. Pyfer is awarded a medal for superior proficiency in elementary work, and Mapp for his victory in the advanced grades.

Classes for the year have closed at the Y. M. C. A., the date being a little early, on account of the necessity of Physical Director Frey's attending to the setting up of the apparatus in the gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A. building. Despite the fact that the physical director is unable to be present, a number of members of the different classes gather at the Central gymnasium at regular class hours for exercises.

BIG DULUTHS IN LAST PLACE

The Duluth City Bowling League Narrowing Down to Final.

The Columbias and Big Duluths played their last game in the Duluth City Bowling league last night, the Columbias winning two out of three games from the Big Duluths and placing the latter team in last place for certain.

But two more matches are to be played in the league, the Oak Halls and Centrals to meet Wednesday night and the First National Banks and Fitwells Friday night. On the latter game depends the league championship as the First National Banks have a lead of but one game over the Fitwells. Should the latter team win two out of three games, it will create a tie for first place and necessitate another match to decide the championship.

In last night's match F. Stiegler scored the high average of 203 and the high score of 235. Following are the scores:

NEW CLUB HOLDS FIRST SHOOT

Northwestern Members Get Good Scores on Initial Appearance.

The Northwestern Gun club held a preliminary shoot Sunday on their new grounds, about fifteen members and some visitors participating. Several preliminary shoots will be held, after which the members will be classified and the regular trophy shoots begun.

The shooting Sunday was not first class, but the scores were good, considering the fact that the shoot was the first and the members of the club are all out of practice. There are some good marksmen in the club and they will show good scores before the season advances very far. Following were the scores Sunday:

SOX LOSE FIRST TO MADISON

Fail to Hit Clarke and Cierzon is Wild in Eighth.

Madison, Wis., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth White Sox could not hit Jimmy Clarke with men on bases yesterday and Cierzon, who relieved Krick after the fifth, was wild and handed Madison enough runs in the eighth to win the game by a score of 4 to 2.

Tom Letcher of Madison rapped out a home run off Krick in the third inning, with a man on base, furnishing the principal feature of the game. Both teams played good ball in the field, and the exhibition was an interesting one. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Madison	4	5	3
Duluth	2	6	1

Batteries—Clarke and Spees; Krick, Cierzon and Voss.

Will Play Fitwells.

The games with Judge Brady's Hibbing team, scheduled to be played here next Monday and Tuesday, have been called off and, instead the White Sox will go against the Fitwells, one of the strongest semi-professional teams in the city.

The Sox play two more games at Madison, and Thursday they will arrive home, giving the fans a chew of them in action against the Kelleys Thursday before they go to the range for three games with Virginia. Monday and Tuesday they will play the Fitwells, and Tuesday night leave for Winnipeg for the opening.

The acquisition of Toot Thompson would be a fine boost for the Duluth Northern league team. The hole in the infield at third, one of the most important positions on the team, would be acceptably filled and the fans would need have no worries as to the ability of the squad to hold up its end of the race. Thompson is a fine fielder, a fair sticker and a good all-around ball player. Put him on third and the other teams would go some to beat the infield Morrow would trot out May 14.

All reports of Ness at first base are calculated to send the blood spurting in the veins of the thirty-third degree bugs. Pagels is safe at second and young Koepping at short will make a big hit. Baker may be all right, but nobody is inclined to put confidence in him after some of the performances he has given on the diamond. He can't hit the ball consistently and the team needs hitters.

Morrow has his pitching staff down to Murray, Brandt, Haney and Jacobson now, with Krick still to report and Al Cummings a possibility. The collection of flingers is about as nice as anybody would want to see and the fans are satisfied to wait and look them over personally before they hand out any harsh expressions on Duluth's chances of taking down the pennant.

The loss of Toot Thompson to Duluth and Frank Summers to Fargo will be a hard blow to Artie O'Dea, if it goes through. Thompson, who is an Indian, is one of the best shortstops ever to work in the Northern league. He is steady-going, a sure fielder and a hard hitter and the hole at shortstop, which O'Dea thought he had plugged when he put Thompson in, yawns again.

Summers still has hopes of remaining with Brandon. He is a protege of O'Dea and will probably get along with him better than with any other manager. He likes the crowd and it is possible that McNeil will relinquish his claim and allow O'Dea to take the little fellow. Summers is a valuable man, if the company suits him, but otherwise he is inclined to be intractable and, if dissatisfied with conditions, wouldn't give the best of service.

While looking over the teams of the league, it is well to consider Brandon a pennant possibility and a strong one. O'Dea is sagacity itself, when it comes to ball players. He knows a ball player from a clothhopper on sight and it's a notable fact that, with one or two exceptions the men, who first reported to him at Burlington, are still with the team and holding down their jobs in good shape. O'Dea had his men sized just about right, before he gave them transportation, and wise indeed is the manager in a Class C league who doesn't know whether he can swim or not, they're jumping right off the pier into water over their depth as an experiment and they're getting away with it.

Judge Brady's Hibbing squad is a tough proposition for any team, but the Kelleys jumped right in and walloped them in the first game of the season. What Hibbing did the next day wouldn't be fair to repeat. Thursday Ziegler is sending his men against the White Sox and not a shiver is moving his frame at the prospect of being torn to shreds and less.

Next week the Fitwells will try their hand at soaking the Sox and they aren't very much affrighted over the prospect either. Taking all things into consideration, it looks as though Duluth will have some pretty good semi-professional teams this season, and while the Sox are wandering into strange surroundings, the rampering fan will not want for his daily bread of baseball, with thrills to make it appetizing.

FOR THE LAHM CUP.

A. Holland Forbes Sends Formal Challenge to Aero Club.

New York, May 5.—A. Holland Forbes, who recently received his pilots' license from the Aero Club of America, has sent his formal challenge to the club for the Lahm cup. In order to win the trophy he will be required to travel over 473 miles, the distance made by the present holder, Capt. Charles De F. Chandler of the United States signal corps. Mr. Forbes will use his new balloon, Conqueror, and he intends to make his initial ascension in the big balloon today from North Adams. Before leaving for North America, Mr Forbes said that no effort would be made for a long flight. The balloon will be shipped to this city immediately after the flight, and either tomorrow or Thursday it will be sent to St. Louis. He will be accompanied on his long distance flight by Lieut. Selfridge of the United States army balloon corps.

EIGHTH GRADE WINS.

Catholics Defeat Freshmen Team From Central High School.

The eighth grade team of the Christian Brothers' school defeated the freshmen of the Central high school yesterday afternoon on the Mendenhall field by a score of 10 to 10. The feature of the game was the heavy hitting on the part of the Catholics. The lineup of the teams follows:

LOSES FOOTBALL MEN.

Swarthmore Suffers Severe Loss on Account of Pranks.

Philadelphia, May 5.—Indulgence in pranks not countenanced by the faculty, caused four of the most prominent and best atheletes at the Swarthmore college to be dropped from the rolls yesterday by the faculty committee. Quarterback Harry O'Brien, captain-elect of the football team, Left Guard Smith, Fullback Harcourt and Sub-halfback Wickham are the men dropped.

Harcourt and Wickham, it is declared by Supt. Roberts, were caught raiding the pantry of the college recently. The principal luxury destroyed was pies. Smith was credited with having assisted in hoisting a cow up two flights of stairs into the girls' dormitory at the Swarthmore institution. O'Brien, the captain-elect, was dropped principally because he was remiss in his college dutes. The loss of the four players is a severe blow to the college.

SUTTON BEATS HOPPE.

Veteran is Winner of 1,500 Point Match at Chicago.

Chicago, May 5.—George Sutton last night defeated Willie Hoppe in the finishing block of the 1,500 points 18.2 billiard game. The final score was Sutton 1,500; Hoppe, 1,200. In the last night's game Hoppe ran 533 points while Sutton made 500. Sutton's grand average was 32 28-48 against 23 34-38 for Hoppe.

Children Fancy Skaters.

Tonight, for the last time this season, Jessie Beatty and Archie Dennis will give an exhibition of trick and fancy skating at the Temple roller rink. On the occasion of their former appearance at the rink, the children made a big hit with the crowd. They are clever skaters and give a good performance.

Whooping Cough.

"In February our daughter had the whooping cough. Mr. Lane of Hartland, recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and said it gave his customers the best of satisfaction. We found it as he said, and can recommend it to anyone having children troubled with whooping cough," says Mrs. A. Goss of Durand, Mich. For sale by all drugists.

SENSATIONAL SUICIDE.

Fredericton, N. B., May 5.—A sensation was caused here yesterday by the suicide of William P. Flewelling, deputy minister of Crown Lands in the New Brunswick government. Flewelling shot and killed himself in one of the government buildings, just as an expert accountant was about to begin an examination of the deputy ministers' books. He was 52 years old and had been in the employ of the government since he was a young man. So far as can be learned no shortage of his accounts has been found.

ZALINSKY MAY BE RIGHT ONE

Marshall County Authorities Think They Have One Bank Robber.

Warren, Minn., May 5.—The horse and buggy belonging to Al Dickenson of Stephen, which were stolen by the Stephen, Minn., bank robbers, , were found near Deer postoffice, in Marshall county. The horse was nearly dead, having been driven hard.

J. E. Raymond, alias Joe Zalinsky, and James Nolan, are known to have driven the horse. After leaving it they tried to hold up a preacher and take his team from him, but were unsuccessful. They then traveled to Greenbush, where they were arrested.

Two Twin City detectives have arrived here and will try to weave a tight web around Zalinsky and capture his associates. Members of the gang that Zalinsky worked with were arrested at Winnipeg a short time ago their pictures are in the rogues' gallery.

The authorities are in possession of sufficient evidence to convict Zalinsky, he having been positively identified as the man who bought the groceries in this town that were found in the bank after it was burglarized.

CASS GILBERT PROTESTS.

Noted Architect Against Either of Gen. Colvill Models.

St. Paul, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cass Gilbert, architect of the state capitol, and the New York custom house, stands by his decalaration that no Minnesota sculptor would be competent to design the statue of Col. William Colvill, which it is proposed to place in a niche in the capitol rotunda. He has reiterated his belief in this telegram from New York to Governor John A. Johnson:

"I advise against the adoption of either of the two models presented in competition for the Colvill statue as unworthy to comemmorate Colvill's great service, or the heroic regiment he led, and unsuitable to be placed in the capitol."

It is not likely that Mr. Gilbert's protest at this late day will make any difference in the action of those who have the selection of the statue in hand. Governor Johnson will not interfere in the matter, as he takes the position that authority rests entirely in the commission appointed by him, in compliance with the act of the legislature providing a fund of $10,000 to pay for the statue. This commission consists of veterans of the First Minnesota regiment, which was under the command of Col. Colvill at the time of its brilliant achievement in the battle of Gettysburg, and its members are Maj. C. B. Heffelinger, Minneapolis, chairman; H. T. Bevans, St. Paul, secretary; R. L. Gorman, St. Paul; M. T. Taylor, Anoka, and J. N. Searles, Stillwater.

FINALLY SETTLED.

School Principal Served Seven Months in Jail on Judgment.

Champaign, Ill., May 5.—Prof. Sherman Cass, a high school principal of Tolona, Ill., was released from the county jail, yesterday, where he has been imprisoned for seven months for refusal to pay a judgment of $1,200, secured against him by W. F. Burke for assisting in the punishment of his son, a pupil. Burke claimed that his son had received permanent injuries at the hands of the principal and Miss Annie Kelly, a teacher in the school. Miss Kelly sought exemption from a judgment by trying to prove bankruptcy in the federal court. Her case is still pending. Cass was liberated upon payment of $700 to Burke.

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA"

A Few of the Many Comments Upon Minnesota's Governor in the Outside Press.

Louisville Courier-Journal (Dem.): People know him as one combining in himself the rare qualities which constitute the born chieftain of men. Intellectually they know that he measures up to the standard of statesmanship demanded by our ideals for our highest official station; but more than that, they know that with the mind and character of such a statesman he unites the temperament and personality that broadens into the wider and more potent one of popular leadership.

New York Tribune (Rep.): As a candidate he is available by experience in public life, by demonstration of exceptional executive and administrative capacity, and by sympathy with the American people. He will arouse enthusiasm among every class of citizens.

New York World (Dem.): Minnesota Democrats have a candidate for president whom any state in the Union might be proud to present to a national convention.

Anaconda, Mont., Standard (Dem.): Throughout the country there has been frank recognition of his entire worthiness and his fitness.

Chicago News (Ind.): He has proved his worth both as a man and a public official. His personal qualities cause him to be exceedingly well liked by the people at large.

Utica, N. Y., Press (Ind.): His Democracy is unquestioned, and he is broadminded and capable.

Cleveland Plain Dealer (Ind.): Democrats in every part of the country are looking to Governor Johnson as an available candidate.

Washington Post (Ind. Dem.): The twice-elected governor of Republican Minnesota is in the arena, and his presence is an earnest that the dry bones of the valley may live again.

Editorial in World's Work Magazine: Governor Johnson has in an unusual measure that sturdy intellectual character which Mr. Bryan lacks. He stands firmly on a few great principles, and he will stand there tomorrow. He has fixed qualities.

Detroit Journal (Rep.): The eminence of this son of a Swedish immigrant demonstrates that American assimilation and citizen-making are not merely impressive phrases to stir enthusiasm in political audiences and afford apt advertising matter for transatlantic steamship lines. The case of John A. Johnson convinces us that this is still the land of political and personal freedom, the Republic of Opportunity.

Chicago Inter Ocean (Rep.): He has risen from the ranks on his merits. He has political power because he has deserved public confidence. He is a self-made man who is well made—who has done a good job in the making of himself. He is exactly the kind of man that what Mr. Bryan calls the "Plain People" are glad to see come forward for high office. They recognize him as one of themselves and are proud of him with good reason. John A. Johnson of Minnesota is doing what he can. More power to him and all like him. The republic needs the help of all of them.

Ever Been Deceived By the Cook?

Many men have, and many women have deceived themselves.

When Cook sends in a weak, tasteless cup of drivel to fill your order for Postum you have a right to protest loud and hard.

She has ignored the directions on the pkg. and boiled it only a minute or two.

Demand that it be boiled full fifteen minutes after boiling commences, then you will have a breakfast drink with the dark, deep seal brown color, which turns to a rich golden brown when the cream is added.

Boiling brings out not only the color and full food value of Postum, but a flavor similar to the soft blends of Old Gov't Java coffee. Then you have rich and right.

Shout, if the cook don't treat you well!

Many an ache and ail can be traced directly to coffee drinking, and one can be well again by leaving it off and using well-made Postum. Trial proves!

HEART RIGHT

It Makes a Great Difference.

"About two years ago I became alarmed because my husband had attacks from fainting spells caused by weak heart, from drinking coffee.

"At first he did not like Postum. I had not then learned to boil it long as directions say, to get the rich flavor and brown color.

"After it was made right he liked it, and now for more than a year he has not been troubled with his heart—in fact, his general health is better than for years." "There's a Reason."

SAVES IRON ORE FROM BLACK SAND

Virginia Man Interested in Process That Means Millions.

Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nelson Shields, the electrician, last week disposed of his business property on Central avenue to Edward C. A. Johnson and will depart soon for Chicago, where he will engage in the business of removing iron ore from the black sands that are found in many places throughout the world. For two or three years past Mr. Shields' father has been engaged with an electrical expert in perfecting an electrical machine that will separate this iron ore from the sand, and he reports that they have been entirely successful in the enterprise. Mr. Shields became interested with them about a year ago. The company has purchased a large acreage of the ore-bearing sand in Canada and they will mine it and bring it to this country for reduction. It is claimed that the ore is of very high quality and is eagerly sought by the makers of steel tools. Mr. Shields expects that the concern will build up a big industry and that it will make money rapidly.

The idea of the machine was gained by noticing how an ordinary magnet drawn through these black sands would draw out the ore and the machine contains an electric magnet which gathers the ore as it passes through.

Mr. Johnson, who purchased the property of Mr. Shields, intends to open a first-class confectionery store and ice cream stand with a bakery in connection.

Those active in fostering the project are said to have received assurances that if the requisite number of men can be secured and the other requirements of the national guard are met, Hibbing will be granted the privilege of a company in due time. Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Albert Johnson, who died recently at Biwabik of meningitis, was held here yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Order of Druids, of which the deceased was a member. The services were held at the Swedish Lutheran church, Rev. P. O. Hanson delivering the sermon. Deceased was 33 years of age and conducted a restaurant at Biwabik. He was formerly a resident of Virginia and at one time cooked for Charles Oakman at Mountain Iron. Among those from Biwabik who attended the funeral were Markum Anderson, Oscar Moberg, J. P. Sullivan, Oscar Memmi, Malcolm Carlson and Thomas Lee.

MILITIA BOYS DRILL.

Lieut. Col. Resche of Duluth is Pleased With Their Work.

Eveleth, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The militia company held a special drill last night and was visited by Lieut. Col. Resche of Duluth, who took charge of the company at the end of the regular drill, putting them through some maneuvers. He expressed himself as pleased with the work of the men for the short time they have been drilling, and said that if they kept up their work they would make the other companies hustle at the summer camp. The equipment, that has not yet been received, will arrive some time before the company leaves for camp.

On account of the junior hop that is to be given Thursday night by the junior class of the high school, the regular weekly drill was put off until Friday night.

An effort is being made by some of the citizens to have all this vacant half block improved so that it can be used as a playground by the children of the city.

Manager Doyle is in communication with several men, one of whom will probably take full playing charge of the team.

FOLLOWING OF JOHNSON

no work until within the last few days, we have found a surprisingly large Johnson following. This is particularly true of the business men. I have before me now the copy of an interview given out by Walker Percy, one of the leading attorneys and politicians in Birmingham, in the Ninth district of that state. Mr. Percy points out that Johnson is a winner, not a loser of political campaigns; that he has no crude theories of government ownership to apologize for, and that his strength in the Northwest and the East is unquestionable.

"Other business men and political authorities in the state are out with similar declarations. I merely mention this to show how strong Johnson is in states where no particular fight has been made for him.

"There will be a fight to have the convention take action favorable to Johnson, and I believe it will do so. If it does not, it will demonstrate, at any rate, even in a state claimed so confidently by Bryan, that Johnson is backed by a large following.

"When you find such a situation as that, you can easily recognize the absurd position of those who say that Bryan will carry every state in the South. The fight in most of the states is now on definitely. Mr. Johnson's friends are sure of victory. Governor Johnson is out for first place or nothing on the national Democratic ticket."

ELECTION AT ST. PAUL

precinct of the Fourth ward, and as a result of the trouble Chairman Halbert of the Republican campaign committee has made application to the county attorney for warrants against Officer Patrick Fallon and Detective Frank Frazer, both of the police force.

It came about through the attempt, by an alleged illegally registered man, to vote at the booth on Cedar street, between Fifth and Sixth.

Elmer Lund, a special deputy sheriff, stationed at that booth, was called upon by Mr. Reeves, the challenger, to arrest a man named Glen Keebler, who had attempted to vote and had been challenged. He was registered from the Pittsburg hotel, and the Republican committee claimed to have an affidavit from the landlady of the hotel that Keebler did not live there.

According to Lund's version of the affair, he placed Keebler under arrest, and was standing on the sidewalk in charge of his man, when Detective Frazer came up and asked what he was doing with the man.

Lund replied that he had been arrested for violation of the election laws, whereupon Frazer replied that he had known Keebler for six years; that he was all right and that he must be allowed to go.

Officer Fallon came up and stood between the deputy and Keebler, and the deputy claims that he called upon both Officer Fallon and Detective Frazer to assist in arresting the man.

Calumet scored 476 points and Houghton 433. Mr. Cowley of this city shot remarkably well, making a score of 74 points out of a possible 75. Lieut. McDuff scored 73 points.

A TERRIFIC WIND AND RAIN STORM

five square miles of territory, is under water. The first floors of houses in the American bottoms are flooded and farmers are utilizing rafts and boats in rescue work. It is believed the loss of livestock will aggregate a large amount.

French Village, a town of 1,000 inhabitants, one of the oldest settlements in Illinois, was struck by a miniature tornado and many houses were unroofed. The panic-stricken inhabitants fled into the storm to escape injury by collapsing houses. Telephone and telegraph wires are down and there is no communication with French Village.

Traffic is impeded on electric lines running to various points east and north of East St. Louis, Ill., because of high water.

In St. Louis the wind blew down trees, sign boards, broke in many store windows and crippled telephone and telegraph wires to a large extent.

Hard Storm in Arkansas.

Little Rock, Ark., May 5.—Arkansas was visited last night by a storm which covered practically the entire state, doing much damage to property. Wires are down in every direction and on this account information is meager.

At Marche, a hamlet of 150 people, ten miles from this city, the large lumber plant of the Hammond Lucas & Devore Lumber company was completely destroyed. There was no loss of life.

A great cloud, composed of limbs of trees and leaves, passed high over the town of Morrillton late yesterday afternoon.

Conway, Ark., is reported to have been damaged and Watson, in Desha county, near the Louisiana line, is reported to have been wiped out.

A NOTABLE OCCASION.

nificance, as the structure which is to be erected is to be the permanent home in Washington of an institution devoted to the development of peace, friendship and commerce among the American republics.

The invocation will be delivered by Cardinal Gibbons, and the benediction will be pronounced by Bishop Cranston, the dean of the Protestant clergy in Washington. The exercises will be opened by the director of the bureau, John Barrett, who will present as the presiding officer the secretary of state and chairman of the governing board, Elihu Root. The Marine band will provide music and will play for the first time a Pan-American air, made up from the national anthems of all the American republics. Three large grand stands, which will surround a central court, in which will sand the corner stone, are being erected for the audience, and these will be elaborately decorated with the flags of the twenty-one American nations.

Other features of the program will be the reading of congratulatory messages from the presidents of the different nations, and the placing of a metal box in the corner stone containing historical records bearing on the development of the Pan-American movement.

CATHOLICS ASTONISHED

showing the altar and an actor in the vestments of a priest performing the ceremonies of the mass were presented and continued for almost three minutes. With an acolyte assistant the offices of the mass from the sanctus to the offertory were depicted, the chalice was lifted and the mimic priest turned in benediction upon the audience to be interrupted by the flight of a fugitive into the edifice.

Each representation of the mass was a copy of the genuine ceremony. Lighted candles arched above the altar and the strains of music attending the service in Catholic churches was played softly upon the theater pipe organ.

As the curtain arose upon the novel scene a burst of applause came from the audience, but none came from a dozen Catholic priests and scores of church members scattered through the house. The intermission between the second and third acts was taken up by the excited discussions of the scene.

The play is of melodramatic order, although replete with clever comedy touches and original situations. The leading character is enacted by Mrs. Annie Mack Berlein, who twenty years ago was a member of the theatrical company in which the present author was an actor.

Father Vaughan said he had not consulted with his superiors in reference to the depiction of the mass upon the stage.

"The celebration of the mass is stopped before the consecration of the host. It is simply a picture," he said, "a living picture painting and should offend no one any more than a representation of the same thing in water colors or oils. The subject is handled reverently both by the matter of the play, and in the acting I hope it will lead people to think rather than to criticise."

The character of the priest in the drama was played by G. R. True, a nephew of Father Vaughan, under the stage name of George Roberts.

BATTLESHIP FLEET UNITED

The Two Squadrons and Destroyer Flotilla at Santa Cruz.

Santa Cruz, Cal., May 5.—The Atlantic battleship fleet was united once more yesterday when the ships of the second squadron arrived from Monterey and the flotilla of six destroyers joined it from San Pedro, the latter after one of the stormiest voyages of the cruise.

The second squadron headed by the Alabama, flying the flag of Rear Admiral Sperry, came across Monterey bay, leaving at 5:30 yesterday afternoon. The flotilla came in at 10:30.

The Connecticut proceeded to Monterey at 6:30 this morning and will take on board Admiral Evans, who returns to resume active command.

No ceremonies whatever will attend the return of Rear Admiral Evans. When the Connecticut leaves port the blue flag of Admiral Thomas will be run down from the main truck and he will hoist his red pennant on the Minnesota. As soon as Admiral Evans is aboard the Connecticut he will hoist his flag as commanding officer.

Admiral Thomas will succeed Admiral Evans as commander-in-chief May 8. On that date Admiral Evans will haul down his pennant with a salute of thirteen guns from the ships. Admiral Thomas will receive honors when his colors are broken out.

CARDINAL LOGUE TAKES A LIKING TO AMERICA.

New York, May 5.—Cardinal Logue, the Roman Catholic prelate of Ireland, who came to America to attend the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the formation of the New York diocese and who is now in Washington, has taken a liking to America and intends to see more of it.

After preaching at the high mass in St. Patrick's cathedral here next Sunday, his last appearance in New York for some time, he will begin during the week to follow a tour of the United States going to Boston and Niagara Falls and later on through the Middle West as far as Chicago. He anticipates a visit to San Francisco before his return to Ireland.

Mrs. S. Joyce, 180 Sullivan Street, Claremont, N. H., writes: "About a year ago I bought two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It cured me of a severe case of Kidney trouble of several years' standing. It certainly is a grand, good medicine, and I heartily recommend it." At all druggists.

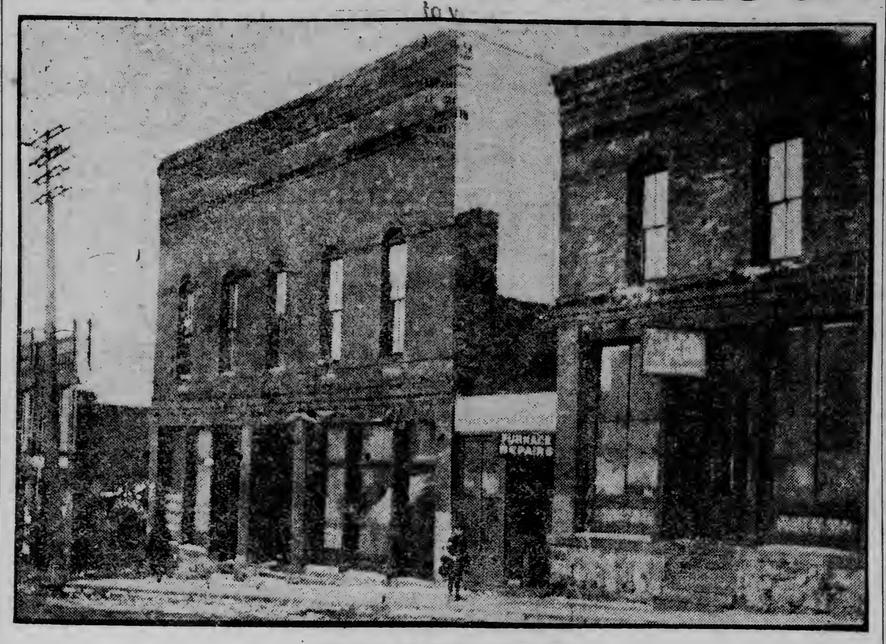
TRAGEDY AT DENVER.

Denver, May 5.—Burton Koch, a member of the city fire department, shot and killed his wife Louisa; wounded Mrs. Matilda Motley, her mother, and then committed suicide early today. Mrs. Motley, in attempting to shield her daughter, received a shot in the left leg. The tragedy followed a serious of quarrels and separations. A divorce was granted Mrs. Koch in April, but later she returned to her husband.

FIRE AT WALKERTON, IND.

Walkerton, Ind., May 5.—Fire early this morning destroyed the business section of this place. Loss, $100,000.

SCENE OF COUNTLESS CAROUSALS CRUMBLES AS CITY SPREADS OUT



THE OLD PARLOR THEATER.

With the destruction of the Parlor theater building, on First avenue west, to give place to a new business structure, another old landmark in the central business portion of Duluth will have passed away.

The old Parlor theater building has had a checkered career. If it could talk it would undoubtedly tell a story that would be startling in some respects.

Built many years ago the old theater building has served its purpose, and is now going to join the remainder of the relics in the way of Duluth's early building enterprises.

In the olden days, when the Parlor theater was running full blast, it was the popular resort for the lumberjacks who came swarming into the city to get separated from their coin.

Painted beauties trod the stage, beer flowed freely, and all the rest of the trimmings that go to make up the class to which the old Parlor theater belonged, kept things humming for some time. Boxing and wrestling matches, in which local sports figured prominently, have been pulled off in the old building.

Long and hard fought battles have been fought in the council over the advisability of closing up the place during the waves of reform that swept over the city. Old age and unpleasant notoriety finally proved too much for the old building, and it passed under the control of the Salvation Army a few months ago. It was a great change, from a variety theater and dance hall to a Salvation Army barracks, and the event occasioned much interest at the time.

THE AMERICAN IDEA

No Distinction on Account of Dress at the St. Regis.

NEW YORK'S HOME-LIKE HOTEL.

Recently, we are told, the manager of a fashionable London restaurant refused to allow an earl and his countess to eat in the dining room because they were not attired in the regulation evening dress. It is a pleasure to be able to state that such snobbishness does not prevail in New York hotel restaurants. Even at the St. Regis, which sets the pace in matters of dress and etiquette, the wearing of a business suit bars no one from admission or service. The business man who comes to New York without an elaborate wardrobe need have no misgivings. At the St. Regis he will get quite as good service and be made to feel just as much at home in his business suit of an evening as though he were the costume approved by society.

The St. Regis is emphatically an American hotel, and is conducted in accordance with American ideas. Comfort is the keynote and homelikeness is the symphony in this inviting palace of rest and refreshment. It is an ideal stopping place for all who appreciate good living at a fair cost, a place where one always feels at home. We are wont to say and think, "There is no place like home," but times have changed since the old song was written, and many have discovered that it is possible to find elsewhere a place like home in every good particular, but unlike home in the matter of cares and annoyances. Such a place is the St. Regis, New York.

Whether you go to the metropolis for a day or two on business, or for a week or month on pleasure bent, make the St. Regis your home. The restaurant charges are moderate and a good room may be had at $4 a day or one with bath at $5 ($6 for two persons), or a parlor, bedroom and bath for $12.

WHEAT IS A LITTLE OFF

Market Has Slight Reaction, on Good Crop Prospects.

Flax is Unchanged at the Close in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 5.—The wheat markets reacted a little at the close today and the closing prices were a little off from yesterday. Good crop prospects were an inducement to sell. King wired from Toledo that the condition of Ohio wheat May 1 was .92, against .85 for April and .74 for last year.

There was quite a little selling during the latter part of the session, although in Duluth the market held quite firm. The strength here was largely on the firm foreign demand. Considerable wheat was worked for export during the day.

Bradstreet's reported a decrease of 14,583,000 bus., in the world's visible supply of wheat. In the United States and Canada, the decrease was 6,753,000 bus., in Europe, the decrease was 7,800,000 bus.

Liverpool closed ¼d to ⅝d higher, Berlin 2c higher, Budapest 1⅞c lower and Antwerp ⅝c higher.

The May option closed unchanged in Duluth and New York, ¾c lower in Chicago, ⅞c higher in Minneapolis and 1c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed ¼c lower in Duluth and New York, ¾-⅞c lower in Chicago and Minneapolis and ⅝c higher in Winnipeg.

July corn closed ¾-⅞c lower in Chicago and unchanged in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅝c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a firm undertone to the speculative wheat market at the opening and values were ½d to ⅝d higher. Offerings were light and shorts nervous, prompted by the firm American cables yesterday and good demand for La Plata steamers and a better demand from millers. During the morning, the market was dull but firm and values advanced an additional ⅛d to ¼d with September particularly well supported. Spot markets were firm and sellers few. At midday, the undertone was firm and values ⅜d to ½d higher than Monday.

"Corn was steady and unchanged. The market was neglected."

Car receipts at Duluth were 34, against 318 last year, and at Minneapolis, 112, against 182 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 146, against 511 last year. Chicago received 36, against 61 last year. Winnipeg received 78, against 169 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 351,000 bushels; last year, 651,000 bushels. Shipments, 236,000 bushels; last year, 501,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 15,000 bushels.

Primary receipts of corn were 432,000 bushels; last year, 589,000 bushels. Shipments, 246,000 bushels; last year, 446,000 bushels. Clearances of corn were 51,600 bushels.

Wheat was fairly active in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ⅛c lower at $1.05⅞ bid, was bid up to $1.06⅛ without a trade, declined to $1.06 and closed there, unchanged from yesterday. July wheat opened unchanged at $1.04⅝, declined to $1.03, rallied to $1.03½ and closed at $1.03⅜, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. September wheat opened late at 92c and declined by the close to 91⅝c, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ⅛c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 3c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was dull and closed unchanged. May flax opened unchanged at $1.19½ and closed there. July flax opened unchanged at $1.21½, declined to $1.21¼ and closed unchanged from yesterday, $1.21⅛. September flax closed unchanged at $1.22½ and October flax opened unchanged at $1.21 and advanced by the close to $1.21⅜, a gain of 3⅛c over yesterday.

Oats closed ⅛c higher and the other coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Firm on Higher Liverpool Prices, But Soon Eases Off.

Chicago, May 5.—The wheat market opened firm today, chiefly because of higher prices at Liverpool, but soon eased off on realizing sales. There was a general disposition in all the grain pits to take profits resulting from yesterday's bulge. July wheat opened ⅜c to ⅝c higher at 90⅞c to 91⅛c, and sold at 90⅝@⅞c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 182 cars against 265 cars last week and 592 cars one year ago.

Sentiment continued bearish for the remainder of the day. The Ohio state report was given a bearish construction, which offset a decrease of over 14,000,000 bushels in the world's visible supply. The close was easy with July 1⅜@1¼c lower at 90½@90⅝c.

The corn market was dull and easy. The activity which prevailed in the May option was lacking today. July corn opened unchanged to a shade higher at 64⅝@65c to 65c and sold at 64⅝@¾c. Local receipts were 329 cars, with 35 of contract grade.

Realizing sales continued throughout the day and the market was easy. The low point for July was 64⅛c. The close was easy with July ¼@⅜c lower at 64⅝c.

The oats market was easy, chiefly because of realizing sales. July oats opened unchanged at 47⅝c and sold at 47⅜. Local receipts were 241 cars.

The provisions market was firm because of an advance in live hogs. July pork opened unchanged to 2½c higher at $15.35 to $15.57½ and sold at $15.60. Lard was up a shade at $8.55. Ribs were 2½c higher at $7.32½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.02⅝; July, 90½@90⅝c; September, 85⅝@85⅞c. Corn—May, 70½c; July, 64⅝c; September, 62¾c. Oats—May, old, 53⅝c; May, 53c; July, old, 46⅞c; July, 45¼c; September, 37⅝@37¼c. Pork—May, $13.37½@13.40; July, $13.37½; September, $13.82½@13.85. Lard—May, $8.45; July, $8.55; September, $8.72½. Ribs—May, $7.10; July, $7.32½; September, $7.55. Rye—Cash, 81c. Barley—Cash, 62@70c. Timothy—May, $4.25. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.03¼@1.05; No. 3 red, 97c@$1.04½; No. 2 hard, $1.01¼@1.07; No. 3 hard, 97c@$1.07; No. 3 spring, 98c@$1.10. Corn—No. 3, 68@68½c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Opens Strong, But Lacks Activity and Soon Falls Back.

Minneapolis, May 5.—Strong news came in today, including large shipments of Canadian wheat down the lakes, heavy engagement of vessel room at Montreal, strong foreign markets and a world's visible decrease of 14,583,000. The market was strong on all this, and made new high points, but it lacked snap and activity and fell back again on moderate selling. Minneapolis elevator stocks gained 75,000 bus for three days. Receipts here today were 112 cars against 183, and in Duluth only 34 against 318. July sold to $1.08, then fell back to $1.07¼ and closed at $1.07⅝. July opened at $1.07½; high, $1.08; low, $1.07; close, $1.07⅝. September closed at 91⅛@⅜c; May closed at $1.08⅝.

At 2 cents over July for No. 1 northern and July price for No. 2, there was an indifferent demand. Outside millers picked up a little, but local demand was poor. Cash close: No. 1 northern, $1.09⅛ spot or to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.07⅛ spot or to arrive; No. 3 wheat, 99¼c@$1.04⅛.

No. 3 yellow corn, 67½@67⅝c.

No. 3 white oats, 49½@50c.

No. 2 rye, 74¾@75¾c.

Barley firmer and 1 to 2 cents better on the average, due to a report that Milwaukee was stronger and higher. Close, 56@57c.

Flax quotations 1c over Duluth July for No. 1 and demand fair. Close, $1.20½.

Bran in bulk, $21.50@22 and firm as quoted.

Flour strong as quoted, but no foreign inquiry, only a moderate domestic demand and the total business today light. Shipments, 34,333 barrels. First patents, $5.45@5.60; second patents, $5.35@5.50; first clears, $4.20@4.30; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Started Uneven But Grew Stronger During Session.

Sharp Rise in United States Steel Common a Feature.

New York, May 5.—The opening movement of stock prices today was narrow and hesitating and dealing were in only moderate volume. The signs of heaviness were confined to stocks of railroads in the Eastern territory, otherwise advances were the rule. Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and American Smelting rose 1 and Amalgamated Copper and American Locomotive large fractions. International Paper preferred fell 1.

A moderate demand for both accounts developed and the list hardened slowly. Southern Pacific was in notable demand, in continuation of its rise yesterday. St. Paul, Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific, Reading, Atchison, Amalgamated Copper, American Locomotive and National Lead gained 1, Southern Pacific 1⅜, and Chicago & Alton preferred 2. Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic preferred declined 1½.

Prices continued to move slowly upward on a small volume of vusiness. Southern Pacific's gain reached 2. Louisville & Nashville, St. Louis Southern preferred, Texas & Pacific, Colorado Fuel and Central Leather 1, and the preferred 1½. Bonds were steady.

Very little business was transacted during the noon hour, but prices were on a rising scale, particularly Wabash preferred, United States Steel preferred, Brooklyn Transit and American Car, which gained a point and Pressed Steel Car preferred 2½.

Semi-stagnation prevailed in the afternoon stock market, the room traders abandoning efforts even to scalp fractions, owing to the limited movement of prices. Northwestern advanced 1½ and Chicago & Alton preferred 3. Mannattan declined 1 and Westinghouse Electric 1¼.

The market closed strong. There was profit-taking in the general list, under cover of the advance in United States Steel of 1⅛. The preferred and New York Central rose 1½ and National Lead 3. People's Gas fell 1. The market hardened again in the late dealings, Union Pacific rising to above 138.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Atlantic was the specialty today. Heavy buying appeared on the announcement that a good showing of copper had been found on section 16. The selling was scattered and the stock moved up easily. I think it will continue close to 20. North Butte is being picked up, one house having sold 1,500 in two days, and the stock is higher than when they started. Copper Range is still the favorite and room is full of buying orders in it to be executed as soon as news comes of striking the lode in the Globe shaft.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 5.—The cotton market opened steady at decline of 2 points to an advance of one point, active months being generally lower in response to cables. Immediately after the call, prices worked up to a net gain of 4@6 points on support from Wall street and during the middle of the morning was quiet and about 3 points net lower. The feature of a large Atlantic state spot house had little interest locally.

BOOKS GONE TO EUROPE

Manila and Fibre Paper Trust Discharged by Judge Lacombe.

Washington, May 5.—When the house committee investigating the wood pulp and print paper question met today a telegram was read from Herman Ridder, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, addressed to John Sharp Williams, the Democratic leader in the house, stating that Judge Lacombe in New York had discharged the Manila & Fibre Paper company, which had been brought before a grand jury and ordered to produce its books. The company claimed that its books had been given to an official who had taken them to Europe. Continuing, the telegram said:

"They (the paper company) now claim that they have done everything in their power to recover the papers. On this showing they were allowed to go free. What a farce! Our only hope is the Stevens bill."

Mr. Stafford of Wisconsin asked John Norris of New York, who took the witness stand, if he regarded that telegram as meaning that the inability to prosecute the Manila & Fibre "trust" was a failure of justice.

"Not a failure, but a serious embarrassment," replied Mr. Norris.

IS BECOMING MORE BITTER

Columbus, Ohio, May 5.—A sensation was created today preliminary to the meeting of the Democratic state convention, by the rumor that Mayor Johnson of Cleveland, Ohio, has prepared an address to the people of Ohio which he will give out this afternoon or tonight, saying that the candidacy of Former Judge Judson Harmon for governor is a trap set by enemies of W. J. Bryan to catch Bryan's friends. Johnson admitted that he had prepared an address, and said it was practically as stated. In addition, he says that the Harmon movement "is a foolish attempt on the part of the liquor interests of Ohio to plaster the whisky label all over the Democratic party and sidetrack all other important issues."

"It is time to clear the atmosphere," said Johnson. "It is foggy with deals, trickery and selfishness."

The temperance issue and an attack upon Mr. Harmon by the labor interests came with suddenness today. It is believed Mayor Johnson may be back of both, some of Harmon's friends at least declaring that the Cleveland mayor instigated them. It is charged that Harmon is supported by the liquor interests. His connection with the famous labor injunction made under Judge William H. Taft, now secretary of war, is also brought up by the labor interests. The Harmon supproters are plainly annoyed at this attack, and the fight is becoming more bitter. Harmon, however, still is far in the lead for the nomination for governor. A peculiar thing about the Harmon candidacy is that Harmon himself is not here, nor is it positively known publicly that he wants the nomination.

CALLS ON HINDS.

Gaines Gets Excited and Appeals to Parliamentarian.

Washington, May 5.—When consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill was resumed in the house today, Mr. Gaines of Tennessee offered an amendment providing for an investigation of the causes of explosions in mines located on public lands, and urged its adoption. There was considerable confusion at the time. This seemed to irritate Mr. Gaines, and he appealed to the chair for order. "Mr. Chairman, Mr. Chairman," he shouted. Mr. Watson, Indiana, who was in the chair, evidently did not hear him, and becoming exasperated, Mr. Gaines yelled to Mr. Hinds, the official parliamentarian, who is not a member of the house, to come to his relief.

"Mr. Hinds, Mr. Hinds," he cried. Mr. Watson this time heard him and loudly rapped for order. This unusual incident created general laughter.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK

Strongly Favored by President Who Hopes to See Bill Passed.

Washington, May 5. — President Roosevelt today expressed to Senator Carter of the senate committee on postoffices and post roads his earnest desire to see a postal savings bank bill become a law at this session. Senator Carter told the president he thought the bill which had been favorably reported to the senate would be taken up by that body at an early date, and that it would pass both houses and become a law without serious opposition.

MAY NOT RETURN.

Hongkong, May 5.—Sir Robert Hart, for many years inspector general of Chinese customs at Pekin, now taking a vacation, said in an interview today that he does not know if he will return to resume his old position.

China, he said, will be a great nation in spite of mistakes in the past. It was hitherto believed possible to settle disputes by an appeal to reason, but now it is deemed necessary to secure an army and navy. The customs are under native control and the feeling in favor of the exclusion of Europeans is growing.

The real ruler of China is the dowager empress, who is sincere in her efforts in the abolition of the opium traffic. It has been decided that the Tatsu Maru was not guilty of the offense of bringing arms into Macao, and she was anchored in Chinese waters because it was too shallow elsewhere. Foreigners believe that the Chinese competition in combination with the boycott, will prove weapons which will eventually injure the hand of the wielder.

BOY BELIEVED TO BE THE AGENT OF BLACK HANDS CUTS THROATS OF FIVE

DANIEL W. LAWLER,
Elected Mayor of St. Paul by a Plurality of Nearly 4,000.

Attacks Employer and Wife and Three Barber Employes.

Two of the Five Believed to be Mortally Wounded.

Gang Had Been Demanding Money of Italian Barber.

New York, May 6.—A 16-year-old boy, known only as Carmello, and employed in a barber shop in Brooklyn, early today cut the throats of his employer, Antonio Peraso, Mrs. Peraso, and three barbers while they lay asleep in Peraso's apartment at 107 Fulton street. The wounds of Peraso and his wife are believed to be mortal, while those of the three barbers are serious, but probably not fatal. The boy escaped.

The police have a theory that the boy was an agent of a Black Hand gang.

A gang had been demanding money of Peraso under threat of doing him injury, and it is believed that the blackmailers placed the boy in shop in order to punish Peraso for his refusal to satisfy their demands.

Used Scissors and Razors.

Carmello used a pair of scissors and a razor in his attack upon the barber and his employes. Frank Strafino, Michael Rebento and Joseph Macero, the three barbers, were first attacked by the boy. Strafino was awakened

A LANDSLIDE FOR LAWLER

Elected Mayor of St. Paul by Plurality of Nearly 4,000.

Betz Chosen as Comptroller and Bremer as Treasurer.

St. Paul, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Returns on mayor from all but four precincts of the city give Daniel W. Lawler a plurality of 3,881 over Joseph McKibbin for mayor.

It was a landslide for the Democratic candidate, and the result no doubt surprised even Mr. Lawler's most enthusiastic supporters, for the Democratic candidate showed exceptional strength throughout the city.

Mr. Lawler carried all but four wards by pluralities ranging from 224 in the Twelfth to 1,308 in the Fifth, and he lost the First, Seventh, Tenth and Eleventh wards by pluralities which surprised the supporters of Mr. McKibbin by their smallness.

The Democratic candidate was strong in all parts of the city and no particular section can be given credit for his election by such an exceptional vote.

The First ward gave McKibbin a plurality of only 235, the Seventh gave the Republican candidate a lead over his Democratic opponent of only 70, three precincts of the Tenth gave McKibbin a lead of 167 and three precincts of the Eleventh gave him a plurality of only 41.

For the assembly the Republicans elected Herbert P. Keller, while the Democrats elected the other eight members. For the board of aldermen the Republicans elected two members and the Democrats the remaining ten.

Louis Betz (Democrat) was elected controller and Otto Bremer (Democrat) treasurer.

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES

Being Held in Minnesota to Select County Delegates.

St. Paul, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Democratic primaries are being held throughout Minnesota today to select delegates to the county conventions, which will be held Saturday and a most strenuous contest is being waged between the Bryan and Johnson factions for the control of these county conventions, which will select delegates to the Democratic state delegate convention, which will be held in St. Paul, May 14. Both sides have been proclaiming that they will be victorious. The Johnson men claim everything in sight, while the Bryan men concede some sections of the state to their opponents.

Chairman F. A. Day of the state central committee said today: "I don't think the Bryan men will average one county to each congressional district. They will not have fifteen counties in the state at the most."

FINANCIAL DEPRESSION

Of Japan Monopolizes Attention of Capitalists Throughout Country.

Tokio, May 6.—The amelioration of the financial depression monopolizes the attention of capitalists throughout the country. The conditions are ascribed to the adoption of government measures without consulting the capitalists.

Government bonds are below 80, the standard valuation hitherto being 90. Financiers are conferring with the financial department with the object of restoring confidence.

A banker connected with the movement said to the Associated Press:

"Japan's finances do not contain an element injurious to the national credit. The prevalent feeling is due to ignorance of the actual state of the national treasury, but our debts have matured plans, the adoption of which will certainly remove suspicion, and an economic improvement will soon follow. Financiers will shortly pass a resolution which the government, I am well advised, will accept. The result of the present conference will be published in June."

REGULAR REPUBLICANS

Claim Election of Majority of Members for California Convention.

San Francisco, May 6.—Incomplete unofficial returns from most of the counties in which primaries were held yesterday show that conceding to the Lincoln-Roosevelt league the 200 delegates claimed by the leaders, the regular Republican leaders still claim a large majority of the members of the convention.

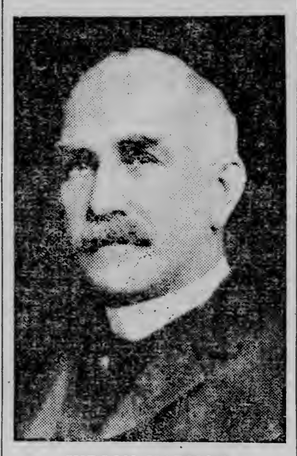
The convention will consist of 629 delegates, of which 393 are appointed by the county committees, which are mainly controlled by the men of the regular organization. Of the 236 delegates chosen at the primaries the league has apparently elected 153 in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Alameda, Sacramento and Fresno. The regular organization still claims control of the convention.

Unofficial returns of the primaries held in Southern California yesterday indicate that the Lincoln-Roosevelt Republicans have carried seven out of seventeen assembly districts south of Kern county, that the delegations will be split in five districts and that the regular Republican ticket had won in the remaining five.

A report sent in from the registrar's office showed out of votes received in 103 precincts, this result:

Roosevelt received 1,335 votes; Taft, 1,252; Hughes, 210; Scattering, 371. Total, 3,169.

EVIDENCES OF TERRIBLE CRIMES UNEARTHED ON A FARM NEAR LAPORTE, IND.



JUDSON HARMON,
Nominated for Governor by the Democrats of Ohio.

Nine Bodies Have Been Found at Burned Guinness Home.

Further Search Being Made and Others May be Discovered.

Mystery Takes Rank With the Famous Dr. Holmes Case.

Laporte, Ind., May 6.—Further excavating, which may reveal more bodies on the corpse strewn farm of Mrs. Bella Gunness, a mile north of here, was promised for today by A. F. Smutzer, sheriff of Laporte county. In addition, Roy Lamphere, who is held on a charge of having caused the deaths of Mrs. Gunness and her three children, who were incinerated in a fire which destroyed their home on April 28, will be subjected to another examination before Justice Smith. It is the hope of Mr. Smith that Lamphere will shed light on the bodies found in the barnyard of the Gunness home yesterday. One is believed to be that of Andrew Helgelein, of Mansfield, S. D. Another may be the mortal remains of Jennie Olson, a foster-daughter of Mrs. Gunness, who disappeared in 1906. A third is partially accounted for as that of an unidentified man who visited the place two or three years ago. The other skeletons, thought to be those of children, are unexplained, although Lamphere told the sheriff last night that a child had disappeared from the farm some time ago.

Sheriff Smutzer has advanced the theory that some of the bodies may have been sent here from Chicago in an effort to cover up crimes in that city. He has asked the Chicago police

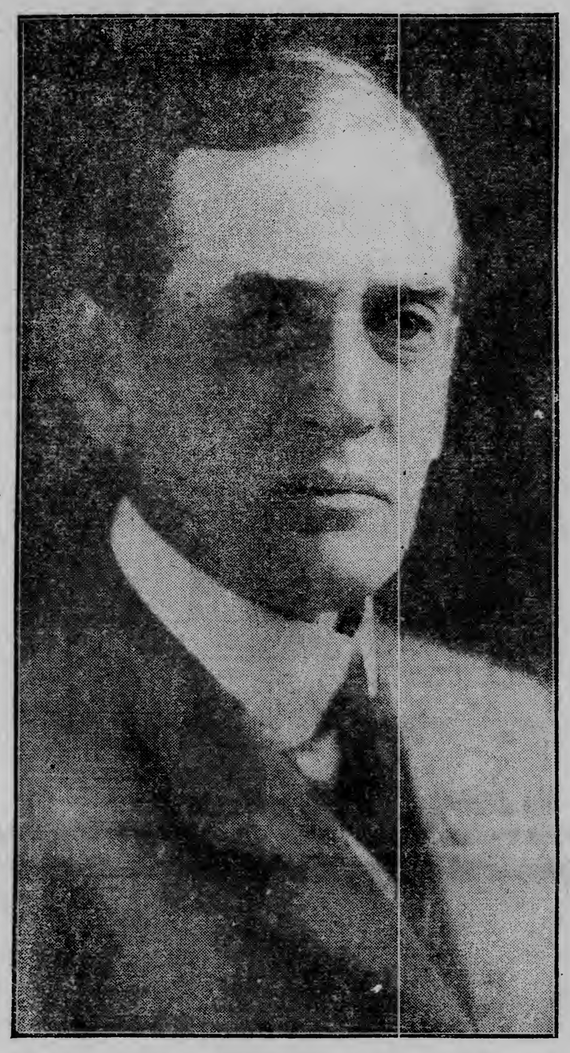
BLOW POSTOFFICE SAFE.

Yeggmen Open Strong Box at Mapleton, N. D., Getting Little.

Fargo, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—A telephone message from Mapleton reports that the safe in the postoffice there was blown open early this morning. It was located in the general store of Charles Footer and the safe as well as the interior of the store was badly wrecked. It is claimed no money was secured; but valuable papers and some goods were taken.

JAPANESE PLEASED.

Tokio, May 6.—The news of the conclusion of the arbitration treaty between the United States and Japan, has been well received, and it is believed it will remove whatever suspicion exists regarding the mutual relations of the two countries.



MINNESOTA'S CHOICE FOR PRESIDENT

JOHNSON WILL WIN

Majority of Michigan Delegates Favorable to Minnesota's Choice.

Test Ballot Shows Johnson's Drawing Power in the East.

Governor Distances Judge Gray in the North Atlantic States.

Detroit, Mich., May 6.—The Journal says: A careful estimate of the county delegations to the state convention of the Democratic party shows that it is practically certain at this time that there will be 331 votes in the convention for a non-instructed delegation to Denver, with the probability that at least fifty more will be in line at Lansing on May 20, thus assuring a delegation "open to reason," which means a delegation against Bryan and for Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota.

In the table given herewith all counties in which there is an exceptional Bryan sentiment, or about which there is no definite information, have been left out:

Chippewa, 4; Luce, 2; Mackinac, 3; Schoolcraft, 2; Gogebic, 4; Iron, 2; Keewanee, 2; Ontonagon, 2; Dickinson, 2; Menominee, 5; Delta, 2; Houghton, 5; Baraga, 2; Marquette, 3; Alger 2; Wayne, 123; Oakland, 12; Macomb, 15; Monroe, 16; Cass 12; Berrien, 19; Barry, 8; Allegan, 4; Van Buren, 6; St. Joseph, 11; Washtenaw, 19; Huron, 6; Sanilac, 4; Manistee, 8; Benzie, 2; Leelanau, 2; Wexford, 2; Ingham, 19; total, 331.

Chippewa county has already declared for an unInstructed delegation, and E. T. McDonald of the Soo, who will be one

WARSHIPS AT FRISCO

Admiral Evans Fleet of Battleships Passes the Golden Gate.

Estimated That 300,000 Strangers Are Present to Greet Them.

San Francisco, May 6.—Four months and twenty days out from Hampton Roads, the Atlantic fleet of battleships and the second American torpedo flotilla, came today within the Golden Gate, and cast anchor in the harbor of San Francisco, where a welcome characteristic of truly Western hospitality awaits them. All last night the sixteen battleships lay at anchor off the outer lightship, gently rolling in the swell of the Pacific, with the six accompanying black hulled destroyers bobbing about in a restless manner and making life uncomfortable for everybody aboard. The glow of the city's lights in the midnight sky could be plainly seen from the ships and made the officers and men alike impatient for the completion of the last leg of the originally planned cruise of the heavy squadrons.

The path to the Golden Gate lay to the eastward, while a few miles away in the wake of the long-dimmed sun the night lights of the tiny Farallon islands twinkled their domestic vigils in entire ignorance of the immediate presence of the most distinguished naval visitors ever sent to the west coast of the United States. Wireless dispatches sent from the ships to the shore during most of the long night hours told of the uneventful journey from Santa Cruz, the last stopping place, and of the preparations for the impressive entry into San Francisco bay under the glare of the noonday sun.

Passed In at Noon.

The movements of the fleet have been so timed by the navigators that the Connecticut passed within the headlands of the gateway—Point Bonita on the north and Point Lobos on the south—exactly at 12 o'clock. Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, who left the fleet after the first ten days of target practice at Magdalena bay and came to Paso Robles Hot Springs for

STREET CAR JUMPS TRACK

Several Persons Are Hurt on Interurban Line at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four persons were seriously injured last night when a St. Paul & Minneapolis interurban electric car missed a switch at Tenth and Wabasha streets. The car swerved violently and the seventy passengers in it were thrown about and all were bruised more or less. Several persons standing on the rear platform were thrown to the pavement. The seriously injured are:

Mrs. Anna Ste. Marie, 44 years of age, ribs broken; taken to St. Luke's hospital.

C. F. Rice, Judd house, Minneapolis, head, arm and hand cut.

W. Geraginty, a mail carrier, cuts on head and spine affected; taken to Cobb hospital.

John Griffith, left hand and arm cut.

WON BY NORMAN III.

August Belmont's Horse Gets 2,000 Guinea Race at Newmarket.

London, May 6.—The two thousand guinea stakes for colts and fillies foaled in 1905, was run at Newmarket today, and won by August Belmont's Norman III, by Octagon, out of Nineveh.

A. F. Bassett's Sir Archibald was second and W. Hall Walker's White Eagle was third. Seventeen horses ran.

CROPS OF WESTERN CANADA LOOK FINE.

Winnipeg, Man., May 6.—In speaking of the crops of Western Canada, Premier Roblin said that never in the past thirty-one years had he seen the wheat crops in such good condition. The weather conditions were perfect, and everything pointed to a good year. Reports from all over the country are that conditions are fine for both grain and cattle in Alberta. There is plenty of moisture in the ground and the top soil is dry enough for the grower to work on the land.

SOMERSET INN BURNS.

Bernardsville, N. J., May 6.—The Somerset Inn, a well-known summer resort near here, was destroyed by fire early today.

TURNED ON GAS JETS

Napoleon LaFrance Commits Suicide in a Rooming House.

Leaves Nothing to Indicate the Reason for His Act.

With five gas jets, the gas range and the hot water heater open and pouring their noxious fumes into the room, Napoleon LaFrance, a laborer, 50 years of age, sat down near a table in a rooming house at 1119 Michigan street some time last night and his lifeless body was found there at noon today.

The suicide occurred in a rooming house over a saloon. LaFrance was last seen last night. He went out into the kitchen and nobody noticed his absence. Today the escaping gas attracted attention, and when entrance was forced the body was found. The man had opened every available valve to allow gas to escape into the room and must have died shortly after he planned the deed.

Nothing is known of the man at the rooming house, as he had been there but a short time. His motive for taking his own life is also a mystery. The body was removed to Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms, where it wil be held, pending efforts to locate relatives.

You'll admit its wonderful merits, else it couldn't keep the reputation for thirty years of America's most reliable and surest tonic and blood remedy—Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Ask your druggist.

WIFE ROLLS ON FLOOR

Andrew Hallgren Makes Startling Charges in Divorce Action.

Claims His Wife Behaves in a Disgusting Manner.

Claiming that his wife, Jennie Hallgren, has become weak and sick in body and mind by her misconduct; that she has voluntarily associated herself with people of questionable character, who hold services where Mrs. Hallgren screeches and rolls on the floor and behaves in a disgusting manner, Andrew Hallgren makes a strong come-back at his wife in an answer to her complaint in an action for a divorce. Besides answering the charges Mrs. Hallgren made, Hallgren puts in a cross-bill for a divorce, charging cruel and inhuman treatment and wilful desertion.

Hallgren denies that he ever treated his wife cruelly, or that he compelled her to go out and work. He denies that he ever used her money to file on his homestead, but alleges that she did not help him in any way, even refusing to live on the homestead, although he built a comfortable house there. He alleges that he provided her with a good house in town, and went good at several mercantile establishments for all the goods that she might order.

Hallgren says that at the questionable services he referred to, his wife went through much frenzied actions, that people got up in disgust and left the place, and neighbors complained to the police about her.

Hallgren claims that his wife has slandered him to his neighbors, and made statements that he had been guilty of an unmentionable crime with his infant daughter. He claims that such stories are absolutely false, and told with malicious intent. He alleges that Mrs. Hallgren did everything she could to drive their children from home and for days at a time would not speak to anybody. She is accused of continually scolding, nagging and faultfinding.

Haligren denies that the Scott-Graff Lumber company owes him anything. He states that he has assigned a contract with the company, whereby he was to get $500, to Fred Erickson, the assignment taking place before the divorce action was begun.

PUBLISHER OF TOPEKA

Tells Committee of His Experience With the Paper Makers.

Washington, May 6.—The publishers of newspapers appeared today before the house committee investigating the wood pulp and print paper question.

Frank P. MacLennan, publisher of the Daily State Journal of Topeka, Kan., was the first witness. He stated that when the combination of papermakers was formed the publishers were told not to get excited, as it would result in their benefit in the end. His contract for paper at that time, he said, was $1.34 per hundred pounds at the mill. This contract, he said, ran from September, 1897, to September, 1898. When the contract expired he was unable to renew it at that price. The best figure he could get in making a new contract was $1.85 at the mill. On that and preceding contracts he had been allowed 3 per cent discount for cash, but during the last five years the prices have been net.

Company A. Enjoys a Hop.

Company A of the Third regiment gave a very enjoyable dance at the Armory last night. This was the fourth and last dance which they will give this year, and it proved quite a success.

The decorations were very artistic, and the electric globes were shaded with paper, forming a lily. The outer windows were shaded with army blankets and draped with belts together with canteens. Everything in general suggested a military ball.

The reception committee was composed of the following: Olaf Dahl, Z. Anderson, William Olson, Arthur Sahalon, Lieut. Robert Lee, Lieut. Walter Dash, Lieut. William Aronson.

AFRICAN BUSHMEN DOOMED.

Dr. Rudolf Poch to Make a Study of a Disappearing Race.

A letter received in New York from Dr. Rudolf Poch, the well known anthropologist, says:

"I am about to start under the auspices of the Imperia Academy of Sciences of Vienna for the Kalahari Desert in South Africa to make a study of the bushmen. The race is rapidly dying out and the sole purpose of my expedition is to add to our knowledge of this people before they become extinct."

The fact has been recognized for some years that this African race is destined to extinction. This is all the more remarkable because everywhere else the African races are more than holding their own, says the New York Sun.

Pestilence, war and the evils that the whites introduce are powerless to obliterate them. Africa is growing steadily in native population.

But the bushmen are now reduced to a handful and every year they are dwindling. Circumstances are too hard for them and it is not believed they could be saved even by a change in their conditions.

The bushmen inhabit the great desert of South Africa. There is no running water, and yet among the sand wastes there are depressions where the natives find water by digging, and in places it comes so near the surface that vegetation flourishes and many animals find nurture in the desert.

The bushmen are only a few inches taller than the pygmies of Central Africa. They live in rock caves or in huts of sticks and grass. They seldom wear more than a leather apron to protect their legs from thorns.

They subsist on the scant vegetation, on roots and on the animals they kill. Clubs, bows and arrows and a few spears are their only weapons. They are primitive, but they do not buy their wives, they have been faithful to those whites who have befriended them, and they paint and draw in an astonishing manner. Much has been written of the thousands of animal paintings with which they adorn the rocks and the walls of their caves.

Why do they abandon the desert to which they are confined? They could not if they would. They are hemmed around by pastoral and agricultural regions, all occupied by strong tribes, who kill them like vermin if they venture across the line.

If they were free to leave the desert it is doubtful if they would do so, for they are a hunting people, and such tribes have never voluntarily become a pastoral or an agricultural community. Whenever cattle have been given to the bushmen they have killed them, for they will not herd them.

The whites have been even more destructive of the bushmen than their native enemies. Late in the eighteenth century the Dutch used to shoot these little people as they would game. It is recorded that in the ten years ending 1n 1895 the Dutch killed 2,480 bushmen.

They have always shrunk from contact with civilization, and today, when they see white protectorates planted all around them, they are retreating further into the desert. The whites are invading the more fertile valleys, are staking out ranches and building little settlements, are killing off the game that is the hereditary food of the desert nomads, ploughing the places where the bushmen go for berries and edible roots and narrowing the area in which they can live.

They seem wholly unable to live under new conditions, and the old conditions are passing away. All who know them best say that their absolute extermination is a question of only a few years.

NATIONAL OWNERSHIP.

Edwin Markham, in Success Magazine: Competition is war, and Prof. Ross would sanction a permanent war in human affairs. This alert and searching critic points out through many pages the evils of our fifty-year franchise laws, our iniquitous tariff schedule, our excessive railway charges our grabbing of public mineral lands, our corrupt sale of canals and gas plants, our fake meat inspection, our Niagara grabs, our cynical denial of protection to labor; and yet for all this he has no cure but a public opinion, speaking through "a transfigured individualism." Surely Prof. Ross is a "dreamer," a man with a plan far more Utopian than the radicals, who demand that the nation shall own the criminal trusts. We have been trying to rule by "transfigured individualism" since the Ark was on the stocks. Pleading with the plunderer is a method that has failed since Pharaoh, the ancient monopolist, cornered the corn. Dependence upon "a transfigured individualism" has ever been the patriot's hope and his despair. The fact is that individuals, however earnest, are so intent on their private struggle for bread that they have little time for watching thieves, who make it their whole business to plunder all the people all the time. I see no way out of this state of affairs but in the gradual transfer of the great public interests and utilities out of the hands of individuals into the hands of the people. When these great interests become the people's interests, the people will be forced to look after them and direct them in the spirit of the common welfare.

USES FOR THE GYROSCOPE.

Success Magazine: Great is the gyroscope and mysterious are the wonders it performs. Plant one in the midst of a railway train and that vehicle goes balancing about the country on one rail and does the light rope act over dizzy chasms. Start one whirling in an ocean vessel and it becomes steady and respectable; the dining room table no longer kicks the chandelier and seasickness is only a troubled memory. Many an airship of uncertain habits after taking one gyroscope has become a model of propriety and right living.

If this new invention has such a steadying influence, would it not be a pity to confine its use to material things? We know a lot of newspapers that ought to have them buzzing steadily in the editorial sanctum so that they would not be rocked by every financial wind that blows. In New York there is a great orator who has talked on all sides and the top and bottom of every public question. He ought to be fitted up with a gyroscope.

There are a lot of us who should have this modern improvement installed—the statesman forever listening for the public clamor, the legislator bending and swaying with the rustle of the certified check, and wabbly clubman carolling to the breaking dawn. There should be a pocket size for life insurance directors and bank presidents to keep them steady amid other people's money. When we have everything from the ship of state to the vernal equinox fitted up with gyroscopes, what a safe, sane and conservative universe it will be!

FREEDOM SHORT-LIVED.

Deer Ordered Released From Captivity, Killed by Dogs.

Ewen, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ordered released by a deputy game warden, only to be run down by dogs and killed, was the fate of a yearling deer captured by Fred Lauterman of Marenisco, Gogebic county. The animal had attempted to swim the nearby river, but the current was too swift and when the deer had been corralled by Lauterman it was exhausted. The deer was penned up, but had no sooner been set at liberty at command of the warden, than a canine pack took after it and shortly had it run to earth, fairly tearing it to pieces before being driven off.

HOW THIRD TERM GAME IS PLAYED

Wellman's Idea of How Roosevelt May be Renominated.

Chicago, May 6.—Walter Wellman says in the Record-Herald: It is the expected that has happened. There is now a distinct revival of talk of nominating President Roosevelt for another term. When we say it was expected we mean that it was looked for by every man who understands American politics, including President Roosevelt himself. Those who thought the president's reiteration of his earlier statement that he was not a candidate would for all time put a stop to talk of him as a possible nominee, were mistaken.

Unless the president changes his mind the convention will meet without any further word from him.

And what will happen then? It is just now a favorite idea with many political writers and the men who are interviewed for publication that the convention will stampede for Roosevelt; that some man with a grievance will start a hurrah for the president and that the convenation will lose its head and in a tremendous wave of enthusiasm give the nomination to the president by acclamation. Or that, if this does not happen, during the first ballot some delegation or delegations will start voting for Roosevelt, others will follow and in a few moments the convention will be in indescribable uproar and excitement as delegation after delegation rushes to join the movement, till the nomination of the president is achieved in a frenzied outburst.

MARINE NEWS

WORKMEN PLENTIFUL

Engineers Have No Trouble Filling Out Their Crews.

Executive Committee of Lake Carriers Meeting in Cleveland.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Lake Carriers' association will be held at Cleveland today, when the matters to be brought before the meeting of the vessel owners next Tuesday will be discussed. President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers believes that June 1 is the earliest date which should be considered for the opening of general navigation and it is believed the vessel owners will agree with him, thus insuring another month of quietness on the lakes.

The "open shop" policy of the Lake Carriers, which, it was thought, might cause a stir in marine circles, has not so much as raised a ripple among the marine men in Duluth and Superior. Engineers, who are engaged in fitting out their boats, find no trouble in picking up able seamen, members of the union, who are not averse to signing up as individuals, without the sanction of the union officers.

The heads of the different marine workers' organizations are in lower lake ports and they have practically allowed the men at the Head of the Lakes to follow their own judgment. That judgment dictates taking a job wherever it is offered and no trouble will be experienced in securing full crews when all of the boats get into action. The unsettled condition of navigation and the evident disinclination of owners to put their boats in operation any earlier than June 1 has made the unions see that an unusually short season would be further shortened by a strike, which would very likely avail them nothing and be damaging to their cause.

FIRST LUMBER CARGO.

Steamer J. D. Marshall Clears for Buffalo With Lumber.

Instead of the Adelia Shores, which was loading at the Red Cliff dock, the J. L. Marshall had the distinction of taking the first cargo of lumber out of the Duluth-Superior harbor for lower lake ports. She departed at 6 o'clock last night. None of the big lumber carrying lines have put their boats in commission yet and the lumber trade will be tied up until the Lake Carriers decide on a general movement.

ONTONAGON HARBOR.

Some Corrections in the First Report of the Survey.

There were several errors in the first published report of the survey of the Ontonagon, Mich., harbor, made under direction of Major Graham D. Fitch. The survey showed a thirteen foot channel from the lake through the entrance and up to the Commercial dock. The best course for a vessel to follow is to run to about fifty feet east of the west pier, until it reaches a point about 600 feet north of the south end of the piers, when it should turn for the dock. On the west side of the harbor at the lumber dock there is less water, on account of some shoaling which has collected since the survey was made last year, so there is no more than eight or nine feet of water available at this point. A survey also has been made of the Port Wing harbor, which shows that no shoaling of any importance has gathered since the last survey of a year ago. There is fourteen or fifteen feet of water from the lake through the entrance, and twelve two thirteen feet up the lumber dock channel, for a distance of 600 feet, to a point opposite the merchandise dock. Above this the river is obstructed, and no soundings were taken.

Notice has been received at the freight departments of the local railroads from the chairman of the Chicago & Ohio river committee that the rate from Chicago and Chicago Junction points to Louisville, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and other Ohio river points has been advanced, and in order to maintain their local tariff between here and Chicago on the same commody it will be necessary for the Chicago-St. Paul lines to advance the rate on through shipments, making the rate charged for shipping to Cincinnati 17 cents and that to Indianapolis 15 cents.

New York, May 6.—Traffic officials of the eastern railroads were in conference at the trunk line association offices in this city today with representatives of the western roads to discuss the freight rate increases which the railroads in the trunk line territory have practically agreed to put into effect as soon as the necessary schedules can be made out and other details adjusted.

At the conclusion of the conference it was said on good authority that progress had been made in the movement toward freight rate increases but no final conclusions had been reached.

It was brought out that the earliest date at which those who attended the conference expect to be able to put the new rates into effect is Oct. 1 next.

ON THE IRON RANGES

CEMETERY WALK THAT WILL LAST

The Virginia Council Will Probably Favor Constructing Cement One.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor Hawkinson made a suggestion to the council last night that instead of building a board sidewalk to the cemetery, which would need replacing in a few years, as well as being a constant bill of expense for repairs the city should construct a gravel one such as is seen in the parks of many cities throughout the country. The idea found much favor with the councilmen, with the result that the matter was again referred to the street and alley committee and the city engineer for a report. The Northside Realty company, which owns the new addition to Virginia recently platted, offered to pay for the cost of crosswalks if the sidewalk is constructed along the north side of the Mountain Iron road, instead of the south side.

The council ordered a drinking fountain to be placed on Wyoming avenue, near Chestnut street.

Residents of the locality asked for an arc lamp at the corner of Virginia avenue and Hickory street, also for a new sidewalk.

The report for April of Municipal Judge Carey showed $167 in fines collected during the month.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $3,108.45 cash on hand in all funds, with but $24 in the general fund.

The contract for constructing a cement sidewalk, curb and gutter around the city hall building, was let to Charles A Johnson, the only bidder, at 25 cents per square foot for the walk and $1.10 per lineal foot for the curb and gutter.

Sidewalks were ordered laid on the east side of Mesaba avenue between Walnut and Balsam streets and on the south side of Spruce street, between Mesaba and Railroad avenues.

The new ordinance relating to the licensing of dogs received its third reading and was passed. The ordinance establishing a public pound was read for the second time. The mayor was asked to appoint a man to keep the cows out of people's yards until the new pound is ready.

STEEL RAILS LAID.

Increased Track Facilities Furnished the Fayal Mine.

Eveleth, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The work of putting in the new steel rails at the Fayal mine from the entrance of the Duluth & Iron Range tracks to the foot of the hill is now completed. The new rails were placed on the double track.

A force of men is at work back of the Missabe depot filling up the cave in that recently occurred there. Trains are not allowed to back in to the end of the track on account of the dangerous condition of the land back of the depot, caused by the underground work in the Spruce mines.

The idea of the city building the sewer along Monroe street has been put off for a while, as the underground mine is near the place that is to be dug out, and a cave in would spoil all the sewer work.

INFIDELITY CHARGED.

Former Biwabik Woman Sues Her Husband for a Divorce.

Butte, Mont., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ida Anderson has begun a suit in the district court here to secure a divorce from Axel Anderson. The plaintiff claims her husband was untrue to her and lived with another woman at Salt Lake for a time. She asks for the custody of her 5-year-old child. The parties were married at Biwabik, Minn., in April, 1901.

GILBERT'S BUILDING BOOM IS STILL ON.

Eveleth, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Buildings are being erected rapidly at Gilbert as many of the owners intend to occupy their buildings this summer. Sidewalks are being laid from the end of Minnesota avenue up to Broadway and on both sides of Broadway. They are of wood and are fourteen feet wide. The work is being done under the direction of Street Commissioner John Carl. The cost will be charged up to the property owners.

Meanwhile the streets are being graded and trenches are being dug in those places that are still in need of sidewalks, so that the work can proceed regularly.

Wires are being laid for the reinforcement of the concrete in those parts of the Bailey block still uncompleted. As soon as weather permits the work of putting in the concrete will commence. This is the only concrete building at Gilbert, the rest are frame.

BUY OR REMOVE SPARTA.

That is Proposition Before United States Steel Corporation.

Sparta, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—At an early date the finance committee of the United States Steel corporation in New York city will have laid bfore it the proposition of buying the buildings and other improvements of this place at a fair valuation or bear the expense of moving everything off the townsite that mining may be carried on underneath the townsite. Representative John Saari, who was delegated by the business men to lay the matter before General Secretary Pentecost Mitchell of the Oliver Mining company and ascertain what the company proposed to do has learned from Mr. Mitchell that a representative of the steel trust will be here in a few days and look over the situation with a view of making a report to the head officers favoring either purchase or removal.

Mr. Mitchell said that after the representative of the United States Steel corporation had made an agreement with Sparta, the matter must be laid before the financial committee of the corporation in New York city for final ratification before any definite action could be taken.

RANGE FIREMEN ORGANIZE.

Five Towns Represented at Meeting Held at Sparta.

Sparta, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Five towns of the Mesaba range, Gilbert, Sparta, Mountain Iron, Biwabik and Aurora were represented at the meeting held here at which the Mesaba Range Volunteer Firemen's association was formed. Some rivalry between Biwabik and Aurora developed over the selection of the place for the first annual tournament, Biwabik finally winning. The tournament will be held Aug. 11 and 12. Many other range towns will be represented at the tournament.

A. L. Myers of Biwabik was elected temporary chairman of the meeting and W. L. Sullivan of Biwabik secretary. A meeting of the secretary and the chiefs of all the range towns interested will be held at Sparta May 17 to agree upon the events of the tournament and the prizes. There will be no cash prizes.

The officers elected to serve till the regular annual meeting, which will be held during the tournament, are as follows: Peter Cosgrove, Sparta, president; August Knuiti, Aurora, vice president; E. A. Kohn, Biwabik, secretary; A. L. Myers, Biwabik, treasurer.

The rules of the tournament as agreed upon today provide that no fancy apparatus shall be used in the tournament, but simply the regular fire fighting outfits.

CHARGE FOR WATER.

Biwabik, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—After having had test water meters in service in sevral places for some time the village trustees have decided to charge everyone for water as soon as th ntrs can b installed. At a meeting to be held tonight some definite form of action will probably be decided upon.

Meters have been operated in a number of private and public buildings for some time to determine the amount of water actually consumed, and the trustees will base the rate upon this to some extent. Eventually it is planned to put everybody on the meter rate, but it is not possible to do so at this time, as there are many of the houses in which the water service has not been placed.

SETTLEMENT EFFECTED.

Eveleth, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chief Kent returned yesterday morning from Eau Claire where he went Saturday to get Mr. French, wanted here for securing money illegally. He returned without the prisoner, as a settlement had been made.

At a meeting of the members of the congregation, held Sunday evening at the residence of Dr. C. W. Bray, it was voted to have the minister devote his entire time to Biwabik, foregoing any missionary work.

EVELETH'S MAYOR USES VETO POWER

Mrs. Maxwell Loses Street Cleaning Contract; Other Council Doings.

Eveleth, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor Smith exercised his right to veto council proceedings for the first time last night, when he refused to approve the contract with Mrs. Mike Maxwell for cleaning the streets. The council then awarded the contract to Zaccheus Lapl, who had the lowest bid in at $1,149.98. The bond for the work was set at $1,500.

Upon the suggestion of Supt. Lister of the telephone company, the council ordered the company to put up an eight-inch gong in the center of the town, so that the people can get a policeman when needed. The city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for two scales, one to be placed at the pumping station and the other at the city hall.

It was decided to secure another paid man for the fire department, at a salary of $60 per month. A communication was read from the secretary of the State Firemen's association, asking the council to send some delegates to their annual meeting at Mankato, June 9-10. The chief of the fire department will be sent.

Six new cement blocks will soon be constructed, twelve feet wide, as the council has ordered personal notices to be served on the property owners on the designated streets to have the sidewalks put in within two weeks.

Reports were read for the month from the city attorney, chief of police and the street commissioner. The report of the water department showed it to be about $1,000 ahead. Salaries and bills for the month of April were approved. A reel will be ordered to be placed at the top of the hill, near the water plant, so that the hose can be run up and down easily.

Mr. Grae of the Humane society was present, and asked the council to appropriate some money for the work, as he said without the help of the council, no humane work could be done on the range.

On Alderman Hatch's motion, the council appropriated $200 for this purpose for the year 1908, to be taken from the current expense fund.

COAL STEALING ROW.

Saloon Man's "Swamper" and Others Get Into Trouble.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the result of an alleged attempt on the part of a "swamper" at the saloon of Lampi & Aho to "swipe" some coal from the premises of Mark Eddy, the coal dealer, one of the proprietors of the saloon is wearing his head swathed in bandages. It is claimed that the man went out the back way after coal and was proceeding to help himself from Eddy's coal box when Albert Eddy and Bob Benson interfered. Soon the original one in the trouble was joined by Mr. Aho, one of the proprietors of the saloon, and the latter had no sooner shoved his head out the back door than he received several raps thereon, presumably from a broken beer bottle, as he received three bad cuts, one over the left eye, another under the eye and a big gash along the jaw. The Finlanders were rapidly getting the best of the argument and had driven young Eddy into the barn when the police arrived. Aho was taken to the Lenont hospital to have his wounds dressed while the other Finlander, Benson and a bystander who had witnessed the affair were placed in jail, the latter as a witness. These including Albert Eddy were arraigned in municipal court yesterday afternoon for a hearing, which was adjourned until tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

VIRGINIANS AGGRIEVED OVER MILITIA MATTER.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The news from Hibbing stating that a militia company is to be organized in Hibbing seems rather peculiar to the young men in Virginia, who recently made application for permission to organize a company and were informed by Adjt. Gen. Wood that no vacancy now exists in the national guard and hence no company could be organized. It appears rather strange to these young men, also, that letters written since that time to the adjutant general remain unanswered. They consider that it would be an injustice if Hibbing should be permitted to organize a company of state militia after Virginia had been denied that privilege, although the application from this city was in long previous to that of Hibbing. It is claimed here that a vacancy in the national guard does actually exist at this time notwithstanding the adjutant's letter.

BONDS FOR SUPPORT.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prof. A. Kraft, a local musician, was arrested yesterday on a charge of non-support sworn out by his wife. He was brought before the municipal court yesterday afternoon and settled the case by giving bonds to guarantee that he would pay his wife $25 monthly.

HIBBING BUYS SITE.

Corner of Center and Second Avenue for City Hall.

Hibbing, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last night authorized the committee on the new city hall to purchase the 25-foot lot adjoining the 50-foot lot the city already owns on the corner of Second avenue and Center street for a location for the new city hall. The papers are being prepared today and the deal will probably be closed for about $2,500. While the plans for the new building have not been decided upon it is expected it will be three stories high, 75x125 feet. The council by resolution pledged the city to provide an armory for the new militia company which insures the new company all right. These bids were opened for digging the city well 100 feet deeper, it being 200 feet deep already:

Edward Aura and Charles Aura, $24 per foot; Isador Boradi, $22 per foot; Joseph Thomas, $13 per foot for the first 50 feet and $17 per foot for the remaining 50 feet; Peter Beasy, $20 per foot; Santini Pagliarano, $21.50 per foot. The lowest bid was rejected, not complying with the specifications, and the other bids were laid over until the next meeting to give the council an opportunity to investigate further.

A resolution was passed appointing Robert Stratton village attorney, his services beginning May 5 at $100 per month.

The village recorder was instructed to advertise for bids for the contract to furnish the city with 6000 tons of Youghiogheny screened coal.

FITGER BUYS INTEREST.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Albert Olson has sold his undivided half interest in the Svea hotel of this city to the Johnstown Realty company. In the record the consideration is given as $1, therefore the exact amount is unknown, but it is understood to have been a high price. The Johnstown Realty company is controlled by the Fitger Brewing company. The other half of the property is owned by Gust Johnson, who conducts the hotel.

Albert Severson, son of Mrs. A. N. Anderson, who resides north of Mount Iron, died Monday morning of consumption, aged 18 years and 7 months. GASOLINE BURNS, DAMAGING DOCK

Exciting Time When Burning Liquid Floats Over Harbor.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city fire department was called out Monday afternoon by a fire which started on one of the gasoline boats in the harbor. A leaking barrel of gasoline and an over-heated engine started the combustion. Luckily the barrel did not explode but enough leaked out and spread on the water and with the boat blown by the wind against No. 1 ore dock so as to slightly endanger that structure, some timbers catching fire. The tug Edna G., with her powerful fire pump was on hand promptly to extinguish the fire and forced the launch back against the shore, where it was secured by the city firemen. The boat was filled with water and sunk in shallow water to prevent its complete destruction by the flames. Another barrel of gasoline was in the boat but did not catch fire. The damage was comparatively small. The boat was owned by two fishermen who live down the shore.

The World's Best Spring Tonic and Stimulant

Doctors of All Schools Agree That the Best Tonic-Stimulant to Build Up the System, Run Down and Enfeebled by the Long Strain of Winter, and to Drive Out Spring Fever and Malaria is Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

We take the liberty of publishing a few of the thousands of letters received from leading doctors throughout America extolling the merits of this great Spring tonic and invigorator.

Effective Stimulant.

In a recent letter A. J. Park, A. M., M. D., of 520 East Fiftieth street, Chicago, Ill., wrote: "I am too busy to write my opinion, experience and results of the ministration of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey to weak, feeble and debilitated patients, but I will repeat emphatically and pointedly my confidence in the purity and remedial excellence of your Malt Whiskey. It is a first-class and most effective stimulant and meets every indication where a stimulant is needed.

"I will always greet Mr. Duffy with a smile and a cordial reception from a grateful recognition of his transcendent merits."

Wholesome Tonic Stimulant.

C. A. Sheridan, M. D., Oswego, N. Y., recently wrote: "I take pleasure in recommending Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey to the medical profession, as it fills a long felt want in the treating of our patients.

"There is a demand for a pure and wholesome tonic stimulant. Such we have in this whiskey. I have prescribed Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for years and always found it uniform as well as satisfactory.

A Remarkable Medicine.

Recently F. D. McQueeny, M. D., of 226 Southbridge street, Worcester, Mass., wrote: "I am pleased to add my endorsement to those of many other local physicians, whose experience in the use of your product has led them to recommend it as being exactly fitted for medical purposes. I have obtained very pleasing results in cases where Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been used, and gladly mention the fact, trusting your preparation will become generally recognized as a truly remarkable medicine and not as a beverage."

Prescribes It.

K. M. Teigan, Ph. D., M. D., of 1120 Twenty-sixth avenue north, Minneapolis, Minn., wrote in a recent letter: "During the last nineteen years I have frequently, when alcoholic stimulants have been indicated, prescribed Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for my patients, because it agrees with them better than any other. IRON LANDS PURCHASED Oliver Company Takes Large Holdings in the Baraboo District.

Will Begin the Sinking of Shafts at Early Date.

Baraboo, Wis., May 6.—The Oliver Iron Mining company has taken over all the lands on the Baraboo range, in South Central Wisconsin, that have been in part explored by Messrs. La Rue and Whitesides of Duluth, except such as the latter had disposed of some time ago to the International Harvester company and to Rogers, Brown & Co. This deal was closed after a long examination and exploration by the Oliver company, in which it was found the ore lenses wide and long and persistent.

The iron ore deposits of this district lie wholly in the iron bearing member of the Freedom formation, which member has a thickness of some five hundred feet, with a gray slate below and a dolomite above, while beneath the slate is a quartzite, quite similar to that of the Lake Superior region. This quartzite forms a trough, and the development of the iron deposit has been along the exposed southern edge. The iron bearing member is a continuous formation and extends many miles along the valley, so that its possibilities of ore are tremendous. Indeed, it is certain that a vast tonnage will be mined there, of varying grades of ore, some of which may not now be available.

The Oliver Iron Mining company, in its lease, has agreed to take up the work of development at once, and will begin the sinking of working shafts at an early date, in preparation for mining ore the coming year.

The district is some two hundred miles from the new steel town of Gary, and is reached from there by the Chicago & Northwestern road for about one hundred miles of the way, and the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern, belonging to the United States Steel corporation, for the remaining distance.

WHIPPED BY PAPA, BUT GOT THE GIRL

How a Young Couple in Iowa Outwitted Stern Parent.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 6.—Horsewhipped by his sweetheart's father when he approached the old gentleman and asked for his daughter's hand, Roy Fox of Nashua, employed strategy and carried off pretty Elizabeth Swaine whether Papa Swaine would or no.

This is the romance which has lovers all over Iowa chattering delightedly. For young Fox has set an example that many another lover who is scorned by his fiance's father may think it worth while to follow.

Herman Swaine is a rich old farmer near Nashua. His daughter, Elizabeth, is 18 and pretty as a picture. For some months, Roy Fox, a stalwart young farmer boy, has been courting her. He knew her father objected and he did his courting on the sly.

About ten days ago, young Fox secured a license for his marriage to Miss Swaine. Then he drove to the Swaine home, where he and the brideelect had agreed they would be married—if papa would stand for it. The young man had decided to beard the lion and he strode bravely up to the old gentleman, who was working in the barn.

"Marry you? Never. Get out of my sight," yelled the old gentleman, as he flew into a towering rage and grabbed the nearest buggy whip. Slash, he struck the young man across the shoulder. Swish, he hit him across the legs.

Fox ran for his own buggy, but the old man followed him and thrashed him after he had mounted.

Fox went to Charles City to have Swaine arrested, but changed his mind. Then he got word to Elizabeth and the two planned an elopement.

Sunday night a young man called to take the young lady driving. There seemed no objections and Miss Swaine got in and drove away. Down the road a half mile stood Fox. Quickly the girl stepped from one rig into that of her lover, young Fox crackled his buggy whip and away they sped to the parson's, where they were married, using the same license that Fox had purchased several days before.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

John Mattes, a saloonkeeper of Decatur, Ill., despondent because local option closed his place of business and because of ill health, shot and killed himself on a train while returning from Danville Tuesday.

Governor Harris late Tuesday afternoon ordered out the troops to go to the Ohio Tobacco District. Troop B of Columbus was ordered to proceed at once to the district. Martial law was declared in Brown county.

Miss Pauline Leroy French, daughter of Amos French, and sister of Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, was married at St. Johns' church, Newport, Tuesday to Samuel G. Wagstaff. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles A. Beatty.

HELP FOND DU LAC PLAN.

Carlton County Forest Reserve Favored by Public Lands Committee

Washington, May 6.—The house committee on public lands has ordered a favorable report on Senator Clapp's bill for the creation of a forest reserve of about 2,000 acres in Carlton county, which is now part of the Fond du Lac Indian reservation.

Representative Volstead has secured an agreement with Chairman Mondell of the public lands committee, by which Mondell will call up the Minnesota drainage bill as soon as the sundry civil bill is put through the house.

Mr. Volstead and Senator Clapp have agreed upon amendments to the bill and they will be concurred in by the senate, thus saving a conference on the bill.

JOHNSON WILL WIN

of the delegates to Denver from the Twelfth district, has openly declared that he will work at Lansing for a free delegation. Men friendly to Governor Johnson have been extremely busy within the past few weeks, and the action of Chippewa county will be followed by the other counties of the upper peninsula. The possible exceptions are Mackinac and Menominee counties. In the former, William P. Preston is laboring to line up a Bryan delegation and Bryan workers are also busy in Menominee, but the antis will control the district convention and will elect non-instructed delegates.

The Twelfth district will have forty-two votes in the state convention. The Wayne delegation will be uninstructed, not because the leaders here are against Bryan but because of the pledge given the upstate Democrats that the local contingent will stand on whatever platform is adopted by a majority of the delegates from the remainder of the state.

Johnson Sentiment.

Macomb county demonstrated the sentiment there Saturday when it refused to instruct its delegation to the state convention and indorsed Judge Tucker of Mt. Clemens, a Johnson man, for delegate from the Seventh district. The sentiment in Huron and Sanilac is also for Johnson and this is a practical surety that the Seventh district will declare for an uninstructed delegation.

There is much anti-Bryan sentiment in Oakland county and it will follow this lead, as will Monroe, where ex-Lieut.-Governor Strong is the dominant influence and is an out-and-out Johnson adherent.

Much quiet work has been done through the Fourth congressional district for Johnson, or rather, against Bryan, and information from there makes it certain that Cass, Berrien, Barry, Allegan, Van Buren and St. Joseph will also send delegates to Lansing who will be against instructions.

Up in the Ninth district the sentiment is divided. Both sides are claiming Muskegon and Mason, but it is pretty certain that irrespective of what the other counties do, Manistee, Leelanau, Wexford and Benzie will not be for instructions.

Washtenaw has been passive, but around Ann Arbor the opinion is that it will be against Bryan.

Ingham county is certain to follow this lead. Lawton T. Hemans declared months ago that he was for Harmon for president rather than Bryan and now that Harmon is out of the race he leans toward Johnson. While he is taking little active part in controlling the county convention he will be against instructions, standing with L. E. Rowley, who is for Johnson.

Claims are also made that many other counties are lining up with Johnson and against Bryan, but they do not come with a definiteness which merits attention. The state convention is two weeks away. It will consist of 674 delegates, 337 are necessary to a choice. It will be a great battle at Lansing.

COMING JOHNSON'S WAY.

Edward W. Murphy Finds Plenty of Sentiment for Governor in South.

Chicago, May 6.—Edward W. Murphy of Minneapolis was in Chicago yesterday with Mrs. Murphy, on his way home from Hot Springs, Ark., where he has been taking a three weeks' vacation.

"I lived at the Arlington hotel," said Mr. Murphy, "and the big house was full of Southern people and Johnson talk. Nobody but Johnson was talked of or thought of by them. The hotel corridors and verandas rang all day long with talk of 'Johnson of Minnesota' and how sure the Democratic party would be of victory next November if the Denver convention would have sense enough to nominate Johnson.

"Another thing that is worthy of notice is the steady progress of Johnson sentiment everywhere. People who were for Bryan a month ago are now wavering and people who were wavering are now for Johnson. It is in the air. I really believe that our governor will be nominated at Denver."

JOHNSON STRONG SECOND.

As Second Choice He Leads Bryan on Test Ballot.

Chicago, May 6.—Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota is a strong second for the presidential nomination by the Democratic national convention in the North Atlantic states, according to a test ballot made by the Chicago Tribune. The test ballot, embracing the states of Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont and West Virginia, shows the following results on the first choice for president:

Bryan, 371; J. A. Johnson, 162; Gray, 75; Douglas, 14; Folk, 10; Harmon, 9; T. L. Johnson, 3; Culberson, 2; Daniel, 1.

This represents the exact situation as given by the ballot sent to active Democratic workers in the twelve Northeastern states. There, if anywhere, Mr. Bryan should find a distinctly unfriendly sentiment. It was this section he used to call "the enemy's country" and later comparisons will show that it is still deserving the same name so far as he is concerned.

Proves Revolt Against Bryan.

The summary just given indicates that Mr. Bryan has more votes as first choice for president than all the other candidates put together, but it may be said that his lead in other parts of the country is much larger than this.

The results of the ballot, taken state by state, show that Governor Johnson has something more than twice as many votes as Judge Gray of Delaware in the states where conservatism is supposed to rule Democrats as well as Republicans.

Taking up the Johnson vote in the northeastern states reference to the table will show that Mr. Bryan has only a little more than twice as many votes as the Minnesota governor.

This would be a big lead under ordinary circumstances, but it so happens that Johnson's vote in the northeast part of the country taken with that of Judge Gray, seems to express a decided revolt against Bryan, which is more pronounced in that section than anywhere else.

Johnson Strong Second Choice.

In Maine the Minnesota governor received more votes than Bryan himself for first choice, and he follows along with the peerless leader throughout the East in a surprising fashion. To understand the Johnson strength it is necessary to go into the second choice in the Northeastern section. The forecast shows up this second choice list as follows:

Johnson, 157; Bryan, 103; Gray, 87; T. L. Johnson, 42; Folk, 36; Douglas, 32; Harmon, 26; Culberson, 16; Smith, 5; Williams, 3; Daniel, 1.

It will be observed in this that while Bryan had as many votes as all the others for first choice, and is mentioned freely for second choice, there is a decided undercurrent all the time for other candidates.

Taking the sum of the first and second choices it will be found that Bryan has only 474 as against 481 for Johnson and Gray.

Want Alabama Delegation.

The Johnson boomers at the Grand Pacific hotel announce they are getting ready to make a real fight. Up to date they had been keeping quiet, striving for uninstructed delegates, and waiting for a stampede at the Denver convention, but now they are going out after some delegates of their own.

The state they intend to invade is Alabama. They have received information that this state is not so wedded to Bryan as is claimed, and a vigorous Johnson movement there might bring forth results.

SENATOR NELSON MAY NOT OPPOSE PURDY.

Washington, May 6.—Although Senator Nelson of Minnesota has said nothing to indicate what his policy will be with regard to the appointment of M. D. Purdy to be district judge in Minnesota, there is a growing belief that he will not stand in the way of confirmation. The best guess at this time is that he will let the appointment stay in the committee for the present and bring it out with a favorable report in time for confirmation before adjournment.

Should he fail to do this, it is understood that the president will give Mr. Purdy a recess appointment immediately following the end of the session. There are strong reasons for believing that several prominent people in Minnesota have let Senator Nelson know that, in their opinion, he would not be justified in standing out against the confirmation of Mr. Purdy. This advice has come from men who are his personal and political friends, and who have nothing in view excepting that which will be for the ultimate good of all concerned.

BIG LOG DRIVE.

Many Million Feet Belonging to Irvine Company Boomed.

Bemidji, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—A drive of logs of the J. A. Irvine company at Pine Island have been taken from Pine Island down the Tamarack river to Red Lake and is now boomed in the upper arm of the big lake.

There are 12,000,000 feet of logs in the drive and they were brought down from Pine Island under the supervision of John Meyer of this city.

The logs will be towed across Red Lake by steamer and driven down the Red Lake river to Thief River Falls, where they will be sawed into lumber.

HOLD TWO SUSPECTS, OTHERS ARE RELEASED.

Warren, Minn., May 6.—The authorities have released five of the Stephen bank robbery suspects, holding J. E. Raymond, alias Joe Zalinsky and James Nolan.

The St. Paul police department says that Nolan is a well known yeggman, who has been operating in the East, and that his photo adorns the rogues' gallaries of nearly every large city. His true name is A. Blanchard and he sometimes is known as A. Morris.

Twin City detectives are working up a chain of evidence against these two men and are confident they will be able to send them to Stillwater.

LAMBRECHT CASE IS UNDER ADVISEMENT.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 6.—No decision has been made by Judge Templeton of the district court in the matter of the application of James Lambrecht of Fargo for a writ of habeas corpus. The case was argued before Judge Templeton Monday afternoon, he taking the matter under advisement.

BAD ONES IN FARGO.

Three Evidences of Yeggmen in Twenty-Four Hours.

Fargo, N. D., May 6.—A safe blown, a street car held up and robbed and a residence entered was a summary of crimes committed in Fargo in twenty-four hours. There is every indication that an exceptionally desperate gang has invaded the city.

Most daring was the robbery of a street car at the terminal of the Sacred Heart academy line at 11:30 Monday night. The robbers sprang from among some trees when Conductor Carlson was swinging his trolley pole for the return trip. Only the company's money was demanded, the watches and valuables of the crew being passed. A total of $9.55 was secured.

One of the robbers took command of the car, with a cocked revolver in hand, and commanded the crew to run towards the city two blocks. He then jumped off, while another robber disappeared in the opposite direction.

The safe of the Washburn Lignite Coal company's office was shattered Sunday morning, but not a cent was obtained. The home of I. P. Clapp on the south side of the city was entered by a burglar at 4 a. m. Tuesday. His presence was discovered and he was chased from the place, leaving his shoes and coat behind. The police on both sides of the river are exerting every effort to catch the desperados.

NEW YORK MILLS MAN DECAPITATED BY TRAIN.

New York Mills, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Isaac Mills, an old resident of this vicinity was run over and killed by a Northern Pacific freight train Monday. His body was horribly mangled and his head was found some distance from the track. It is not known how he happened to be on the track. He had been picking stones off his land.

ENDS HIS SUFFERING.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 6.—C. H. Johnson, aged 76, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart yesterday afternoon in Montgomery hospital. He has been ill for some time.

OPERA HOUSE DESTROYED.

Jefferson, S. D., May 6.—Fire of unknown origin Tuesday destroyed the opera house block, with a total loss of $10,000. The building was owned by J. D. Fosnean. His loss was $7,000, with insurance of $4,000. Ed Deranleau's pool hall sustained a loss of $3,000. Appeal was made to the Sioux City fire department for help, but the flames had run their course before arrangements could be made to ship fire-fighting apparatus up here.

PRESENTS SHADE TREES.

Stult Ste. Marie, Mich., May 6.—Chase S. Osborn has added to his many gifts to the city by informing the council that he would give 2,000 shade trees to the Soo, 1,000 this year and the rest next year, to be used in beautifying public places. This will provide trees for every street in town.

YANKTON WELCOMES SCHLEY.

Yankton, S. D., May 6.—Admiral and Mrs. W. S. Schley have reached Yankton, and will be the guests of the city and Oriental Consistory until Friday morning. Although a gentle spring rain prevailed when the admiral's train arrived via the Milwaukee, he was accorded a splendid reception, in which the military and civic bodies of the city took part, and made up a procession that extended over half a mile.

NEW CITY HALL BEATEN.

Bismarck, N. D., May 6.—The proposition to bond the city of Bismarck for a $20,000 city hall was defeated at the polls here Monday by a majority of about forty votes. Three wards voted in favor of the proposition and three against.

STARTS MAGAZINE.

Royalton, Minn., May 6.—Harold Knitsen, former editor of the Banner, has formed a partnership with R. K. Carnes of this town and started a monthly magazine called "The Land Market." It is especially intended for real estate dealers, as it deals only with the buying and selling of land.

HARMON IS NOMINATED

Chosen by Ohio Democrats as Candidate for Governor.

Tom Johnson's Candidate Falls Short From the Start.

Columbus, Ohio, May 6.—The Democratic state convention to nominate a full state ticket and delegates-at-large to the national convention met here today. The convention was called to order by Temporary Chairman Ed H. Moore of Youngstown.

The defeat of Mayor Tom L. Johnson last night did not discourage him and he announced today that he would carry the fight against Judson Harmon of Cincinnati, scheduled for nomination for governor by a faction of the party, to the floor of the convention. Johnson's attack upon Harmon provoked the latter and he telephoned Michael Devanney from Cincinnati that he was determined to win the nomination for governor if possible and that he is in the race to stay until the last ballot.

When the report of the resolutions committee was presented it was adopted unanimously without discussion. The nomination of candidates was next in order.

Mayor Tom L. Johnson nominated Atlee Pomerene of Canton for governor.

Alfred Cohan of Cincinnati nominated Judson Harmon of Cincinnati for governor. Harmon's name was vociferously cheered. George W. Hull nominated Gen. Sherwood for governor. E. L. Starr placed A. P. Sandles in nomination.

The first ballot for governor resulted: Harmon, 463; Pomerene, 381; Sherwood, 4; Sandles, 97. After the first ballot six policemen were sent to the convention hall to keep the Hamilton county delegation quiet. They kept shouting that there has been some manipulation of the count.

Gen. Sherwood withdrew after the first ballot. Necessary to a choice, 474.

Judson Harmon was nominated on the second ballot.

Columbus, Ohio, May 6.—By a close vote and after a stormy session, Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland lost his fight last night for the control of the Democratic state convention, which today will nominate a state ticket, candidate for United States senator and four delegates-at-large to the national convention.

A test of the relative strength of the Johnson and anti-Johnson factions of the party, the latter led by Harvey C. Barber, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, and William L. Finley, state oil inspector, was taken on a minority report, which proposed to seat a contesting delegation from Lucas county, which was favorable to Johnson. The report was rejected.

Admiring Sailor Begs Jeffries to Give Him Real Souvenir.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 6.—John Lyle, a seaman of the destroyer Whipple, made aunique request to "Jim" Jeffries a few days ago. Lyle wandered into Jeffries' place and said:

"Mr. Jeffries, I'm just off the Whipple and I've never been west before. I come from Philadelphia and back in that town we have one fighter, Jack O'Brien, but he doesn't class with you.

"I've always wanted to see you and I had instructions from Philadelphia friends that if I ran across you in this country I should bring back a souvenir of you. So, if you will oblige me and lots of friends back East, kindly swipe me just once in the eye, so it will be good and black. Then I can tell the folks that Jeff did it."

Jeffries listened to the sailor and then refused.

ANOTHER BODY IS DISINTERRED

Total of Six Found on Guinness Farm Since Tuesday.

Laporte, Ind., May 6.—Another body was disinterred today on the Gunness farm, making a total of six found since yesterday. The work of excavation was stopped until after noon, in order to allow the coroner to arrive at the farm. It was believed that more bodies would be found today as several ribs were picked up during the work of the morning, which did not belong to any of the bodies previously found.

The corpse disinterred today was so badly decomposed that it is impossible to state whether it is that of a man or a woman, until a more careful examination has been made of the bones. An examination made today of the two bodies which were yesterday supposed to be those of children, has revealed that they are those of adults and probably men. There is at present no possible clue to their identity. They have evidently been buried for several years. All of them were dismembered in the same manner as that of the man supposed to be Helgelein, which was dug up yesterday. A. K. Helgelein, insists today that the body is that of his brother, while Dr. Myer declares that the differences between Helgelein's description and the characteristics of the corpse found yesterday are so great as to make it impossible for the body to be that of Andrew Helgelein.

THE MISPLACED COMMA.

Baltimore American: "Some lawsuits of the highest importance have hinged upon the right placing of a comma," said Judge F. C. Downing of St. Louis. "When I first started to practice law a Missouri editor came to me in a peck of trouble to defend him against a threatened libel suit growing out of faulty punctuation. He had not meant to give some innocent young women the slightest offense when he wrote a story about 'two young men who went with their girls to attend a lecture and after they left, the girls got drunk.' Putting that miserable little comma out of its right place did the work, as it made the girls the ones who became inebriated instead of their escorts. I managed by proper diplomacy and the publication of a neat apology to stave off the damage suits, and afterward my editorial friend became an expert on punctuation."

URGES WAR ON WOLVES

Government Biological Survey Issues Bulletin of Instruction.

This is Season When Pups Are Found in Dens.

The bureau of biological survey of the United States department of agriculture is sending out to county auditors of Minnesota circulars dealing with the destruction of wolves and coyotes. The information covers not only the methods used to bring about the best results, but tells of the results that were obtained in various wolf and coyote infested states during 1907.

Wolves and coyotes cause annually a loss to stockmen and farmers of several millions of dollars. In some of the Northern states, such as Minnesota, they threaten the extermination of deer in the best hunting grounds. The government claims these losses can be prevented only by intelligent and concerted action throughout the country infested by the animals and, toward that end, the biological survey is ready to furnish all the information that it can to bring about the desired result.

Early last year the bureau it said to have distributed a bulletin and two circulars on wolves in regions where the animals were most destructive. The publications dealt with brief records of the losses from wolves and the directions for finding the dens, capturing the pups, trapping and poisoning the old wolves and for building wolf-proof fences. It is claimed that during last year there was a marked increase in the number of wolves killed.

Breeding Time of Wolves.

According to information furnished by the bureau of biological survey, the wolf pups are usually born between March 9 and April 15 in the Western states and the coyotes from April 1 to May 15. As the pups remain in or near the dens until two or three months old, the time for hunting dens may be extended through May and June.

The correctness of the information furnished by the bureau is borne out by the report which recently appeared in The Herald about two young men from New Duluth who found three dens on the Wisconsin side of the St. Louis river, containing an aggregate of nineteen pups. They got all the pups and killed one of the old wolves. These same young men have been for the past two years making a special business of hunting out the dens of the wolves at this time of the year, and have been quite successful, especially when there has been snow on the ground so that they could trail the old wolves to their dens.

The only other reports of wolf dens being found in the Northern states was a year ago this spring when three dens of coyotes, or brush wolves were found in Sherburne county, Minn.

Capture of Cubs.

The bureau gives the following directions for the capture of wolf pups:

"By the destruction of the young the increase of wolves may be prevented more effectually and economically than by any other way. The large size of the litters makes the method especially important, as wolves usually have six to ten pups. It is now positively known that wolves pair for the breeding season, and that the males stay with the females and help feed and care for the pups during the summer. Wolves do not breed until 2 years old, which accounts for the presence of roving bands during the breeding season.

"In the Western states the wolves usually breed in valley and foothill country, or in low mountains. For breeding dens they choose, if possible, natural cavities, or washed out hollows on the south slopes of rocky or badland ridges. There is usually a high point, not far away, where the male stands guard all day. In timbered regions wolves breed in hollow logs, or such cavities as can be found.

"In the North, good tracking snow usually lies on the ground during the early part of the breeding season, which renders the finding of the dens comparatively easy, but even on bare ground there is little difficulty in locating every wolf den. This may be done by simply riding along the crests of the ridge, until wolf tracks are found. The tracks once found, the direction of the den can be told from the lay of the ground. Near the den the tracks usually gather into well-worn trails, that are as easily followed on bare ground as in snow.

Trapping of Wolves.

"For wolves the best No. 4 double spring trap, with heavy welded or special wolf chain, should be used. If the trap is fastened to some stationery object, the chain should have a swivel at each end. Always use a drag, if possible. The best is a stone of thirty or forty pounds weight. A long oval stone is the best. A piece of telegraph wire or smooth fence wire, five or six feet long, should be passed around the stone, then doubled through the trap ring, with a twist to hold the ring in the middle; then around the other end of the stone and back to the opposite side to connect with the first loop. If properly fastened, a jerk on the trap tends to draw together and loosen the loops, and the spring of the connecting wire prevents a sudden jar that might break the trap or chain. If no stones are to be had, and it is necessary to stake the traps, twisted iron stakes can be driven below the surface of the ground.

"When possible, place the trap between two tufts of grass or weeds, so it can be readily approached from one side only. Bury the stone, chain and trap out of sight, with the trap nearest to the runway where the wolves follow a trail, or road, cross a narrow pass, or visit a carcass. The trap should be flush with the surface of the ground, and the ground and jaws and pan covered with a paper to keep the earth from clogging under the pan. Fine earth should then be sprinkled over the paper, until all traces of the trap and paper are concealed. The surface of the ground should appear as if undisturbed. The dust may be given a natural appearance by sprinkling it with water. The touching of traps with the hands, spitting near them, or the leaving of any human odors should be avoided. Use old, well-scented gloves, and a little of the scent used on the traps should be rubbed on the shoe soles. A piece of old cowhide may be used to stand on and to pile loose dirt on while burying the drag and trap.

Use of Scents.

"Of the many scents the fetid bait has been the most successful. It is made thus: Place half a pound of raw beef or venison in a wide-mouthed bottle, and let it stand in a warm place, but not in the sun, for two to six weeks, or until it is thoroughly decayed and the odor has become as offensive as possible. When de composition has reached the proper stage, add a quart of sperm oil, or any other liquid animal oil, then one ounce of pulverized asafetida and one ounce tincture of Siberian musk, or Tonquin musk. If this cannot be had, use an ounce of dry pulverized castoreum, or an ounce of common musk sold for perfumery. Mix well and bottle securely until used. The scent should be placed on the grass, weeds or ground around the trap, but not on the trap itself, as the first impulse of the wolf, after sniffing the scent is to roll on it. This bait is very attractive also to cattle and horses, which are sure to trample over and paw out the traps, if they are set where they can be reached.

How to Use Poison.

"Pure sulphate of strychnine is the most effective poison, provided the proper dose is used. The most effective dose is four grains for wolves. The common 3-grain gelatine capsules, sold by druggists, will hold, if well filled, four grains of strychnine, and are better than the larger capsules. Every capsule should be inserted in a piece of beef suet, the size of a walnut, and the cavity securely closed to keep out the moisture. Lean meat should not be used, as the juice soon dissolves the gelatine. The bait should be carried in a tin can or pail and should never be handled except with gloves or forceps. The baits may be dropped from horseback along a scented drag line, made by dragging an old bone or piece of hide, well saturated with the fetid scent, or they may be placed around or partly under any carcass on which the wolves are feeding, or along the trails which they are in the habit of following."

NO RESULTS.

Republican Caucus Adjourns After Three Hours' Conference.

Washington, May 6.—The Republican members of the house of representatives were in caucus for three hours last night in an effort to agree upon a plan for currency legislation, but adjourned at 11 o'clock without achieving any definite result. The meeting was early resolved into a conference and proceeded with the understanding that the result, whatever it might be, should not be binding upon members. There was a large attendance, but no very marked entshuslasm existed except of a personal character, when Speaker Cannon took the floor. It was evident from the beginning that there were so many members who would desire to be heard that it would be impossible to reach a conclusion at one sitting, and it was agreed to adjourn at 11 o'clock until 8 o'clock tonight.

TWO HEROES

Who Refused to be Coereed Into Making Wrong Statements.

Caracas, May 6.—The plague-stricken port of La Guaira, shut off from the world by land and by sea, has two heroes, the American consul, Thomas P. Moffat, and a Venezuelan physician, Dr. Gomaz Peraza.

The first has become famous as the only consul at La Guaira who had backbone enough not to sign the declaration drawn up a month ago by the board of health, stating that "the sanitary condition of La Guarla is perfect." The other consuls bowed to the wish of the powers that rule and signed the certificate, although there were deaths almost daily from the disease.

Dr. Gomaz Peraza has sprung into unexpected prominence. It was he who diagnosed the first cases of bubonic plague and he reported to the government that several deaths had resulted. Dr. Peraza was immediately arrested and thrown into jail, and Dr. Rangel, bacteriologist of the Yerguas hospital at Caracas, was sent down to La Guaira to report. The latter, after examining the cases of sickness in La Guaira, reported that they were not plague, but Dr. Peraza insisted that his diagnosis had been correct and that he could prove it by the exhumation of the bodies. This was not done and Dr. Rangel returned to Caracas.

SHOULD GRANT ARBITRATION

Senators Believe Colombia Has Claim Against United States.

Washington, May 6.—The senate yesterday adopted a resolution which may complicate in some manner the object of Secretary Taft's visit to Panama. The resolution is one offered by Senator Bacon calling for correspondence since Jan. 16, 1904, between the United States and Colombia in relation to the secession of Panama.

Prior to that time Colombia felt aggrieved at what was interpreted to be interference by the United States in her troubles with the state of Panama and demanded $10,000,000 of the United States. Colombia also asked for arbitration of this claim, which was refused by the United States on the ground that this country had been charged with fomenting revolution in Panama and abetting the secession of the isthmian portion of Colombian territory.

Information also has been obtained by Democratic senators leading them to believe that a triangular treaty has been negotiated between the United States, Colombia and Panama, by which the Colombian claim is to be scaled down and assumed by Panama. The amount named in the treaty, it is said, is $800,000. According to the advices of the backers of the Bacon resolution, Colombia is holding out for $1,000,000 and Panama is complaining that it is unjust to compel her to pay either sum from the $10,000,000 which the United States paid to Panama for the canal zone.

The chief mission of Mr. Taft to Panama is to procure an agreement by which this treaty may be ratified. It is said also that it is hoped that an agreement can be reached between Panama and Colombia whereby the action by the senate on the treaty would not be necessary, and which would not call for a cession to Colombia's latest demand for arbitration.

Senator Bacon believes that if the facts are as stated the United States is in honor bound to grant the arbitration demanded, for the reason that this country has taken an advanced position on the subject of general arbitration.

SAYS THAW IS INSANE.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 6.—Dr. Amos T. Baker, acting superintendent of the Matteawan state hospital, in his return yesterday to the writ of habeas corpus obtained by counsel for Harry Thaw, denied the allegations in the petition of counsel that Thaw is now sane and alleges on the contrary that Thaw is insane. Dr. Baker has had Thaw under observation during his confinement in Matteawan.

MANY WHITE FISH

Fry Will be Planted From Government Fish Hatchery.

S. P. Wires, superintendent of the government fish hatchery at Lester Park, does not believe that white fish are becoming scarce in Lake Superior. More were caught off Marquette and Bayfield last year than usual, according to Mr. Wires.

The white fish is considered the best of all the Great Lakes fish. Lake Superior white fish are famous for their flavor, and 20,000,000 white fish fry will be planted in Lake Superior this season. Lake Trout to the number of 8,500,000 will also be planted. About 10,000,000 wall eyed pike will be planted in the inland lakes and 400,000 brook trout and 500,000 steel head trout fry will be planted in the streams.

SHOT TWO.

Horseman Kills One Woman and Fatally Wounds Another.

Washington-Courthouse, Ohio, May 6.—Bert Devaney, a well known horseman, shot and killed Miss Lida Bird last evening at her home at John street, he then turned the gun on Mrs. Bird, mother of the victim, and shot her in the abdomen, inflicting a probably fatal wound, and later shot and killed Silas Shackelford. It is also reported that Shackelford's son has been killed by Devaney.

Devaney has taken refuge in Shackelford's barn and refuses to surrender, a sheriff's posse and members of Company M, Fourth infantry, O. N. G., have surrounded the barn, with the intention of storming it. The motive for the crime is not know, but it is supposed to be jealousy.

Late last night the police entered where Devaney had made his last stand and found him lying dead, he having shot himself through the head. The body of Silas Shackelford, who was shot and killed by Devaney, was also found. Shackelford's son was not with his father, as supposed, and is safe.

LAST RAINY DAM HEARING.

Next Meeting of Sub-Committee Will Prepare a New Bill.

Washington, May 6.—Final hearings on the Rainy river dam bill were held by the sub-committee of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce yesterday afternoon. Gen. MacKenzie, chief of engineers, and other officers of the war department gave facts about the dam.

Gifford Pinchot, chief of the forest service, and F. H. Newell, director of the reclamation service, both members of the inland waterways commission, also appeared on Representative Bede's request. Mr. Pinchot has been one of the president's chief advisers on legislation relating to the occupation of navigable streams, and has urged the taxation scheme which the president has adopted as one of his policies.

The sub-committee probably will meet late this week and prepare a report recommending the preparation of a new bill.

WAS BIG MOUND IN IOWA SHRINE OF THE MORMONS?

Des Moines, Iowa, May 6.—The Mormons have come to the conclusion that the big prehistoric mound, which the state is uncovering at Boone, may be a shrine of the early Mormon elders. Accordingly, they have begun an investigation on their own responsibility. The Religio-Literary Society of Zion has written to Elder McBirnie of the Church of Latter Day Sainst, urging that he make an inspection and report to them.

The "book of laws" of the Mormon church was found in a mound similar to that of Boone. The church expects some similar discovery may be brought to light at Boone.

TASTE LIKE CANDY BUT DIGESTS ALL YOUR FOOD

Read Why the Worst Dyspeptic in This City Can Find Immediate Relief With These 22 Grain Triangules.

Miserable is the man or woman who suffers from dread Indigestion or Dyspepsia. There are few diseases which create such misery, long drawn out suffering, as Indigestion. It pursues them before meals, after meals and between meals, they take it to bed with them. It is with them wherever they go, though Indigestion is the simplest disease of all to cure.

Tell such afflicted one, dear reader, of the 22-grain Triangules of Diapepsin; urge the sufferer to go to any Pharmacy here and give 50 cents for a case, and to eat one like candy after the next meal. Such a sufferer would ever bless you, because five minutes after eating one Triangule there would be no more Indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the Stomach, or Heartburn, or fullness and discomfort, no Belching of Gas or Eructations of Sour food, Debilitating Headache, Nausea, Water Brash and other symptoms of a sour, disordered stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin contains pure Aseptic Pepsin, one grain of which will digest without any assistance 3,000 grains of food; also Diastase, Papain, Calcium, pure Extract Cascara Sagrada, powdered Ginger and other ingredients making these Triangules harmless and taste like candy.

Diapepsin is a wonderful Stomach purifier and splendid to keep the intestines clean and fresh; then your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Just one 22-grain Triangule will digest more than 3,000 grains of food in the same way that a strong, healthy stomach would do it. Diapepsin will rest the stomach and increase the gastric juices; this is what is mostly needed—more and better digestive juices—and no Gas—then Indigestion and all stomach trouble will go, and there will be no further need of Diapepsin.

Each 50-cent case contains sufficient of these 22-grain Triangules to usually cure the most chronic dyspeptic and leave some for other members of the family who may need it for Gas on Stomach, Headaches or other disorders when they eat something which does not agree with them. A case ought to be kept in each home.

SUICIDE FOLLOWS KISS.

St. Paul Man Kills Self After Embrasing His Wife.

St. Paul, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Kissing his wife goodbye, James Fanta placed a revolver to his temple, pulled the trigger and fell at her feet dead in their home at South Park yesterday morning. Worry over business troubles is believed to have prompted the suicide.

Fanta had lived in South Park for the past two years, coming there from Oelwein, Iowa. A few days ago he purchased a small grocery store on West Seventh street, St. Paul, and he worked in this store all last night placing it in order. He returned to his home at South Park yesterday and had breakfast. Then he told his wife they would have to go to South St. Paul on some business, and just as she had put on her wraps and was ready to start, Fanta stepped up, kissed her, and ended his life with a pistol shot.

It is believed that Fanta was having some difficulty in swinging the deal by which he acquired possession of the grocery store. He had also been worried over the halth of his wife, who has been an invalid for many years.

Fanta was about 35 and leaves no family except his wife.

NEW MAYOR AGAINST IT.

City Council Turns Down All But Two Appointments.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council Monday night turned down all but two of the new appointments of Mayor J. D. Taylor, elected last month. Frank B. Feetham was confirmed as city attorney, and Dr. E. H. Healey as health officer.

The men who failed to receive the number of votes necessary for confirmatoin were: W. H. Alexander, city auditor; R. E. Rafter, street commissioner; Odin Overby, chief of police; William E. Peet, city electrician.

A. H. Runge, for years fire chief in Minneapolis, was re-appointed chief without opposition, as were John E. Lunseth, superintendent of water works, and A. J. Roddy, engineer of the pump house. Police Chief Lowe and others who have been in office will continue to serve, inasmuch as their successors have not been confirmed.

TO RELEASE PRISONER SO HE CAN PLANT CROP.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—After serving six months in the county jail, Lars Rasmussen will be released on May 15, a few days short of the regular term to which he was sentenced, in order that he may have an opportunity to plant some potatoes and earn enough to support himself through the winter months. Northwood residents had appealed to State's Attorney Wineman and Judge C. F. Templeton in his behalf. Rasmussen is the oldest prisoner in the county jail. He had just engaged in liquor selling when he was arrested.

It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed to give both old and new addresses.

DON'T FORGET THE CAUCUSES.

Tonight the voters of Duluth will decide whether they wish to honor John A. Johnson, the native-born governor of Minnesota who has rendered a service to his state that has made his name a household word all over the land, by indorsing his candidacy for president, or whether they will heed the selfish demands of embittered Democratic politicians and jealous Republican partisan newspapers, and by rejecting the delegates pledged to his support humiliate him at home and brand the state abroad as ungrateful and unappreciative.

The caucuses are held between 7:30 p. m. and 8:30 p. m., at a time when practically every voter will be able to get to the polls to register his choice.

If you have not arranged to vote there is yet time. Elsewhere in The Herald tonight is a complete list of addresses of the polling places, and with it is a list of the Johnson delegates in each precinct. The publication of this list has been made necessary by the discovery that the opponents of Governor Johnson, determined to win by hook or by crook, have been falsely representing that the anti-Johnson tickets are the Johnson tickets.

Governor Johnson has earned a splendid indorsement at the hands of the voters of Minnesota tonight. It should not be a bare victory, but a complete and crushing one, one that will let the nation know that Minnesota appreciates the honors that Governor Johnson has won for his state and for himself. This is the kind of victory that will result if every supporter of Johnson gets out to the caucuses tonight and votes for Johnson delegates Nothing can make the victory less than the occasion demands, or turn it into defeat, but the negligence of the friends and admirers of Governor Johnson.

Go to the caucus in your precinct and vote for Johnson delegates. It will take but a few minutes to do your part to repay Governor Johnson for his splendid services to his state and his party. You will hardly forgive yourself if he is humiliated by a defeat because of your neglect.

See, too, that your neighbors and friends get out tonight and vote for Johnson delegates.

MAKE IT STRONG!

Governor Johnson, in his administration of public affairs, has not forgotten you. He has given every effort, every thought, every instinct of his being, to the cause of the plain people. Don't forget him now. Get out to the caucuses and help MAKE IT STRONG.

THE NORTH DAKOTA FIGHT.

Minnesota people are watching with interest the fight for the Republican nomination for the United States senatorship, and besides the interest that is involved in the close relationship, geographical and commercial, of the two states, there is reason enough in the fact that the struggle seems to be a contest between the old Republican machine, dominated by the "interests" and characterized by the worst manifestations of machine control, and patriotic and public-spirited citizens who wish to see their state redeemed from this rule and its banners cleaned of political corruption.

But there is still another reason for interest in Minnesota, and that reason lies in the fact that Congressman Tom Marshall, the candidate of the revolt against the machine, had as much to do as any other man—and more than most—in creating the Minnesota system of grain appeals, which is the best guaranty of the farmers of Minnesota and the Dakotas that they will receive a square deal in the marketing of their grain.

In 1899 Tom Marshall was a member of the North Dakota senate, and as chairman of a joint committee of the North Dakota legislature he came to Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul to look into the Minnesota grain inspection service. He demonstrated his practicability and efficiency as a public servant in this visit, and while he was unable to accomplish all he desired, a great deal of benefit to the farmers resulted from his work and that of his associates.

At that time there was a system of appeals to the grain and warehouse commission at St. Paul, a very expensive process resulting in frequent charges for demurrage, and always costing $5 for each car appealed. The members of the board not being practical grain men, they relied upon the chief inspector, who naturally favored his deputies.

Mr. Marshall's committee showed a clear and strong grasp of the situation, and vigorously took up the proposition of the creation of appeal boards, independent of the inspection service. The duties of these boards were to establish grades, to sit daily, and to pass upon appeals at once. Minnesota's present law providing for these boards was largely due to the energetic work of Mr. Marshall and his colleagues before the Minnesota legislature.

A shipper can now take an appeal, get action the same day from an independent body, save all demurrage, and he pays only $1 per car instead of $5. Thus he gets, cheaply, an impartial decision. Thus, in a quiet, businesslike way, Tom Marshall rendered his constituents—and the farmers of Minnesota as well—a real service. Had subsequent complaints of the Minnesota inspection system from North Dakota been handled in a similar manner, much unpleasantness would have been avoided, and much better results secured.

As The Herald has heretofore had occasion to say, Congressman Marshall's views are right. He has placed himself squarely with the people, and representing as he does a noble and patriotic movement in favor of popular government and against the corrupt rule of machine politics, the progress of his fight for the senatorship will be watched with keen and sympathetic interest in this state. His congressional career has borne out the promise of his legislative record, and furnishes ground for belief that if made senator, he will again "make good."

THE EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY LAW.

To be thoroughly effective, and to produce the results aimed at—justice to employes—the new federal employers' liability law should be supplemented in all the states by laws equally liberal to the workmen.

Now there are vast and vexatious differences between the laws governing this subject. The federal law is different from all state laws, and very few state laws are alike. The need of adjustment is not so great as it is in some other matters—marriage and divorce laws, for instance—but it is great, and far better results will be secured by uniformity.

There are more differences between the law approved last month by President Roosevelt and the law of 1906, which was declared unconstitutional by the supreme court of the United States, than most people suspect.

For instance, the old law applied to all common carriers engaged in interstate commerce; the new law applies only to railroads thus engaged, and only to accidents occuring in interstate traffic. The old law left it to be understood that where the contributory negligence of the employe was gross he might not recover; the new law omits this implication and provides that "the damages shall be diminished by the jury in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to such employe." Under the old law the employe must have begun his action within a year; the new law gives him two years. Under the old law the fact that the carrier's violation of any statute enacted for the safety of employes contributed to the injury or death of the employe did not deprive the carrier of the privilege of showing contributory negligence on the part of the employe, whereas the new law absolutely deprives the carrier of that privilege in such circumstances.

The new law will, of course, have to run the gauntlet of the courts, and there are fears that it may not prove flawless. Beyond that, there are grave suspicions that some of the statesmen who supported the new law with an alacrity intended for the edification of their workmen constituents knew of the existence of defects which they hope, in the interests of their friends the railroads, will prove fatal.

However this may be, there can be absolutely no doubt that legislation of this type has come to stay. Friends of the railroads may have slipped into the new law defects which will prove its undoing, but the tremendous majority given it in both branches of congress and the strong public sentiment that produced this action by these majorities prove that such legislation is needed, and that the people are going to have it. Even if this law, in its turn, should prove unconstitutional, congress will be called upon to enact another. Opponents of the measure may delay, but they cannot defeat, the final acceptance of the theory involved.

THE RECALL.

The chief defect in the American system of representative government is the lack of control by the people over their representatives.

Nowhere has that been more clearly illustrated than in the present session of congress. Legislation that the people need, that they have demanded as clearly and as emphatically as they could, and that the president has called for in repeated messages couched in terms running all the way from ferocity to earnest pleading, are refused, and the prospects are that congress will continue to refuse it.

There is a remedy for this condition. It is the system of political procedure known as the "recall." It is opposed, for various reasons, by the powers that be. It is demanded by organized labor, and it has had the sanction of the more radical political parties, such as the People's party. The fact that it has been approved by the Populists and by organized labor accounts for some of the most bitter opposition to it. That is wrong, of course; if it is a correct and useful implement of popular government, it should be adopted no matter who has favored it. It is bad to condemn a policy simply because of its advocates, and without regard to its merits.

The recall has been adopted in a number of American cities, notably Los Angeles, Dallas, Fort Worth, Des Moines and Cedar Rapids. It simply means that if an elected officer fails in his duty, he may be brought before the people for trial by a ballot, and his place declared vacant and filled by another. This election is ordered on a petition signed by a fourth or a fifth of the officer's constituents.

Obviously, its chief object is to prevent the domination of the people's servants by special interests. In its behalf it is urged that no alderman would dare vote against the interests of his constituents if he could be forced to vacate his office at once. Every two years the recall is exercised through the regular election process, but after election the officer is safe, for the term of his office, to deal as corruptly as he pleases, short of criminal conviction. Advocates of the recall assert that government will be better when the people are given the right to exercise this privilege at any time. The power existing, its exercise will seldom be necessary; the knowledge of its existence will be enough to keep public servants devoted to the public.

In all the cities which have adopted the recall, it has been used but once. A Los Angeles alderman voted to let a contract to the highest bidder. A recall petition was immediately signed, a special election was held, and the unfaithful official was beaten by a vote of 2 to 1. The vote cast was only 15 per cent lighter than the vote in the general city election. Several months ago, too, the Los Angeles city council took preliminary proceedings in a franchise grant that was unpopular. The bare threat of recall proceedings was enough to defeat the objectionable ordinance.

There is small probability that the recall would be abused, because the requirement as to signatures to the recall petition is great enough to prevent its use except in cases of manifest need. It provides the people with a weapon that makes certain the response of public servants to public sentiment.

THE ST. PAUL ELECTION.

The victory of Daniel Lawlor over Joseph McKibbin by more than 3,000 majority in the contest for the St. Paul mayorship is decisive enough to suit anybody. It proves once more that St. Paul is a Democratic city. Lawlor, a man of ripe experience in public affairs, a good citizen and a popular one, won his fight against Joseph McKibbin, a staunch, highly respected, successful and upright business man, though the latter was backed by the two daily newspapers, both Republican. Both are good men, and aside from partisan considerations, it seems probable that the more liberal ideas of Lawlor were preferred to the more rigidly strict ideas of McKibbin, though Lawlor declared that "there was no lid issue," and that law enforcement has come to stay no matter who is mayor. The Democratic victory went down the line, most of the Democratic candidates for the council winning out.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"The exercise of a little ingenuity will sometimes save a lot of labor and expense," said E. L. Randall, traveling salesman for a New York black diamond house, at the St. Louis. "This was impressed upon me the last time I was out in Arizona. A little brain work and an investment of 11 cents saved several days' labor for a crew of men, and also saved the payment of wages to these men.

"The city wanted to locate a 12-inch cast iron piped buried two and one-half to three feet deep through a field of stiff abode soil, but the exact location of the pipe was unknown. The use of the ordinary miners' dip needle suggested itself, but it was believed this would not be sensitive enough. Instend, a knitting needle was magnetized and fastened to a strand formed of about ten fibres of silk floss.

"To hold these fibres in place on the needle, two half hitches were taken around the balancing point, and glued there. In order that the two ends of the needle might be attracted by the needle with different force, it was so balanced as to dip normally about 20 degs., from the horizontal. The needle was mounted in a cigar box, the upper end of the thread being fastened to the box with a thumb tack, and a divided circle was sketched in on each end with which to read deflections; also a vertical line was drawn from the point of suspension to serve as a guide in leveling the instrument. A glass cover was applied to keep out the wind.

"While in use, the box was placed on the ground in a horizontal position, the ends facing north and south. By moving across the supposed line of pipe, taking readings about two feet apart, the location of the pipe was very closely determined. The deflection over a bell was usually twice that over the mid length of the pipe. This device cost 11 cents, and saved a lot of trouble and expense."

"That rule which insists upon the removal of women's headgear in the theater furnished me with a painful experience in St. Paul last night," said Paul H. Erskine, at the Spalding.

"I did not get my theater seats until late in the game and was obliged to take some in the back part of the parquet, under the balcony. When the curtain went up, the seats directly behind me were vacant, but in a short time, a large lady, accompanied by what seemed to be her husband, came groping through the dark aisle—the lights in the auditorium had been turned off.

"The usher placed the large dame and her escort in the seats behind me and after more groping and stumbling, they sat down in them. I thought then I would be permitted to proceed with my enjoyment of the play, which had been interrupted by the late comers.

"I was looking intently at the stage when I received a severe jab in the back. Thoughts of vendettas, mafias and jealous rivals shot through my mind and what felt like a sure-enough stiletto, seemed to be shooting into my spinal column. I let out a howl that made the noise of the 'prop' wolves off-stage seem like the goolsh gurglings of a fond mother to her babe. All of St. Paul that was in the theater turned around and gave my wife and I a good rubbering. Everyone in the place looked about $9 worth.

"When I recovered somewhat, I turned around to see who my assailant was. It was my friend, the fat lady. I was just about to expostulate, when she beat me to it and purred: 'I beg your pardon, did I stick you? I thought I was pinning my hat to the back of the seat. It is so dark in here that one cawn't see very well, you know.'

"Well, politeness and my wife prevented physical violence so I said as sweetly as I could: 'No harm done at all.' But I've got a puncture in my shoulder blade now that goes away beyond the foot level, as they say in copper circles."

F. S. Whidden and P. G. Wheaton, two traveling men hailing from Chicago, are at the Lenox. Mr. Whidden is a member of La Salle lodge, Knights of Pythias, and Mr. Wheaton a member of Excelsior lodge of the same organization. Last evening they attended the regular weekly meeting of North Star lodge, K. of P., of this city and participated in the social session. Mr. Whidden suggests that it would be a good idea for the fraternal organizations of the city to get together and furnish nicely framed cards containing notices of the meeting nights of the various lodges in the city, the same to be hung up in the various hotels for reference by the visitors who may be in the city over night and who would like to attend a meeting of some fraternal order to which they belong if they knew the time and place of the meeting.

THE WEATHER.

Though clouds later obscured the sky, the morning dawned clear, bright and beautiful. The northeast wind, which failed to bring the expected showers, had grown unsteady, and showed signs of veering into other quarters. It was warmer. The weather man says it will be fair tonight and tomorrow, and that while it may be frosty tonight it will become warmer tomorrow. Last night's lowest temperature was 36 degs. and yesterday's highest was 45 degs.

A year ago today it was cloudy and cool.

The sun rose this morning at 4:43 and sets tonight at 7:25, making 14 hours and 42 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The Kansas-Oklahoma storm has moved its center to the lower Mississippi valley. During the past twenty-four hours it caused light to heavy rains over the southern lake region, Ohio, Lower Missouri and Mississippi valleys, Eastern Gulf, South Atlantic and Middle Western states. Heavy rainfalls occurred at St. Louis and New Orleans. Cooler weather prevails throughout the extreme south. Freezing temperatures attend a high pressure area central over Western Nebraska and Colorado. The barometer is high off the New England coast and continues low over extreme Western Canada. Generally fair weather is indicated for this locality tonight and Thursday."

John Fiske on the Tariff.

Indianapolis News: The Philadelphia Record quotes from the late John Fiske, who knew and wrote so much about America and the American people in so many phases of their development, social, religious, economic and historical the following prophetic utterance on the tariff, albeit like most prophets he was far in advance and without honor in his own country of the time.

"By and by, when our shameful tariff—falsely called protection—shall have been done away with, and our manufacturers shall produce superior articles at less cost of raw material, we shall begin to compete with European countries in all the markets of the world, and the competition in manufactures will become as keen as it is now beginning to be in agriculture. This time will not be long in coming, for our tariff system has already begun to be discussed, and in the light of our present knowledge discussion means its doom. Born of crass ignorance and self-defeating greed, it can not bear the light. When this curse to American labor—scarcely less blighting than the curse of negro slavery—shall have been once removed, the economic pressure exerted upon Europe by the United States will soon become very great indeed."

A Boom.

"What is a boom?" asked the curious child.
"A boom," said the parent in accents mild,
"Is sometimes a gift to a nation's pet,
Sometimes a promise and sometimes a threat;
A luscious fruit that men strive to reach,
Sometimes a lemon and sometimes a peach;
Sometimes a pleasure by toil procured,
Sometimes an illness to be endured.
It may have beginning most anywhere.
Sometimes 'tis substance and sometimes air;
It may be an earthquake with mighty roar;
It may be a voice and nothing more.
Often it gaily flits about,
Shines like the swamp-light and then goes out.
And many a boom, it is sad to find,
Exists alone in some hopeful mind!"
—Washington Star.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A man is pretty sure to think he has genius if he can't do anything with it.

Philosophy is something you can read with great profit but go all to pieces on if you try to act it.

The way a woman guesses it isn't going to rain is when her family and the weather bureau say it is.

Where a man is foolish to have a spat with his wife is what the present will cost him to make it up with her.

Today and Tomorrow.

Give me thy tears,
And they shall wash away
The scars and bitterness
Of yesterday.
Give me the rose
That in thy bosom lay,
And it shall be
Mine oriflamme today.

Give me thine eyes,
That I may look and see
Thy inmost heart
In all its purity.
Give me thy kiss,
And then our lives shall be
One for tomorrow
And eternity.
—Pall Mall Gazette.

Anticipation.

Bellman: A young Scotch emigrant was brought before the magistrate of a Nova Scotia court, charged with having deserted his work on a certain farm without giving notice to his employer. When asked what he had to say in his defense, he replied: "Weel, they gled me nout but brakeshaw to eat." Brakeshaw, it may be explained, is the flesh of animals which have died a natural death. "How was that?" asked the magistrate. "Weel, it was this way. Ye ken, the auld coo deed an' we ate it, the auld steg (gander) deed an' we ate it, the auld bubblyjock deed an' we ate it. Then the old woman deed—an' I left."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

Detective Benson has returned from Brainerd with John Messner, driver of one of the United States Express company's wagons, who is charged with taking several hundred dollars from patrons of the express company and failing to turn it over to Agent E. J. Crossett. Massner was formerly interested in the saloon business with Albert Block, and is about 25 years of age.

Robert Mangler has left for St. Paul to make final arrangements for the removal of his family to that city next week. The California Wine house of this city will be in charge of Theo Frerker in future.

J. C. Fyfe has returned to the city after an absence of two months.

Peter Kemp of Australia yesterday defeated Edward Hanlan of Canada by five lengths in a sculling race on the Paramatta river.

Dr. Arthur F. Ritchie has been appointed to the chair of descriptive anatomy in the State university, and Dr. David A. Strickler to the chair of otology. They will remove from Duluth to Minneapolis next October.

A party of thirteen Scotchmen and women is now on the way to Duluth, upon the representations of Simon Clark, who has been the means of bringing many others to Duluth. In fact, there are no less than 150 residents of Duluth, all of whom are in business for themselves, or actively engaged in work of some kind, who came to this city as the direct result of the representations and persuasions of Mr. Clark.

Rev. C. S. Dunn, pastor of the First M. E. church, leaves today with his family on an Eastern and Southern trip, having been granted a vacation.

H. S. Wilson of Saginaw, a well known pine land owner in the Duluth district, is in the city.

The Industrial Age is booming Matthew Bland Harrison for congress. It wants him nominated on the Democratic ticket.

A. P. Smith, a member of the firm of Smith Bros., at Verndale, Minn., has purchased a lot on the corner of West First street and Twenty-fifth avenue, and will probably build a store and go into business here.

George Dickinson of Dakota, a practical cornbroom manufacturer, has written Landlord Lucas of the Clarendon hotel, asking about the chances of establishing a broom factory at the West end. Mr. Lucas has replied favorably.

Republican caucuses will be held in St. Louis county tomorrow. Delegates favorably to Judge Stearns for congress, and G. G. Hartley for delegate at large to the Chicago convention, will be elected, there being no opposition to either.

The harbors of Hancock and L'Anse are still icebound.

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

Anoka Free Press: Are the Bryan emissaries, who are chasing up and down the state, proselyting in behalf of Bryan, paid for their work by the Republican interests who know from experience that Bryan is a sure loser at the polls? We know that they are not footing their own bills, nor is the Democratic organization doing it for them.

Aitkin Republican: The Democrats of Illinois instructed their delegates to Denver to vote for Bryan. Of the fifty-two delegates elected forty-eight are Johnson men, ready on the second ballot to go to our Democratic governor. This was a mean trick that Roger Sullivan played on the peerless one.

Madison Independent Press, (Rep.): The Democrats of Minnesota harm nobody but themselves when they try to prevent Governor Johnson having the delegation from this state to the Denver convention. We have never voted for nor supported Governor Johnson, but will put it down in cold type that he has developed more rapidly during his incumbency of the governor's office than any other man who has ever held that honorable and important position, and he is a credit to the whole state.

Albert Lea Times Enterprise, (Rep.): Regardless of the fact that Democratic politicians do not find it expedient to give substantial expression to their admiration for Governor Johnson, we of Minnesota are yet proud of him, proud of his manly qualities, proud of the fame he has won for himself and our state, proud of the future that awaits him in the councils of a great party and proud of the ability which marks him as one of the coming men of America.

Cass Lake Times: In national politics we have a right to estimate the vote of every other precinct in the nation by the trend of our own. If a vote were to be taken today in Cass Lake precinct with Taft and Johnson at the head, Taft would carry every vote of the professional politician and Johnson the vote of the people.

Madison Independent Press: Governor Johnson has made good as governor of this state and he is undoubtedly the strongest man in the way of a vote getter in the state today, and should he be nominated for a third term by the Democrats he will give the man who may be nominated by the Republicans the run of his life. "Interests" or no "interests," and the Republican party of this state may just as well take due notice of the true situation. While we are about it we will add that this "interests" howl is a far-fetched cry anyhow, and has been overworked for some time. It has seen it's best days, however, and will no longer do as a bug-a-boo to scare the children in the nursery of either political party.

TIES DYNAMITE ON HIS HEAD AND EXPLODES IT

John Urin, Virginia Miner, Makes Sensational Exit From World.

Invites Four Women to Witness Novel and Tragic End.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Urin, aged 25, a Hungarian miner, employed at the Alberta mine, here, adopted a unique and highly sensational method of shuffling off today by tying a stick of dynamite to his head and setting it off. The result was that Deputy Coroner J. H. Crowe had to scrape around to find pieces of Urin's head and the upper part of his body. The coroner is holding an inquest this afternoon.

Urin's dramatic finish was the culmination of a row he had with a fellow-boarder at Mrs. Anton Domin's boarding house, where he lived, combined, perhaps, with the fact that he was about $76 in arrears on his board, and probably more or less irresponsible mentally. He appears to have planned to combine murder with suicide, as he tried to include others in the explosion that resulted when he set off the explosive, but all, except one, the landlady, who was slightly injured, escaped.

Urin and his fellow boarder, Kruno Mirs, who occupied the same bed, had a serious altercation yesterday, growing out of charges Mirs is alleged to have made against Urin's habits. Urin threatened his roommate's life this morning, and the latter kept out of the way. Unable to find the object of his wrath, Urin sent word to Mrs. Domin, Mrs. Schly, Mrs. Stebankonis and Mrs. Benkosky to come into the diningroom of the Domin boarding-house and he would show them something worth seeing. As the women were gathering for the exhibition, Urin hurried to the kitchen, tied a stick of dynamite on the top of his head, attached the fuse and lighting it rushed in with the fuse sizzling. His presence created a stampede, all but Mrs. Domin managing to gain a place of safety before the explosion occurred. Pieces of the man's head were hurled in every direction, blood and brains bespattering the wall and turning the room into a shambles. Mrs. Domin was bruised about the body, but not seriously injured, the dining-room was wrecked and great excitement created. Deputy Coroner Rowe was soon on the spot and began gathering up the remains. He called an inquest for 2 p. m. Urin was unmarried.

BRYAN FACTION RESORTS TO POLITICAL TRICKERY

Put Names of Johnson Leaders on Bryan Tickets.

Effort Made to Pull Wool Over Eyes of Voters.

Despairing of winning the fight by fair means, the little clique of so-called "Bryan supporters," which is engineering the fight on Governor Johnson in St. Louis county has resorted to trickery to win its battle tonight.

For the purpose of pulling the wool over the eyes of the voters, the names of known Johnson delegates have been placed on the Bryan tickets, the tickets being filled out with ardent Bryan enthusiasts. In this way, while the one Johnson delegate might be elected, his election would be more than offset by the election of two or three Bryan delegates.

The trick is an old one, but none the less effective, and it is being freely worked in many precincts of the city.

For the purpose of guarding against such trickery, The Herald tonight publishes a complete list of the Johnson tickets in all the precincts of the city. Johnson supporters should be careful to vote for the ticket containing all the names given. In the fourth precinct of the Third ward, for instance, Mr. Nelson's name might be used on the Bryan ticket, also for the purpose of deceiving the Johnson supporters, as he is the head of the Johnson ticket in that precinct. If care is taken, however, to vote not only for the ticket on which Mr. Nelson's name appears, but for the full Johnson ticket, as published below, no mistake will be made.

The Bryan men are also circulating tickets which have the picture of Johnson on them, in the hope of deceiving some voters, and in some cases are representing the anti-Johnson ticket to be the Johnson ticket.

WILSON HAD BAD SPELLS

Wife Says He Frequently Threatened to Shoot Her.

A harrowing tale of cruel and inhuman treatment is told in the complaint filed by Fannie Helen Wilson of this city in the divorce action instituted against Frank E. Wilson.

They were married in Duluth, Nov. 5, 1907, and for some time lived at one of the local hotels. Mrs. Wilson claims that while living at the hotel her husband made frequent threats to take her life, that he showed her his revolver and told her he would shoot her and then kill himself. She alleges that on one occasion he pointed the weapon at her and then placed it against his own head and snapped it, but there was no fatality as there was no cartridge in the revolver.

Mrs. Wilson claims that the "killing spells" her husband had were so wearing on her that she finally had nervous prostration and had to leave him in December, 1907, about two months after the wedding.

In her complaint the wife asks for a decree of divorce, allmony and the privilege of assuming her maiden name of Proudlock. Wilson is 27 years old and his wife is less than 20 years old.

POSTPONE BANKERS' MEET.

Fargo, N. The reason for the change is that many of the members wish to attend the meeting of the Shriners in St. Paul, which occurs during the original dates.

Mrs. George A. Parker of 513 Second avenue east, died early this morning at St. Luke's hospital. She had been in poor health for some time past and her friends had been much concerned over her condition. She had been a resident of Duluth for many years and had hosts of friends.

Mrs. Parker was 41 years of age and leaves a husband and five children, three daughters and two sons.

The funeral will probably be held at the residence Friday afternoon.

LARGE SUM TO SETTLE

Dr. Villiers Appleby May Get $169,000 From Wilder Trustees.

Have Asked Court to Make Settlement For That Sum.

St. Paul, Minn., May 6.—Papers were filed yesterday afternoon in the district court by Victor M. Watkins, Charles M. Spencer and John I. H. Field, trustees of the Appleby-Wilder estates and of the Wilder charity, looking toward a settlement of the legal difficulties which have been pending for some time with Dr. E. Villiers Appleby.

Under the terms of Mrs. Appleby's will and the ante-nuptial agreement with Dr. Appleby, the latter gets an income of $10,000 a year so long as he remains unmarried. But should he marry he will receive $30,000 from the estate and his annual income will be cut off.

The trustees were required to set aside a large block of securities to meet this requirement of the will, and now the proposition is to settle with Dr. Appleby on the basis of a payment of $169,000.

Marquette Ticket Agent Makes Rather Odd Discovery.

Marquette, Mich., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—City Ticket Agent Wright of the South Shore made a find out of the ordinary yesterday, when he picked up in the ladies' waiting room of the depot a marriage license. It was made out for Alfred S. Ludwig and Annie C. Miller, both of Chicago, and showed that they were married March 27, last.

Agent Wright has no use for the certificate and is holding it in the hope the owners will claim it. Meanwhile he is being more or less joshed by his friends.

WAS EXPENSIVE TRICK.

Ashland Man Fined Heavily for Taking Watch From Boy.

Ashland, Wis., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Morris Saltzberg, who took a watch away from a young boy named Oscar Erickson, who had found it at the depot here, paid over $30 for his mean trick, having been fined $100 and costs by Judge McLoud under a plea of guilty after being arrested in Milwaukee and brought back. Sam Goldberg, who was implicated in the affair, was released. Saltzberg paid his fine.

According to the story of the boy, Goldberg took the watch, but handed it over to Saltzberg and it was found on his person by the Milwaukee police when they picked up the pair, on advice from Chief of Police Blair.

Attorney Mueck of Milwaukee, accompanied the prisoners to Ashland, and it was through his endeavors that the charge was changed to petty larceny against Saltzberg, and the charge against Goldberg withdrawn. The original cost of the watch was about $15, so it was a valuable lesson to Saltzberg, as the total expenses of the deal will total over $300, not counting the nickel which it is said was given to the boy from whom the watch was taken, and which it was figured would be the actual cost.

GETS HIS DUES NOW.

Year for Deserting Wife and Torturing Her With Postcards.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 6.—Not alone satisfied with abandoning his wife, Nunzio Denario, who was forced to take in washing after being deserted in order to support her children, Joseph Denario tortured his wife by sending her mocking pictures and postal cards while traveling in the eastern part of the country.

Judge Neelen, in imposing the sentence, said that the case was the most heinous one of neglect and brutality ever called to his attention. He sentenced Joseph to one year in the house of correction.

One of the first pictures of Mrs. Denario showed Joseph surrounded by little infants. Others showed the erring husband in the arms of pretty chorus girls and one showed him fondling a baby boy. This picture was addressed to his son Pietro, and read in Italian:

"You must go now, Pietro; I have another boy."

In taunting his wife with cards, Joseph sent one which was suggestive of the "Black Hand." On the back of the card were the pictures of three daggers rudely drawn with a pencil.

ELEVATOR TAKES DROP.

Occupants Injured in Eau Claire Accident, But None Seriously.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the result of the dropping of the freight elevator from the third floor to the first floor at the Pioneer Furniture company's plant Tuesday, John E. Parker, shipping clerk, and J. B. Benson, a workman in the packing department, both married men, are laid up with rather severe injuries and Charles Hart and Otto Werth, two boys in the employ of the company, bear a few minor cuts and bruises.

The accident was due to the pulling out of the elevator cable. The elevator had been taken up to the third floor and loaded with merchandise. Parker, Benson, Hart an Werth then got aboard and the elevator was started down. It had just started when the cable pulled out and down went the elevator with considerable speed which increased as it continued downward.

As it passed the second floor Werth took a flying leap from the swiftly descending elevator and alighted safely on the second floor, sustaining practically no injuries.

The other three remained till the elevator struck the landing with a resounding jar, that was felt throughout the entire building.

NO NOMINATING FEE.

Attorney General Says North Dakota Law is Void.

Bismarck, N. D., May 5.—Attorney General McCue has rendered an opinion that the law requiring the payment of a nominating fee is unconstitutional, and that his opinion will stand, inasmuch as the supreme court has so decided in the law of 1905 and will undoubtedly so decide again. Under this opinion the secretary of state will not require the payment of a fee, but it is generally conceded that inasmuch as the law of 1907 has not yet been declared unconstitutional by the courts, that candidates had best pay their fee under protest, as was done when a similar opinion was rendered in 1905. Those who thus paid have had their fee returned to them.

Printed by Request Develops Woman's Charms.

Madame Moneaux, deceased beauty specialist of New York, long possessed the greatest of all secrets pertaining to feminine charm. And what is this great secret, so much desired by women—the secret that has made a vast fortune for the madam's heirs, and that brought her all the famous actresses and society leaders for patrons?

"What, you don't know?"

It is a simple, but sure method of developing the bust, arms and neck of women, who, through defect of nutrition and circulation, are humiliated by undeveloped arms, neck and bust. The treatment consists of applying a powerful but harmless nerve-stimulant to the cells of the skin, to be absorbed and utilized as nourishment to the flesh cells and tissues. Beautiful changes are wrought. Ugly, deformed women are developed into charming personages, with well-rounded arms and neck and full normal bust of exquisite curve and proportion so much admired in our great actresses and society leaders. Any leading druggist will supply the ingredients to mix at home, and as they are used for various prescriptions no one need be the wiser as to what they are to be used for, which is as it should be for modest womanhood. Get separately "two ounces glycerine," "three ounces Rose Water" and "one ounce Tincture Cadomene" and 5 cents worth of borax. Take home, mix the glycerine with Tincture Cadomene, shake and let stand two hours; then add a teaspoonful of borax and the rose water. Shake well and apply to the neck, arms and bust, rubbing and massaging until completely absorbed; then wash thoroughly with hot water and soap and dry thoroughly. Apply morning and night regularly for several weeks and the most beautiful development will begin to reward the efforts. It is believed by experts to be the most necessary and effective prescription ever conceived.

This is worth keeping, if not for yourself, for some dear friend who needs it.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

This is a story of a timid woman—the adorable, dependent, ultra feminine, scared-to-death woman. She shudders at the name of night and the thought of faring forth alone after the angels have inserted forget-me-nots in the heavens, sends a shiver of dread down her spine. She wants a man, and doesn't care who knows it, to walk forth with her after the lamps are lighted and the cool darkness of evening shuts off from view anyone who may be hiding back of the next tree.

This fear, not of the unknown, but of man, is not induced from any personal expebience. Any samples of man that she has encountered have been more than ordinarily nice, but that doesn't help matters a bit. This timid woman has said repeatedly that if a strange man should speak to her on the street, she should die of fright.

She takes every precaution that no man shall speak to her. If it becomes absolutely necessary for her to go forth in the evening, she invites some trusting feminine soul to go with her. But the other evening the heroine found it absolutely necessary to go to the postoffice during the mystic hour between 8 and 9. She could find no one to go with her. She put on her hat and went to the door, and then drew back in pretty fright. "Oh, I can't go," she said. But the letter awaiting her there, or at least she was sure it must be there, was most compelling, and so she went to the door again and then started forth bravely. She had gone about three-quarters of a block, when she knew she was being followed.

Of all the delightful thrills and mysteries that woman enjoys "being followed" is the one that is most cruel to take away from her. The sense of importance which she enjoys, just temporarily, is great. The heroine swelled rapidly.

"Mercy! What shall I do," she said.

Nobody answered. So she walked a little more rapidly.

He who was following increased his gait.

The woman went a bit faster. By this time she was easily doing a mile in twelve minutes. She was like a horse who is doing its very best at a trotting gait. If it should break, it would be a runaway. And she broke her gait.

And started to run.

By that intuition which does so much for woman when she knew that her pursuer was also running. Sobs arose in her heart. "Oh, I wish I had married the first man who ever asked me," she said to herself. 'And I wouldnt be out alone on the streeets now. I'd have somebody to go with me. And then in spite of the fact that she was running easily and well, she remembered that if she had, there would be no necessity for her to be running as fast as she could to the postoffice for a letter. For if she had married the first man, the man who was now writing wouldnt dare to do it without a scandal in the family. "I'm glad," she panted to herself, "that I didn't."

She wondered how far back the man who was following her was. And then intuition again came to her aid, and she knew he was almost there. So she added a little extra speed. And then she heard him coming, closer and closer and closer. He came still closer. He was panting and breathing in labored breaths.

"Wait," he said, hoarsely.

The woman ran on.

"Wait," said the man between puffs of breath.

Now, if woman was nearly so curious as it is said she is, nothing on earth could have kept her waiting just to see what would happen.

This woman ran on. Then with one mighty effort the man caught up to her and put his heavy, cruel hand on her shoulder and said again "Wait."

The woman was spent and tired and his clasp on her shoulder was firm and unmistakable, and so she waited. She was dizzy with fear and quaking with fright and so scared that she couldn't breathe. She stood there helpless and sobbing for breath. But said nothing.

She looked at the man with beseeching eyes. He was dressed in a gray plaid mackinaw and hobnailed boots. He needed the careful attention of a valet, a thing of which he probably had never heard. He also was breathing hard, but as the woman tried feebly to wrench herself free he dug his fingers into her shoulder a little more firmly.

At last he spoke. "Gosh, but you can run," he said while he panted for breath.

The woman then became too frightened to live. The stars began to go around with alarming rapidity and the nearby buildings swayed wonderfully and her heart had become as big as all inside and was pounding until she felt like one big throb.

And then the man spoke again.

He was holding something out to her in the hand which was not clutching her shoulder. "Here's your watch," he said between efforts to get his breath. "You dropped it two blocks back there."

And then because the strain had been too great she leaned her head with true feminine trust and confidence against the gray mackinaw and cried pleasantly for a few minutes, while the pursuer patted her on the shoulder and said, "There, there, never mind."

Mrs. Catherine Kremer has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Florence May Kremer, to L. Roy King of this city. The wedding will take place in June.

MAN'S SUPERIORITY.

He Excels in Almost Everything—Even Dress Designing.

The most enthusiastic believer in the superiority of woman does not pretend that she is perfect and unapproachable at all points. While the most famous dressmakers and the most famous chefs are men, we shall have, sad as it may be, to admit that in some things men have done better than we have.

The best cook is a man. He is like the leader of an orchestra, who knows every instrument beneath him, its capabilities, where it should blend, where it should detach itself and its proportion to the whole; whereas the woman cooks solos, not concertos. Food as a necessity of daily life is the province of the woman; food as a fine art is only mastered by the man, with centuries of cultivation behind him. It is prepared by him for his peers; the chef who is an artist does not value a woman's approbation at all. The very waiters know her status, says H. Pearl Humphrey in Black and White.

One of the most humiliating things any woman can do is to order a luncheon with the head waiter's eye upon her. The eye is too respectful to be scorntul. It says so plainly, and the woman reads it and quails. As for the wine waiter, he has the air of a dreamer trying to forget the painful episodes of life. The only chance of soothing him is to leave it in his hands. He will then, in the breadth of his tolerance, give one sweet wine, exactly as one spreads a child's bread and butter with sugar. Women in these exalted regions are as souse painters in the national gallery.

As for dress the reason for the supremacy of the male (so far) is easily found. Men have always been the executive artists; they inherit the talent of the ages. Women's instinct has not been cultivated to the same extent. They love pretty things, but do not study themselves. The French woman knows more about hers, but not so much as the Frenchman knows about the appearance of all women.

In the external treatment of the picture called woman, the man has the advantage of detachment from his subject, whereas a woman has a hundred prejudices. As a rule a woman falls in love with a frock or a hat purely on its merits, and not because it will suit her so admirably. Just as the man cook knows that food and wine are parts of the whole and must be studied together, so the man milliner knows that the woman and her clothes are one entity.

It is this cultivated eye for the whole, the cultivated palate for the whole, which makes the man the supreme artist in dress and in food and will do so until women make up some of the time and education that they have lost during several centuries.

Value of Perfume.

Doctors' recommendations have contributed to the popularity of certain scents. The use of scent is becoming really widespread, asserts a dealer in perfumes. "The doctors have pronounced in its favor," this man says, "and have recommended those of their patients who are particularly prone to catching such complaints as influenza to use scent copiously, principally by means of the spray. The odor that is most in demand is appropriately that of wood violets, spring like and refreshing."

The Knee Bracelet.

"Newest of all the foolish fads is the knee bracelet. It is worn only by women who wish to be known as members of the smartest set, but there are enough of such butterflies to make the whim a fashion in certain circles. The bracelet, since a band worn on the arm is an armlet, might be called a leglet, for it is worn close under the knee. It is an ornament only, as it does not take the place of a garter, being barely tight enough to keep it from slipping down. The glittering circlet is hung with tiny golden bells, which tinkle with every movement. No woman wearing one of them can expect to pass through a drawing room without being stared at, for, like the indecorous old person of Banbury Cross, she shall have music wherever she goes, even though she has not bells on her toes. The tinkle, tinkle, tinkle of the tiny bells is like the melody of fairy chimes, but it is audible in any save the noisiest room. And by the ringing of the bells when the wearer walks or sits or rises or even moves her feet ever so slightly, she is known as one of the ultra-ultra, the elected elect, the innermost insiders.

Popular Blue.

It has taken a long time for Copenhagen blue to make favor in spring gowns, but it is arriving day by day.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Pansy plants, 35 cents a dozen.
Long green cucumbers, 2 for 25 cents.
Berries, 20 cents a basket.
Oyster plant, 10 cents a bunch.
Carrots, 10 cents a bunch.
Peas, 2 qts. for 25 cents.
Pork tenderloin, 30 cents a lb.
Beef tongue, 65 cents each.
Smoked whitefish, 10 cents a lb.

Pansy plants and pork tenderloin are the nicest things in the market. Pansies, in spite of their name, are about the most human of the little garden flowers. They are so exquisitely beautiful (not that most humans are) and so keenly satisfied with life and its outlook, and then wilt so pitiably. There is another funny thing about pansy plants. In the market the blossoms are large and luxurious and velvety and beautiful. You transplant them and nourish and tend them to the best of your ability, and in a short time the blossoms are small and thin-looking little flowers, that you feel positively sorry for. The market man can explain that, all right, too.

Doubtless ere the end of the week the shade will be as common as Alice blue became soon after its introduction.

There is no reason why it should not be popular, for it at least is a cheerful blue, which is more than can be said for many of the browns to which unimaginative women cling with unaccountable tenacity.

Alice blue was a pleasing shade, too, and probably would have lasted much longer were it not that people wearied of the hundreds of thousands of columns aboutt he young woman for whom it was named that were printed before and after her wedding.

One reason why Copenhagen has not gained vogue more rapidly, perhaps, is that it practically demands uniformity of color in the entire costume. Hat and stockings must match the frock, and only black elbow gloves and patent leather shoes should be worn with it, while the boa also should be sable as a raven's wing. With Alice blue there was more latitude, especially in regard to gloves.

EVIDENCE IS FAULTY

District Court Judges Interpret Naturalization Laws Strictly.

Many Settlers Put to Heavy Expense Through Ignorance.

Incompetency of the evidence that they offer the district court with application for second citizenship papers has resulted in a large number of refusals on the part of the court to grant the papers, and has caused disappointment to many a settler in the outlying districts of the county.

If the persons who make application for second citizenship papers would exercise more care in their selection of witnesses, and know positively before they go to the expense of bringing witnesses to Duluth from a distance, to testify as to length of residence, etc., they would save themselves time, trouble, expense and disappointment.

For instance, the naturalization law requires that the applicants must have witnesses who can swear positively that they have known the applicant to have been a resident of the United States continuously for the past five years, and witnesses who can swear positively that they know the applicants have been residents of the state of Minnesota for the past year. This does not mean witnesses who will swear that they have known the applicant "about five years," or "about one year." That sort of testimony is too indefinite and will not be accepted by the court. The witnesses must swear that of their own knowledge, by seeing the applicant frequently during the five years, or the one year, that he has been a continous resident of the county or state. There cannot be a gap of one year or two years in the recollection of the witnesses, or the testimony will be thrown out. To see an applicant frequently is interpreted by the court to mean that the applicant has been seen a great many times during the time mentioned, not less than five to seven times a year.

There have been several instances in this country where settlers have come to Duluth from remote points in the county with witnesses, only to find that the testimony they had to offer as to residence was worthless. The applicants not only were out their witness fees and railroad expenses of the witnesses and themselves, but lost even their application fee of $4. Some instances are known where farmers from outlying districts have been to $25 or $50 expenses and then could not get their second papers.

The law is clear as to the requirements above mentioned, and if future applicants for second papers will bear in mind that the courts intend to go strictly according to law, and will provide themselves with the right sort of evidence, the number of cases that are now being turned down by the court will be materially reduced.

HOTEL MEN MEETING.

Fargo, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The hotel men of North Dakota are in session here today. It is the first session since the organization of the association some months ago. It is more in the nature of a conference than a formal meeting, and no regular program has been prepared. One of the matters to be taken up will be the election of a successor to Col. J. D. Benton, the president, who has withdrawn from the hotel business.

Women Who Think.

If you are a thinking woman, and you no doubt think you are, the following will make you think.

Just between you and me, is it not a significant fact that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine for woman's peculiar ailments, the makers of which print a full list of its ingredients, attested under oath, on its bottle-wrappers?

Does this not mean something to you if you are a sufferer?

It means that you absolutely know what you are taking when you make use of this world-famed medicine.

It means that you absolutely know that you are not taking "booze" when using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, but a good, honest, square-deal medicine adapted to woman's delicate organization by an educated, trained and experienced specialist in woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

Are the above facts not of some importance to you?

Many thousands of America's most famous physicians prescribe Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription because they know just what its composition is—which cannot be said of any other medicine advertised for the cure of woman's special ailments.

It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

It has done this for many hundreds of thousands. What it has done for others it will no doubt do for you if you but give it a fair trial.

Don't be put off with some inferior substitute with no record of cures to recommend it. You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum in place of this tried and proven medicine of known composition.

THOUGHTFUL, INTELLIGENT WOMEN use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for many good reasons. It enables them to avoid the disagreeable questionings and abhorent examinations generally deemed necessary by the family physician. It cures in the privacy of the home. If, however, you want the advice of a skilled specialist in woman's peculiar maladies, write or call upon Dr. R. V. Pierce at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's advice is given gratis. It costs you nothing, but may be worth much to you.

Next to obtaining Dr. Pierce's Personal advice, you will find his great book—The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book of over a thousand pages, copiously illustrated—offers many valuable suggestions to invalid women. It has been lately revised and brought up-to-date. Costs only 31 one-cent stamps for cloth bound, or 21 stamps in paper binding—just to cover cost of mailing only. Address as above.

RECLAIM MANY ACRES.

Proposed Dredging of Mouse River Will Prove Great Boon.

Westhope, N. D., May 6.—The dredging of the Mouse river through Bottineau county is almost a sure thing, and by that means thousands of acres of the best land in North Dakota will be reclaimed. A meeting of the county drainage board was held at Bottineau at which meeting the state engineer and a numbr of farmers living adjoining the river were present. The state engineer had a map showing the river in detail, and it was made plain by it that in Bottineau county there was only a fall of eight feet, while in the nine miles of the river over the line in Canada there was an eight-foot fall. If the river was dredged there would be a fall of sixteen feet in the county and the short distance that it would have to be dredged in Canada, and that fall would be sufficient to keep the water in the channel made by the dredge and reclaim thousands of acres of bottom land. The state engineer thinks the plan feasible.

DRIVE FOREMAN HURT.

Spooner, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. R. Harmon, foreman of the drive of logs at Rapid River, had the misfortune of having a log rolling onto his leg and breaking it below the knee. Harmon was brought by the tug Five Roses to Spooner for medical treatment.

The large drive would have been completed the same day of the accident. This is the first accident Harmon has received during his twenty-five years' service on the river.

GOOD MEN ARE SCARCE

Work for Fifty But Only Four Qnalify for the Job.

Pay for the River Men Poorer Now Than Formerly.

The old-time river driver is fast becoming extinct, at least in this part of the country, judging from indications. Local employment companies have had a call for fifty or more river drivers from Wisconsin companies, who are in a hurry to get their logs out before the rivers become too shallow to float their drives. The cards announcing the job have been posted for two days, but so far only four experienced drivers have been obtained.

Many men have applied for the positions, but they have most of them been inexperienced, and the agents claim that to put green men on a drive is about the same as committing homicide. When it came to riding a slippery log through rough water he would last "quick."

There are no such drivers nowadays as there were before the railroads became an important part in logging. Railroads have in a great part taken the place of the drive. The big logging operator lays tracks to his timber tract nowadays and ships his logs to market instead of hauling them to a handy stream and floating them to the mill. Even if the river drive is employed, the lumber mills are not at such great distances as they used to be, and this to a great extent does away with the large number of "river hogs" who were once employed on the drives. The shorter the distance to the mill where the logs are cut into boards, the fewer the men needed to guide the logs. So it is the old picturesque river driver, with his corked boots and stagged trousers, is rapidly becoming a figure of the past. His occupation is becoming obsolete, and so there will be little need for him.

The wages paid on the river used to be much better than today. Men would earn $3, $4 and sometimes even more a day. They earned it, too. Wet with ice-cold water from daybreak to darkness, running rapids and fighting jams, sleeping on the ground at night for weeks at a time in wet clothes, it was no easy life. Today the driver is offered $2.50 a day to undergo to a certain extent the same discomforts and perhaps risks, though the drive isn't often as long.

A few of the old-timers, halfbreeds, Frenchmen, and skilled all-around lumbermen, are said to be still in this country, but there are no longer the numbers that there used to be. The real lumberjack worked in the woods in the winter and drove the logs to the mill in the spring and early summer. At the end of the drive he spent his season's earnings in a carousal. When he had spent his money he returned to the woods to swamp and build roads for the winter. For each year he had the same program.

This year the low water is said to be hanging up a number of the drives. The winter's fall of snow was not sufficient to keep the rivers flooded for any length of time. On the White Face and Upper Cloquet it is said that the banks are lined with hundreds of logs left high and dry by the low water.

RICHEST TOWN IN UNITED STATES

Began Existence With Eighteen Voters and Twenty-Three Saloons.

St. Louis, Mo., May 6.—Benbow City, the flat town which has grown up around the Standard Oil company's new refinery, eight miles south of Alton, is the wettest town in Illinois, and because it is the wettest it is also the richest.

It began its corporate existence as a village today with eighteen registered voters and twenty-three saloons. Within the corporate limits of Benbow City there are 300 persons and one saloon for each thirteen inhabitants.

In addition to the twenty-three saloons, there are seven brewery agencies and each dramshop and each agency pays $500 a year license. Payments for the coming year have already been made and the little village starts out in life with a $15,000 nest egg.

The liquor interests have paid $50 for each man, woman and child in the village, the percapita wealth of which, by reason of this revenue from the liquor interests is greater than that of any town or city in the United States. Monday night the eighteen voters will meet to decide what shall be done with the money paid by the saloons.

Mayor Benbow says there is a sufficient amount to make streets, lay sewers, furnish light, water and fire protection and build a village hall.

OLD RESIDENT BURIED.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Angelina Juenamann, an aged resident of this section, who died at St. Joseph's hospital Saturday, was buried this morning from the Church of the Immaculate Conception. She was born in Germany seventy-four years ago and came to this country when 20.

Thirty years ago Mrs. Juenemann and her husband settled on a farm south of this city, where she resided until five years ago. On account of failing health the deceased was taken to the Old Folks' home. She is survived by the following children: Peter J. Juenemann, Henry Juenemann of this city and Father Demitrius of Washington state.

BREAD LINE DWINDLING

Numbers Now in the Forties—Small Jobs Changing Conditions.

Line May be Discontinued in the Near Future.

The numbers of the bread line have reached the low water mark. Fewer men get breakfasts at the Bethel now than at any time since the free coffee and sandwich movement was started several months ago. Between forty and forty-five men now get their initial meal at the Lake avenue home, where 300 lined up only a little over a month ago and the number is decreasing right along.

House cleaning in a small degree has aided in bringing this change about. From twenty to thirty men go out each morning for a half or whole day's work at 25 cents per hour. Such little jobs as that are said to have helped considerable in demolishing the numbers. The Bethel workers also think that a number of the men have got work unloading cargoes from the boats. They judge this from some conversations overheard among the men to the effect that thy thought they could get such work as soon as navigation opened up.

The warm weather probably has been the principal factor in relieving the situation. It has opened up many small jobs about the city. Then it has made it possible for the men to travel with more comfort than while the weather was cold. Many have undoubtedly left the city.

J. L. Moody, who has been in St. Paul, is expected back today. What he will do about the bread line is not known, but it is likely that if the line continues to decrease right along as it has been doing lately, that it will be done away with, though it will not be until it is seen that there is absolutely no need for having it any longer.

IS MEMBER OF THE BOOSTERS

Governor Johnson in Western Boosters' Trap Shooting Association.

Anaconda, Mont., May 6.—E. P. Mathewson, chairman of the local committee in charge of the Western Boosters' Trap Shooting association, is in receipt of a letter from the political manager of Governor John A. Jonnson of Minnesota, contributing $1 as a membership fee, and the Minnesota man is now a full-fledged member of the organization. A membership card was filled out and sent to the governor direct.

The letter is signed by F. B. Lynch and is dated at the Chicago headquarters of the Minnesota Democratic committee. It follows:

"Mr. E. P. Mathewson, Presiden; Western Boosters' association, Anaconda, Mont.—My Dear Sir: I hope you will allow me to contribute $1 to your treasury as a membership fee for Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota. The governor has many personal friends in Montana and throughout the West, and being Western born and reared, would, I am sure, be pleased to be identified with your worthy association.

"Wishing you unbounded success in your public-spirited work, I am, very sincerely yours, F. B. LYNCH."

Johnson Boosters.

The Standard says: "Governor Johnson is a big man and just now he is aspiring to the greatest office in the whole world, and his political managers are pushing him along at a breakneck speed. He has a number of personal acquaintances in Anaconda, every one of whom is a 'booster' and also a 'Booster;' they are doing their best for their friend and at the same time are active members of the association that has billed the greatest trap shooting tournament ever held in any country. They are crediting the Minnesota man with wonderful ability and say that he makes a regular business of overcoming difficulties, no matter how great, but they are reticient as to his ability to shoot. He may be a great man and it might be that he would make a most excellent president of the United States, but it is very doubtful if he can make good as a breaker of blue-rocks. As a trust-buster he may be all right, but when he comes to Anaconda to the big tournament he will have to beat Mathewson, Drumgoole, Hasley, Tuttle and a lot of others almost as good, and he will find it a tougher job than capturing the Democratic nomination for president at Denver."

IRRIGATION PROJECTS

Five Object Lessons for President's Conference With Governors.

Will Have Material Effect in Doing Away With Floods.

Washington, May 6.—When President Roosevelt confers with the governors this month about the conservation of natural resources, he will have a good illustration to help in explaining the object of the meeting. He can point to five irrigation projects now under construction which prove that more than two birds can be killed with one good conservation stone. Among the many closely related topics to be considered at the conference, one of the leading ones will be irrigation.

Five irrigation projects in the West, it will be shown at the conference, will give high agricultural value to a total of about 1,000,000 acres of land. That is their direct purpose. But incidentally they will have a material effect in doing away with floods, clarifying the waters of the Missouri and tributaries, maintaining a steady flow in those rivers and developing a large amount of power. The five object lessons to which the president will be able to point are the irrigation projects known as the Milk and Sun river in Montana, the Shoshone in Wyoming, the Belle Fourche in South Dakota and the North Platte in Wyoming and Nebraska.

The effect of these projects upon the floods and in regulating the Missouri is not left to the realm of speculation. The basis of success in irrigation, which is the chief object of each project, depends upon catching and holding flood waters, which formerly ran off unhindered, carrying destruction with them and augmenting the floods of the dread Missouri. In connection with each project a great dam is being constructed. With its help will be formed a mammoth reservoir, in which the flood waters of the spring and fall will be held in leash. The smallest of these reservoirs will hold enough to cover 203,770 acres of land with water one foot in depth, and the largest will hold enough to cover 1,025,000 acres to the depth of one foot. Altogether the reservoirs will have a storage capacity of 2,585,770-acre feet. Each acre foot is equal to 43,560 cubic feet, and if you wish to form some adequate conception of the great mass of water, you have but to figure out for yourself the cubical contents of all of the reservoirs. It will take twelve figures to tell the story.

The important point is that it is known, through figures gathered during many years that each reservoir is large enough to hold all of the flood water which its particular river will put into it. Each of these reesrvoirs is situated either at the headwaters of the Missouri, or at the headwaters of rivers which are tributary to the Missouri, and so the effect upon that worst of American rivers is direct. For its effect on floods the North Platte project will be most notable. The Platte river has a bad reputation for its antics. It has been estimated that its flood rampages, before it joins the Missouri, do a damage of at least $1,000,000 a year. The dam in connection with the North Platte irrigation project will cost about a million dollars, and it will hold more than a million-acre feet of flood water. As the reservoir is situated at the head waters of the North Platte, it will have a direct effect upon the lower river. Upon the South Platte, which also contributes to the floods of the Platte, the government has no reservoir. But private interests, encouraged by the success of government irrigation, are already constructing dams, and are thus co-operating in restraining floods.

In a similar way the Milk and Sun river projects will directly affect the headwaters of the Missouri, in Northwestern Montana; the Shoshone project will affect the Big Horn, whose waters ultimately enter the Missouri; and the Bells Fourche project will affect the Cheyenne, which has a reputation for floods and which adds to the volume of the Missouri.

The holding of 2,585,770-acre feet of water by these five reservoirs means more than accomplishing just that much in preventing floods. It means that those waters lose their power to carry down mud and silt into the Missouri. And if it were not for mud and silt, the Missouri would not have such a bad reputation. It is this burden of solids which clogs its channel and which causes the cutting of new channels and the destruction of agricultural land.

In the dry season the five reservoirs will become the means of swelling the flow of the Missouri and its tributaries. From the reservoirs the water will be gradually released. Much of it will be used for irrigation, but not all And of that which is used upon the land, it is estimated upon good authority about 30 per cent will find its way back into the streams, largely through seepage. All of these irrigation projects, except the Milk, will guarantee to each neighborhood abundance of very cheap power. As soon as construction has progressed a little further, the orders for electricity of the farmers and municipalities in the direct vicinity of each project will be taken. The installation of the necessary machinery, and the operation of the plant, will be in the hands of the federal government temporarily, the reclamation acts providing the necessary legal authority. Power will be sold at cost, an allowance being made only for operation, maintenance and depreciation. At the end of ten years, after the cost of the reclamation construction has been made good by the land owners, the electrical plant will pass into their possession. Thus the communities in the vicinity of each of the four projects will guarantee perpetual ownership of a public utility, which will become more and more prized as the fuel supply diminishes. The cheapness of this electricity will make it serviceable in families of very moderate means for light, for power in a great many activities about the farm, and ultimately for heat.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

SLOW TRACK FOR DERBY

Stone Street Captures the Kentucky Event in Poor Time.

Sir Cleges, Favorite Finishes Second and Dunvegan Third.

Louisville, Ky., May 6.—Finishing well in hand and leading by from one to three lengths for the whole of the last half mile, Stone Street won the thirty-fourth Kentucky derby yesterday over a track fetlock deep in mud. The finish was never in doubt after the horses had traveled three-fifths of the route and the only excitement at the finish was furnished by thre horses struggling for the place and show honors.

Sir Cleges, the favorite finished second, two and one half lengths behind Stone Street and a head in front of Dunvegan. Fifteen thousand peopit cheered the contestants over their journey of a mile and a quarter, which was covered in the slow time of 2:05 1-5.

The total value of the stake was $6,200.

The money wagered on tht big race totaled less than half the amount that usually changes hands on a derby. This was due mainly to the Pari-Mutuel betting machines and auction-pools which have been reinstated at the Downs.

Eight horses started in the derby. They were sent away immediately with fair start, Milford in the lead, Sir Cleges second and Banridge third, all the others well-bunched. Milford dropped the lead before the grand stand was reached and Banridge moved out in front, followed by Sir Cleges and Stone Street in easy reach.

At the three-quarters post Stone Street pushed in front and stayed there until the end. Only two favorites won. Services and Mortiboy in the fifth and sixth races respectively. Outsiders and second choices captured the rest of the card.

Philadelphia, May 6.—Philadelphia yesterday made it four straight from Boston, winning by 5 to 2, and taking first place in the American league. Milwaukee-Toledo game postponed on account of rain.

How nice it is to journey out into the woods, expecting three or four days of beautiful weather, with hours of angling in the sparkling stream and a string of speckled beauties for reward, only to run into slushy, sloppy ground, temperature near the freezing point, water muddy and streams high and not so much as a bite to recompense the ardent fisherman for the hardships endured.

That is the experience of nearly every one who has gone into the Northern Minnesota woods this season to fish the streams, which should give up their own at this time of the year. Fishermen returning to Duluth say the streams were never so high and the woods never more uncomfortable. Near the headwaters of the Sucker river, four inches of snow covered the ground last Sunday. The bait was no temptation to any fish that might be wandering around. Discomfort and hardship were the only results of the trip.

For two weeks more, the wise ones will remain at home. April 15 is a winter date in Northern Minnesota and the fishermen who rushed the season in former years are discovering the fact. They are putting their trips off long enough to make sure that winter doesn't interfere with them, and they will trust to the natural productiveness of Northern Minnesota streams to do the rest.

Stronger baseball teams than have ever been known before will wear the uniforms of Northern Minnesota towns this season. With "Beat Hibbing" as a slogan, every hamlet is going out into the world of professional ball players and securing men to take their money and beat Hibbing, if such a thing is possible.

The fans of the towns on the range will certainly get their money's worth in baseball this year. They will see men who have drawn good salaries in organized leagues play Saturday and Sunday ball as semi-professionals, and some of the games, at least, will rival in baseball excellence those the fans of the Northern league towns will see.

But what of the people who are footing the bills? The range towns are getting away from the semi-professional idea. Most of the men they are bringing in play baseball in summer. They do not intend to play ball two days a week and work the other five days. They will draw salary for seven days a week in most cases, and some of the salaries will not be insignificant. The fans will be well treated during the season, but at the end of it all, be Hibbing beaten or not, the man who has to go down in his pocket and dig up the coin will probably figure that professional ball isn't quite the thing for a town of amateur size.

According to W. W. Naughton, the San Francisco fight expert, the Attell-Murphy fight had a queer look. Murphy's showing was that of a man who knew he didn't have one chance in a thousand and he wanted to get it over with as soon as possible. It may not have been framed, but at any rate, it was a pretty poor exhibition, and the Frisco fight fans are disgusted. A few more of those affairs will result in the disgust being supplanted by antagonism to the sport and the promoters and fighters will lose their paradise. Few of them seem to be able to see farther than the middle of the next block.

When Cleveland opened the season at Detroit this spring, the big parade, the box work by the mayor and all the other frills of a league opening were put on by the mamagement of the Tigers, but the pennant was not raised. That ceremony was saved until June that another corking good crowd might be drawn out in that weak major league town. Now Detroit is up against a fine situation. The Tigers are in a race with Washington for last place and will remain there unless they mend their ways. The fans will surely rejoice when the pennant is raised to float over the heads of a tail-end team.

DEMAREST IS WINNER.

Chicago Athletic Club Member is 18:2 Billiard Champion.

New York, May 6.—Calvin Demarest of the Chicago Athletic club won the international amateur billiard championship tonight in the concert hall of the Liederkranz club. He came through the 18:2 balk line tournament without defeat.

FIRST LOOK AT THE SOX

Morrow's Team to Line Up Against Kelleys at Athletic Park.

Lineups About Fixed for Opening of the Season.

Tomorrow the fans get their first look at the Sox. Chief Morrow, with his string of prospective pennant winners, will arrive tomorrow morning from Madison, where they play their last game this afternoon, and tomorrow afternoon they will trot out on the lot at Athletic park to practice up with the Kelleys as the victims.

Old Jup Play and likewise Mr. Boreas, have been playing havoc with the training trip again this year. Yesterday, they butted into the show at Madison and Morrow, Cassiboine & Co. couldn't go on with their act. The Sox have played but one full series on the entire trip, that being at Rockford, where they grabbed off one game before the members of the club even knew each other. They haven't won a game since, either, but nobody is worrying over the losses. The team is just getting into shape, Morrow has been trying new men constantly, and, if they can go in and win when the pennant series starts, the exhibition games will be forgotten.

There will be many strange faces topping the white hosiery when the fans get the first peek tomorrow. Jim Haney and Josie Krick will be familiar figures, but the others will all be strangers to Duluth uniforms. Doc Voss has been seen on the local field many times, but he was always adorned with the Maroon of Winnipeg.

Morrow will be the "cynosure of all eyes," as the descriptive writers say. Speaking from the standpoint of avoirdupois, Morrow will loose nothing by comparison with Artie O'Dea and Eddie Herr. The fans hope he will lose nothing by weight of baseball ability either. They haven't had a chance to judge yet whether he has the ability to handle the reins of the Duluth team, but it will not take them long, after the season starts, to draw conclusions from the results he obtains.

The squad has undergone many changes since it first gathered at Rockford, Ill., April 18, and now it is down to a point where the line-up is about fixed for the opening of the season. Toot Thompson will probably replace Baker at third base, and there may be some shifts in the outfield, but otherwise the team which goes against Winnipeg on the opening day will be substantially the same as that which goes against the Kelleys tomorrow.

Though the general supposition is that the Sox will practice on the Kelleys tomorrow, Ziegler says not. He's dead in earnest when he says he is going after a victory, for beating the leaguers is no small honor to a semi-professional squad. If Ziegler's men can come back with the form they showed Saturday instead of the miserable class of ball they put up Sunday, there may be some hope for them.

The teams will line up as follows:

White Sox.	Position.	Kelleys.
Ness	1b	Buchanan
Pagles	2b	E. Olson
Baker	3b	Bernston
Koepping	ss	A. Olson
Ronabaugh	lf	Michlek
Fraine	cf	Potter
Morrow	rf	Cook
Voss	c	Black
Haney, Krick, Cierzon, Jacobson, Brandt	p	Brownlee, Larson, Cook

O'DEA'S MEN AT HIBBING

Brandon Team Will Play Five Games on the Range.

Terry Will Join Winnipeg Squad at Rockford This Week.

Artie O'Dea's Brandon squad left this morning for Hibbing and this afternoon, they open a series of five games with Judge Brady's Hibbing Colts. O'Dea is expected to arrive in Duluth from Burlington some time today and he will join his team at Hibbing. He has just been released from a hospital at Burlington and will not be able to get into the game until the opening of the season. The squad is in charge of Louie Livingston and Sam Menelce is captain.

The disposition of Toot Thompson and Frank Summers is still in doubt. The case has been taken up with Secretary Farrell of the national commission, as it is claimed South Bend did not notify the men of their disposition in time for Duluth and Fargo to hold them. It is probable a deal will be framed up so that Duluth will retain Thompson, but Summers doesn't want to go to Fargo under any circumstances and Fargo wants him badly, so that there may be some trouble in that quarter.

The Winnipeg team is bound north, playing its last game at Rockford, Ill., today. Terry is expected to report at Rockford and Herr will pick his pitching staff from Terry, Glenecke, Murphy, Wiman and Reiser. Crum, an outfielder, will report at Minneapolis, and Henderson will take his place in left field June 1. Pete King, the little second baseman, is not in condition and will go direct from Rockford to Winnipeg to go under treatment, in order that he may be in shape for the opening of the season.

Reports from Fargo are that McNeil is working out his squad on the diamond there and getting good results. He is well pleased with McLaughlin, the Duluth boy, who is playing short, and Brookins is also putting up a good game at third. The squad is strong in the hitting department and there is optimism in the camp.

St. Clements Win.

The St. Clement's Juniors defeated the eighth grade team of the same school yesterday by a score of 9 to 8 in a good game. The batteries were Leo Lalonde and George Ceass for the Juniors and James Wade and Fred Lalonde for the Eighth Grade team.

LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

Five Clubs Are Included in New Commercial Organization.

One Club Will be Free Each Week for Outside Games.

At a preliminary meeting, held last night at the First National bank, the Duluth Commercial Baseball league was organized, with a membership of five teams. Those represented and entered in the new league are: Wolvin Building, Board of Trade, F. A. Patrick & Co., Kelley-How-Thomson company and First National Bank.

The representatives at last night's meeting settled to business, with William McMullen of F. A. Patrick & Co. in the chair, and the following officers were elected: President, L. A. La Voie, F. A. Patrick & Co.; secretary-treasurer, R. H. Pearce, First National Bank; publicity representative, W. M. Staudt, Wolvin Building.

Beyond the organization of the league, little was done last night. Another meeting will be held next Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the First National bank, when a constitution will be adopted, a schedule will be submitted and voted upon and other arrangements made for beginning the season.

The league is organized on a business basis. Each club will be required to put up a guarantee deposit of $15, which will be placed in the treasury and held to assure the completion of the season by the team. The club dropping out will forfeit its deposit. It is very probable a trophy will be presented to the league by some commercial house, and it will be awarded to the winning team at the end of the season.

The league will play only Saturday ball, two games being played each week. Thus, one team will be free each Saturday to play outside games with other teams representing similar commercial houses or interests. The Board of Trade team has already arranged games with the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce and Chicago Board of Trade, to be played in those respective cities, and the Wolvin Building nine will meet the Hibbing and Coleraine office force teams, and similar clubs on the range. The membership of five teams does not tie them all down to league games every Saturday, and gives all a wider field in which to play.

Two fields have been secured by the league, and they will be put in the best possible shape. Every one of the interests represented in the league includes among its employes a number of good ball players, and the class of ball to be played will compare favorably with that put up by other teams in and around Duluth. Every effort will be made to make the league a substantial one, and it will play a prominent part in amateur baseball circles in Duluth.

First Game for Fitwells.

A picked team of semi-pros, styled the Pittsburgs, will come to Duluth next Sunday and meet the Fitwells at Athletic park in the opening game of the season for the Duluth team. The Fitwells have a strong squad under the captaincy of Frank Schaefer, and they expect to cut some figure in the semi-professional field this year.

Centrals at Superior.

The series of games for the interscholastic trophy will open today, with the Central Highs playing at Superior with Nelson-Dewey as opponents. The Centrals have a strong team this year, with Cook and Cummings, two of the best amateur pitchers in Duluth, on the staff. Spencer is working behind the bat. Cook will probably pitch this afternoon and Cummings Saturday, when the Highs will meet Blaine at Athletic park.

A CREW OF SIX-FOOTERS

Long, "Rangey" Squad Will Represent Duluth This Year.

Oarsmen Will Probably Take to the Water Saturday.

By the end of the present week, or early next week, the candidates for the Duluth Boat club crews, who have been working for the last six weeks in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, will take to the water.

Alterations are being made at the clubhouse this year, and the floats have not yet been placed in position. The verandah is being extended ten feet in width, and this has prevented the floats being anchored. This work will be done this week, however, and by Saturday it will be possible to take out the shells, if there are no delays.

The Duluth club will have a long, rangey crew this year. The squad of men working for the eight is a large one, and there are ten or twelve candidates who are very promising. Four or five members of last year's eight will be back, and there will be no difficulty in filling out the other positions. In fact, some of the old men may have to fight to hold their seats in the boat.

From present prospects Duluth will have the heaviest, "rangiest" and most evenly-balanced crew that ever represented the club. The men are all of much the same build. Of the ten or twelve most probable candidates, none are under six feet in height, the tallest being about 6 feet 2 inches. The lightest will not go under 170 pounds, and the heaviest not over 180. It is now only a question of holding the men together and getting them into shape. Under the coaching of Dr. F. L. Lynam they have learned the stroke thoroughly on the machines, and when they take to the water should be in good condition.

There is no reason why the fastest eight that ever represented Duluth should not be turned out this year.

Some days ago the directors of the club authorized an extension of their membership limit, from 700 to 800. So attractive has the club become, by reason of its enlarged facilities for recreation, and particularly so with its departure this year in supplying tennis courts and basket ball fields for young people at the main house, that this entire additional quota of 100 members has been entirely filled. The only way that new members now can enter the Boat club is through lapses of the older members by removal or resignation, and applications are coming in now for any such vacancies made in the club.

CANNOT MAKE TRIP.

English Polo Players Will Not Come to America This Year.

New York, May 6.—Announcement is made that the English polo team that was making arrangements to play a series of matches at Newport, Meadowbrook, Rockaway and other places in this country cannot come this year. William A. Hazard, secretary of the polo association, has received word that the proposed visit of the Englishmen has been given up.

HAVE EVEN BREAK.

Dick Hyland and Bert Keyes Fight Six Fast Rounds.

New York, May 6.—Dick Hyland of California and Bert Keyes of New York fought six rounds before the National Athletic club last night without a decision. The men were evenly matched and had there been a decision the match would have been declared a draw.

In Red River League.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 6.—A combination of ball players from St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls was defeated by the team representing Thief River Falls in a one-sided game here Sunday by a score of 28 to 1. The visitors were reinforced by a Bergus Falls battery, but this was unavailing against the local team.

EASY FOR HIGH PRIVATE.

Little Laid Against Speedy Gelding for Greenfield Stakes.

Jamaica, N. Y., May 6.—High Private, at the prohibited price of 10 to 3, easily won the Greenfield stakes for two-year-olds at 4½ furlongs yesterday. He so far outclassed the colts opposed to him that the bookmakers practically laid no prices against him. Proctor closed some ground on the gelding in the stretch, but High Private won easily by one length in fast time of 53 4-5, which is a low track record. Big Chief, the favorite, won the handicap at six furlongs from a good field of sprinters.

ENGLISH OUTCLASSED.

George Memsic Has Advantage in No-Decision Bout.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 6.—George Memsic, clearly outclassed Clarence English of Omaha in a ten round no-decision contest before the Pacific club last night. Memsic was the aggressor throughout, landing more frequently and inflicting a much greater amount of punishment. English did his most effective work with straight lefts to the jaw at long range.

EVANS IN COMMAND.

Santa Cruz, May 6.—The Atlantic fleet of battleships sailed at 3 p. m., for San Francisco with Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans in command, closely followed by the torpedo flotilla. Yesterday morning the Connecticut went to Monterey, whither Admiral Evans had come by train. He was met at the wharf by a launch from the fleet.

Four picked seamen lifted the admiral from the train and placed him in an invalid chair and rolled him to the launch, waiting at the end of the wharf. He walked down the ladder to the launch, leaning on a crutch and aided by two seamen, who assisted him at every step. The moment he was on board, the launch shoved off and in a few minutes was alongside the Connecticut. Everything on the flagship was in readiness and the moment the launch reached the ship, the admiral was hoisted in a chair to the deck and gently deposited on his old ship. The same instant the blue flag with the two white stars broke out at the mast head.

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM

A good liniment or plaster, or some good home remedy will usually give temporary relief from the pain of Rheumatism, but the disease is more than skin deep and cannot be rubbed away, nor can it be drawn out with a plaster. Such treatment neither prevents nor cures; the excess of acid, which produces Rheumatism, is still in the blood and the disease can never be cured while the circulation remains saturated with this irritating, pain-producing uric acid poison. The trouble will shift from place to place, settling on the nerves and causing pain and inflammation at every exposure or after an attack of indigestion or other irregularity. When neglected or improperly treated, Rheumatism becomes chronic and does not depend upon climatic conditions to bring on an attack, but remains a constant, painful trouble. S. S. S. drives out Rheumatism by neutralizing and expelling the excess of acid from the blood. It purifies and invigorates the circulation so that instead of an acid-laden stream, constantly depositing uric acid in the joints, muscles, nerves and bones, the entire system is nourished and made healthy by rich, life-giving blood. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice desired will be sent free to all who write.

WARSHIPS AT FRISCO

treatment, rejoined the fleet yesterday at Monterey and took up his quarters in the emergency cabin of the Connecticut, where he spent most of his time during the long trip down the eastern coast of South America, through the Straits of Magellan and on up the western coasts of the hemisphere, to be at the head of the line of sixteen ships on this day of their triumphal entry into the historic bay of the Far Western metropolis.

The occasion of the fleet's coming to San Francisco has been made an occasion unique in the history of the Western country. The governors of half a dozen prosperous Western states have arrived here to voice the welcome of the entire West to the battleships of the navy, and the more humble citizens of the various commonwealths have flocked to this city, to Oakland, to Alameda and the many suburbs of all three of these cities in unprecedented numbers.

300,000 Strangers Arrive.

It was estimated by railroad officials that more than 300,000 strangers have been brought into San Francisco alone during the last forty-eight hours. The fleet has been the topic of every city, town or hamlet within several hundred miles of San Francisco during the past two months, and every person able to make the trip—either by rail or horse-drawn vehicle—has come to witness both the arrival today and review of the fleet in the harbor by Secretary Metcalf on Friday. The secretary has been in the city for several days, and on board his reviewing ship, the Yorktown, saw the entry of the magnificent line of fighting vessels today from just within the harbor gates. Every hotel, boarding house and private residence within the neighborhood of San Francisco, is taxed to overflowing, and the crowded conditions are expected to continue during most of the ten days' program of entertainment provided for the officers and men of the visiting ships.

With the earliest streaks of the coming day, the thousands who wished to view the historic spectacle of the fleet's entrance began this morning to make their way to points of vantage along the shores running both north and south of the Golden Gate.

The harbor itself was jammed with pleasure craft from the earliest hours of the day.

SIGN OF CROSS CUT ON THROAT

Laborer, Insane on Religious Matters, Tries to End Life.

Insane on the subject of religion and the interpretation of certain passages of the Bible, Simon Johnson, a laborer, living at 502 St. Croix avenue, yesterday afternoon attempted suicide by cutting his throuat with a razor. The cut was made to resemble a cross. Johnson was taken to St. Luke's hospital, and it is believed that he will recover.

The man has been brooding for several days over certain passages in the Bible, and yesterday concluded it was his duty to die. Members of the family found him lying in a pool of blood a few minutes after the attempted suicide, and notified the authorities. It was believed he was dead, and the coroner was summoned, but groans from Johnson a little later made it evident that a doctor and not a coroner was needed.

Johnson has been out of work all winter, and his wife has been supporting the family by taking in washing. The Bible was found open on the table in front of Johnson.

CALENDAR IS LARGE

May Term of the District Court Will be a Long One.

About 200 Civil Cases Are on the Calendar for Trial.

The May term of the district court of St. Louis county opened at 10 o'clock this morning with the call of the calendar, Judge J. D. Ensign presiding.

The call of the calendar was largely attended by attorneys from the city and from the ranges as there were more cases noticed for trial this term than for any previous term of the district court. Of the 210 cases on the calendar this morning, sixteen were continued over the term, eleven were stricken or dismissed, leaving 183 cases. To this number will be added some twelve or thirteen cases, which will be moved on the calendar, so that the total number of cases for trial will not be far from 200.

The criminal calendar will also be a heavy one. The definite number of cases cannot be stated until after the grand jury gets through with its investigations, but it is generally believed that there will be from thirty-five to forty cases for trial, ranging from larceny and forgery to murder.

Sixteen grand jurors assembled at 11 o'clock and were instructed in their duties by the court. They organized immediately and adjourned until this afternoon, when they will begin to investigate the criminal matters held over for their attention. G. D. Swift was appointed foreman.

The grand jury will probably be in session for a week or ten days. An additional venire has been issued for six grand jurors.

The majority of the civil cases for trial are personal injury suits in which the damages asked range from $1,000 to $50,000. The aggregate amount asked in claims is said to be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

It Reached the Spot.

Mr. E. Humphrey, who owns a large general store at Omega, Ohio, and is president of the Adams County Telephone company, as well as of the Home Telephone company of Pike county, Ohio, says of Dr. King's New Discovery: "It saved my life once. At least I think it did. It seemed to reach the spot—the very seat of my cough,—when everything else failed." Dr. King's New Discovery not only reaches the cough spot; it heals the sore spots and the weak spots in throat, lungs and chest. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

EVIDENCES OF TERRIBLE CRIME UNEARTHED

to investigate the antecedents of the Gunness woman, she having lived in that city prior to her appearance here in 1900.

But even if these mysteries are solved there yet remain the puzzling incidents when the house was burned and when Mrs. Gunness and her children met their deaths. Two of these children, Myrtle, aged 11, and Lucy, four years her junior, bore the patronymic "Sorensen," having been born to Mrs. Gunness by her first husband. The third was Philip Gunness, aged 6 years. His father was killed by a blow on the head, said to have been caused by a sausage machine falling on his head four years ago. Sorensen died suddenly in Chicago prior to 1900.

Fire of Incendiary Origin.

That the fire which caused the deaths of these children and their mother was of incendiary origin is the firm belief of the local authorities, also they have strong suspicion that Ray Lamphere, driven by jealousy, was the man who started the fatal blaze.

The grewsome developments on the pretty farm have set the entire county agog. Numerous stories regarding the history of the place have been reviewed and the tragic death of a former owner has been the subject of revigorated recollections. Long before Mrs. Gunness acquired the place it belonged to Mattie Altic, and was well known as a resort; it became an eyesore to the citizens of Laporte. But just as steps were about to be taken to have the place closed Mattie Altic dropped dead of heart disease in the doorway after a night of revelry.

After Mrs. Gunness bought the farm, which contains sixty acres, it was improved considerably. A fine driveway led from the road to the house, which stood on a hill surrounded by trees, well kept lawns, dotted with shrubbery and flower plots, sloped away towards the fields on three sides, and on the rear to the great barn within which were stabled four horses, a pony for the children and several highly bred cows.

Shunned by Neighbors.

There was an orchard, a truck garden and a meadow. Nothing about the place suggested that it was an abode of mystery and death. Yet, because of the previous character of the place, it was shunned by the neighbors, and when the great death mystery which it held developed, there were no friends of the woman to whom the authorities could turn for information, save Roy Lamphere, former man of all work at the farm, and Joseph Maxson, whose short service had given him no inkling of the mysteries which enveloped the place. Maxson gave a graphic description of his attempts to save Mrs. Guinness and her children from the fire, this being corroborated by neighbors of undoubted integrity. Lamphere spent the night of April 27 at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, a negress, in Laporte. Whether he had time to reach the Guinness farm before the fire started is a question which has not yet been answered fully. On its reply depends the solution of the mystery.

A concrete floor, which Mrs. Guinness had put in the baseemnt, two years ago, will be torn up today, as it is thought there may be another "burial" beneath it.

Dr. J. W. William Myers will make a post-mortem examination of the stomachs of the victims, the theory being advanced that poison was first administered.

John Karson of 92 Francisco avenue, Chicago, 28 years old, a nephew of Mrs. Guinness, is here trying to arrange to take four bodies found in the ruins of the fire to Chicago, which, he believes, are the bodies of his aunt, Mrs. Belle Guinnes and her children, Myrtle, Lucy and Philip. The woman's body is headless. The nephew made a deposition before the coroner, Dr. Charles S. Mack, and a statement to the newspapers today, which throws light upon the past history of Mrs. Guinness. He said:

"My aunt was born in Trondhjem, Norway, where she still has a sister and brother living. Her maiden name was Belle Paulsen. She was 48 years old and came to this country twenty-six years ago. My mother is her sister.

Weakness for Children.

"My aunt had a weakness for adopting children. She was a queer woman and there was an estarangement in the family for about fifteen years. My aunt wanted to adopt my oldest sister, 15 years old, but my father objected. This caused the estrangement. She adopted Jennie Olson when Jennie was 8 months old. When first she met people she was cordial. Later, she would appear indifferent to them. She was married at the age of 24 to Max Sorenson. He died suddenly after eating supper. His wife had found him dead in a room upstairs. This was in Austin, Ill. There were rumors that Sorenson was poisoned. I understand the body was exhumed, but nothing was done otherwise.

"Her second husband was A. Guinness, whose death was also unusual. A meat clever fell on him in his home and fatally injured him. In addition, he was scalded. He died without making any statement. When my aunt lived in Austin, the house in which she lived was burned. Later, she lived at North Elizabeth street and Grand avenue, Chicago, where she conducted a confectionary and stationery store, but did not own the building. That place, too, was burned out, and she got insurance money. There was a report that that fire was started by her."

Another mystery has developed in the series of murders committed in and around the Guinness house. The sheriff today began an investigation into the disappearance of Ole Budsberg of Iola, Wis. Budsberg came to Laporte in March, 1907. He was acquainted with Mrs. Guinness, and in company with her visited the Laporte Savings bank, where he deposited a note for $1,000, to be collected by the Farmers' State bank of Iola, Wis. The note was paid April 6, 1907, and Budsberg received $1,000 from the Laporte bank. He has never been seen since that time. Messages sent from here to Iola have elicited the fact that he never returned to that place.

Story of Discoveries.

Laporte, Ind., May 6.—Laporte today is in the throes of a murder mystery that takes rank with the notorious crimes perpetrated by Dr. Holmes of Chicago and the Bender family of Kansas.

Five bodies, some of them dismembered and the parts sewn in gunny sacks, were unearthed yesterday in "soft spots" in the barnyard of the burned Gunness house, one mile out of town.

With the four imperfectly identified bodies recovered from the ruins of the house since the fire of April 28, which led to the arrest of Ray Lamphere, a carpenter, on suspicion of murdering Mrs. Bell Gunness, 44 years old, and her daughters, Myrtle Sorenson, 11 years old; Lucy Sorenson, 9 years old, and their half brother, Philip Gunness, 5 years old, there are nine bodies yet identified. Mrs. Gunness is believed to be the murderer of the men and children.

One of the dead men was lured to the Gunness home by a matrimonial advertisement. Lamphere was jealous of him, and in that there may be a possible solution of at least one of the crimes.

Two of Mrs. Gunness' husbands died under suspicious circumstances. The wife of the first, Max Sorenson, was insured for $8,500, and that of the second, Gunness, for $3,500. The companies paid the money over to her.

Twice in her career fire destroyed property belonging to Mrs. Gunness and in both cases she collected insurance from the fire underwriters.

Woman May Not Be Dead.

Today it is even intimated that the woman herself may not be dead—that she procured a female corpse, set fire to her own house and then fled, leaving the world to believe she had perished in the flames.

The first body dug up was that of Andrew Helgelein, a wealthy bachelor of Aberdeen, S. D., who came here in January and disappeared about Feb 1. The limbs and head had been sawed off and placed in gunny sacks which had then been sewn up. The body was nude.

In a second excavation a skeleton, believed to be that of Jennie Olson, an adopted daughter of Mrs. Gunness, who disappeared in September, 1906, was discovered. The girl was 17 years old at the time and was reported by Mrs. Gunness to have gone to Los Angeles, Cal., to attend college.

Continued digging brought the searchers to more sacks which contained the dismembered body of a large man. Decomposition had reduced the body to such a state that the only features recognizable as such were a dark mustache and dark hair.

Beneath this body was another layer of earth, under which were found the bodies of two children apparently about 12 years of age.

There are several more suspicious places in the grounds about the ruins, and the authorities resumed the search today with the chance of finding more bodies.

May Exhume Body.

Chicago, May 6.—Coroner Peter M. Hoffman has taken official cognizance of one phase of the Laporte, Ind., murders and today said that if evidence of foul play should be advanced he would exhume the body of Mads Sorenson, a former husband of Mrs. Belle Guinness, who died suddenly at his home in Austin, a suburb of Chicago, several years ago. "There will be no hesitation on the part of this office," said Coroner Hoffman, "to proceed with an investigation. If evidence of possible foul play is advanced, which would warrant action I should ask an order of court to exhume the body of this man Sorenson."

Owing to the suspicious circumstances surrounding the death of Sorenson an investigation was made by the police at the time, but no definite clew against anyone was found and the matter was dropped.

TRAINED NURSE

Remarks About Nourishing Food.

"A physician's wife gave me a package of Grape-Nuts one day, with the remarks that she was sure I would find the food very beneficial, both for my own use and for my patients. I was particularly attracted to the food, as at that time the weather was very hot and I appreciated the fact that Grape-Nuts requires no coking.

"The food was deliciously crisp, and most inviting to the appetite. After making use of it twice a day for three or four weeks, I discovered that it was a most wonderful invigorator. I used to suffer greatly from exhaustion, headaches and depression of spirits. My work had been very trying at times and indigestion had set in.

"Now I am always well and ready for any amount of work, have an abundance of active energy, cheerfulness and mental poise. I have proved to my entire satisfaction that this change has been brought about by Grape-Nuts food.

"The fact that it is predigested is a very desirable feature. I have had many remarkable results in feeding Grape-Nuts to my patients, and I cannot speak too highly of the food. My friends constantly comment on the change in my appearance. I have gained nine pounds since beginning the use of this food." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in packages.

from his sleep by a stab in the neck and before he could resist the boy drew a razor across his throat inflicting a severe wound. He was still conscious and saw the boy as he crept to the bedsides of Rebento and Macero and cut their throats while they slept.

Peraso, who, with his wife, was asleep in an adjoining room, was awakened by a stab wound in his neck and engaged the boy in a desperate struggle for his life. The man was unarmed and the boy, clutching a razor in his hand, slashed his employer several times about the face, neck and hands, inflicting wounds from which Peraso suffered great loss of blood. The fight was going against the barber when his three assistants staggered into the room and attacked the boy. Together they drove him from the rooms into the street, and then managed to summon assistance. It was then found that Mrs. Peraso's throat had been cut and that she was lying in bed only partially conscious while the fight with the apparently insane boy was in progress.

METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

"Little Dolly Dimples."

In support of Grace Cameron is Daisy King, claimed to be the most beautiful woman on the stage. Miss King is gifted with an excellent soprano voice, and in "Little Dolly Dimples" she renders some very pretty selections written especially for her by the author, C. Herbert Kerr. One of her big hits is the "Bobby" song, which is whistled by nearly everybody at the close of the performance. It is bright and catchy with a decided swing. Another number is "At Night in My Brilliant Salon," sung by Miss King.

Miss King will be remembered in Duluth by her many friends as Flora Belle Fly in "Little Johnny Jones" and many other big attarctions. She was engaged by C. Herbert Kerr to support Miss Cameron in her latest musical success, "Little Dolly Dimples," which will be at the Lyceum Wednesday, matinee and night, and Thursday night.

The Greater Minstrels.

Novel effects have been attained by Al G. Field in the staging of the first part of this season's Greater Minstrel show. The scene is laid in a hothouse or conservatory, wherein the plants are of the coolest leafy green, and the potted plants are all lighted within the flowers, and as the minstrels break into melody the flowers burst into illuminated bloom, making one of the prettiest stage pictures ever seen, either in a dramatic of operatic production.

The Al G. Field Greater Minstrels will appear at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday, matinee and night.

Chorus Girls' Contest.

Kittie Cease and Millie Lane, two of the Fay Foster beauties at the Metropolitan this week, will give a burlesque of the wrestling match between Frank Gotch and George Hackenschmidt at the "Met" Thursday evening, which is the time for the chorus girls' contest. This act is said to be very funny.

Others who will appear are Lillian Morley, "the girl with the green eyes;" Fanny Block, sensational dancer; May Alberta, dancing doll; Kitty Joseph, singer.

The chorus girls' contest will be held in addition to the regular performance.

CORNER HAS BEEN TURNED

George Gould Says Railroad Conditions Will Improve After July.

New York, May 6.—George Jay Gould said yesterday that he thought the corner had been turned in the financial situation and that while he looked for somewhat unfavorable railroad earnings perhaps until July, he was inclined to takt an optimistic view of the outlook. He said that while all roads would not be able to borrow with the same facility as the Pennsylvania, he was of the opinion that the sucess of the Pennsylvania and of the Interborough Rapid Transit issues had made it measurably easy for other roads to place loans.

Mr. Gould said he attached agreat deal of importance to the change that has taken place in the attitude of political leaders of Texas toward the railroads of that state. Mr. Gould said the change in the sentiment of the people of Texas with respect to the railroads had also become pronounced within the last three weeks. He believes that this more friendly sentiment on the part of the politicians and the people will gradually become general throughout the United States. He attributes the improvement in the outlook to the supreme court decision in the rate cases.

Referring to the Western Union Telegraph company, Mr. Gould said that the company had $1,000,000 cash in the bank, was paying all its expenses promptly, and that operating expenses had been so much reduced that net earnings, despite a falling off in gross receipts, have not recently shown any material loss.

Substantial progress is still being made, he said, in the construction of Western Pacific.

Graduate of West Point Under Arrest at Portland, Or.

Portland, Or., May 6.—Edward Hugh Martin of the New York city police department, graduate from West Point, once first lieutenant in the regular army and armor plate expert at Sandy Hook, was arrested yesterday on a charge of murdering Nathan Wolff, pawnbroker, in this city Friday last. Martin denies any knowledge of the crime. Against his denial is arrayed a great amount of circumstantial evidence and the statement of his wife, who, before her marriage to Martin, was Miss Tessie Griffin, a hospital nurse of Syracuse, N. Y., made to District Attorney John Manning, acknowledging that she fears her husband's guilt.

GUARDS KILLED BY PRISONERS

A Desperate Attempt Made by Russians to Escape.

Alexandrovsk, May 6.—A group of important political prisoners made an effort to regain liberty here today. Some of them were killed in the attempt but ten got away.

The prisoners were led by Ilinsky, the man who assassinated Gen. Count Alexis Pignatiff at Tver, Dec. 22, 1906. They attacked and disarmed the prison guards while at exercise in the prison yard. Three of the guards were killed and six were wounded with their own weapons. The prisoners then made a dash for liberty. The guards summoned help and a pursuit was begun, during which two of the escaping men were killed and four wounded. Three others including Ilinsky were recaptured. Ilinsky was serving a sentence of eleven years' imprisonment for the murder of Ignatieff.

MAY ATTACK GOOD NAME

Henry Wilson Held for Wife Murder May Plead "Unwritten Law."

Indictment Against Him Will Probably Charge Murder First Degree.

Henry Wilson, who shot and killed his wife, Flora Wilson, March 27 last, at their home, 5620 Grand avenue west, will probably be tried for murder in the first degree at the present May term of the district court. The grand jury, which just organized this morning, will investigate the shooting affray and will undoubtedly return an indictment charging murder in the first degree. If convicted on an indictment of this nature, Wilson will be hanged.

Wilson has been held at the county jail, without bail, ever sinve the tragedy occurred. It is claimed that he has not during the several weeks which have elapsed since the horrible affair, shown the least concern or expressed the least sorrow over his deed.

Although nothing definite has been given out as to his probable line of defense, it is surmised that he will attempt to palliate his deed by recourse to the "unwritten law," claiming that his wife was unfaithful to him and that he was beside himself with anger at her alleged acts when he did the killing.

If this defense is used, the state, through the testimony of the relatives and friends of the dead wife, will undoubtedly produce strong testimony, tending to show her good character.

Wilson shot his wife four times, the killing being done in the presence of their 12-year-old son, and Mrs. Douglas, a neighbor.

APPLAUSE FOR SINGERS.

Concert Given by Asbury Church Ladies a Great Success.

Success in every respect attended the concert given last evening by the Ladies' Aid society of the Asbury M. E. church. All the numbers given were well received by the large audience which packed the church. Ray W. Abbott, acted as director, and had charge of the program, and to him in a great part this success was due.

Prominent on the program was Miss Florence Hyland. Her artistic singing was shown to advantage in the aria, "Farewell, Ye Mountains," from Tschikowsky's "Joan of Arc." Her second number was "Down in the Forest," by Laudon Ronald. She responded to an enthusiastic encore.

Charles Applehagen gave his numbers in his characteristic style. They were "The Toreador Song," from "Carmen" and "The Bedouin Love Song." As an encore he responded with "Forgotten." John Koneczny sang "The Queen of the Earth," by Piusuti and gave "The Wanderer," as an encore. George Suffel's number was "The Viking's War Song," and gave as an encore "For Ever and a Day." The duet by Mr. Suffel and Mr. Koneszny, "La Forza del Destino," met with much applause, to which they responded with Balfe's "Excelsior." Soprano solos were given by Mrs. H. C. Merriman and Miss Clara Kenny. Miss Maud Gilbert fittingly rendered Clementis' "Opus 40, No. 3." Miss Eve Ketchum and Harry Weinberg proved very enjoyable readers. Two quartet numbers were sung by Thomas Doyle, George Jewell, Ray Abbott and Ben Smith. The singers were well accompanied by Miss Ethelyn Fee, Miss Elizabeth Morton, Prof. F. F. Rielle, Miss Pauline Solem, Mrs. Marbin, and Miss Alma Brotherton.

Miss Elizabeth Maddox was greatly appreciated in her violin solo, "Lustplel Overture."

So successful was their entertainment last evening, that the ladies are contemplating giving another concert in the near future.

WILL NOT ASSENT.

Republican "Insurgents" Do Not Like the Bennett Resolution.

Washington, May 6.—Leaders of the Republican "insurgency" on the currency question declared today, preliminary to tonight's continued caucus that they positively will not assent to the Bennett resolution offered last night, which proposed that the caucus declare in favor of the underlying principles of the Vreeland bill—commercial paper as a currency basis—as a temporary relief measure, approving the creation of a currency commission to report at the next session of congress and providing for a committee of five members of the house to draft an emergency bill along the lines of the Vreeland bill for passage at this session.

WANT SOLID DELEGATION

Gov. Johnson's Friends Are Active in West Duluth.

Voters Warned Against Tricks of Bryan Faction.

West Duluth friends of Governor Johnson are being warned to look out for fake "Johnson tickets" at the Democratic caucuses to be held this evening.

West Duluth is the center of a strong Johnson sentiment, and the Bryan faction in Duluth, realizing this, will in all probability attempt some of the tricks, which are being used in other parts of the city, in West Duluth. Pictures of Governor Johnson may be on the Bryan ballots, and a well-known Johnson supporter may be put on the Bryan ticket for the purpose of deceiving the voters. The only safe method for the governor's friends to pursue, is to vote for the tickets published in another column of this evening's edition of The Herald. The men on these tickets are all strong Johnson supporters, and if elected will see that the governor has the support of the St. Louis county convention.

It is now merely a question of getting the voters to the polls. Carlessness or a feeling of too great security will be the only thing to prevent the governor securing a majority of the delegates in the county convention, which will go a long distance toward insuring him the endorsement of his home state. His friends are also anxious to see that this endorsement is as strong as it can be made, and that it will leave no doubt as to the governor's standing in St. Louis county.

West Duluth delegates will cut a large figure in the convention and the governor's friends are working to secure a solid Johnson delegation from the Western end of the city.

THE WHEEL OF FORTUNE

In a Single Turn Makes the Poor Rich, and the Rich Poor.

Every day we read of great fortunes being won and lost. The young man or woman who has known every luxury from birth may tomorrow be thrown on his or her own resources for a livelihood. Those who are equipped with a thorough business training need have no fear. A commercial education is a necessity nowadays to rich and poor alike. The choice of a school, however is most important. It must be practical and thorough in its methods. Such an institution is the Duluth Business Universty, the foremost commercial school of the Northwest. Its gradates are sought not only by the business men of Duluth, but throughout Minnesota and adjoining states. Every new system which has been proven worthy is adopted, regardless of expense, and its staff of instructors are thoroughly competent in their respective departments. The young man or woman who graduates from the Duluth Business University has laid the firm foundation of a successul business career. This school makes a special feature of its summer course, employing its regular staff of teachers in all departments. The enrollment for the approaching season gives every promise of being a record breaker.

ENDOWS COT AT HOSPITAL

St. Luke's Benefits From Will of Mrs. Maria C. Griffin.

Foundation is Laid for Charitable Work at Hospital.

Foundations for an endowment fund for St. Luke's hospital have been laid.

Last night at the annual meeting for election of trustees for the hospital it was announced by Rev. A. W. Ryan, that through the will of the late Mrs. Maria C. Griffin of Muscatine, Iowa, who was a sister of Mrs. W. R. Stone of Duluth, St. Luke's hospital has been endowed with a fund of between $5,000 and $10,000, which the hospital will fall heir to, at the death of a relative of Mrs. Griffin, who has a life interest in the estate of the deceased.

This money is to be invested and the interest used for the supporting of a bed in the hospital for feeble minded children. If no such cases come for care at the St. Luke's hospital, the will directs that the money shall be used for general charity in connection with the hospital work.

Heretofore the hospital has looked to charity for its support, and each spring Dr. Ryan has had to go out and solicit donations to meet the indebtedness incurred by the hospital during the year, and to provide for it for the coming year. Aside from this the only means of support the institution has had, has been the interest from $200 invested at 6 per cent and bringing in $12 per year. This amount was donated several years ago.

Now that the corner stone for an endowment fund has been laid, the hospital workers are in hope that other such gifts will be forthcoming, so that St. Luke's may not have to rely alone on subscriptions from the public for support.

At the meeting last evening the following trustees were elected for a term of three years: R. B. Knox, F. L. Gilbert and Mrs. F. W. Paine. Henry Taylor was chosen to succeed W. S. Bishop.

CARL KAPP GETS FINE IN COURT

Husband of "Kissing Case" Witness Jailed for Drunkenness.

Carl Kapp, husband of Lillian Kapp, star witness in the Bergman-Kitz $5,000 kissing case, was in police court this morning, charged with being drunk. He drew a fine of $1 and costs, with an alternative of three days in jail.

Kapp says he doesn't know whether he kicked his wife's face or not when she refused to sign a paper, said to read to the effect that the case brought in district court was nothing more nor less than a practical blackmailing scheme.

BUILDINGS INSANITARY

Owners Still Persist in Raising the Rents, However.

The raise in the price of rents on certain insanitary property along Superior street is getting to be the despair of people leasing the buildings.

As an example of this, one case was brought to the attention of the city authorities yesterday, where the rent on a single room occupied by a saloon has been raised to $75 a month. Water and insanitary drippings from the hillside have collected under the floor of the place, until a foul smell fills the whole building.

"Five different men who came into the saloon, yesterday, to get a drink, went out again before buying, driven out by the awful odor," complained the proprietor of the saloon.

The buildings affected are for the most part constructed of wood, and some of them are so old that the sides are bulging outward. Being built above solid rock, they have no basements, and there seems to be no way of draining out the foundations.

TWO SETS OF DELEGATES FROM KENTUCKY DISTRICT.

Louisville, Ky., May 6.—After a stormy all night session the Fairbanks delegates to the Fifth district Republican convention withdrew early today, nominated N. C. Guerton for congress and chose Walter F. Glover and Joseph F. Conklin as delegates to Chicago. S. W. Nelson and J. M. Burnett were named alternates. All are from Louisville.

The Taft convention nominated R. C. Kinkead for congress and chose Col. Morris B. Belknap and Andrew Cowan delegates to Chicago. Herman Monroe and John W. Barr were named alternates. All are from Louisville.

WOODMEN ASSEMBLE

Delegates Gather in Duluth From All Parts of State.

Mayor Haven Welcomes the Visitors to the City.

The Minnesota state convention of the Modern Woodmen of America began in Columbia hall in this city at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

The principal business of the convention is to elect thirty-nine delegates to the head camp convention, which will be held at Peoria, Ill., June 16, next.

Dr. Thomas Lowe of Slayton, Minn., is a candidate for state head physician and will probably be indorsed by today's convention. Martin O'Brien of Crookston seeks the support of the state convention for a place on the national board of auditors, of which there are seven members.

About 150 delegates are in attendance at the state convention. They came here from every part of the state as the organization has a large and widely scattered membership. The order has something over 900,000 members in this country and of these about 60,000 reside in Minnesota.

The headquarters of the convention is at the St. Louis hotel.

The visiting delegates were given a ride on the boulevard early this morning, the carriages leaving them at the convention hall.

The badge provided by the Duluth lodge of Modern Woodmen is a handsome souvenir. It is a metal disk the size of a silver dollar, showing the aerial bridge. The badges are attached to heavy silk ribbons.

The convention was called to order in Columbia hall as soon as the delegates returned from their trip around the boulevard. State Counsel A. L. Hoffman of Brainerd presided and Head Clerk F. A. Noble acted as secretary.

The first order of business was the appointment of a committee on credentials, after which Mayor Haven, in a well-worded address, extended a welcome to the visitors assuring them of the pleasure that it was for Duluth to entertain so important a gathering. C. T. Todd of Slayton made a happy response on behalf of the convention.

The principal address of the morning was delivered by Charles E. Elmquist of Rush City, who talked on "The Modern Woodmen of America."

Members of the credentials committee were R. R. Barnes, E. C. Schwartz, W. F. Roche, W. G. Waller, H. Nauman, Bert Rodman, T. T. Gronlund, E. E. Burley and W. N. Powell.

The election of officers was next in the order of business, after the report of the credentials committee. When the committee reported, adjournment for lunch was taken.

Other business to be disposed of, beside the election of state officers, is the selection of delegates to the head camp, which will meet in Peoria in June.

FIGHT OVER A STONE WALL

Claimed Mike La Panta Threatened Death of P. A. Sjoselius.

As a result of a quarrel over the ownership of a small piece of land, Mike LaPanta appeared in police court this morning, charged with having threatened to kill P. A. Sjoselius unless he desisted in the work of building a stone wall on the premises. His hearing was set for 1 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The controversy over ownership of ten feet of ground has been in the courts, and the decision favored Sjoselius, giving the latter ownership of the disputed ten feet of ground. Sjoselius started to build a stone wall around the tract, and LaPanta offered strenuous objections, threatening to kill the victor, it is said, unless work is stopped. It is even said that he got up in the night time and tore down that part of the wall which had been built, and that workmen refused to continue working because of threats he had made.

The land in dispute is located on West First street, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues.

When the Bowels Become Sluggish with Age

As we grow old, the bowels become less active. It is so with all our muscles.

There comes a time when they must have regular help. Else there is constant clogging—chronic constipation.

Then Cascarets are important.

There is no other laxative which one can use regularly without ruin to the digestion.

Salts, pills and drastic cathartics are irritating. Their regular use is impossible.

Cascarets alone give the needed help without injury.

It is a vital thing to keep the bowels right. One cannot be well without it.

One free movement every day is essential.

Learn how much help is needed to accomplish that. Then take one Cascaret as often as necessary.

When one is twenty, Nature supplies the laxative, day by day, as needed.

When one is sixty, Nature fails to do that. Then she must have help—regular, gentle help. Not violent help at long intervals.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with C C C on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

Cascarets

The vest-pocket box is 10 cents. The month-treatment box 50 cents. 12,000,000 boxes sold annually. 824

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

In Duluth, Although the Other American Markets Are Off.

Flax is Unchanged at the Close in the Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 6.—Wheat closed higher in the Duluth market today, while the others in America, except Winnipeg, ended the session at prices lower than yesterday.

The strong foreign demand was the principal weapon of the bulls here, and in fiave of it the market could not go down to the closing level of yesterday. More than twenty-two loads of No. 1 northern and other grades of spring and durum wheat were worked for export in Duluth.

The selling pressure elsewhere was largely on the favorable crop conditions throughout the country and profit-taking.

Liverpool closed ⅝@⅝d higher, Berlin ⅝c higher and Budapest 3½c lower.

The May option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth, unchanged in Chicago, ⅛c lower in Minneapolis, ⅜c lower in New York and ⅝c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth, ⅜c lower in Chicago, a shade lower in Minneapolis, ⅝c lower in New York and ¼c higher in Winnipeg.

July corn closed ¼c lower in Chicago and unchanged in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅛c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat offerings were light during the early dealings, but buyers were scarce and although the market had a steady undertone with an advance of ½d. The advance was checked by the weaker American cables yesterday, which later resulted in a decline here of ½d. Following this and during the remainder of the morning, the market was well supported, with shorts active buyers and offerings light, and prices showed an advance of ½@⅝d from the opening. Support was attributed to the firmness of La Plata offerings, predictions of light Argentina shipments this week and the bullish Bradstreet statement. At midday the market was firm and from ⅝@⅞d higher than Tuesday.

"Corn was steady and unchanged. The market was wholly neglected."

Car receipts at Duluth were 31 against 153 last year, and at Minneapolis 138 against 252 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 172 against 404 last year. Chicago received 20 against 23 last year. Winnipeg received 60 against 160 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 361,000 bus, last year 723,000 bus. Shipments 408,000 bus, last year 534,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 162,089 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 368,000 bus, last year 614,000 bus. Shipments 494,000 bus, last year 467,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 53,000 bus.

Wheat was fairly active during the session of the local market. May wheat opened late at $1.06¾, declined to $1.06⅝ and rallied by the close to $1.06⅞, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday. July wheat opened ⅝c higher at $1.05⅛, declined to $1.04⅜, rallied to $1.05¼ and closed at $1.05½, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday. September wheat opened late at 91¾c, declined to 90⅝c and closed there, a loss of ⅞c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ⅜c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet and closed unchanged. May flax went to $1.20 and closed at $1.19½, unchanged from yesterday. July flax opened ⅛c lower at $1.21⅜, advanced to $1.22 and closed at $1.21½, unchanged from yesterday. September flax closed unchanged at $1.22½ and October flax at $1.21⅜.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Firm on Liverpool Advance, But Soon Eases Off.

Chicago, May 6.—The wheat market opened firm today because of higher prices at Liverpool, but soon eased off on reports of favorable weather in the Southwest. July wheat opened ¼@⅜c to ⅜@½c higher at 90¾@91c and sold at 90¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 192 cars against 260 cars last week and 427 cars one year ago.

The market remained weak during the remainder of the day, chiefly because it is believed that the forthcoming government crop report will be bearish. The low point for July was 89¾. The close was weak with July ½c lower at 90½c.

The corn market opened firm with wheat, but later eased off on realizing sales. July corn was ¼@⅜c higher at 64¾@65c and sold at 64⅝c. Local receipts were 163 cars with 11 of contract grade.

The oats pit was almost deserted at the opening today and trade was very light. The market was somewhat easier, July oats opened unchanged at 46⅝c and sold at 46⅜c. Local receipts were 130 cars.

Prices ruled weak on selling by longs, July declined to 64c. The market closed weak with July ¼c lower at 64⅜c.

A 5@10c decline in live hogs caused an easier tone in the provisions market. July pork opened 10c lower at $13.47½. Lard was 5c lower at $8.50. Ribs were off 2½c at $7.90.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.03¾; July, 90@⅞c; September, 85⅞c. Corn—May, 70⅝c; July, 64⅝c; September, 62⅝c; December, 54¼c. Oats—May, old, 54¼c; May, 52c; July, old, 46⅜c; July, 45c; September, 37⅝@37c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Holds Within 1 Cent Range With Volume of Business Small.

Minneapolis, May 6.—Wheat held within a 1c range today, with speculation light and the volume of business small. Duluth and New York reported export inquiry and with strong market abroad helped the local market. Minneapolis stocks increased 125,000 bushels for four days, but a comparison appeared showing that at 6,000,000 bushels the total here is the smallest May stock in twelve years. Receipts were 138 cars, against 252, and Duluth 34, against 153. The market was hesitant near the close. July opened $1.07¾; high, $1.08¼; low, $1.07⅜; close, $1.07¾@⅞. September closed 91¼c. May wheat closed $1.08¾.

Cash demand was dull, millers coming in moderately. A little went to outside millers. No. 1 Northern was 2c outside millers. o. 1 Northern was 2c over July and No. 2 Northern at July price.

Cash close: No. 1 Northern, $1.09⅛ spot or to arrive; No. 2 Northern, $1.07⅛ spot or to arrive; No. 3 white, 99½c@$1.09⅛.

No. 3 yellow corn, 67¼@67¾c.

No. 3 white oats, 50½@51c.

No. 2 rye, 75¼@76¼c.

Barley was dull. Crop news from South Dakota was less favorable but that had no effect. Business was very light only one car being sold. Close: 55c to 67c.

Flax in excellent demand at 1c under Duluth July for the No. 1 seed on spot here. Close: $1.20¾.

Bran in bulk, $21.75@22.00.

Millers quoted flour strong and with July wheat at $1.08 an advance seemed likely but no changes were made. The Minneapolis mills are operating at a rate of about 45,000 barrels a day and domestic demand is just about heavy enough to offset the daily grind. Shipments, 47,035 barrels. First patents, $5.45@5.60; second patents, $5.35@5.50; first clears, $4.20@4.20; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

SCULLY IS RELEASED.

Can Return to Floodwood and Protect His Claim.

James Scully of Floodwood, who has been held at the county jail for several days, on the charge of assault made against him by a neighbor, has been released on his own recognizance, and money has been furnished him by local firms to return to Floodwood, where he claims his neighbors are trying to fleece him out of his claim.

The alleged trouble arose over the ownership of the claim at Floodwood, between a neighbor and Scully, and at the charge of the neighbor, Scully was brought to Duluth and placed in the county jail. Scully was loud in his protests, claiming that parties at Floodwood are plotting against him and had him arrested so as to get the claim from him in his absence. He is now free to go to Floodwood and straighten out the difficulties.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Started Generally Higher and Trading Was on Broad Scale.

Close Was Strong With Some Reaction on Profit-Taking.

New York, May 6.—Fractional advances were general in the opening stock market today, exceeding ½ in St. Paul, Great Northern preferred, Texas & Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie, Amalgamated Copper, and Manhattan, Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Delaware & Hudson, American Smelting and National Lead 1; and Denver & Rio Grande and American Locomotive 1½. The dealings were on a large scale and showed considerable animation.

Profits were taken on the advance in a few of the active stocks, but there was enough for the others to sustain prices well. The irregular character of the trading caused some contraction in the dealings, especially in Reading and the Pacific group. Northwestern improved, 1¾; Louisville & Nashville, 1½; Amalgamated Copper, 1¼, and Baltimore & Ohio, 1.

The market during the second hour was irregular and dull. Prices sagged for some stocks while rising for others. Bonds were irregular.

Business became quite active again with prices on a rising gscale. A considerable demand prevailed for low priced railroad stocks and specialities. The representative stocks did not advance much beyond their best prices of the morning, although a great deal of stock changed hands. Chicago & Alton got up 3⅜, the preferred 5, Federal Mining preferred 2½, St. Paul, Atchison, Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific and Canadian Pacific 1.

Prices advanced without opposition the day's rise failing to bring out any important selling. Northern Pacific advanced 2¼.

The market closed strong. St. Paul's strength was conspicuous, the rise reaching 1⅜, and United States Steel was lifted to near 37. The general list was held about stationary by profit-taking sales, and there was some later reaction, but a rally followed.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The creeping bull market still continues with Amalgamated and Smelters the leaders. Amalgamated closed at $63 and the local coppers were all strong in sympathy. Atlantic was weak at the close on profit-taking, but will get higher when more is known of the value of the lode struck. We see the best kind of buying in Lake and the floating stock is being exhausted. North Butte closed the highest since last summer and so did Copper Range. Parrott was very active and we understand that they are striking very rich rock at present. Altogether it was the best market for a long time and foretells higher prices in the near future.

REAL TREASURE ISLANDS.

Buried Fortunes Which Have Been Unearthed in the West Indies.

A little sailing yawl, manned by three men, put into New York harbor the other day, after an adventurous voyage of 120 days from Liverpool, during which time she had covered over 7,000 miles. The aim of her crew is to seek for a treasure buried long ago by pirates on an island near the coast of Honduras. Treasure hunts are continually going on in the West Indies and the Spanish Main, but the hidde hoards are not often brought to light. None the less, writes a globe-trotting contributor, in London Answers, I heard of a few cases during five years spent in the Caribbees.

Emanuel Bodden, the skipper of a Grand Cayman turtling schooner, had an extraordinary strike of luck about six years ago. He had brought his little vessel alongside a bark which had stranded on a coral reef near Jamaica and been abandoned, and was taking what he could find of value from the wreck. Looking over the side, he saw a yellow gleam on a shelving rock several feet beneath the clear water.

Thinking is was a piece of copper sheathing, he dived for it—and came up with his hands full of gold coins. They were Spanish doubloons and pieces-of-eight of the seventeenth century. There were hundreds of them on the sunken reef, as well as some pieces of wreckage that apparently had belonged to an ancient Spanish boat. All day long the skipper and his men dived for the coins, and they sold the lot to a merchant in Port Royal street, Kingston, Jamaica, for close on £600. I was there when the deal was made, and examined several of the coins, which were in an excellent state of preservation.

How came they to be lost in this strange manner? There are many theories, but probably they were being carried loose in the boat when it was capsized. There were no skeletons by the boat, so it must be supposed the crew were picked up.

When I was staying at Nassau, in 1901, a strange story was told by two fishermen, who came to town from one of the islands near by. They said that an American white man came ashore to their fishing hut from a small yacht, and engaged them to row him to another island several miles off. They rowed all night, and in the morning landed. He made them dig at a spot he pointed out, after consulting an old parchment, and he watched over them closely, with a Winchester rifle in his hand. At last they unearthed a small, but very heavy, iron-bound chest, with which they rowed away to the yacht. As soon as it had been hoisted aboard the vessel departed.

This story could hardly have been invented by the fishermen, for the American and his yacht had been at Nassau only a few days before, and he had made many inquiries about the islands in the vicinity. What did he find in the chest? Nobody in Nassau doubts that it was Capt. Kidd's famous hoard, said to have been hidden thereabouts.

The abortive revolution in Hayti, led by Gen. Firmin and Admiral Killick, was largely financed by an old French treasure found by the latter in a ruined chateau on the island of Tortuga. It had been buried there in the days when the Haytian negroes massacred their French masters. This find was not a lucky one for Killick. He perished, after his cause was lost, in the destruction of his cruiser Crete-a-Pierrot as a pirate by the German gunboat Panther.

SLICING MONSTER DIAMONDS.

It is to be hoped that in the case of the great Cullinan diamond, now being cut for the King at Amsterdam, there may be no repetition of the blundering which has so seriously reduced the value of that other British royal gem, the world-famous Koh-i-noor.

This latter, which was originally known as the great Mogul, weighed in its rough state nearly 800 carats. When however, it came into the possession of Shah Jehan, it was instructed by that monarch to one Hortensio Borghese, a Venetian lapidary, to be cut.

So unskillfully was the operation performed that the huge diamond was reduced to a mere fragment, weighing only 186 carats. Jehan was so enraged that he not only refused to pay the lapidary, but he also fined him 1,000 rupees.

IF YOU ARE THINKING

Of building a home, call and look over our large list of choice building sites, in all parts of the city.

We call attention particularly to the normal school district, from Twenty-first avenue east to Twenty-seventh avenue east, and from Second street to Fifth street. We are exclusive agents for a large amount of property in this district, which is sold with clause in the deeds, restricting the use of each tract to the building of one modern residence only, and prohibiting its use for mercantile buildings, flats or apartment houses. This protects purchasers of these lots and assures them of a desirable residence district for all time. Building is cheaper this year and now is the time to get your site. DO IT NOW.

On some of these sites we can arrange to build to suit you, and sell on favorable terms.

We are about to build three 7-room brick houses on attractive East end sites, and which we can sell on easy terms of payment. Will be pleased to show the preliminary plans which may be changed to suit purchasers before buildings are commenced.

HETTY GREEN LEAVES FLAT

She Moves From Hoboken Into the Plaza Hotel.

New York, May 6.—Mrs. Hetty Green, "the richest woman in the world," has moved from the flat in Washington street, Hoboken, for which she has paid $15 a month for several years, and now lives at the Plaza, where her rent is thirty times as much as it was in Hoboken.

When Mrs. Green exchanged the severe simplicity of the Hoboken flat for the Savonlerre carpets and the rose silk hangings for $15 a day suite in the Plaza she took with her to share her altered fortunes, her daughter, Miss Sylvia Green and her maid.

Mrs Green admitted last night that she likes to dwell in marble halls, and although she had hoped it would not become known generally that she had begun to spend money so fast, she had decided she was entitled to the best $15 a day will buy at the Plaza.

Dressed in black, she sat last night upon an upholsterid divan in the reception room of the hotel idly looking into a mirror that cost a lot of money.

"This," said Mrs. Green, surveying the costly furnishings that lay about her, "this is better than Bellows Falls."

At Bellows Falls, Vt., Mrs. Green has a summer home, to which she will go later in the season.

Mrs Green knows many persons who live at the Plaza. She has called on some of them and some of them have called on her. To those with whom she has talked she has pointed out the advantages of Central Park as a field for exercise. Mrs. Green is fond of walking. She had not been at the Plaza before she went there to engage apartments. When she saw there was an automatic clock, an automatic heat regulator and a telephone in her apartments, she said:

"It may be some comfort to know what time it is, and it may be pleasant to know how hot or how cold it is, but I can get along without that telephone. Just tell them down stairs that Hetty Green hasn't any telephone."

She was interested when she found that on each floor of the hotel there is a full office staff, a clerk, maids, hallboys and telephone operators.

"Sakes alive!" said Mrs Green. "what do all you people find to do?"

"We answer calls," said one of the maids.

"I won't bother you much," said Mrs. Green. She has kept her word.

REV. J. B. HINGELEY.

all the delegates were in their seats, and the remainder of the spacious Auditorium was filled with interested spectators of both sexes, who followed the proceedings with the closest attention. There are accredited to the conference 787 delegates, who, with the fraternal visitors, came from twenty-four different countries, and represent more than 3,000,000 communicants of the Methodist Episcopal denomination. Among them are men of national and international reputation.

Following the roll call of delegates, Rev. J. B. Hingeley of Minnesota, secretary of the last general conference, was re-elected to that office by acclamation, there being no opposition candidate. A large corps of assistant secretaries also was named. Then came the adoption of the rules of order and the announcements of committees.

The conference will meet daily, Sundays excepted, from 8:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m.
